ST. REMI, Que. (CP) — A tornado which ripped through this town during the weekend has caused damage estimated at between $20,000 and $1 million damage and left a seven-month-old child in critical condition.

Police said much of the debris left in the wake of a tornado has been cleared.

"The trees have been pushed off the roads and now they will be cut up and taken away," police said.

"Things are beginning to return to normal now."

One man was slightly injured when an uprooted tree hit the truck he was driving.

Romain Lanzier, mayor of St. Remi, asked the provincial government for assistance for the community.

"I estimate damages at $1 million," Mr. Lanzier said. "They have to help us."

This area is known as the windy part of the country but I've never seen anything like a tornado," he said.

The twister struck just before 2 p.m. Saturday, bringing hail and rain, lifted roofs off houses and blew down barns.

A 68-foot mobile home was tossed in the air, and its three occupants injured. One-month-old Annie Gleotney had her skull fractured and her parents suffered minor injuries and shock.

The trailer crashed into pieces." Gaetan Gleotney said. "We lost everything."

"It was like a disaster area," he said. "Like things you normally see on TV."

Roads to the community, 20 miles south of Montreal, had been blocked by fallen trees. There were 40 hydro poles and 30 telephone poles blown down, cutting electricity and communications.

Salisbury Police Kill 13 Blacks

SALISBURY (AP) — Police fired repeatedly into crowds of rioting blacks in this capital of Rhodesia on Sunday, killing 13 and wounding 25 persons, a police spokesman said.

Three policemen, two blacks and a white, also were wounded in the disturbance which lasted through most of the night. Rioters looted stores and set fire to buildings and cars. Police said 27 blacks were arrested.

The trouble started at a meeting of leaders of the African National Council (ANC) to discuss Prime Minister Ian Smith's proposal for a black-white conference on Rhodesia's political future.

Thousands of supporters of the rival Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU) and Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU) massed outside the meeting.

A police spokesman said the crowd beat up a ZANU executive member as he tried to get into the meeting, another ZANU executive member was thrown out of a window and the two factions in the crowd started fighting.

The police opened fire when the crowd started throwing rocks at police dog handlers, the spokesman said. Five Black rioters were killed and eight were wounded by the first shooting.

The rioting spread to neighboring black areas as night fell, and the police firing continued. The mobs burned cars and looted and burned shops.

The ANC meeting condemned the violence and criticized the police. But it said the leaders decided to hold preliminary talks with Smith to demand universal suffrage and immediate majority rule and to hold a congress in Salisbury June 21-22.

Smith has said he is opposed to immediate adult suffrage although he accepts the principle of majority rule at some time in the distant future.

The crowd outside the meeting was estimated officially at 2,000 by up to 60,000 by observers.

The police, outnumbered by about 20 to one, fired with revolvers, rifles and riot guns.

The shootings are certain to have a serious effect on moves by South African Prime Minister John Vorster and Zambia's Kenneth Kaunda to reach a peaceful settlement to black-white tensions.

Vorster has said if there is no detente, he would not care to say how bad the future might be.

Black governed Mozambique on Rhodesia's eastern border would withdraw its advisers from Portugal this month. That will leave Angola and Rhodesia bounded by the black states of Botswana and Mozambique, except for a 140-mile border strip with South Africa.

South Africa, Rhodesia's only ally, is unlikely to become any upset in detente, but Vorster said it would not bring sanctions against Rhodesia and will continue to help his neighbor.

—Vorster already is under pressure to move his police out of Rhodesia, but an increase in military activity by ZANU and ZAPU may force him to keep them there.

He was expected to help Rhodesia break economic sanctions taken against it by other countries by allowing it to continue sending goods through South Africa for export.

However, Vorster's position may change if South Africa feels Rhodesia is not contributing to detente.

Israel Withdraws Force As Canal Peace Gesture

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is reducing its tanks, firepower and troop strength along the Suez canal as a gesture of peace toward Egypt for the reopening of the waterway, Premier Yitzhak Rabin announced today.

Rabin said half of Israel's tanks in the front line zone will be withdrawn to at least 18 miles from the canal, and all artillery pieces will be pulled back 19 miles from the shipping channel.

All missiles except antitank missiles will be moved behind a line 24 miles from the canal, Rabin said, and 3,500 men—half Israel's front line troops—will withdraw from the limited armistice region east of the United Nations buffer zone.

Egypt is to open the canal Thursday and "the government of Israel is interested in the safety of international shipping and trusts that an atmosphere of tranquility will prevail in the area of the Suez canal and the Gulf of Suez," Rabin said.

The premier added, "The government of Israel considered the renewal of international shipping as an important and constructive development."

Ford Promises Peace Pact

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — U.S. President Ford concluded summit talks with Egypt's Anwar Sadat today and said he would unveil a Middle East peace-seeking formula within the next month.

Appearing before reporters with the Egyptian president, Ford talked optimistically about prospects for a Middle East peace "in the interests of all parties."

Ford said he has yet to make "final judgments" on the peace-seeking formula.

"We have not made any decisions as to the next step," Ford said in response to a question. "There are, of course, a number of alternatives. It is premature to indicate in any way whatever that a decision has been made."

Speaking in English, Sadat said he will return to Cairo to confer with his associates on approaches to peace. "I shall be always in contact with President Ford," whom he invited to visit Egypt.

Sadat called the president a "peace struggler" and said the big achievement of the summit was to establish a personal relationship with the U.S. leader.

As Ford and Sadat spoke, Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin announced in Jerusalem that Israel is reducing its tanks, firepower and troop strength along the Suez Canal as a gesture of peace toward Egypt for the reopening of the waterway.

Rabin said half of Israel's tanks in the front line zone would withdraw to at least 18 miles from the canal, and all artillery pieces would be pulled back to 19 miles from the shipping channel.

All missiles except antitank missiles will be moved behind a line 24 miles from the canal, Rabin said, and 3,500 men—half Israel's front line troops—will withdraw from the limited armistice region east of the United Nations buffer zone.

Nixon Predicts

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Saturday warned that return of Conservative government in next provincial election would see widespread introduction of regional government. It was among charges he made during speech at Harmony Public School in Thurlow Township, opening tour of Hastings-Peterborough riding.

Crackdown Coming On Valium

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two widely sold tranquilizers, Librium and Valium, will come under strict U.S. government control on July 2, two federal agencies announced Sunday.

The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) and the department of health, education and welfare said Tranxene and Serax, the sedative Dalmane and a new drug designed to control convulsions, Clonopin, also will come under government control July 2.

The agencies said Valium is the largest-selling drug on the U.S. commercial market—nearly three billion tablets were sold last year—while librium ranks fourth. More than one billion capsules were sold last year.

Beginning July 2, a doctor's prescription for Valium, Librium and pharmacists also will be refilled more than five times and may not be refilled at all after six months.

Manufacturers, physicians and pharmacists also will be required to keep records on production and distribution and tighten security. Producers and distributors must comply by Aug. 1.

The same requirements will apply to Tranxene and Serax and to Clonopin when it is put on the market.

Meat Seized At Brockville

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Provincial health inspectors seized 450 pounds of tainted meat at several outlets in Smiths Falls, Athens and Brockville Saturday and Sunday.

They reported that no supermarkets were involved in the raids and that the meat involved came from inside Ontario.

The spectre of tainted meat on the open market first arose in Quebec province in May and last week in Ontario health department and inspection of provincial outlets would be increased.

Nixon Fears Regions

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Centralization of controls by the Davis administration is eroding local government in the province is a Port Colborne Liberal leader Robert Nixon charged Saturday.

And, he warned, if a Conservative government is returned in the next provincial election, it will immediately impose regional government across Ontario.

His remarks came as he started a day-long tour of Hastings-Peterborough riding just north of Belleville at Harmony public school in Thurlow Township.

In a half-hour of speech-making and answering questions, Mr. Nixon repeatedly attacked the Conservative decision-making away from local communities even to the extent it now held "veto" powers over municipal councils.

In that issue now lay the "substantial philosophical difference" between Ontario Liberals and the ruling Conservatives, he said.

Among the consequences of such government policy, he charged, were:

(1) The province's takeover of local assessment systems has become a "terrible, expensive mess".

(2) Local government in Ontario "is simply becoming a joke".

Sweeping regionalization of local governments will be one sequel if the next provincial election returns a Conservative administration.

If the Tories are re-elected, Ontario will be regionalized from Ottawa to Windsor in the first year," predicted Mr. Nixon.

Party supporters staged a morning coffee session at the medium of public contact for Mr. Nixon in the township. He was visiting the new riding as part of the political campaign of Liberal candidate David Hudson, 19-year-old Bancroft high school teacher.

Mineral Studying Supported

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

Liberal riding candidate David Hudson has proposed the school for the permanent use of school children and geologists in Ontario.

"Bancroft probably has the highest distribution of minerals of anywhere in North America, maybe in the world, and one of the things that could be done would be to establish a special mineralogical school there which would mean that young people and others who are interested in mineralogy could use it as an educational centre," said Mr. Nixon, during his Saturday tour of the newly-created Hastings — Peterborough provincial riding.

"This could be established on the basis that this is a great advantage that Bancroft has, and we should do everything of it," the Liberal leader added.

Sicilian Convicts Get Transfer

AUGUSTA, Sicily (AP) — Three convicts in the Augusta jail today were promised a transfer to a jail on the Italian mainland after holding two guards hostage for 13 hours.

Four other convicts were holding four guards prisoner and threatening to kill them unless these convicts were given guns and allowed to escape in two cars.

This group stabbed and seriously wounded another guard and set a sixth guard free in what they called a goodwill gesture.

The government moved more than 200 policemen into and around the prison, a medieval castle in the centre of this city in eastern Sicily.

All but one of the convicts were convicted of murder or attempted murder and were serving terms ranging from nine years to life. They were armed with sharpened spoons and iron bars they had broken from their cots.

One group of four convicts grabbed two guards on an inspection tour Sunday night, took their keys and let the rest of the 325 men in the jail out of their cells.

In the confusion, another group of four convicts took six guards as hostages and barricaded themselves in an office. It was this group that demanded freedom, stabbed one of their hostages to demonstrate that they meant their death threats and today released another guard as a so-called goodwill gesture.

The other group demanded transfer to the mainland because it would be more convenient for their relatives and attorneys to visit them there.

Before the transfer was granted and they gave up, one of the four surrendered because he had been wounded in a fight with a guard. He was reported in no danger.

Authorities said the convicts who were holding out had been influenced by ultra-leftist groups that have been developing contacts with the underworld in jails and outside and fomenting riots in prisons.

Coming Up Roses

For Hastings Manor residents, things will be coming up roses in the next month or so, the result of a rose bush project started last year by the Kinsmen and K-40 clubs in Belleville. Here, Jim Barrett and John MacDonald put the final touches on one of 80 rose bushes planted in six beds on the manor's front lawn Saturday.

UCS to Study Financial Aid Counselling for City Residents

Services is investigating possible subsidies that would allow a debt counselling service to locate here.

Members of the UCS board of directors met recently to discuss debt counselling and if there is a need for it in Belleville.

The board unanimously supported the idea of searching out funding from the province's ministry of community and social services.

Until recently, the UCS has offered debt counseling on a limited basis but this program was cancelled when the counsellor was transferred in his job, said Gord Mullin, director of the UCS.

Dave Morrow, employed with social and community services in Belleville, said his ministry looks favorably on projects such as this and provides 60 per cent of program funding.

The only drawback is that the program must be run on a full-time basis and that sponsors must show the service will be maintained on a long-range basis.

Board member said they are not sure there will be enough call for a full time service.

Mr. Morrow said he will gather some printed information concerning provincial grants for study by board members. If more information is required, he said he will arrange for Toronto officials to meet with the board in person.

Though Mr. Mullin said the UCS office receives "few calls" for financial counselling, board president Frank Seemangal said following the meeting, "I'm sure there must be a great need for this kind of service in the city."

Osborne Heads Education Week

G. L. Osborne, a teacher from the Lennox-Addington County, has been elected to head the 1976 Ontario Education Week Committee. The Timiskaming District will be the host county next year for the celebrations.

First vice-president for the committee is Margaret O'Flaherty, Timiskaming district, second vice-president is Don Hyland, from Windsor and the secretary-treasurer is Roland Glendenning, from Brockville. Members were elected at the Toronto Education Centre May 24. Four attended from Hastings County.

Hastings County was the focal point for education week activities this year with education minister Thomas Wells making a visit to Belleville in late April.

Ideal Closes Doors

DESERONTO — Production ceased Friday at Ideal Vendors, the town's largest industry which served notice it was closing down five months ago.

The plant — which produced self-drink dispensing machines as a division of Eddy Match — has been in operation since 1940 and employed about 200.

He said 40 employees — including office, sales and cleaning personnel were still at work. But these jobs would be gradually phased out by the end of August as the company wound up business, said Mr. Moore.

The shutdown was first announced Jan. 10.

At that time an Eddy executive said the plant was being closed down because of annual operating losses.

Nixon Backs Use of Small Power Boats on Park Lakes

Mr. Turner, who is also a member of the Ontario Provincial Parks advisory board, said use of small motors on the interior lakes will not harm the environment of the water or fishing quality.

The local club has submitted briefs during the last year on the Algonquin issue" to local MPP Clarke Rollins and to Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources.

Several weeks ago Mr. Rollins indicated his support for the use of the motors and recently Mr. Bernier announced that the restrictions on the motors would not go into effect until 1976 at the earliest.

The liberal candidate for Hobson has stated he feels the small motors should be allowed in the interior lakes.

Mr. Nixon said, "I've talked to Dave Hobson very carefully about this, and it is my view that rather than eliminate the motors entirely they should be limited to those that are useable by a good fishing sportsman."

"They should be five horsepower or less put on a small boat, so that there is no way that a large power boat is being taken into the park to interrupt what many people feel is an important aspect of one of the greatest parks in the world," said Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon also stated he would be in favor of a mechanical conveyance for the transportation of the small boats however.

"I would not want a conveyance that was going to mean that a high-powered boat was going to get into the best fishing lakes in the inside of the park, charge around there, having a field day and take out the best fish."

Mr. Nixon agreed with the Bancroft Sports Club that the new master plan for the park effectively bars fishermen from lakes that would be open to canoeists.

Window Smashed

Vandals were active during the weekend, using a car as their target.

A city police spokesmin said today a car was reported damaged at 12:51 a.m. Sunday while parked at Ken's Transmission Service at 2 Dundas St. E. The owner's name is Kenneth Kelly.

The spokesman said the windshield was cracked in three places and a stone was thrown through the rear window. He said total value of the glass is $175.

Lawn Mower Missing

A police spokesman said today the theft was reported at 2:35 p.m. Sunday by the owner, Wayne Rutan. Total value of the stolen articles is $149.

Flag Thief Foiled

TRENTON — Eleven flags on the roof of Trenton Cold Storage will again flutter in the wind as town police Saturday apprehended a man in the act of attempting to steal from their poles.

Police said today All the flags, each valued at $24 were recovered and returned by police.

Top Cadet Honored

Cadet Movement Gaining Strength Says Retired Officer

The annual inspection of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte drew high praise from inspecting officers Sunday — earning perfect marks for all facets of cadet work.

Capt. Donald Chown, retired commander officer of naval reserve ship Cataraqui in Kingston, said during an interview, the corps couldn't have looked better.

"In the past, I've never scored any corps within 3 points of a perfect 200," he said.

In his remarks to the ship's company and more than 200 onlookers, Capt. Chown commented on the difficulty of being a cadet with particular reference to having short hair.

"Congratulations for having the guts to be different," he said.

In the area of attendance, 12 of the corps' 35 members were awarded for perfect attendance during the awards portion of the day.

Capt. Chown said the cadet movement in Canada suffered in recent years from the "spill over of United States media — and the virtual U.S. people hatred for anything military as a result of the Viet Nam controversy."

"These things unquestionably hurt us," he said.

"Canadians are starting to realize that what applies there doesn't necessarily apply here," said Captain Chown.

For a time and even now, sea cadet corps became much smaller — but they are coming back into their own," he said.

Highlighting of the day's three-hour program were sailing demonstrations and performances by the ship's band.

Weekend Blaze Leaves Family of 12 Homeless

By RACHEL SPENCER
Staff Correspondent

SULPHIDE — A family of 12 was left homeless here Sunday when a blaze destroyed their new frame house. There were no injuries in the fire but a 17-year-old son later suffered shock and was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

The home, owned by William Reilly, RR 2, Tweed, was destroyed before the Tweed volunteer fire department could reach the blaze. The house was unoccupied at the time.

Tweed fire officials have not yet determined cause of the fire which broke out about 5:30 p.m. Firemen were able to save the three surrounding barns on the property.

Donny Beatty, 17, who has a heart condition, suffered shock and was taken to BGH and later released.

The Beatty said the will attempt to renovate an old farm house on the property. They are now staying with a nearby relative.

The Tweed branch of the Salvation Army is appealing to area residents for furniture, bedding and other essential household items for the family. Those wishing to help can contact 478-3062.

Tape Decks Stolen

The rash of thefts of eight track tape decks from cars in the city this year continued during the weekend.

City police said today two tape decks were reported stolen from two cars parked at the Royalton Club at 10:31 p.m. Saturday

A plice spokesman said the cars are owned by Wayne Fangard of 232 East College St. and W. R. Templeton of 206 Bleecker Ave. the total total value of the stolen items is $180.

Maloney Confident Of Ombudsman Role

BANCROFT — Ontario's proposed appointee for ombudsman, Arthur Maloney said Saturday he is "confident of his ability to do the job", and of the support of the various parties of the legislature.

Speaking in an interview, Mr. Maloney said although his appointment has not yet been approved by the legislature, he already has had enough reports for assistance to become aware of the bring of an assistant to handle them.

Mr. Maloney said he sees his role as being totally independent of any portion of the government.

The position of ombudsman is one that is absolutely aloof from the political makeup of the legislature," said Mr. Maloney. "However, to be ombudsman, you must have a good rapport with members of the legislature of all political parties."

The possibility of an approaching provincial election does not present any major problems said Mr. Maloney.

"I don't have any doubt of my ability to work with members of the legislature. That is my determination and the forthcoming election really doesn't have any bearing on the functions of my office and the way they are distributed."

Mr. Maloney, who is the brother of Father H. J. Maloney of Our Lady of Mercy Church in Bancroft, said he sees himself as a "functionary" who will assist the private citizen in dealing with the maze of government.

As soon as his appointment is approved by the legislature, Mr. Maloney plans on beginning an intensive study into the role of ombudsman.

"I will be studying the methods which have been used in setting up the office of ombudsman in other provinces and in areas of the United States.

"We will study all these methods and take to the best ideas, discard the others and come up with the best system in the world," he said.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 48-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, May 31, 9:33 p.m. — fire in hallway near a girl's residence, Alma St. Albert College on Dundas St. W., minimal damage, cause unknown.

Sunday, June 1 7:45 a.m. — fire in garage fire at 275 Dufferin Ave., out on arrival, nothing used, no damage.

Sunday, June 1, 9:05 p.m. — false alarm at corner of Bleecker Ave. and Emily St.

Monday, June 2, 12:04 a.m. — fire in large garbage container at rear of Dominion Stores Ltd., no damage.

Tory Policy Attacted

HAVELOCK — During his visit Saturday to the new Hastings-Peterborough Riding, in support of liberal candidate David Hobson, party leader Robert Nixon took the opportunity to deliver several blasts at the present Conservative administration of the province.

In the event that a provincial election resulted in a change in administration, Mr. Nixon said. "Our position would be that it would be clearly understood that the new government would be setting the policy.

"There would not be the problem that the Conservatives have had that the bureaucrats seem to be running the province more than they should."

Mr. Nixon said, "It must be clearly understood that the policy comes from the elected representatives and the administration and the implementation would come from the provincial employees."

"Of course, the last thing in my mind would be to have a bloodbath of civil servants after the election," said Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon also spoke on the problem of light industries throughout the province.

"We want a plan for Ontario, not just a Toronto centered plan. That is what the Conservative have now. We do not want to have to say in what happens lot by lot in any community, we should that the power ought to go back for planning purposes to the municipality and cut out the besuroucracy at Queen's Park that holds up most decisions."

"Basically our plan for Ontario, would be based on redirecting growth from the main centres and to save the class one and two farm lands," said Mr. Nixon.

The proposed appointment of Arthur Maloney as ombudsman for Ontario received the unqualified support of Mr. Nixon.

I favor the concept of an ombudsman and certainly Mr. Maloney would have my complete confidence. I think that a good appointment and certainly he will be very fair and impartial."

Changing Hats

Playing Safe

A group of local actors will be performing a water safety play this summer aimed at the younger set. In this scene, the Lifeguard, played by Sheila Jonnard, finishes telling Kevin Kareless, Brian Babcock, some of the rules to enjoy the water.

Play Stresses Need For Care Around Water

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

Throughout the summer, a group of aspiring Quinte actors will be performing a play directed towards non-swimmers.

The Water Safety Theatre Company, funded under an Opportunities For Youth (OFY) grant, will be at the dangers of swimming without proper care.

Specifically written for the younger set, the company has five main characters including two antagonists — Donna Danger, Maid — symbolizing evil. On the good side are Walter Safety helped by Lifeguard. In the middle of the two forces is the innocent, Kevin Kareless.

At the beginning of the play Kevin, played by Brian Babcock, is introduced to a few of the safety rules by Sheila Jonnard, the Lifeguard. At this time Donna Danger and Maid, respectively played by Catherine Cunningham and Greg Hunter, enter the scene tempting Kevin to ignore the safety rules. An argument arises only to be dispelled when Walter Safety, played by Dave Bone appears to finally confirm the right of good over evil.

Started two years ago as a summer project at the University of Waterloo, the play has met with great acceptance.

"We were looked upon as a pilot project and relate the water safety rules in a different manner than the usual lecture," says Miss Jonnard. "We try to perform to the kids; something they can relate to," she continued.

There is no charge to have the play performed, but as a result of a reduction in the group's grant, the company will be running short of money before the end of the summer.

"We need transportation. Our rented van is falling apart and is too expensive," Miss Jonnard states.

The performance will be taken to the city parks and organizations this summer.

The 25-minute play can be booked by any interested organization by phoning Miss Jonnard at 968-9404.

Oil Price Boost May Lead to Similar Soak-the-Rich Moves by Other Cartels

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Nothing succeeds like excess, as Oscar Wilde said.

The cartel multiplied the world price of crude oil fivefold, and succeeded in multiplying their own profits even more. (Their production costs were fully covered at pre-1973 prices, so the increases have been pure, unadulterated profit.)

Naturally, the other so-called Third World countries have seen this as an example that ought to be emulated.

The result, currently taking shape, could be a number of cartels in coffee, chocolate, base metals such as copper, zinc and tin, and other commodities.

If the new cartels get off the ground, they could send the inflation spiral shooting skyward at a rate the world has never seen.

And all the conditions for a vicious circle would be present. The Shah of Iran has proposed that the oil cartel increase its prices automatically in proportion to an Index of International prices of all major products.

That means that the price of oil would soar once again.

Here's what has happened so far:

The president of the United Nations Assembly, Abdelaziz Bouteflicka - foreign minister of Algeria - has proposed that sanctions against South Africa and its (in the eyes of very? Ed.) Israel.

The Assembly president, along with the secretary general of the UN Conference on Trade and Development - Gamani Corea of Sri Lanka - have therefore been urging the less developed nations to form cartels to market their raw materials. Without such cartels, they obviously believe, embargoes wouldn't work.

The members of the UN Assembly, which is largely made up of new countries that were formerly colonies, have approved Corea's plan to create an $11-billion fund to support the world prices of 18 primary commodities that account for about 65 per cent of the world's non-petroleum trade.

It's expected that the richest members of the oil cartel (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) will contribute the first few billion dollars to start the fund.

As was the case when the price of oil was quintupled, the plan has nothing to do with achieving a fair price in relation to the cost of the commodities, or any other commercial yardstick.

Rather, its motive is political. One or two countries may be the nominal targets, but the more general aim is to strike at the industrial nations of the West.

But the success that the oil producers have had may not automatically accrue to the proposed cartels in other basic commodities.

To a considerable extent, the members of OPEC are bound together by geographical proximity, and common language, culture and religion.

There is no such homogeneity among the producers of the commodities that would come under the UN-supported cartels. Canada, for instance, is a major world supplier of copper and zinc—and would certainly not fall into step with any cartelist price boosts by a cartel.

Even among the producing countries that do adhere to the cartels, backsliding would be likely. The spirit of commercial competition is not easily extinguished.

But if the new cartels did turn out to be successful in boosting prices as their UN backers are hoping, it could be a hollow victory.

It would result in world inflation out of control once and for all—and the fragile economies of the developing countries would surely collapse before the mature economies of the industrialized nations.

Workers to Capitalists

Robert V. Daniels in his book, "The Rise and Decline of Communism, notes in a passage on Marxist theory that feudalism, in which peasants were exploited by the nobility, was not succeeded by the bourgeoisie, in revolt, but by a new ruling group, the capitalists.

Daniels goes on to discount as wishful thinking any further takeover, in turn, of capitalists through a "managerial revolution," as expounded by one James Burnham — with the "managers" or bureaucrats, public and/or private, taking over. According to Daniels, the expectation that the proletariat would become the next ruling class has no logical foundation in Marx's own analysis of history.

Events, he says, have made it clear that the working class as such has nowhere become the ruling class and is nowhere likely to do so, although, as he further points out, individual workers may be recruited in large numbers into the bureaucratic strata.

This opportunity, and what he calls the purely verbal label of the "workers' state," Daniels adds, are the only things "proletarian" in the actual Communist regimes.

This is significant in the context of an article in The Intelligencer and Sunday Ontarian describing how many United States companies, trying to get employees more interested in the destiny of the firm — or trying to save financially-troubled companies — are selling all or part of the company to the employees.

"Turning Workers into Capitalists" runs The Monitor headline on the story by Clayton Jones, and it is noted that economists are divided on the issue. "Wave of the Future," say some. "A Cranky Fad," say others.

Almost every week, says Jones, a new business jumps on the worker-ownership bandwagon, turning wage earners into shareholders. One example, among many: the nearly 200 asbestos mineworkers of Lowell, Vt., who bought the quarry that was their livelihood when, under environmental pressure it was threatened with shutdown. There's even a suggestion that by November the union may be tossed out. As one worker-shareholder put it: "When the union and management sit down for wage negotiations, it will be a real awkward situation."

Jones says one of the most popular techniques to turn workers into capitalists — and of course he is talking about the United States — is Employee Stock Ownership Plans, brainchild of San Francisco economist-lawyer Louis Kelso.

As Kelso puts it: "Nobody gets rich simply by holding down a job. Prosperity comes from owning capital in machines, factories, and companies.

The Vermont mineworkers group for one, is taking its role seriously. With their own security at stake, they are making sure there's a profit.

As for Marx, he may be turning in his grave.

Chronicling The Past

Among the most valuable of government-funded Opportunities for Youth programs are those that help preserve our contacts with the past. The one by which three students from Centennial and two from Moira have been chosen to interview area citizens for their memories of years past is a case in point.

The project is an interesting one for the students, benefiting them financially and academically, and the result of their work — presumably a written documentation of their interviews — will be of lasting historical value and interest to readers.

It is an initiative that might well be extended, or undertaken by other high schools to include similar surveys by students.

We are reminded of a section of Barry Broadfoot's preface to his "Ten Lost Years," a record of the Depression years in Canada as seen through the eyes of people who lived through it.

Broadfoot quotes an intelligent and otherwise knowledgeable Grade 10 student in Calgary: "We have never been taught it, the Depression, the hard days. There's nothing in the school books, there might be something in the library but I have never seen it. They just don't teach it, at least not so far . . . Maybe they just don't want us to know about it. I know it was a time when no one had any money, not even the coffitty. Yes I know that. My Mom told me. She got me a few things about it, but that's not all."

With programs such as those aimed at setting down the memoirs of area citizens, the students will help to remedy such gaps in the knowledge of many people.

THE OPPOSITION...MY DEAR MICHAEL...GIVES ME A PAIN WITH ITS HARPING ABOUT WHERE ARE CHANDELIER AND ASHTRAY COSTS!'

Citizens' Bureau: New Beginning

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The Board of Directors of the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre (formerly the Citizens' Bureau) wish to correct the erroneous impression made by your editorial of May 16, regarding the Centre. Speaking of the City of Belleville budget for 1975, you stated:

"We can expect a bevy of complaints, for example, from Citizens' Bureau spokesmen after their $1700 request was canned by Council . . . and went on to imply that we had made such complaints in various ways.

In fact, the QIAC has made no complaints whatsoever, through any media, about this denial of our request. We understand that money is tight, and members of Council must sometimes make difficult choices. If they feel that increases in their own honoraria, a wine and cheese party for holidayers in Germany, and grants to the Wharf St. Debating Club and the cheese producers, for example, have priority over the needs and services of the QIAC, then they have the right to make such choices, as our elected representatives.

Please understand also at any person employed by the QIAC is always free, as a citizen of Belleville, to express his or her views on any subject. To have it otherwise would be to interfere with their freedom of speech. However, this is our personal expression, and does not make that person the official spokesman of the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre.

Official statements of the QIAC have come and will come from either myself or Vern Farrell, who is in charge of Public Relations.

MRS. VERA HEARSEY,
Chairman of the Board,
Quinte Information and Assistance Centre.

Havrot Outgoing, Blunt, His Own Worst Enemy?

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

If way up yonder in the kingdom of kingdoms there is a good Shepherd in charge of politicians, there probably is nothing he could do better for the welfare of his flock than put across the message "in conversation unless you know well to whom you are talking, particularly if it's a newspaper man, try and keep your trap shut."

In the politics of today there can be no greater disaster a politician than a loose lip.

A few wrong words in the wrong place and it can be bye-bye politics.

Here in Ontario we have had a sad example of this in the case of Eli Havrot, PC member for Temiskaming.

The remarks got into the news.

And within a few days Havrot had been stripped of the chairmanship of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission, also of a parliamentary assistantship and his whole political future is in jeopardy.

All because of a few little words.

A decade or so ago Mr. Havrot probably would have been in no trouble.

The press likely wouldn't have printed his remarks in the circumstances under which they were given. And it is improbable that the public, even if it had, would have been much bothered.

But that was before the press took upon itself a new mandate—there are those who call it a new licence—and before the swing to citizen involvement, militant groups and the new public irreverence of the late 1960s and the 1970s.

The mandate assumed by the press, or at least portions of it, is to be a public defender, in spades. With the seal of an extreme puritan it has taken on to itself a duty to expose.

And many of the dignities of the press in the past have disappeared in the name of principle.

And the public, again sections of it, has become much more super-sensitive to the stage of piety and smugness, if not outright hypocrisy.

Which means that today one slip of the lip can be exploited by the press in terms not of balance but of attack and leaped publicly in terms not of fairness but of injury.

Personally, under the circumstances as I know them, I would not have reported the Havrot remarks.

These circumstances, to my understanding, are:

Havrot, now 48, a trained accountant who owned and operated a sawmill, reeve of Teck Township (Kirkland Lake) and prominent in the business community, first came into the legislature in 1971.

He quickly became ardently interested in what is known as the Maple Mountain project.

This is a proposed resort in the Kirkland Lake area.

The project to which Havrot was so dedicated was both fascinating and highly controversial. The latter particularly because local Objibway Indian tribes claimed it was a large portion of the land they had, or it belonged to them.

Both aspects made it newsworthy and it was discussed a good deal in the press, particularly in the North.

Last year Havrot was made a parliamentary assistant to Transport Minister John Rhodes and earlier this year added to this was the chairmanship of the ONTC.

He remained a key figure in Maple Mountain and was a basic source for newspaper men wanting to write about it.

A few months ago a Toronto newspaper man interview him and when the name of a certain chief who was a leader among the Indians came up he said, intending to be facetious, I would rather, "I could buy him off with a case of gin."

Then a few weeks ago a group of Indians did a lot of damage to an ANTC dining car. Very shortly after the reporter of the "goof" interviewed him again and Havrot, angry in his function as ONTC chairman because of the damage said about the Indians "They should give them some teepees and cordelwood."

After questions were asked in the Legislature he was yanked.

In the mood of today and the practices of our times there is nobody to be really criticized for the action.

Premier Davis took really the only step open to him.

The press did what it considered its duty. After all, the man had said what he had said, even if it was in an interview and not from a public platform or in a public statement. It couldn't know the spirit in which the remarks were made. It just had words to deal with.

And the public, also having words only, and not knowing either Havrot or the manner of his statement, could justifiably conclude that here was a bigot and a reactionary.

Blame has to be with Havrot. Blame for being willing to talk to the press openly and for the inexperience and apparently that he couldn't talk informally to a reporter he didn't really know and the inexperience of not knowing that newspapers often don't try to report the spirit behind remarks, just the words.

In saying I wouldn't have reported the incidents I had two reasons.

One is that I know Havrot reasonably well. The second is that as an old hand I am more than a bit leary of the new blunt journalism.

In saying that the Havrot affair was a "sad example" I was thinking of many in politics.

The ONTC is unique in that it is the transportation and communications link of the North and is immeasurably important to its growth and health.

I believe Havrot would have made a good chairman. The job for a devoted Northerner with both practical common sense and vision.

He had shown both. And in his few months as ONTC chairmanship had got off to a good start.

Now tough he may be back in the north house, (he has been reinstated) . . . the incident would hardly care put him back in the cabinet, I think.

Which means there could be waste of his ability.

Many Residents Disapprove Of Archery Season on Deer

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

SOPHIASBURG — An archery hunting season for deer in Prince Edward County and the southern portion of nearby surrounding counties has been proposed by the ministry of natural resources for this fall, and not all county residents are in favor of the plan.

Point Petre and Sophiasburg Township are said to contain the largest concentrations of deer in the county, and several landowners interviewed from the latter are "definitely not in favor of an open season".

A news story in a recent Intelligencer edition stating that "most county residents would not object to an open season" sparked the most response from Sophiasburg landowners.

"The residents (non-farmers) shouldn't have anything to say about the matter. It is the landowners on whose property the hunters trespass who have to suffer the consequences and who should make the decision," said two male farmers who asked to remain anonymous.

Ken Needham of RR 2, Picton who said it is "definitely not a good idea", added he is unable to understand why an animal must be hunted just because it has reached appreciable numbers.

Mr. Needham said he feels "the county is too heavily congested with people to make a hunting season safe. "A bow and arrow is as dangerous as a gun, as far as I am concerned," he said.

Speaking aesthetically, Mr. Needham commented, "We have got to get beyond this idea of destroying animals because of possible harm they are doing, and learn to live with our wildlife".

Quaker Home On View

NORTHPORT — One of the few remaining Quaker meeting houses in Prince Edward County was visited Sunday by members of the Prince Edward Historical Society. Owner of the house, Ken Needham of RR2, Picton, said he believes it is one of very few Quaker meeting houses which have been left virtually unscathed.

President of the Prince Edward Historical Society, Jack Wellaman, says the house is unique in the county in that it has been "neither dehtroyed nor restored". Mr. Needham pointed out that during the 1800s, the Quakers met upstairs to worship with second by an outside staircase as the ground floor was occupied by permanent residents.

Belleville Cadets Take Top First Aid Honors

TRENTON — The Belleville cadet division of the St. John Ambulance was awarded the order's efficiency shield Sunday as the best corps among the approximate 35 that operate in the province.

Corps superintendent Murray Pothier said Sunday the award is presented to the cadet group that has the best overall efficiency record in the province.

Various other awards for outstanding and long-time service were presented to corps members Sunday. The Quinte corps is made up of divisions from Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton and Picton.

Two distinguished performance presentations were also made. The newly-instituted awards were presented to Belleville's 150C division cadet Debbie Nichols, and Cobourg 501 division's Arthur Daniel.

Miss Nichols also received a shield to indicate the over 200 hours of volunteer duty she performed in 1974.

Superintendent Pothier told the audience of about 60 people the performance award is presented to the individuals who have recorded the most division duty hours, passed first aid examinations with top marks and attended most regularly at division meetings.

Visits Old Church

Guest preacher at Sunday's White Chapel United Church Service Rev. John May shakes hands with visitors. White Chapel is the oldest United Church still in use in Ontario.

Church Marks Birthday

PICTON — Approximately 100 worshippers met Sunday afternoon at the White Chapel, north of here, for the 160th anniversary service. Otherwise known as the Old or Congor Chapel, the historic landmark opens its doors annually on the first Sunday in June.

The White Chapel, built in 1809 on land donated by Stephen Congor, a Loyalist from New Jersey who settled here in 1787, was the first Methodist church in Prince Edward County, and has been maintained as a place of worship longer than any other church of Methodist origin in Ontario.

Guest speaker for Sunday's service was Rev. John May of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

The service was conducted by Rev. Robert Sherwin of the Picton United Church, with music provided by Picton United Church organist and choirmaster, Robert Koczut and the United Church Choir.

Four Hurt After Car Rolls on 401

BRIGHTON — Police say four Toronto residents miraculously escaped serious injury Saturday when their car left Highway 401, flipped end over end several times, and crashed through a number of trees before coming to rest on its side.

Injured in the single-car mishap were driver Josephat Sayathiar, 31, Vidya Narineesingh, 21, and sisters Mayah 25 and Rohani, (23) Singh.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said today the Singh sisters remain in satisfactory conditions in hospital under observation for cuts and bruises. Driver Sayathiar and passenger Narineesingh were treated for minor injuries and released.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,400 and police said it was a write-off.

Welbanks to Conference

PICTON — Tim Welbanks, of R.R. 3, Picton, has been chosen as the outstanding 4-H club member from Prince Edward County to attend the Provincial Leadership Conference at the University of Guelph, June 22-26.

Purpose of the conference is to recognize an outstanding 4-H club member in each county or district and provide an in-depth leadership training course.

Bell Canada application for rate increases

Bell Canada has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for permission to increase its rates. The application seeks immediate approval for certain interim increases, to become effective on August 1, 1975. It also proposes additional rate changes, to be filed on or before June 30, 1975, for implementation on October 1, 1975.

In the interim phase of the application, Bell Canada also seeks approval to adopt a new rate grouping system based on a count of total telephone numbers. Under this system, extension telephones would not be included in the telephone count used to determine rate groups.

Summary of Interim Proposals

No increases:
- Primary residence main-telephone service.
- Basic business main-telephone service.
- Service charges (non-recurring) associated with connection of these services.

Proposed increases:
- Centrex, business PBX trunks, residence and business extensions and auxiliary equipment, such as switchboards, key telephone systems, signalling systems, etc.— 6.5% per month, to nearest 5¢.
- Residence Touch-Tone, Decorphones and Contempra telephones — 10¢ per month.
- Service charges (non-recurring) for miscellaneous equipment, moves, rearrangements, etc, requested by the customer.— generally 10%, to the nearest 25¢.
- Long Distance charges on calls within Bell Canada's operating territory; increases ranging as follows:
  - — Direct-dialed calls, initial one-minute period: 1 - 3¢.
  - — Operator-assisted, station-to-station calls, initial three-minute period: 5 - 20¢.
  - — Person-to-person calls, initial three-minute period: 10 - 50¢.
  - — Increases for additional minutes: zero - 2¢.
- Rates for certain interexchange services would be increased by various amounts; for example, Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS), by up to 10%; interexchange voice-grade mileage, by 8% - 25%; Telpak, by an average of approximately 15%; miscellaneous channels, occasional broadcast, by up to 20%.
- Rates for local data and teletype channels would be restructured, resulting in a monthly rate of $1.30 per quarter-mile. Increases in rates for other data services would range from approximately 6% to 26%.

The application bears the following Endorsement:

"The within application is made on behalf of Bell Canada by Guy Houle, its General Counsel, of 1050 Beaver Hall Hill, Montreal H3C 3G4, Quebec.

TAKE NOTICE that if you intend to intervene in the interim phase of this application to oppose, support or modify the same, you are required to mail or deliver your intervention in writing to the Secretary of the Canadian Transport Commission and a copy thereof to the applicant's aforesaid General Counsel not later than the 30th day of June, 1975."

Dated this 30th day of May, 1975
J. T. MOORE, Secretary
Bell Canada

A copy of the application and additional details of the proposed tariffs are available for inspection at Bell Canada business offices.

AQUAFINE and AQUALUX WATER REFINERS!

WE SINCERELY BELIEVE THAT WE HAVE THE MOST EFFICIENT, FULLY AUTOMATIC WATER REFINER ON THE MARKET TODAY. WE THINK AQUAFINE IS A PREMIUM WATER SOFTENER AND MORE.

MOST PEOPLE KNOW THE GRAIN HARDNESS OF WATER IN BELLEVILLE. AUTHORITIES SAY ANYTHING OVER FIVE GRAINS HARD SHOULD BE SOFTENED. IN FACT UPON EXAMINATION YOU WILL FIND THAT THE HARDNESS LEVEL IN BELLEVILLE EXCEEDS FIVE GRAINS. PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN THE COUNTRY WITH WELLS NO LONGER HAVE TO PUT UP WITH BAD TASTES, ODORS OR BACTERIA. AQUAFINE IS YOUR ANSWER.

DISSOLVED CALCIUM AND MAGNESIUM COMPOUNDS CAUSE THE HARDNESS IN WATER. HARD WATER BRINGS SUCH INCONVENIENCES AS BATHTUB RING, TATTLE TALE GREY IN LAUNDRY, UNSIGHTLY SPOTS ON TILE, SHOWER CURTAINS, DISHES, FLOORS AND COUNTER SURFACES.

WHAT DOES HARD WATER DO TO YOUR PLUMBING, YOUR HOT WATER TANK OR KEITTLE? THE COATING OF SCALE DEPOSITED BY THE HARD WATER FORMS AN INSULATION, REQUIRING MORE FUEL TO HEAT YOUR HOT WATER.

Nixon Criticizes Education

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Stephen Nixon said today the provincial education system is stifling students "who can even write poetry."

He told a Liberal Victoria-Haliburton riding meeting that Premier William Davis "has had a school system we proudly vaunted as the best anywhere" and "changed all that" by eliminating effective standards.

"There is alarming evidence that, in the absence of any effective standards, many students are promoted through the education system without learning even the most fundamental academic skills," he said.

He said 130 Grade 13 students recently tested by Carleton University in Ottawa achieved an average 45 per cent on a basic writing test while only 25 of 60 business students passed a basic English skill test at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ont., earlier this year.

Literature Lacking

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Margaret Laurence, Canadian author and resident writer at Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., said Saturday more Canadian literature should be taught in primary and high schools.

"I don't suggest that we drop Shakespeare or cease reading contemporary fiction from any other country," Dr. Laurence said. "But good Canadian books can give us a whole other dimension which literature of any other country can't give us."

Snow Injured

ROCKWOOD, Ont. (CP) — James Sayer, Ontario minister of government services, was slightly injured Saturday when the car he was driving was in collision with another vehicle on Highway 7 near this community seven miles east of Guelph, Ont.

The minister received five stitches to the forehead at Georgetown General Hospital before going to the opening ceremonies of a city arena. He was alone at the time of the accident.

Police said Eva Halward has been charged with failing to share the roadway.

Damage to the minister's car has been estimated at $2,000.

Offer Rejected

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) A city offer of a 13-per-cent wage increase was rejected Sunday by more than 300 drivers and mechanics, members of Local 904, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Transport General Workers.

The city's offer was an increase of 79 cents an hour. The union is asking for 60 cents an hour on June 1 plus 44 cents Nov. 1.

Drivers now earn $5.05 an hour and mechanics $5.45.

The city has asked for a provincial government representative to arbitrate the dispute.

Union president Bill Mazmanian said the union voted 90 per cent in favor of rejecting the offer.

Only Animals Not Dull in Texts

TORONTO (CP) — A report to be submitted today to a borough of North York board of education committee says reading texts for Grades 1, 2, and 3 are sexist, racist and stuffed with stereotypes.

The report was prepared by a committee of six men and women, comprising trustees, school staff, students and laymen. The committee was assigned to identify sexual bias in school materials and practices.

The report says four sets of readers used most commonly in the borough's lower grades show men better than women and whites better than blacks or other races. And all characters, except some animals, are crushingly dull.

The four-reader series, 38 books in all, is supplied in the Canadian reading development series by Copp, Clark Publishing, Canada, language patterns by Holt, Rinehart and Winston of Canada Ltd., young Canada reading series by Thomas Nelson and Sons (Canada) Ltd., and Ginn and Co.'s integrated language program.

The report says it objects most strongly to a series in which an ugly caricature of a black dentist is shown to be the only unattractive character in manner and dress.

Two Indian children are shown spending the night in a terrible storm without fear or discomfort.

Asians and Europeans "are presented for the most part as moustached, bearded, turbaned, robed male weirdos who engage in intrigue and cunning schemes to outwit each other."

Psychic Says Body in Bay

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A Nanticoke dentist says extra-sensory perception has indicated the body of Cameron March, 4, is in Burlington Bay.

Dr. Harold Mason, who has been using psychotherapy and hypnosis in his search for the boy, said Saturday that Cameron, missing from his Burlington, Ont., home since May 7, has been dead since May 19.

He said the boy's body is about 15 feet from shore, under four feet of water.

On Saturday, Dr. Mason and three mediums, who do not want to be identified, visited Burlington to search for the boy.

The 10 most asked questions about the new $1,500 Ontario Home Buyers Grant.

What does it take to be eligible for this new Grant?

Very simply, you must first be a resident of Ontario, 18 years of age or older.

And second, the home must be your principal residence and the first housing unit bought or built by you, your spouse, your co-owner or the spouse of the co-owner.

You mean it has nothing to do with how much I make or how much the house costs?

That's right. There are no income restrictions, nor are there any restrictions on the price of the housing unit, as long as the purchase price is equal to the fair market value. As well, the grant applies to new and older homes alike.

What do you mean by "housing unit"?

A housing unit is defined as a unit suitable for permanent habitation that provides living, sleeping, eating and food preparation facilities for one family.

The housing unit may be:

a) a house containing not more than two housing units

b) a condominium

c) a unit of a co-operative housing corporation

d) a mobile home that meets prescribed standards defined by the Canadian Standards Association.

I've been thinking of buying a home but I haven't done anything definite yet. Is there any time limit?

Yes. You must complete the purchase of the housing unit between April 8, 1975 and December 31, 1975 and reside in this housing unit as your principal residence by June 30, 1976.

Can we use the $1,500 for our down payment?

Not directly, since you will not receive the grant until after you own and reside in your housing unit.

How do I apply for the $1,500 Grant?

To apply, you must file an application with the Ministry of Revenue. You will be mailed the initial $1,000 cheque after your application is approved. If you continue to live in the house you will receive, upon reapplication, an additional cheque for $250 in each of the next two years on the anniversary date of your qualification for the initial grant. In all $1,500.

When should I file my application?

You should file it after you own the housing unit and reside in it as your principal residence.

If we qualify for the Ontario Home Buyers Grant, will we still be eligible for other housing grants?

Yes. This is a new grant from the Province of Ontario and does not affect participation in other programs.

How do I get the application form?

You can get applications by writing:
Ministry of Revenue
Ontario Home Buyers Grant
Queen's Park
Toronto, Ontario M7A 2C9

Also application forms have been made available through many realty offices and trust companies.

Just one more thing—how can I get more information about all of this, if I need it?

You can phone us, free of charge, by dialing "0" and asking the operator for Zenith 8-2000. Residents within Metro Toronto local calling area should dial 965-8470. Phone lines are open from 8 to 8 weekdays, and from noon until 5 on Saturday.

Ontario understands how important it is to have a home of your own. And we'd like to help out with a grant of $1,500 towards your first home. It's part of an overall plan to make more homes available in Ontario. And stimulate our economy. So it's good for all of us.

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE CLEAVER

Cleaver — Wood

Christ Church was the setting for May 10 wedding of Diane Linda Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wood of RR 3, Belleville, and Wayne Dean Cleaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cleaver.

The service was conducted by Rev. R. B. Wright.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of crepe with a scoop neckline, long sleeves and a semi-empire waistline featuring guipure lace and seed pearls, which also trimmed the skirt of and unattached train. A four-tier waist-length veil was caught with a headpiece of seed pearls and rhinestones, and the bridal bouquet was of red sweetheart roses and ivy.

Rebecca Cleaver of Brampton wore a blue crepe gown with a floral jacket as maid of honor. A white floppy hat and blue and white mums completed her outfit.

The groom's sister Lori McGarvey, his niece Jackie Sharpe of Scarborough, and the bride's cousin Darlene Maher of Orono were bridesmaids in peach-colored crepe gowns with jackets trimmed in white, they wore white floppy hats and carried white mums.

Best man was Bruce Cleaver, the groom's brother from Brampton, and his brother Bobby Cleaver assisted the bride's brothers Bobby and Danny Wood as ushers.

After a dinner and dance at the Elk's Lodge the newly-married couple travelled to the United States on their honeymoon. They now live at 21 Janlyn Crescent.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Woodcock

Woodcock — Osborne

St. Mark's United Church in Camilton was the scene of the evening marriage between Diana Arlene Osborne and Rodger Neil Woodcock, May 2. It was conducted by Rev. John Morrison.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Osborne of RR 6, Belleville. The groom is the son of Mrs. Norma Woodcock of Corbyville and the late Norman R. Woodcock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Qiana gown, with a fitted bodice featuring a design of pearls in a scroll pattern. The long sleeves tapered at the wrist, and the skirt fell in folds. The chapel length train flowed from the shoulder line and the three tiered scalloped fingertip veil of chantilly lace caught in a headpiece with clusters of pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses centred with a white orchid.

The matron of honor was Cynthia Osborne who wore a pink swiss dot gowns with a matching hat.

The best man was the groom's brother Stephen Woodcock, and ushers for the ceremony were David Woodcock and Doug Osborne.

Dinner was held at Sun Luck Gardens followed by a dance at Club Cedars.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock travelled east on their honeymoon.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Smith are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Christine Jane Smith to William Alexander Fyke, son of Mr. Francis A. Fyke of Ottawa and the late Doreen Agnes Fyke. The marriage will take place Saturday, June 21, at 4 p.m. in the Church of Saint Michael the Archangel, Belleville.

Chivalry Lives in England

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — The Royal Navy has found a new Sir Walter Raleigh.

Lieut. Hugh Slade didn't exactly drape his cloak across a puddle for the Queen, but he got wet fishing the Queen Mother's handbag from the harbor.

Slade, 24, demonstrated 1975-style chivalry here Sunday as Queen Mother Elizabeth came ashore by barge from the Royal Yacht Britannia. The barge wobbled on a wave as she stepped on to the quay and a beige leather handbag fell into the water from the royal left arm.

The young lieutenant sprang to the rescue. He threw off his cap, lay face down on the quayside and plunged his saluting arm shoulder-deep into the murky water. Senior officers waited tensely.

After 15 seconds, Slade's hand emerged triumphantly clutching the royal handbag, dripping and open. He squeezed the water from his sleeve, saluted and handed the bag back to the 74-year-old Queen Mother, who smiled and said: "Thank you so much."

"It was nothing," Slade told reporters later. "One would gladly do that sort of thing for any lady in distress."

A naval spokesman commented: "It was quick thinking by Lieut. Slade. But our reputation for courtesy and gallantry goes back a long way. Remember Sir Walter Raleigh and the first Queen Elizabeth!"

Quinte Cuisine

Iva Brown got this recipe from New Zealand in the only chain letter she ever answered. That was 15 years ago and it's still a popular treat in the Brown home. Iva, her husband J. Allan, and their children, live near Roslin. She's a teacher and the family is building a new home.

New Zealand Squares

one cup corn flakes
½ cup sugar
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ tsp. vanilla
one cup flour
one tsp. baking powder
two-third cup melted butter

Pour melted butter over all ingredients and stir until blended. Press into a greased 8" x 8" pan.

Bake at 350 for 25 minutes. While still hot, frost with thin chocolate icing, flavored with ½ tsp. of artificial rum flavoring. Chill well before cutting into squares.

Ann Landers

Volunteer Can Help Son

Dear Ann Landers: My seven-year-old son says he is old enough to go to a public restroom alone when we are out shopping without his dad. I have always insisted that he go with me to the ladies' restroom.

There are so many freaks running around loose these days I feel a lot safer taking him in with me. The boy resents it because he is quite large for his age and some of the women have been staring at him as looks lately.

We will go along with your decision. What is it? — Concerned Mom

Dear Mom: Stand outside the men's room for a few moments and ask some kindly gentlemen on his way in if he will "look after" your son.

A seven-year-old boy who doesn't want to be taken to the ladies' room should not be forced to go. I'm sure you'll have no trouble bribbonbling a friendly "volunteer."

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you won't think this letter is too nutty to print. I'd love your opinion. It's my phobia for remembering things.

In a casual conversation, a name or a place will slip my mind and it just about drives me crazy. I will phone people (even long-distance) to ask them to chase down the "missing link." It I don't succeed I become so uptight I can't sleep. It ruiners me for days.

I have discussed this problem with my doctor and I even went to see a psychiatrist. The psychiatrist said I would have to find out why it is so important to remember. After a year of trying to figure out the reason I am no closer to the mystery. Am I the only nuthouse up like this? How do others handle the forgetting? — Forgetful

Dear Friend: Move over, you have plenty of company. Everybody forgets names, places, dates, song titles—you name it and it's slipped MY mind at one time or another. Yes, I've even tried to chase down this very long-distance, but if I fail, it doesn't undo me.

The psychiatrist is right. You must find out why it is so important to remember everything. Such superhuman demands suggest that you are a perfectionist. Like all perfectionists you have little pockets of insecurity and you try to compensate for your inadequacies (real or imagined) by appearing to be perfect. Nobody is to forget it. Uh-I mean, don't let it bother you.

Dear Ann Landers: I saw an interesting puzzle in a magazine and thought it was a good one to share with others. I'm sorry I got mixed up with it now because it has caused me a lot of trouble with one of my best friends. She claims the answer (which appeared on the magazine cover page) cannot be correct. I wasn't able to explain the solution to her. My friend suggested you as the go-between. Please hurry the explanation because she isn't speaking to me until we hear from you. Here's the puzzle:

A man looks at a photograph and says, "That person's father is my father's son." The man doesn't have any sons or brothers. How is the man related in the photograph related to the person IN the photograph?

Dear Puzzled: The answer is correct and if you (and all who follow each step she will come to the conclusion. The big hurdle is the first sentence.

Going Back to School Difficult

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Thinking of going back to school after a few years away from the ivy-covered halls?

Think twice, says a University of Wisconsin counselor who specializes in the problems of adults who want to go back to college.

Carla Heimert, who conducts seminars for adult would-be-students' returned to school in 1967, after 16 years as a full-time housewife and mother of five she found that going back may be fashionable, but it isn't easy.

"It is rather common for the returning adult not to know what he wants to do, Picking a major may seem difficult."

However, Mrs. Heimert said an even bigger hurdle is the uncertainty and out-of-place feeling of returning adults when they suddenly find themselves in a youth-dominated environment that scarcely resembles college as they remember it.

"The fear of failure may be threatening," she said. "For years the returning adult students have been in another role. They have been on the line at General Motors or taking care of home and family.

"Sometimes they may feel uneasy when asked why they are coming back. Perhaps they are afraid of making a commitment, not knowing if they can, commit, or afraid of failing, losing face."

Mrs. Heimert urged adults thinking about going back to school to set attainable goals for themselves before they set foot on campus.

There can also be problems with the reaction of children when Mom or Dad goes back to school, she said. But most families can work things out by talking together about their school work and perhaps even helping one another with homework.

She said friends sometimes resent the adult who returns to school and insist on manufacturing their own reasons for the return.

"They say: 'Aren't you satisfied at home? Aren't you and your husband getting along? Even if it is only for enrichment, older students should feel free to go back to school."

She Never Gets Bored Jumping Out of Planes

SEATTLE (AP) — Gloria Porter spends her weekends jumping out of airplanes for a hobby she has grown to like and is safer than racing cars.

"I get bored very easily," said the Tacoma High School biology teacher. "This is the first thing I've found that never gets boring."

Porter, as she prefers to be called, has won numerous local, regional and national skydiving titles in eight years and nearly 2,000 jumps and said she has never been injured or forced to rely on her second chute.

"The first time you do it you sit in that airplane thinking, 'Please, God, let me live through this' and as soon as I get down, I'll sell all this equipment.'

"But as soon as the chute opens and you're free, you love it. You can't wait to go up again.

"You can do anything as an plane can do—barrel rolls, loops, loops, heart's going fast and you're so speeded up that your stompwatch seems to be broken.

"But I think they're crazy. That's so dangerous."

She took up skydiving eight years ago when she was dating a parachute instructor. She said she grew from a timid 98-pounder in a chute and listening to him tell her how great skydiving was. "He was having all the fun and I was doing all the work."

Porter has competed in Mexico and Yugoslavia and toured every nearly every state in the United States—35 times a week when is training for its U.S. Parachute Team. For the last five years she has been teaching others to do it.

"After their first landing, they're grinned from ear to ear. It's nothing like having to motivate a bunch of high school kids to care about the parts of a theory."

Those same high school kids want to try skydiving but Ms. Porter is not enthusiastic.

"Sometimes the kids can drive me crazy. Out there I don't have to think about them.

Most falls last two or three minutes, but "they're the longest minutes you've ever known.

"In free-fall, you're totally in command ... there's no one to ask for advice. You control everything and solve everything yourself."

For that reason she doesn't advocate her hobby for everyone though her students range from 16 to 75.

"It's for people who have command of themselves, of their minds, people who have confidence. You don't find many wallflowers among skydivers. They're the kind of people who take charge in an emergency."

Young Drinkers Make Dangerous Drivers

A service conducted by a Western Ontario sociologist shows that auto mishaps rose drastically after the Ontario drinking age was lowered to 18.

The study showed that such accidents jumped 129 percent among 18-year-olds, 34 percent among 19-year-olds, and 156 per cent among 20-year-olds.

News Item.

Moral: If you plan to drive a car, make your beverage ginger ale and save lives — maybe your own. Besides staying within the law.

And, I might add, if alcohol and its effects are strange and new to you — so that you are far too uninhibited even with one small drink to be sure of what you are doing — don't just pour it in and make a fool of yourself.

Dear Doris: I am to introduce the members at the head table at our annual dinner.

I'm wondering if I should start at my left and go to the centre, and then begin at the right hand end of the table and again work towards the centre. Or what? We cannot find a thing in the etiquette books about it.

I have sent off oodles of Christmas and everyday card cards to different addresses you have given us, and it is great not to throw out those beautiful cards when someone can can make good use of them.

Best Wishes

Dear Best: Introducing from each end to the centre only confuses the audence.

The most accepted way is for the chairperson to begin at his extreme right and proceed across the table right to the other end. The speaker, who is — or should be — sitting on his immediate right, may be introduced by name only, along with the others; but I think it better to say, when you come to him or her, "next is our speaker, but he will be introduced more fully later." The speaker remains seated; the other members of the head table stand up when they are introduced and remain standing, until applause, which the chairman often requests to be withheld until all are introduced.

About the used greeting cards sent to needy corners of the world: church workers are making fantastic use of them and are grateful beyond all imagining.

Dear Doris: Please send me an easy game or contest for an elderly group who are mostly unable to move around.

One of Them.

Dear One: I'm sending you a sheet on which is typed the game called "Scrambles". It consists of a list of words in which the letters are all mixed up, and then a definition of what that word is when it is straightened out. It is a paper and pencil game and you will have to get someone to copy out either by hand or on the typewriter the mixed up letters and the definitions. Make sure that whoever copies it does not omit the sheet which are in the final column.

I am also sending you a leaflet which has been very popular over the years, entitled, "party Games and Stunts f-eshment". It contains at least two games which are played sitting down, and a couple more which require paper and pencil and a requirement to sketch a picture in the dark.

For 50 cents we are sending you each of these leaflets (which are also available to anyone else writing in, enclosing 25 cents for each leaflet of the two, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Has Dear Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so! Address you letter in care of this newspaper.)

Women's Page On Way Out?

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Keith Davey said Saturday that women's pages in newspapers patronize women.

"Do we really need women's pages or the euphemistically-called family section?" Senator Davey asked when he opened a panel discussion on women in the media. The discussion was part of the Festival of Women in the Arts being held here this month.

Women journalists discussed the problems encountered by women in the media and the changes that can be made in the women's sections of newspapers.

The festival also featured a panel discussion on women and the novel.

Writers Germaine Greer, Sylvia Fraser, Edna O'Brien, Constance Beresford-Howe and Marian Engel spoke to a capacity audience of 600.

The panelists discussed the role of women in the history of Canadian literature and the effect of the women's movement on the novel.

Other festival events during the weekend included dance performances by women and photographic and multi-media exhibits.

Silent Curtain Around Cambodia

BANGKOK (AP) — A curtain of silence has closed around Cambodia since the Khmer Rouge took Phnom Penh April 17.

The few reports that reach this capital of Thailand indicate a long period of isolation lies ahead for Cambodia as the new leaders try to forge a revolutionary society.

It still is a mystery who is in charge of the Communist-led Khmer Rouge administration.

Deputy Premier Khieu Samphan, a Paris-educated economist, was widely believed to have been the strongman of the revolution. He also is defence minister and armed forces chief.

But some refugees from Cambodia have said Samphan is under house arrest and has been a figurehead like aging former Prem Nodth and titular chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, now in Peking.

Sihanouk's ouster from power by his own rubber-stamp legislature five years ago touched off the Cambodian civil war. He has said he plans to spend little time in his native land.

The few items of news and Phnom Penh radio usually are anonymous, but sometimes they are attributed to Information Minister Hou Nim.

The radio station dwells on the "crimes of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys" and praises the bravery and honesty of the Khmer Rouge revolutionaries.

The new Cambodian foreign policy is described as one of strict neutrality, respecting all other political systems.

There have been repeated mentions that no foreign military bases will be allowed on Cambodian soil. Many observers believe this is directed at Vietnamese Communists who supported the Khmer Rouge with troops, supplies and arms.

The more aggressive Vietnamese have never been popular with the Cambodians.

Foreign reporters who emerged from Cambodia during the first week in May, after being confined to the French embassy compound in Phnom Penh, said the early days of "liberation" showed there were at least two kinds of Khmer Rouge—the young soldiers who first moved into the capital and embraced newspapers, and the veteran troops who came shortly afterward and evacuated most of the population into the countryside.

American Ambassador Feels Canada Should 'Do Our Thing'

OTTAWA (CP) — William Porter, the United States ambassador here, thinks Canada should play a more independent role in world affairs—as long as that role doesn't harm the current relationship between the two countries.

WILLIAM PORTER

"We are not trying to keep Canada tethered in any sense," he told panelists on the CTV television program Question Period taped for broadcast Sunday.

"If she's looking to Europe we've already said . . . that Canada should go and do her own thing as long as it is not designed to harm her relationship with the United States."

Asked to speculate about possible U.S. reaction in the event of a Canadian cut or even stoppage of gas exports, Mr. Porter said his government realizes that Canadian supplies are not inexhaustible and that Canadian needs must be given priority.

But, he added, "We would of course like to have the best possible estimate of when and at what rate . . . so that we . . . can take steps to replace what Canada now is sending to the United States."

He cautioned, however, against an arbitrary cutoff of large amounts of rawmaterials such as oil, timber, iron and lead.

. . . There would naturally be a cost to you. You have certain markets in the United States . . . which are, some Canadians think, irreplaceable.

"If you were not inflined to help out with all these additional commodities . . . it would affect the Canadian economy also."

The outspoken senior diplomat remarked the growing desire in Canada to export finished products because of the job creation potential, adding that "the U.S. has up to now been the one country where you have been able to send the finished products of your growth industrial base."

Asked also about possible CIA activity in Canada, Mr. Porter denied that the agency conducted any operations in this country.

Champagne Situation Checked

WINONA, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Wine Institute says Labor Minister John Munro has promised to "investigate thoroughly" a decision by a French winemakers' association to seek an injunction to stop six of eight Ontario wineries from using the name champagne.

The association said Saturday that the minister said it is the federal government's responsibility to protect Canadian interests.

Mr. Munro spent Saturday touring Andres Wines in his community near Hamilton.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled last year that champagne is a protected trademark for sparkling wine made in the Champagne district of France.

"We find it most alarming that the interests of a private French industry should supercede Canadian interests," said Joseph Peller, chairman of the institute and president of Andres Wines.

"Canadian champagne has been produced as such in Canada for over 100 years with no attempt to mislead consumers. In conformance with Canadian law this product has always been clearly labelled as a Canadian product."

The French producers' case, now before the Supreme Court of Ontario, is based on an April, 1974, Supreme Court of Canada decision. The court ruled Chateau-Gai Wines Ltd. could not use the word champagne because the 1963 trade agreement Act between Canada and France made it a protected trademark.

CBC Head Putting Foot into Scandal?

OTTAWA (CP) — Laurant Picard confirmed on Saturday reports that he will step down as president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Aug. 1 to head Marine Industries Ltd.

Lightning Hits Lachute Camp

LACHUTE, Que. (CP) — Lightning claimed the life of a 16-year-old Ontario boy and injured 30 of his companions Saturday during an electrical storm near Lachute, about 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

Evelaine Rieux, 16, of Pembroke, Ont. was killed instantly when lightning struck a cluster of three tents, sheltering 33 high school students and teachers from Plantagenet, Ont.

Leonard Ryan, a student in the tent where Evelaine Rieux was sleeping, said the group was camping on the summit of Mont St. Jacques a part of a week-long survival training course.

Marine Industries is one of the 13 companies charged with conspiracy in the Hamilton Harbor dredging scandal, and in a telephone interview with The Journal from his Montreal home Mr. Picard expressed concern that his name has already been associated with the scandal in reports of his resignation.

But he added the firm's dredging operation was sold a few months after the alleged collusion in 1971.

The CBC president said he is "exciting offer" from Marine Industries but added that "nobody can leave the CBC without regret."

Mr. Picard's resignation will place deputy weather minister Albert Johnson in the top CBC spot—only one month after becoming executive vice-president on July 1.

Mr. Johnson, who has no previous broadcasting experience, has only one month to learn from the retiring president the mammoth CBC operation.

Land Politics Denied

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Eugene Vannier said Saturday reports that he used political influence to make money on land deals with the Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) were "untruths and innuendoes."

Published reports Friday said Mr. Vannier and his wife, Geraldine, made about $200,000 on three land deals involving the provincial agency. The Sudbury couple are active supporters of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Vannier said he was involved in one sale — OHC and the $200,000 figure was the "lowest thing from the truth."

He said the two other land deals were with builders "who came to me to purchase my land."

Attorney-General John Clement said Friday his ministry will investigate the charges.

Tories Resuming Attack Over Executive's Growth

OTTAWA (CP) — As the June 23 budget gains increasing attention, Progressive Conservatives plan to resume their attack on an old sore point when Parliament resumes today.

The Commons will be debating a Conservative motion calling for increased monitoring by the auditor-general of the growth in the executive.

Walter Baker, deputy Conservative house leader, says his party will be concentrating "on the difficulties of getting information from the government on the executive."

Michael Pitfield, clerk of the privy council, and Jack Austin, Prime Minister Trudeau's principal secretary, will likely feature prominently in the debate.

But before it begins, the House will be watching Prime Minister Trudeau to see how he handles a demand for an explanation of an attack he made on John Diefenbaker's spending while prime minister from 1957 to 1963.

Mr. Diefenbaker says the speech was an attempt to try to destroy his reputation and he wants the prime minister to answer in the house or committee.

Mr. Trudeau had departed for Europe when Mr. Diefenbaker ripped apart the prime minister's attack, part of an 85-minute defence of spending estimates for the prime minister's office and the privy council office, which shepards legislation through Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau said on his return from Europe Saturday night, that he would not apologize but might have an explanation.

Mr. Baker said the Conservatives also were miffed at the length of the speech because it left little time for questions about the executive's growth.

"Trudeau's arrogance cut off our attempts to question him," he said.

The Conservatives have been trying to force the government to let Mr. Pitfield, the top civil servant, be questioned by a Commons committee.

Besides specific interest in Mr. Pitfield's knowledge of government decision-making, the Conservatives think Parliament should have access to all top civil servants.

Racing on the Right Night Helps Turnout

During the previous two years — 1973 and '74 — the Pistol Pushers Motorcycle Club have had their plans doused by that big damper in the sky. Last year they were forced to hold their Canadian Motorcycle Association sanctioned races on Monday night — one that wasn't particularly good for spectators.

This year, the skies threatened to burst their race bubble again. All the track officials and organizers spent Saturday running around with their fingers (and likely their toes as well) crossed, hoping that the god of rain would smile on them for a change.

For a change he did, and the dirt track races at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway came off as scheduled — 8 o'clock Saturday night.

It made a big difference attendance wise as over 400 mark racing fans jammed the grandstand of QER to take in the speedy spectacle on the local oval.

"That's the reason," said Garry Sherman, president of the Pistol Pushers, "the past couple of years, we've had around 1,500 people. This year, 1,942 came out, and maybe if it had been a nice weekend from the start there may have been more."

Though the weatherman was on their side, the man of the city's radio board was a little behind them. As darkness fell, across the track it became more and more difficult for racers to keep their machines on the straight and narrow.

Announcer Sherman requested the Raceway's electrician shed some light on the subject. This was at 8:45. By 9 p.m. rat even a match had been struck in an effort to illuminate the racer's path.

It seems no-one had informed the track lamplighter that his presence had been requested at the event. By 9:30 the electrician's keys had been located, although the electrician was still nowhere to be found, and the white flag was again flapping frantically as the starting line.

In between searching for the man with the light switch and hoping the rain wasn't swiftched on, local spectators were treated to some breathtaking exciting racing. Though not as closely contested as many of the races in the past few years, this edition had one thing that other recent outings had not. It was almost accident free. The most serious injury was one rider who suffered a sprained ankle and a wrist. All together only three minor spills occurred.

Don Luther, of Chatham, took the Junior 300 c.c. title running the eight lap final in 4:53. Mark Anehenman of Kitchener was second, Harvey Ginter, Woodstock, was third and Art Welch of Peterborough was fourth.

Quebec's Dave McLean, a track favorite, captured top honors in the Senior 500 c.c. combined. He clocked off the four-mile run in 4:55. Norm Carr of Hamilton was second, Brian Ash of Willowdale was third and Paul Eggleton of Scarborough was fourth.

Senior 750 went to Prescott's Jim Gill. He went the eight rounds of the half-mile oval in 4:00. Randy Kamula of Hamilton was second, third went to Bradhagen's Mike Pair and Steve Emery of London was fourth.

Doug Sehl, after dropping his bike in the senior competition 300 final bounced back to win the Expert 750 final by almost a quarter-mile. Sehl, Belleville's favorite racer, ran the 10-lap distance in 4:45 — almost 70 mph. His closest competitor, Paul Eggleton, led after the first lap, but ate Sehl's dust for the next nine. Third was Norm Carr and fourth was Dave McLean.

Scarborough's Paul Eggleton (44) leans into the first turn at Quinte Exhibition Raceway Saturday night in an elimination heat in the 360 c.c. senior combined class. His closest competition is Peterborough's Jim Smith (53). Eggleton went on in this class to finish fourth over all and came second in the expert 750 c.c. to take a large chunk of the $2,100 purse.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1975

Alderman George Zegouras officially kicked the Premier Soccer League into its new season with this pre-game boot Saturday night at Zwick's Island Park. Jessie Buxley (background left) president of the league, made the trip down for the opening contest between Quinte Helenics and Kingston Italo-Canadians. Fred Sequeira, Kingston captain (left), Bill Lucas, Quinte captain and Gus Christopher,, president of Helenics, were also in on the ceremony.

Macs Come Close Enough to Taste Win

Into every life a little rain must fall — but the Belleville McDonald's Macs only have to overcome the philosophical side that little tiding, they also have to get around the literal aspect of it.

Saturday night, in London, the Macs were leading the Dukes 3-0. Then it started raining in the bottom half of the fourth inning and before the frame was over the home squad had tied the game because the skies had opened turning the field into a mud bowl. After the second London run crossed the plate, the umpire called the contest.

Sunday night in Woodstock, Belleville lost a pair: 3-1 in the opener and then 4-0.

"The guys have never been as psyched up and mentally prepared for a game as they were Saturday night," said general manager, Doug Adams, "we were ahead and everything was going great. It looked as though we'd finally jelled. Then it started rain."

Elsewhere in Ontario Baseball League action, Toronto Globals took a pair from Kitchener 4-1 and 2-0 to record their first wins of the season. Oshawa beat Hamilton 5-4 and Sunday night, St. Catharines was awarded a contest when the Tom's failed to show.

Ted Waile had a no-hitter going for the locals until the fifth inning. Two couple of mental mistakes and a pair of Warriors hits included a single to winning pitcher Bill Fidlin that scored the tying and winning runs against Waile's chance of a win.

"We should have taken that one for Ted," said Adams, "he threw a great game. We're just making mistakes at the wrong times. Other teams have errors/but it doesn't cost them anything. Guys always seem to come when we'll got hurt the most."

"One of these times," predicted the GM, "the breaks are going to start coming our way and then there's going to be no stopping us."

In all Waile fanned five, and walked three. He gave up just three hits. Belleville banged seven singles off Warriors hurler Fidlin. The winner walked one and only struck out two.

Steve Ling and Wayne McTaggart had two of the locals' hits each with others going to Jim Clement, Paul Goodfellow and Doug Dafoe.

In the second half of the doubleheader, Scott Reig took the loss. He gave up five hits, fanned eight and did not hand out any free passes. Again Warriors hitters were the story. The home side scored two runs in the first inning on a couple of hits and a couple of errors.

Bob Eccles got the win. He gave up a walk and three hits and struck out two.

Local Premier Teams Stung in Opening Games

Belleville's two Premier Soccer League entries, the Quinte Helenics and the Olympics, officially started their seasons this weekend, although they're probably regretting it.

The Hellenics got thumped 9-1 Saturday by Kingston Italo- Canadians in the Premier League's grand opening and Sunday, in another contest at Zwick's Island Park, Kingston Portuguese nipped the Olympics 2-1.

Jessie Buxley, president of Premier League, made a special trip to Belleville to officiate at the opening ceremonies. The celebrities didn't help the Hellenics any as the local squad however as they fell behind 4-0 in the first half and were outscored 5-1 in the second half. Ted Adams got the only Hellenic goal of the game.

The Olympics dropped a tough one Sunday as the two clubs put on an excellent all-out display. Kingston led 1-0 at the half on a marker by Joe Pereira.

At the second half started, Belleville came out roaring. They scored the equalizer early when Bruce Mohr sent a free kick to Rob Foster who deflected it into the net of the net.

From then on the Olympics did everything but score. They had several excellent opportunities, but couldn't put the ball away. With 10 minutes remaining Kingston's Fernando Lando got the ball outside the penalty area, beat two men and fired the ball past goaltender Ron Foster.

This Saturday the Olympics take on the Helenics in a contest at Zwick's Island. Game time is 6 p.m.

Abrams Fires Two-hitter

Ken Abrams had his bid for a no-hit shutout spoiled in the top of second inning in South Hastings Baseball League (SHBL) action Saturday when Wayne Brant cranked a solo homer to give Deseronto Lake only run in a 3-1 loss to Read.

In other weekend SHBL contests Foxboro and Shannonville battled to a 6-6 draw and Melrose edged first place Plane's 3-1 to move into a three-way tie for first place.

Abrams ended up with a two-hitter as Bob Barberstock singled off him in the top of eighth. The winning-hurler fanned six and walked three.

Steve Hefferman took the loss after less than four controlled innings. He was relieved by Barberstock and Gord Kimmett. The three combined to strikeout 10 and walk four. Heffernan gave up eight hits — six of them including a solo shot by Peter Wilkin and a two-run by Abrams after Bird Sherry had doubled. Phil Badgley doubled and singled and Bud O'Connor added the other winner's safety.

The Merchants kept their .500 record alive by their tie with Shannonville. Both teams scored five in the second inning, but Foxboro got the go-ahead run in the bottom of the fourth. Shannonville took until the top of the final inning to even the score.

Bill Barber stock had a home run and a single to lead the visitors' hitting attack. All of Foxboro's hits were one-baggers.

John Pepper scattered four hits and fanned five Cannilton hitters over nine innings to earn the Melrose victory. Larry Adams went the distance for the losers, fanning four and walking one while giving up five safeties.

Larry Pascoe and Glen McCrae each had a double for the winners and Bruce Pascoe added a pair of singles.

TAKE SERIES

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuter) — Australia triumphed 20-21 in the second and deciding Rugby Union test Saturday against England to take the series 2-0. England led 15-6 after the first half but was outscored 21-6 the rest of the way.

COMEBACK WIN

SUBRITON, England (Reuter) — Australian McNamara, 19, fought off a comeback match point four times Saturday to win the Surrey grass courts tennis championship with a 4-6, 9-8, 6-4 win over countryman Steve Docherty.

WIN ENDURANCE RACE

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — Arturo Merariio of Italy and Jacques Laffite of France in an Alfa Romeo won the 1,000-kilometre endurance race Sunday West Germany's Nuerburgring.

FIGHT STOPPED

ZURICH (CP) — Franco Udella of Italy retained his European flyweight boxing title Saturday when the referee stopped his fight with Fritz Chervet of Switzerland, disqualifying both fighters for repeated illegal moves.

Juniors Still Need To Smooth Rough Edges

The Ellis Juniors ate a little dirt at Alemite Park Sunday night as Oshawa dumped them 7-3 in the second half of a doubleheader. In the first contest the local Junior A Ontario Amateur Softball Association (OASA) entry battled the visiting motor city squad to a 1-1 draw. The twin bill was the first OASA exhibition outing of the 1975 season for the Belleville team.

Though the Printing squad appeared to have most of the first game under control they did themselves in in the second contest with six errors. But as coach Russ Soule said earlier in the season, "I'm not going to worry about errors, it's going to take time to iron things out."

Trenton product Rob Oliver threw the opener for Oshawa. He fanned two and walked one. John Sprackett was the starter for Belleville with four strikeouts and one walk.

Belleville got their first run in the bottom half of the fifth. Second baseman Doug Jeffries crashed a double down the third base line, advanced on Bob Campbell's sacrifice bunt and came home on a combination passed ball and error to the pitcher.

Oshawa tied the score in the top of the sixth on a walk, a single and an error.

Oshawa had no nothing in the second game as Belleville checked it with a half-dozen miscues. The visitors came up with only two earned runs off Ellis rookie Bruce Sutherland — both of them in the seventh inning.

To all Sutherland gave up seven hits, fanned four and walked a pair. Oshawa pitcher, Dave Wilson got down 12 local hitters on third strikes, walked two and gave up three hits.

Belleville took advantage of the visitors mistakes, rallying for three runs in the sixth inning on two errors and Sutherland's triple.

Tim Logeman and Wilson comprised a two-man show in the Oshawa hitting department. Logeman had a triple and a double and the hurler had a double and a single. Both collected a pair of RBI's.

Peter Wilson and Bob Campbell got the other Ellis Printer's hits.

Oshawa's left fielder, Tim Logeman, hit the dirt in the fifth inning of this Ontario Amateur Softball Association exhibition Junior A contest at Alemite Park on Sunday night. Though it appears as though Ellis Printer's third baseman, Jim Richardson, has him bottled, Logeman made it under his glove to stretch the hit into a triple. The Oshawa fielder was instrumental in his club winning the contest 7-3 and earning a 1-1 tie in first half of the doubleheader.

Expos and Pirates Carried Out of Park

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It isn't often that Bobby Murcer and Dusty Baker hit two home runs in a game. Montreal Expos and Pittsburgh Pirates could have waited one more game for them to do it.

Murcer belted a pair of two-run homers at windy Jarry Park to help San Francisco Giants pound the Expos 13-5 Sunday while Baker hit a pair of solo shots to lead Atlanta Braves past the Pirates 5-2.

"That was the first time I hit two home runs this year," said Murcer, who has seven on the year. "They don't come too often."

Asked about the wind, Murcer said "You think the wind had anything to do with my home runs? These balls would have gone out of ... well, maybe it did help a little bit. The wind sure didn't hurt them."

Baker, who has never hit more than 21 in a season but has 19 already this year, insisted: "Really, I don't start hitting home runs until after the all-star break. This is the third time I've hit two consecutive homers in the majors. I know my stroke is all right when I hit them."

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston Astros 5-4, San Diego Padres blasted New York Mets 4-0, Chicago Cubs whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 and Cincinnati Reds downed St. Louis Cardinals 5-1.

BOBBY MURCER

In Saturday's games Pittsburgh hammered Atlanta 11-4, Houston bombed Philadelphia 15-3, Cincinnati blanked St. Louis 6-0, Montreal edged San Francisco 3-2, New York downed San Diego 7-2 and Chicago defeated Los Angeles 2-1 after losing a game suspended from Friday 3-1.

The Giants struck for 10 runs over the final three innings. By that time, though Expos starter Dave McNally was showered and dressed. He worked five innings and gave up three runs.

Pittsburgh, which saw its six game winning streak snapped, scored on a homer by Bill Robinson in the seventh and an infield out in the ninth. Dave Parker struck out but reached first on a wild pitch in the ninth and came around on Al Oliver's single and the infield grounder.

Tops in Club History That's Mickey Lolich

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Lolich became the winningest left-handed pitcher in Tiger history and passed Bob Feller for sixth place on the all-time strikeout list Monday as he blanked the Tigers to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the first game of an American League baseball doubleheader.

The triumph was the 201st for Lolich in his 13-year career with Detroit. That is one more than fellow southpaw Hal Newhouser, but he trails two right-handers on the all-time Tiger list.

Lolich, who allowed just seven hits in raising his season record to 4-4, struck out Bill Stein in the seventh inning with the tying run on third base for his third strikeout of the game, putting him one ahead of Feller's 2,582 for his career. He ended the threat by getting Jorge Orta to ground out.

Lolich needs two more strikeouts to pass Warren Spahn for fifth place and become the all-time left-handed strikeout ace.

Saturday, Willie Horton hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Vern Ruhle limited Chicago White Sox to a pair of singles, leading the Tigers' to a 2-0 victory.

Ruhle, 4-1, did not allow a Chicago runner past second base. The only hits off him were singles by Ken Henderson in the fourth inning and Brian Downing in the fifth.

Ryan Plays It Cool; Gets Fourth No-hitter

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANAHEIM California (AP) — The crowd of 18,602 was screaming with every pitch Nolan Ryan threw. Both Ryans watched her husband from the stands, tensing with each delivery. Even his California Angels team-mates felt the pressure.

But not Ryan. While everyone around him was swept up in the excitement, the flame-throwing right-hander was cool as ice as he etched his niche in baseball's record books with the fourth no-hitter of his career.

In Saturday's games Detroit blanked Chicago 2-0, Boston outlasted Minnesota 12-8, Mike Cuellar tossed a one-hitter as Baltimore edged California 1-0, Cleveland defeated Oakland 4-1 and New York shut-out Texas 6-0 with Jim (Catfish) Hunter allowing just one hit.

Pitch-hitter Tommy Davis got the closest thing to a Baltimore hit when he opened the seventh with a chop over the mound. But second baseman Jerry Remy ran it down and threw out the slow Davis on a close play at first.

The 28-year-old Ryan, whose no-hitter was the first of the 1975 season, pitched the major leagues' last no-hitter as well, stopping Minnesota 4-0 last Sept. 28. His others were in 1973, a 3-0 victory over Kansas City May 15 and a 6-0 triumph over Detroit July 15, 1973.

It was the 100th career victory for the 6-foot-2, 190-pounder, whose record is now 8-8 with a 2.44 earned run average. He struck out nine, giving him 96 strikeouts in 96 innings—one in the losers. He gave up four walks, and one Orioles reached base on an error by Smith.

NOLAN RYAN

John Mayberry homered, drove in six runs and scored five as the Royals pasted Milwaukee Brewers 13-1 in the doubleheader.

The Brewers' Hank Aaron, the all-time home run king, rapped four singles in the twin-bill to tie Stan Musial for ... place on the all-time hit list with 3,630. Ty Cobb leads with 4,191.

Mickey Lolich scattered seven hits in the opener for the 201st victory of his career, making the 13-year veteran the winningest Detroit left-hander ever. Also, Lolich's three strikeouts put him one ahead of Bob Feller for sixth place in the all-time list with 2,582 and left him just one behind Warren Spahn among all left-handers.

It pays to be Civic-minded.

Some people talk about economy in terms of price. Others talk gas mileage. But we think a true economy car should have both. The Honda Civic is a result of that thinking.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Honda Civic got 49.2 miles per gallon in the highway test cycle.

As for price, we think it's the best value on four wheels. But don't take our word for it. The experts have already expressed it better than we ever could.

"...the Civic is the perfect antidote to the gasoline shortage and runaway prices, the two most pressing problems "with which we have to deal..." (Road Test).

"The amazing Honda Civic combines driver comfort, quality, sporty appeal, and pure economy in the best match ever seen..." (Motor Trend).

The Honda Civic is a lot of car at any price. It has as much room inside as some mid-size cars. The Civic has front-wheel drive for better road hugging stability.

It has a MacPherson strut suspension, independent on all four wheels, something that's expensive and rare on a small, economy car.

The Civic has an aluminum block, overhead cam engine. Power-assisted front disc brakes. Reclining bucket seats. Full carpeting that snaps out for cleaning. A rear window defroster. Flow-through ventilation with individual outlets. And much, much more. All, incredibly, as standard equipment. In a car that comes to you for under $3,000 and gives you such amazing gas mileage. It's no wonder the Civic is the only car ever to be awarded the "Car of the Year" in Japan, three years in a row.

Stars on Loose

NEW YORK (AP) — Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings, Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers, Johnny Bucyk of Boston Bruins and Billy Harris and Eddie Westfall of New York Islanders are among more than 30 National Hockey League players who became free agents Sunday.

None signed contracts for last season, thus are free to sign with any team in the NHL or World Hockey Association. If a free agent player signs with another NHL club, the club obtaining him must compensate his previous club.

The new free agents are the first under the compensation procedure inserted in the NHL's standard player contract in November, 1973. A court decision last year released the players from the perpetually-renewed option that had bound them to the club with which they first signed.

Pappin Traded

Johnston, who missed 18 games last season with injuries, is the Seals all time leading goal scorer and point getter. Pappin, a former member of Toronto Maple Leafs, has scored 376 goals in his NHL career.

DEFENDS TITLE

CALI, Colombia (AP) — Rodrigo Valdes successfully defended the World Boxing Council version of the middleweight championship Saturday, as he stopped Argentinian challenger Ramon Mendez in the eighth round. Valdes, rated champion of the WBC and top contender in the World Boxing Association, received $32,000 for his second successful defense.

For Sale Sign Out

HOUSTON (AP) — A group of investors headed by George Bolin has signed a contract to buy Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association from Irvin Kaplan, it was announced Saturday.

"Earnest money has been posted to support the contract and a purchase investigation is underway pending a closing on or before June 13, 1975," Bolin and Kaplan said in a joint statement.

Sale of the Aeros, who have won two consecutive WHA World cup titles, has been rumored much of the season.

Bolin and other Aeros stockholders have been vocal in their complaints of how Kaplan, who also own Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association, has operated the team.

The unhappy stockholders were displeased with the way the Aeros had been promoted.

Hale Irwin Coasts to Four Shot Victory

ATLANTA (AP) — "All he (Irwin) do was coast around," said Charles Coody. "Nobody took a run at him."

Hale Irwin, 1974 U.S. Open champion, accomplished that Sunday and coasted to an easy four-shot victory in the $225,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I went out with the distinct impression I had to shoot a 65 today. That would make somebody have to shoot a 65 to beat me."

The former University of Colorado star and football star did even better—a four-under-par 66—and no one even approached a 65.

Coody, winless since capturing the Masters in 1971, was the only player to get within two shots of the lead. That came on the first hole, which he parred and Irwin bogeyed.

But Coody's hopes of a run faded when he missed short birdie putts on the seventh and eighth greens and then took a bogey on the ninth. He had to settle for third place money at 278 after a closing 70 while young Tom Watson finished second at 69-275.

Irwin's 17-under-par 271 over the hills and valleys of the 6,885-yard Atlanta Country Club course was the lowest in nine tour events on this picturesque layout, bettering by one shot the previous record set two years ago by Jack Nicklaus.

After bogeying the first, he rolled in a birdie from 10 feet on the second, from 35 feet at the fifth and an eight-footer at eight to turn at 34.

Then came his other bogey at 10, but he supplied more pressure on the chasers with consecutive birdies in the 8-13 foot range at 12 and 13.

Irwin parred the rest of the way to the par-five 18th, where his 50-foot eagle putt sailed just past the hole, leaving him a tap-in for his birdie.

The victory, his fourth in an eight-year career but his first since last year's open, was worth $45,000.

There was a three-way tie for fourth place between Nicklaus, who had won the two prior tour events here, Johnny Miller and Miller Barber. They stood at 277 as Nicklaus and Barber closed with 68s and Miller with a 70.

It was two shots further back Jim Dent, 72, and Jim Colbert, who had the lowest round of the day at 67, also matched by Jerry McGee and Britain's Peter Oosterhuis.

Kathy Whitworth In A Comeback

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kathy Whitworth recorded her only birdie of the round on the 17th hole, but overcame a two-stroke deficit over the final six holes to win the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship Sunday.

Sandra Haynie, who held the lead prior to an 80-minutes rain delay, bogged the 13th and 16th holes and then missed a 15-foot putt on the 18th green which would have forged a tie and resulted in a playoff.

Miss Whitworth and Miss Haynie, who rank one-two on the all-time LPGA money list, started the final round of the 72-hole tournament in a tie at 215, four-under-par.

Miss Whitworth, who last year was inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame, finished with a four-underpar 288 and Miss Haynie, the defending champion, carried a 289.

JoAnn Washam, a 23-year-old in her third year on the tour, finished third at 290 after recording four consecutive birdies through the 17th hole, giving her 71 for the round.

Donna Caponi Young was fourth at 291, one stroke ahead of Cathy Mann, Alice Ritzman, Spuich, Jocelyne Bourassa of Sherbrooke, Que., and Sandra Palmer tied for sixth at 292.

It was Miss Whitworth's third LPGA title and was worth $8,000 to Miss Whitworth, whose career money winnings are approaching the $600,000 mark. She won the LPGA in 1967 and 1971 and twice was the runnerup after losing a playoff.

Bourassa's total gave her $1,875 in prize money and Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., finished at 295 and took home $1,525.

Roos in Charge

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — Bertin Roos of Sweden won the second round of the Canadian Golfing Championships at the Westwood circuit Sunday.

Roos' Schweppes Special completed the 57 laps around the 1.8-mile course in one hour, one minute, 8.32 seconds, 4.3 seconds faster than Bill Brack of Toronto.

Roos' average speed was calculated at 105.97 m.p.h. as he completed his fastest lap in one minute, 3.45 seconds or 102 m.p.h.

Speed Skaters Get Some Help

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three speedskaters dropped from the national team in February will receive some support from the Canadian Amateur Speed Skating Association in a bid to regain places on the team.

The association decided Saturday at its annual meeting that Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg, Andrew Barrow of Edmonton and Gerry Kassas of Ottawa will receive 100 per cent of travel expenses and 50 per cent of living expenses.

But the skaters, dropped by coach Jorrit Jorritsma because of a conflict in training ideas, must train on their own until they are able to win berths.

They all will be invited to attend training camp in West Germany in mid-December, when their times will be evaluated. If they are capable of Olympic qualifying standards, they will train in Europe. If not, they will be sent back to Canada for national trials from which a group will be selected to join the national team.

Another Record Setting Pace for Ruffian

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ruffian, a coal black filly, set her seventh record in as many stakes races with a victory Saturday in the $82,700 Mother Goose at Aqueduct racetrack in New York.

Ruffian took the lead out of the gate last long the race clear until about a half-mile remained. Then she romped home 10½ lengths in front of Sweet Old Girl to remain unbeaten in nine career races and keep alive her chances of winning New York's Triple Crown for three-year-old fillies.

The winning time for the 1⅛ miles was 1:47 4-5, clipping a fifth of a second off the record set by Wanda in 1973 and tied by Wide's Beauty in 1971.

Turcotte, who was not injured, ran the early pace but failed to finish fourth over the 1-10 distance and fell in a bid to break the $1-million earning mark. She had won $987,127 but needed the $32,100 first-place earnings to surpass that mark.

Modus Vivendi broke sixth to take a clear early lead. Tinna forced the winner while racing wide in the stretch but finished three-fourths of a length back of the winner.

At Albany, Calif., Joli Vert came from third place at the top of the stretch to score a three-length win in the $23,300 Yerba Buena handicap at Golden Gate Fields.

PARENT HONORED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers and goalie Bernie Parent were named winners Saturday of the 18th annual John Wanamaker Award, given each year to the team, individual or organization whose accomplishments "have done the most to reflect credit upon Philadelphia . . ." Last year's winners were the Flyers and captain Bobby Clarke.

Swim Records Smashed

Garapick Leads the Way

HALIFAX (CP) — Nancy Garapick of Halifax led an assault during the weekend on the Atlantic open swimming record book that resulted in 26 of 2 records smashed.

The 13-year-old swimmer, who already holds a world record, set new marks in the six events she won and led the Halifax Trojans to victory over five other teams in the Atlantic open swimming championships. She also picked up a second-and third-place finish.

Garapick won the 100 and 200-metre backstroke, 100 and 200-metre butterfly and the 100 and 200-metre individual medley.

Oliver won the 200, 400 and 800-metre freestyle events.

Debbie Vining, formerly of Nova Scotia and now competing for the Pointe Claire Swim Club of Quebec, was third with 19 points, mainly on the strength of her wins in the 100 and 200-metre breast strokes.

In men's competition, Blair Tucker of Memorial University's swim club and Peter Guildford of the Trojans ended the competition with 22 points each, but Tucker was declared the outstanding male swimmer for picking up four firsts to Guildford's three.

The Trojans won both the men's and women's team titles with 445 and 606 points respectively. Moncton, N.B., Marlins were second in the women's team standings with 197 points and the Memorial club was runner-up in the men's division with 227.

WINS NCAA TITLE

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Urso scored five goals Saturday as University of Maryland defeated the United States Naval Academy 20-13 to become the first team ever to win two national Collegiate Athletic Association University Division lacrosse championships. Maryland won its first title in 1973.

RETAINS CROWN

GRANADA, Nicaragua (AP) — Alexis Argueello of Nicaragua, World Boxing Association featherweight champion, successfully retained his crown Saturday, stopping Panamanian challenger Rigoberto Riasco with a second round technical knockout. Argueello received $100,000, Riasco $8,500. Argueello is ranked top contender by the World Boxing Council.

FINN FINISHED

HELSINKI (AP) — Sassmaa Pekka Vasala, 27, gold medalist in the 1,500 metres at the 1972 Olympics, has quit competition, a Helsinki newspaper said Saturday. Vasala has been appointed economic director of one of Finland's leading sports

NBA All-stars Barry Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Rick Barry of the playoff champion Golden State Warriors was the top vote-getter in the National Basketball Association's all-star team announced Saturday.

Barry, who in five years in the NBA has been selected four times for the first all-star team and once for the second, received 18,879 points in a poll of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Last week he led the Warriors to a 4-0 sweep of best-of-seven NBA final with Washington Bullets and was named most valuable Player in the series. From regular-season play, the six-foot, eight-inch forward led the league in steals, had the highest free throw percentage and finished second in scoring.

Guard Nate Archibald of the Kansas City Kings was next with 15,089 points. He was followed in the backcourt by perennial all-star Walt Frazier of New York Knicks.

For the first time, Elvin Hayes of Washington and center Bob McAdoo of Buffalo Braves, the NBA's Most Valuable Player, were named to the first team.

Nero in Top Form

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Nero strengthened his claim to being the best three-year-old pacer in the U.S. so far this season by winning the $52,500 Cane Prep final by 2½ lengths Saturday night at Yonkers Raceway.

The son of Meadow Skipper, driven by Atberton, P.E.I., native Joe O'Brien, rushed into the lead at the half-mile mark and held sway the rest of the way in a 1:59 mile for his third successive win of the year.

Nero paid $2.60, $2.40 and $2.10. Shirleys Beau returned $6.80 and $4. Silk Stockings paid $3.80 to show.

Momentum finished fourth in the seven-horse field, followed by Golden Falls, Brets Champ and Trusss Enover.

In qualifying for the $200,000 Cane Pace at Yonkers on June 28, the first of the pacing Triple Crown, O'Brien kept Nero back in fourth place, doing a 29 1-5 first quarter, before coming three wide in the stretch for the first time for his winning move.

Nero now has won 16 of 17 starts, with one second last year. He earned $95,350 Saturday to increase his seasonal bankroll to $46,350 and $130,065 for his career.

Caribous Held To Tie

Thompson scored four goals for the Bolts as Boston and Quebec Caribous battled through a scoreless overtime period to a 12-12 tie in the only National Lacrosse League game Sunday night.

Duffy McCarthy scored twice for the Bolts, while Jim Miller paced the Caribous with three goals before 3,359 fans. Travis Cook tallied twice for the visitors.

Pele Remains Undecided

NEW YORK (AP) — Clive Toye, general manager of New York Cosmos, denied a report Sunday that Brazilian soccer star Pele had agreed to terms with the North American Soccer League.

"He has not told me he'll sign with us, but we're hopeful," said Toye. The New York Daily News reported Pele had agreed to sign a three-year, $4.79 million contract with the Cosmos.

Toye said that Pele's announcement on whether he will come out of retirement and play for the Cosmos is expected to be made either today or Tuesday.

Bill Robinson's Jump Shot Pulls Canadian Team Past Italian Bs

MILAN (CP) — A 15-foot jump shot by Bill Robinson with four seconds remaining in overtime Saturday gave Canada's national basketball team a 99-98 comeback win over Italy's B team in an international basketball game.

Robinson, of Chemainus, B.C., scored 11 of Canada's 17 points in a four-point overtime period. Italy had taken a quick 90-82 lead at the start of the extra time.

"It hadn't also, well all game, I got like against Notre Dame (the United States university team)) and I wasn't getting the ball so I decided I'd better start going to the hoop," said Robinson.

"It was lucky I just hit three for four just the last one came when Al (Devlin) said 'Go' and I just put it up. I knew it was going in. No doubt."

The game was Canada's fifth in as many days. They finished their nine-game tour of Spain and Italy with five wins.

The Italian B team finished third, Notre Dame fourth and Purdue of the U.S. fifth. The Milan all-stars edged Purdue 87-86 in Saturday's other game.

The Canadians maintained a slim lead for most of the game and had an eight-point lead after seven minutes in the second half, but centre Rommel Raffin of Kitchener, Ont., ran into foul trouble and Robinson and Paul Tolentino of Raymond, Alta., developed shooting problems.

CAPS SIGN LOW

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Washington Capitals have signed goalie Ron Low to a long term contract, Milt Schmidt, general manager of the National Hockey League team, said Saturday. Low, 25, came to the Capitals last year from Toronto in the expansion draft.

BIRTHS

DOWLING — Dennis and Linda (nee Bliss) are pleased to announce the arrival of their first child, a son, Kirk Bliss Dowling, at 1 a.m. on Tuesday, May 21, 1974 at Kingston General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

IN PRINCES — In loving memory of our dear son and brother who passed away June 3, 1973.
We are and within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has left us for ever to stay.
We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed,
When others are asleep.

WALDEN — In loving memory of a dear son and grandfather, Jimmie Walden, who passed away May 22, 1964.
Sad indeed and a dear son and grandmother, Margaret Walden who passed away Dec. 8th, 1970.
Those whom we love go out of our sight
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they have left behind.
—Sadly missed by daughter Chuckie, grandchildren Jimmie, Chuckie, Gwen Debbie and Darlene Emmett, Kingston, Ontario.

HOCKINS — In loving memory of our dear father, Percy Hockins, who passed away suddenly on June 3, 1972.
I only care for the lovely sun,
And I always wish I knew,
The day he left the world to turn in Peace.
And will never let me go.
—Fred remembered and loved by Victor, Trisha and Ian.

MARACLE — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Ernest Maracle, who passed away June 3, 1971.
A time rolls by, another year,
Memories keep you ever near.
Your smile, your voice, your sadness,
And seven years of silence.
For what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
When the day is sad and lonely
And memories make me cry,
I seek to find your always Close up I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again one day.
Though you sleep not far from
Your home,
Beneath the Creator's great shade,
To me no greater man,
God has ever made.
—Forever in our hearts you write
Yes, you've left a mighty legacy of grandchildren.

SAUGRIN — Patrick John — In loving memory of our dear son and brother who passed away June 3, 1969 in an accident on June 1, 1974 at the age of 19 years and 2 months.
Peace and great sorrow.
The shock that we received that day
Only those who have lost can tell,
Our hearts are broken, our home is empty
Our loved one is not well.
The smile that won so many friends,
Is the happy big-game star,
Now lies cold and silent in deep repose.
Our loss is great, our sorrow deep
—Sadly missed and forever loved by Mom and Dad, brothers Ken, Bernard, Gerald, Daniel, Edward and Wayne.

Westerns on Verge of Comeback?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Is the movie western ready to stage a comeback? Signs on the dusty horizon indicate that it is.

The horse opera has been undergoing one of its periodic slumps in recent times. Even the redoubtable John Wayne had to don modern clothes (in Brannigan) to find film vehicles.

But the western manages to stage a revival every five years, and a new cycle may be starting.

Early reports on Rooster Cogburn indicate it is hot enough to warrant a John Wayne-Katharine Hepburn rematch, and director Tom Gries is taking Charles Bronson out west again in a railroading film, Breakheart Pass.

"Yes, I think the pendulum is swinging back to the western," agrees Kirk Douglas, who recently produced, directed and costarred in Posse for Paramount.

"The picture business goes away from westerns, partly because there were so many of them on television. But now that Gunsmoke has been cancelled, there won't be any westerns on TV. So this might be the time to bring them back to the theatres."

"Westerns have been good to me. I've done a wide range from the exploring period of the West in The Big Sky for Howard Hawks, through the desperado era with Gunfight at OK Corral, right up to the modern West in Lonely Are The Brave. In that one I hired Carroll O'Connor for his first major job—he played a truck driver."

Posse, an original story by Christopher Knopf, concerns a rich Texan who carried his own posse by private train, hunting down outlaws to establish himself as a law-and-order candidate for the United States Senate.

To Douglas, the allusion to modern-day politics was intriguing.

He worked with Knopf and William Roberts on the script, which Paramount agreed to sponsor. Douglas cast himself as the posse leader.

He remembered Bruce Dern from a small role in The War Wagon and cast him as the outlaw who declined to be killed to further Douglas's political career.

"I got intrigued, and I wondered: 'What would I do if something like that happened to me?'

"I wondered why the editor couldn't be played by an actor without an arm and leg. No need to explain what happened to him; just show him pecking at a typewriter with one hand and hopping around on one leg. So we wrote the part that way.

"I knew Jim would be uptight about working again. And I knew the one thing he didn't want was for people to be condescending or show him pity.

"I was tough. I told him: 'Look, I'll kick your ass if you don't come through for me.'"

And he did. He was terrific in the part."

Posse is a production of the Bryna Co., formed by Douglas 20 years ago. The company has produced such films as Indian Fighter, Paths of Glory, The Vikings, Spartacus, Seven Days in May, and The Arrangement.

Tips on Credit

OTTAWA (CP)—The Consumers Association of Canada suggests that when buying on credit it is wise to make the largest down payment possible so that the balance requiring financing is kept to a minimum. By paying off early you can save considerably in interest charges.

Galloway Star

Actress Knows Character of Role

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)— When Pat Galloway, star of this season's Stratford Festival production of George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan, described Joan's life on the farm, she speaks from experience.

She lives on a farm 10 miles southwest of Stratford, with a menagerie of animals—horses, a donkey, a sheep and dogs, in a verdant setting of trees and stream, gardens and lawns.

In Miss Galloway's interpretation, Joan—Jeanne d'Arc—is anything but a fragile creature. Neither is Miss Galloway.

"She says in the play she got her strength working on the land. She has been out carting animals about; obviously she knows how to ride, and so on.

"Living on the farm myself probably has given me something for the role," she says. "If I'd always lived in the city, I wouldn't know what she's talking about.

"She tells the Dauphin he doesn't hear voices because he doesn't listen, he hasn't sat in the fields in the evening. She has sat in the fields, and I have.

Jean d'Arc, the Maid of Orleans, in 1429 was instructed by heavenly voices to go to the Dauphin Charles of France, who ever was army and royal the English. Burned at the stake by the English in 1431, she was absolved in 1456 and later made a saint.

Shaw's Saint Joan opens the festival Monday June 9, for a season which runs into October. It is the first time the festival has done a Shaw play, and director, William Hutt says it is because Pat Galloway is a natural for the part.

Discussing the role, Miss Galloway said Joan "was certainly not a saint during the time of the play.

"She was a girl from the country who helped on the farm. She was a country girl and had no notions of saintly grandeur at all. But she had an absolute obsession that she had to do something."

While Joan was driven by her voices to repel the English from Orleans and crown the Dauphin in Rheims cathedral, there is nothing in the play to indicate Joan was instructed by her voices on how she was to achieve the tasks.

"That is something she has to figure out for herself," Hutt said. "I think a sense of improvisation on Joan's part through out the piece makes it much more interesting and believable for audiences today.

"It is that element that I think is absolutely stunning in Pat Galloway's performance."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, June 3

ARIES (Mar. 21 - April 19) Be willing to make concessions in dealing with associates today, though you strongly feel your way is best—which it is.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your freedom of movement will be sharply curtailed today because of tasks imposed upon you. Delegate work where possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In job or organizational work today, volunteer with care. If you wish an assignment, have a committee to back you up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be prepared to switch tactics today to achieve your goals. Use an alternate plan if the opposition gets too stiff.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't try to convince one whose views completely oppose yours of the merits of your ideas today. He can't be sold at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra perceptive of your resources today, especially if dealing with one whose motives are suspect. Resist high-pressure selling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't be too stiff-necked today with one who is co-operative toward you. You could find your most good out of something you could have shared.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Use your imagination today to come up with ways to cut costs for work or services that you now need performed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid a social scene today where you'll find yourself too close to one whose actions annoy you.

CAPRICORN (December 22-Jan. 19) Keep one who has no business dealing into private family matters out of your affairs. He'll just stir things up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Be prepared to switch tactics today to achieve your goals. Use an alternate plan if the opposition gets too stiff.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful today of one who may be looking for a piece of the action from something you've earned through your own efforts.

Young Mothers Often Depressed

By G. C. Thorleson, M.D.

Dear Doctor: I'm a 26-year-old mother; and I have a problem with depression which has lasted about a month since coming home from the hospital. My doctor is unable to explain why it happens, and said there is no cure for it. I understand that it may happen again.—Mrs. D.E.

It may be of some comfort for you to know that it is not uncommon for a new, young mother to experience this. It is unpredictable and it may at first appear immediately upon return home from the hospital or weeks afterward.

There are several perfectly understandable causes.

First of all, pregnancy and birth is a long and trying episode in a young woman's life. What you feel can be the result of simple fatigue, or subtle glandular imbalances which have not yet righted themselve.

Further, you have left the hospital, where your every need was provided for, and returned to a household where you are not only expected to resume a multitude of chores, but also to assume responsibility for your family's newest member — your baby. The baby may be a restless one who cries and wetes rips you, perforatan you.

You could be feeling a sensed guilt due possibly to a deep resentment you may be harboring over this new responsibility. Your time's much less your own than before. Your husband may not be type who enjoys sharing any of the new duties and responsibilities with you, and this can further lower your spirits.

Although many women return and immediately take up duties like with genuine joy, others like yourself go through this usually transient "blues" period. Many fear that it is going to be a permanent condition, that they will never pull out of it, so to speak. This can worsen its effects.

Whether you will experience the same thing with your next baby cannot be predicted. Most women, when told that such depression is not uncommon, feel a sense of relief, thus hastening the "recovery" period.

I don't agree that it is "incurable." There are ways to improve things.

Try to break your routine. Have your husband take you out to dinner or to a show, whether you can afford it or not. Such brief respites will more than pay for themselves in an improved disposition. If not this, then invite some friends you enjoy over for an evening of cards.

On weekends, take an afternoon nap, ask your husband to watch over the infant for a while. Husbands should be as much aware of this post-maternity syndrome as women. They should attempt to make their wives' transition back to happiness as easy as possible.

Your health is important now, with your new responsibilities, as it was while you were pregnant. Your blood should be checked to determine if anemia is a factor in your depression. There a e mood elevators, your doctor can prescribe to tide you over this period.

But if your depression is quite deep and long-lasting (more than a couple of months) then you should seek some psychological help, although this is rarely necessary. Most women recover to their former chipper selves naturally.

Dear Dr. Thoeleson: What will happen if you take hormones and you have your own ovaries? I've heard your ovaries stop working. Is this true?—Mrs. E.G.H.

The hormone estrogen will inhibit the production of eggs in the ovaries, the whole idea behind the contraceptive pill. To the extent the ovary is discouraged from performing its work, however, the extra hormones will not stop the ovary's ability to produce its own hormones.

Big Snake In Dark Room Cures Fear

VANCOUVER (CP) — A seven-foot boa constrictor and a dark soundproof room were used to combat fear of snakes in an experiment at University of British Columbia.

Peter Suedfeld, a UBC psychologist, tested the theory that exposure to a dangerous snake's less disturbing, even to those who have a deep fear of them.

Volunteers were kept in a dark, soundproof room for eight hours. After five hours, the experimenters activated a button which would flash a picture of a snake on a screen.

For the remaining three hours of the test, the volunteers could push the button to see the picture of the snake.

"Most people were fairly bored at the end of five hours and pushed the button at least a few times," Mr. Suedfeld said. The result is that the volunteer e were so starved for stimulation after five hours that they welcomed the picture of a snake.

"Our hypothesis was that knowing he had voluntarily pushed the button would reassure the subject . . . and this would carry over afterward and help him reduce his fear of snakes."

After a single eight-hour session about half the subjects could touch Quetzalcoatl, the boa constrictor Mr. Suedfeld named for the feathered serpent worshipped by the Aztecs.

The volunteers were recruited through ads in personal columns of Vancouver newspapers and campus posters. They all had severe snake phobias and registered increased heartbeats whenever shown a picture of a snake.

The psychologist said most people seemed to enjoy the sensory deprivation experience, very pretty relaxing; It's a pleasant way to spend a few hours," said Mr. Suedfeld. "You can lie there and think and have all sorts of vivid dreams and memories."

Oswald: "Bridge Brilliance and Blunders" is the title that Dick Miller has given to a collection of hands he played for the National Observer."

Jim: "Here is one that illustrates a simple style of play. South has to struggle at three-no-trump after a passive lead by West. He can't duck as he would like to and he can't collect nine tricks unless he can establish a spade."

Oswald: "The expert line of play is to play some clubs, probably ace, king and a small one to dummy's jack. Then establish the fourth trick in spades from dummy."

Jim: "This puts it right up to East. If he is up on his toes he will hop up with his ace, knock out South's second and last diamond stopper and smile contentedly when West eventually collects tricks with three diamonds and the king of spades."

Oswald: "Dick doesn't tell us what actually happened. He just points out that if South led a spade from his own hand he would almost surely have been ref."

Trudeau Finishes Tour

LUXEMBOURG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada wound up his tours of the European Common Market countries Saturday, saying he is optimistic the community's council of ministers will react favorably when they take up the question of Canada's "contractual link" in mid-summer.

As a result of his conferences with leaders of the nine members in three European visits, he now is "extremely hopeful" the council—the European Economic Community's political branch—will "give a mandate" to the proposal of a Canada-EEC committee to carry forth the idea.

If they do, he said at a news conference after talks with Luxembourg officials, "negotiations could start very soon."

He said Premier Gaston Thorn backed the idea of a link—"he is perfectly in tune with the aspirations of our plan."

If finally approved, Trudeau said, he could not predict when effects from the new arrangement will be felt, "but I caution anyone against thinking there will be any massive switch" in Canadian trade patterns.

New York Deficit Could Hit $1 Billion

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times quotes a confidential city Budget Bureau memorandum as saying New York's expenses are running so far ahead of income that next year's $561.5-million deficit will reach $1.3 billion by fiscal 1976-77.

The newspaper says preliminary stimates in the memorandum showed that even if the city closes the $641.3-million gap for the fiscal year beginning July 1, increased borrowing costs, pensions and other expenses will dictate that Mayor Abraham Beame cut expenditures in all city agencies by 10 per cent by fall to avoid a substantially-increased deficit the following year.

For the imminent fiscal year, Beame has proposed what he called a budget of $11.98 billion that calls for the dismissal of 37,315 city employees. Originally set at $12.8 billion, the New York City budget is second in size only to that of the U.S. government.

Leaders of municipal unions, whose memberships are being decimated by the budget crunch, blamed the bankers for the city's money troubles.

The city has tried in vain to borrow more than $1 billion to pay off notes, payrolls and other bills due this month but was rebuffed by the bankers.

Comptroller Harrisco Goldin said Sunday the city will not default on bills due by June 30.

He declined to say where the money was coming from.

Federally Inspected

Quebec Packer Sold Horse Meat

MONTREAL (CP) — A major Quebec meat-packing firm bought more than 16 million pounds of federally-inspected horse meat to supplement its beef products because it sold at half the price of beef, an inquiry was told Monday.

Evidence deposited with the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime indicated Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que., bought the horse meat through intermediary companies from 1960 to 1968.

Andre Smith, head of Roland Drolet Ltd. of Montreal, a subsidiary of Federal Packing, told the inquiry horse meat was used in company products because of economic considerations.

Horse meat sold at half the price of beef, he said.

Commission lawyers said this was yet another aspect of Federal Packing's illegal activities since it is against the law to sell horse meat without clearly identifying it as such.

Real Page, president of Federal Packing since 1968, told the inquiry he knew nothing of the illegal operations when he first took the position but found out later.

Asked why the firm purchased more than two million pounds of horse meat after he became president, he said it took time to change established company practices.

Chief counsel Rejean Paul said the company quit buying horse meat when it turned to the purchase of cut-rate beef from salvagers in Quebec and Ontario.

The evidence showed Federal Packing bought the horse meat through a subsidiary, Excel Meat Ltd., from 1960 to 1967, and from 1967 to 1968 from another subsidiary, Ledys Food Ltd. of Montreal which also kept a Toronto office.

Both Ledys Food and Manitoba Packing have since been disbanded because Federal Packing has changed its operation to the purchase of meat from salvagers, Mr. Paul said.

Mr. Paul estimated the firm realized $3.7 million profit between 1960 and 1968 on the purchase of the horse meat sold as beef.

The company applied about two weeks ago to have its meat federally inspected and some of its subsidiaries April 30 Dr. Roland Nadeau of the federal agriculture department said a ruling on the application will be made in Ottawa after an inspection of the company's plant and equipment.

He said the application could take from eight weeks to a year, depending on changes needed to make the plant conform to federal government standards.

Sadat Encouraged

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat hailed Israel's announcement of a reduction in its forces along the Suez canal and indicated that cargo bound for Israel would be allowed through the waterway if there are further Israeli concessions.

"I consider this a very encouraging act," Sadat told a CBS television interviewer in Salzburg, Austria, where he had been meeting with President Ford.

Sadat told an ABC correspondent the Israeli action "opens the way for the process of peace to continue and to have momentum again."

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said Monday that before the canal reopens Thursday, Israel will withdraw half its 7,000 soldiers, 30 tanks and all its artillery from the six-mile-wide area east to the United Nations buffer zone east of the waterway.

Rabin said the withdrawal will "brief home to the world, and to Egypt, the fact that Israel really wants peace."

Airport Staff In Dope Ring?

TORONTO (CP) — Federal government and RCMP officials refused today immediate comment on a published report that 60 Montreal Airport workers are described in an RCMP document as in the pay of drug smugglers.

However, the RCMP at Ottawa promised an official statement later in the day.

The Globe and Mail quotes Sgt. John Leduc of the RCMP drug squad as saying the 60 are named in an internal police report and that four are Customs officers and the others include customs brokers and employees of several airlines.

The sergeant is quoted as saying a few persons have been charged and their cases are before the courts but police do not have enough evidence to charge the others.

Denticare Promised

TORONTO (CP) — A universal dental care program would have as its first priority of a Liberal government in Ontario, Alberta Roy ILsOttawa East! said Monday.

Mr. Roy, Liberal health critic, introduced a resolution in the legislature Monday seeking support for a dentical program but it died on the order paper before emitted to a vote.

The resolution called for a government dental-care scheme which would cover children up to age six in the first phase, with the age limit to be increased until everyone was covered.

Mr. Roy said outside the legislature the Liberal caucus has adopted denticare as party policy. The Liberals would reject spending on advertising and do away with super ministries, using money now spent in these areas to pay for the first year of a dental program, he said.

The super ministries are generally regarded as those of resources development, social development and justice.

Mr. Roy could not say where funds would be found to keep the program going in succeeding years, but added as he introduced the resolution that:

"It is going to be one of the highest priorities for a new Liberal administration when we take over next fall—I think it will be October, November or some time around there."

He predicted Premier Davis, since hearing of the Liberal promise, would charge his mind and promise a dental care program during the upcoming election campaign.

Supermarts Have Sold Bad Meat

TORONTO (CP) — An investigation by the RCMP in 1961 found that tons of tainted meat was finding its way to supermarkets in eastern Ontario, Sam Drader, who headed the investigation, said Monday.

Mr. Drader, now retired from the RCMP and living in Medicine Hat, Alta., said on the CBC radio program As It Happens that several meat packers and several animal receivers were prosecuted after the investigation.

He said tainted meat was sold to supermarkets, not smaller stores.

"We discovered that the lion's share of this meat was going to supermarkets and did not go to the small shops at all," Mr. Drader said. "That's the way it was in 1961 and I have every reason to believe, naturally, that the pattern has not changed."

He said the supermarkets were never prosecuted because they argued they were only seeking the best deal available.

"They should ring their heads, thing was the matter with it?"

Waterfront Highrise Making Big Comeback

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A sparkling concept in city waterfront living — which already faded after it first excited attention — has made a spectacular comeback.

City council Monday heard the reasons for both the negative and now dramatically positive developments involving the multi-million-dollar apartment scheme.

The project, originally designed as a nine-storey complex rising in a crescent over the Bay of Quinte on South Front St. — on the site of what once was a coal yard — was suddenly found not to be economically feasible after the site was readied.

The reason: It wasn't ambitious enough.

The solution: Increase the dimensions of the project, raising it from nine floors to 13 storeys — increasing the number of apartments from 72 to 160.

That way the development is intended to be financially sound and work will now go ahead on the more ambitious concept, said W. U. Tausenfreund, lawyer for Lamplighter Realty Ltd.

Lamplighter, a consortium of four Belleviliians headed by businessman Jack Sills as company president, conceived the scheme which, about three years ago, was hailed as a pacesetter in waterfront redevelopment.

The new scheme — which is to be purchased by an out-of-town developer — conforms to city area rezoning requirements even in its larger scale, said Mr. Tausenfreund. The reason it was back before council was the necessity to amend the city's agreement with the developer to permit the larger dimensions.

There are some new features: The building will have a fire-prevention sprinkler system, a swimming pool, and a new parking space for visitors, he said.

However, council delayed action on amending the agreement until other municipal groups — including traffic, planning and city hall staff — had an opportunity to scan the new proposals.

Aldd Jack Ireland, traffic committee chairman, said all the needed reports should be ready for council's meeting in three weeks.

Mr. Sills, who estimated in an earlier interview the project could represent a 4-million investment, said Lamplighter Realty had an offer-to-purchase for sale of the site.

This would mean a new business organization will actually build the project.

Later, Mr. Sills did not reveal the identity of the prospective purchaser but said it was an "out-of-town developer."

Mayor Answers 'Catcalls'

"There's an increasing demand that the city include cats in animal controls it now imposes on dogs, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said city council last night.

"She said she's been receiving a mounting number of calls in recent weeks from people who believe cats should be confined from roaming at large as are dogs by city bylaw.

Later the mayor said callers are complaining that cats are "doing as much damage as dogs in the city."

She said she's been getting "a lot of calls" on the issue dating back months but says she says where the city council became involved in a debate over animal control from complaints received from the Ontario Humane Society.

Postal Pickets Set Up

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Inside postal workers set up picket lines Monday night outside a post office building to protest the hiring of casual help to sort mail.

Oliver Piccinin, chief shop steward in Thunder Bay for the Canadian Union of Postal Employees, said 20 women have been working since last week as casual help.

He said the women have been working at Station F, in the city's Port Arthur ward, and sorting mail previously handled at Station F, in Port William ward.

"We're not a sorting station here at station F," Mr. Piccinia said.

"We get the mail already sorted from Station P and we just assign it to the carriers. Now they're trucking over first-class mail from P to be sorted by scabs."

Deputy postmaster Vera LeClair said the extra women were hired to clear up a heavy backlog of mail in Thunder Bay.

OTTAWA (CP) — Arguments about bullet-proof cars, a basement bomb shelter and public-funded fish flew Monday as Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and John Diefenbaker continued their squabble over who spent what on the trappings of high office.

Mr. Trudeau, back from a European trip, faced complaints he libelled and slandered Mr. Diefenbaker. He apologized for writing once in a speech about the former prime minister's spending habits.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not shock Harrington Lake with fish for his own enjoyment, Mr. Trudeau said in the Commons. Harrington Lake is part of the 4,000-acre prime ministerial country home north of Ottawa.

"I do regret that I misled the House in regard to that erroneous statement and I withdraw it without equivocation," he told Mr. Diefenbaker.

"But that is as far as I am prepared to go," he added, dismissing Mr. Diefenbaker's charges he intentionally made other false statements.

Mr. Trudeau refused to budge on other allegations contained in a Commons speech May 22 in which he replied to criticisms from Mr. Diefenbaker and other opposition members about the soaring costs of operating his office and his two official residences.

He said he stands by his charges that Mr. Diefenbaker:

—"Made the largest land grab" in 1962 when, as prime minister, he accepted the Harrington Lake estate as an official residence;

—Had a bomb shelter built at substantial public expense" in the basement of the Ottawa residence on Sussex Drive.

Speaker J.-James Jerome said he will rule tomorrow or Wednesday on a Diefenbaker request to have the Commons privileges into the allegations made by Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Trudeau said his attack on the 79-year-old former prime minister was "strong in tone and language, but "this is a sin I share with . . . Mr. Diefenbaker."

He dismissed Mr. Diefenbaker's accusations he conspired with cabinet secretary Michael Pitfield to prepare the speech and said the speech was all his own doing.

"The things I did to say . . . I thought up myself and I still believe them," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Trudeau attack was a "planned programmed and premeditated" attempt to malign the Opposition and use up Commons debating time to avoid embarrassing questions about spending estimates. Mr. Trudeau denigrated the Commons with "this monstrosity" of a speech, he added.

He called on Mr. Trudeau to apologize "for a speech that as long as you live will constitute for you something that did not destroy my reputation."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the amount paid for the bomb shelter, which he said cost about $400, was paltry compared with the 500,000-plus spent on each of two armored Cadillac limousines used by Mr. Trudeau. "dreadnoughts, I call them."

Mr. Trudeau also was accused by Mr. Diefenbaker of violating the Official Secrets Act by making a derisive reference to defence installations—opened during Mr. Diefenbaker's term as prime minister—near Carp, 20 miles west of Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau said all his information about Carp came from a story he read long ago in a weekend magazine.

Teachers Remain Silent on Right-to-Strike Legislation

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

County education officials are revolting over the new proposed legislation governing teacher-board relations to be introduced today in the Ontario provincial legislature of education Thomas

Newly-elected president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation (OPSMTF) Wayne Sheppard said Monday he was reserving judgement on the legislation until the local committee met later this week.

The provincial OPSMTF leaders have criticized the legislation for allowing teachers to strike but not principals and vice-principals who are part members of their respective federations.

Hastings Division president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) said Monday "it is too early to make any judgements — it's still awhile before it will be passed."

Jean Hutchison, chairman of the Hastings County Board of Education also said it was too early to comment on the proposed legislation. She said the board would study the details and may make a statement.

Meanwhile, the New Democratic Party say they took a poll two weeks ago which revealed a majority of Ontario voters opposed the government giving teachers the right to strike.

The survey showed that 53.3 percent of those interviewed are opposed to teachers having the right to strike while 46.8 per cent indicated they were in favor.

The bill will set up a five-member Educational Relations Commission to watch over negotiations between boards and teachers across the province. It will select and train mediators, arbitrators and fact-finders. At any time each side can call on the resources of this commission for help.

The fact-finder will investigate the dispute and decide whether or not they are founded and justified. All teacher contracts, regardless of the length, will end Aug. 31. Each January either side can inform the other of a willingness or desire to negotiate.

No-strike can be called during a collective agreement. The legislation calls for stiff penalties for both sides in the event of a breach of this agreement.

A strike could not be called until good faith bargaining has taken place, fact-finder report has been completed and a secret vote by teachers is re-ject the board's final offer and five days notice of strike date.

Both teacher federations and trustee organizations have favored the right to strike in the past.

City May Ban Swimmers From Park Property

With citizen complaints before it, city council Monday moved to ban swimming from its waterfront property in Victoria Park.

The move was initiated last week in a notice-of-motion from Ald. Stu Meeks.

But when council met to discuss the Meeks' proposal it had two letters from citizens calling for action.

Aside from the threat to swimmers from passing boats in the city harbor area, the swimmers themselves were criticized.

E. A. Staiers, 111 Lingham St., complained of "foul language" by swimmers and the fact they scramble over boats, invading and ruining privacy.

Mrs. B. G. Lambert, Plata Sq., said she and her husband find difficulty docking because youngsters "almost dedy" boaters to hit them, while uging "abusive language and gestures."

Ald. Meeks said he had watched youngsters "literally swimming" between moving boats.

"It's just too dangerous to allow," he added.

"If one of those youngsters is killed then somebody is going to be sued — whether the city or the boater, I don't know."

One suggestion had been a rait moored off the park, but this too had to be ruled out because of the cost of a lifeguard, said the councillor.

He also called for an appropriate bylaw to give police the necessary authority to supervise the situation in the park.

Ald. Meeks also said he would like to see a wharf set aside for fishing.

Meanwhile, Mayor Robin Jeffery said she believes the Belleville Harbor Commission, the federal authority which also operates docks in the parks, is moving to seal off its property to swimmers.

Windows Smashed

Vandals were active overnight at two separate points in Belleville.

A city police spokesman said today a person stopped his car in front of the residence of Canon R.B.D. Wright of Christ Anglican Church, at 44 Everett St., threw a stone through a front window and fled away. The incident occurred at 11:00 p.m. Monday.

And at 6:14 a.m. today, an officer on patrol decovered a broken window at the Red Barn Family Restaurant at 464 East Dundas St.

"I'm a — guess," said someone heaved a rock through a window on the left side of the building. He estimated damage at $200.

Dock Lease Delayed

Sub-leasing of the visitors' dock at Victoria Park to the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club was delayed by city council Monday — a move involving possible revenue from the facility.

Council, which in turn leases the L-shaped dock near the club from the Belleville Harbor Commission, had a resolution proposing a rental of $100 a year for five years.

The sub-lease in turn was subject to approval by the commission.

But Ald. Stu Meeks, chairman of the Harbor Improvement Committee, said he wanted his group to first scrutinize the proposal and report back to council.

He said he was a "bit concerned" about the lease because "there is a $2,000 yearly revenue which could be derived from this dock."

New Planning System Will Speed Funding

Belleville has been recommended as one of Ontario's urban centres to study a system that may streamline provincial government funding for road construction projects.

Actually, the system has been in vogue in county governments for some years, involving the transportation and communications ministry.

It calls for local and provincial authorities to work more closely in assessing the pattern of future need involving road projects for municipalities.

This permits local administrative staff to improve their projections of what a community may require in future roads. Provincial officials are aided because they have a more clearly defined picture of what may be expected of ministries which provide subsidies for the projects. This, it's felt, results in better fund distribution.

Such an assessment is "really needed right now," said city manager Wilbur Purcell after the council meeting which appointed him to investigate the system further.

First step is a study — with 75 per cent of the cost paid by the ministry — to update the needs of the chosen municipalities. Belleville is among 126 communities recommended by the ministry for participation in the scheme.

How to save money at our expense.

The question is, are you collecting the maximum interest?

The person who can answer that, is one of our over 1600 Commerce managers. Because it depends on your particular requirements.

Take a for instance. A Chequing Savings Account only earns you 3% calculated on the minimum half-yearly balance. So the idea is to keep your balance low there, and take some of your surplus funds and put them somewhere else.

Maybe into a Savings Account where they'll collect 6½% calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Or perhaps a Term Deposit. Or Growth Savings Certificates. Maybe even a Commerce SMART registered savings plan so you can also benefit from the income tax deduction.

We think now is the time to make the most of the money you have. At our expense.

So talk to your local Commerce manager. We don't think there's anybody in the world with so much money he doesn't know what to do with it.

But if there is, send him to the Commerce.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Trenton Cuts Off Fire Protection for Murray

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton Monday cut off fire protection to Murray Township, the victim of the town's June 1 decision for payment of a $15,000 bill for service rendered in the first half of 1975.

Trenton and Murray have been in a deadlock since last January over the 150-per-cent increase in the cost of town-supplied fire protection. In 1974, the township paid $12,000 for the service and was asked for $30,000 this year.

The township, however, is not without fire protection, said Ken Rose. The township clerk said Monday Murray is under "full coverage" from fire departments in Frankford, Brighton and Stirling-Marmora.

Township officials have been negotiating with the three municipalities in Quinte for protection in the event Trenton cut off service. A short-term contract with Brighton was made final last week.

Mr. Rose said protection by the three municipalities is a temporary measure and will give the township "breathing space" in which to set up its own department.

The township expects to receive a fire truck July 15 and 1; now in the midst of designing a fire hall.

As yet, negotiations for land for the hall are not complete, and Mr. Rose would not reveal the location. He has said previously the hall will be built along Highway 2, in the township's south end.

He said steps are already underway to set up a volunteer fire department. Several township residents have indicated their willingness to join the new department.

Mr. Rose said Ameliasburg will cover the township south of the Murray canal and north along Highway 33 to Dead Creek. Frankford protects homes south to Highway 401 and west to Wooler Rd. while Brighton assumes watch over the remainder of the township.

Still to be decided is the payment the township will make to Trenton for protection it received until June 2. During the first half of 1975, parts of Murray were covered from fire halls in Ameliasburg and Frankford, thus complicating the cost issue.

Breakdown in Respect Growing Problem: MPP

PICTON — Today's so-called "open society" has fostered a breakdown of respect for authority says James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

At a rally at the Prince Edward Curling Club Monday, sponsored by the Young Progressive Conservatives, Mr. Taylor said much of this lack of respect begins in the home.

He should be the blame shifted transferred to the schools but "the buck it stops in the home."

"We have developed a so-called open society with freedom of expression and a lack of controls," he noted.

Examples of this new freedom are picketing, body rub parlors and activist groups. It is a society of, "anything goes."

"If times got tough you would have a different picture," predicted Mr. Taylor.

"There would be an undisciplined community without the fear of God."

"There would be rioting and a chaotic condition," he added.

"With our present system it could be quite different than in the '20s," observed the MPP.

Mr. Taylor referred to the removal of certain drug offences from the criminal code and a recent proposal to pardon certain first-time offenders.

He suggested such actions make it "softer and softer" for persons to direct their lives in terms of personal benefits once regarded as "not acceptable."

At the same time, there is concern for drug abuse and the crime rate.

The federal government should listen more to the provinces and to the man on the street," said Mr. Taylor.

Taylor Backs Capital Punishment in Canada

PICTON — If a free vote were held in parliament capital punishment would be supported predicted Prince Edward-Lennox MPP Prince Edward — Lennox.

At an informal meeting with party supporters here Monday he said he feels a public referendum also would back it.

"I don't know if that you will get a free vote in parliament. No doubt Peter the Great (Prime Minister Trudeau) will make the decision," said Mr. Taylor.

Topics ranged from the effect of tent caterpillars on tourism to the operation of a Monte Carlo night planned by the Wellington District Lions Club because of contravention of liquor licence laws.

Mr. Taylor said he had been contacted recently when it was learned Lions Club Night, a fund- raising project for the Prince Edward community swimming pool, was to be cancelled. A licence for liquor had been refused because gambling was to be mixed with a bar.

He said that in argument with government officials he convinced them that the licence should be granted. Organizers of Monte Carlo Night felt it was too late, however to resume plans and a postponement was suggested by Mr. Taylor.

Girls Join Cadet Corps

TRENTON — For the first time in the history of Trenton's summer air cadet camp, girls will be among the 1,200 cadets at camp.

Lt.-Col. Robert Massier, camp commanding officer, said Monday participates in to 60 girls will take part in the basic training course that will include gliding instructions.

Picton Councillors To Check OPP Service

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — If Picton town council requires information on the costs of provincial policing here it should be obtained through direct inquiry "at the proper sources" says the Picton Police Commission. This advice was taken by councillors Monday night.

At the May session of council it was decided the police commission should be requested to investigate the cost of provincial police protection following observations on the proposed 1975 budget for Picton police.

A motion refeving this issue back to council was tied Monday night in a letter to councillors from the police commission.

The police commission voted to turn the matter back to council stating that it is not in its duty or scope to investigate such a matter.

Speeders Beware

PICTON — Picton Mayor Donald Long says there have been tire squealers "since day one" but a recent police crackdown on these offenders here is thinning their ranks. He told town council Monday that motorists "who drive like fools in Picton" will be charged.

A total of 61 charges was laid by town police this month under the Highway Traffic Act.

Project Revised

PICTON — Picton councillors Monday voted to delete some area connections from proposed improvements to the town's waterworks in an effort to pare project costs.

Originally, council planned to spend $225,000 for improvements to the water system but when tenders were opened last week the Picton Public Utilities Commission announced all bids were much higher. Lowest of the four tenders received was $292,956.

It was decided that tenders should be held in abeyance pending consultants' recommendations for cutting costs.

Town solicitor Peter Rose Monday night told town council the PUC has agreed to inter-connections and a main on Rose Street should be deleted from the improvements projects. Both these alterations in mind all tender prices were reviewed and lowered accordingly.

Its said the tender of Ernie Hamilton Excavating Ltd., Kingston, has been recommended for approval by the PUC. The original tender was $325,956 and will be reduced to deletions on the project. The figure has been changed to $285,180.

Mr. Ward noted if 10 per cent is added to this low bid it produces a project cost of $290,000, engineering and contingencies included.

Council last night revised its original cost estimate of $225,000 for the project to $290,000 and a bylaw authorizing the required improvements to the waterworks was given third reading.

Road Grant Raised

TRENTON — Trenton will get an additional $25,000 for road construction this year, bringing to a total of $750,000 provincial grants the money allotted the town for 1975 road work.

Treasurer Brian Fagan said the supplementary grant from the transportation ministry is the first in four years that has come so early in the year. Usually, he said, the grants come in the fall.

Hittin' The Road

Trenton works employee Gerald Butler, hit the road early Tuesday but wasn't travelling anywhere. For the past 2½ weeks Mr. Butler has been painting traffic control markings on town streets and expects to continue work for another three weeks. The yearly job takes about 300 gallons of paint to complete.

$1.03 Million Report Outlines Expense Of Dundas Bridge Repairs

TRENTON Trenton council will shortly get down to financial brass tacks in deliberations over the future of the Dundas St. bridge, now 58 years old and ettlemively corroded in several key sections.

Impetus for the talks comes from a consultant's report issued Monday that breaks down a bill for repairing, as opposed to rebuilding, the aging structure.

Repairs will cost $1,032,000 and would extend the life of the existing bridge 10 to 20 years. Complete reconstruction will cost $2.75-million and any new bridge would last a minimum of 50 years.

Trenton council gave brief consideration Monday to the report by Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd., the consultants who originally produced a $15,000 study outlining bridge problems.

Two factors will play key roles in whatever decision council makes — annual cost to the town and provincial government reception to a request for a 75 per cent grant.

The report states the annual cost to the town for reconstruction will be $21,800 yearly over the 50-year life span of the proposed four-lane fixed bridge.

Trenton's share of the $2.75-million cost, paid through debentures over 10 years, would amount to $1,165,800, or $116,580 annually.

On the other hand, repairing the existing structure would cost the town $430,000 over the 10 years required to pay off its debenture debt. An additional yearly cost of $10,000 is added for bridge upkeep and operation.

New Zoning Bylaw Lacks Full Support

TRENTON — Trenton's zoning bylaw, described by councillor Peter De Groot as "designed for the death of Trenton," was defeated in a 4-2 vote Monday and will now likely take up to a year and a half before it again reaches council.

The defeat was labelled a "major setback" by Mayor Bob Patrick who said he would not predict when council will again see the document.

The zoning by law, a mirror image of the town's official plan, has been bitterly opposed by Mr. De Groot, who Monday identified himself with Trenton builders and developers, long-time opponents of both official plan and zoning bylaw.

Quinte Planning Board deputy director Frank Stokmans said the defeat marks a return to "square one", since councillors "didn't say anything about what they're going to do now." Mr. Stokmans has drafted and revised the document over the past two years.

Councillor Bob Wannamaker termed "disgusting" the "humiliation" forced upon Mr. Stokmans in treatment he received from some councillors. He charged that developers are trying to hold off bylaw passage as long as possible in order to get all the "little lots occupied."

George Greer stood up for the "rank and file citizens who need help," saying "If we delay it, it'll help the developers, but I don't think developers need any help. They're doing all right."

Mr. De Groot lead the attack on the bylaw, leveling repeated and lengthy criticism at numerous restrictions he said it contained.

He charged that the bylaw would end multiple-family unit construction in Trenton, a need he saw as essential.

"Private dwellings are alright, but it's not possible anymore for the working man to buy a single family dwelling. He must be accommodated," he said. Residential densities outlined in the official plan, and reflected in the bylaw, would end construction of duplexes, six-plexes and apartment buildings, he claimed.

Mr. De Groot's opposition was supported by comments from councillors Pete Aiza, Ron Price and Ed Todd. Councillors Bob Wannamaker and George Greer supported passage.

Quinte EMO Gets $825 For Windup Operation

TRENTON — The Quinte Emergency Measures Organization will get $825 from Trenton to keep the group from folding July 31 and extend its life to the end of 1975.

Trenton council agreed Monday to support wind-down operations by the EMO, faced with the withdrawal of both provincial and federal funds by mid-year.

Trenton EMO representative Peter De Groot told council the funds are needed to pay the salary and severance pay of EMO co-ordinator Angus Duffy till year's end.

As the same time, the possibility exists that once the provincial government pulls out, Trenton may be able to get some of its money back through the sale of EMO equipment, said Mr. De Groot.

Money approve Monday is $610 more than the normal 10 per cent ($215) of the EMO budget Trenton contributes.

Mr. De Groot said Trenton could not pull out of the EMO operation by itself, saying it is okaying its participation three months before the start of a non-participatory year.

Guards Get Increase

TRENTON — Trenton's 15 school crossing guards received their third pay increase in less than a year Monday.

Council approved a $3 weekly raise, bring the salary of a crossing guard as of June 1st at $40 a week. The raise follows two previous increases of $5 and $6 since September, 1974.

Approval of the raise was made with virtually no comment Monday. Two weeks ago, Trenton council heard a petition from the crossing guards asking for an $8 a week raise.

Council refused a second request that payment of half-salary be made during vacation periods to guards over 70 years.

FINISH JOB OR LOSE SALE

Ed. Shortt/Sonny Lee
J. Lee Attorney

The Johnson's had a problem. A leaky roof. Now that their home was about to be put up for sale, Johnson arranged for a roofing contractor. Good thinking, Johnson. Almost.

After the job was finished at great expense, the yellow water stain still remained on the ceiling. Mr. Johnson thought he had already spent enough on the roof and any prospect would believe him when he showed the repair bill.

The old adage of being penny-wise and pound foolish bore fruit. Each prospect asked about the stain. The receipted bill never quite put their minds at ease. One structural problem in a home is a red flag waving and warning — "Don't get involved with this headache."

Fortunately for the price of a restaurant dinner the ceiling was repainted. It was finally sold, but only after too many of the best prospects had come to a close inspection. The moral is obvious. The fewer apologies you have to make for your property, the easier it is to sell. If you have any obvious red flags waving — remove them.

INVEST IN YOUR HOME
Upgrading your present heating system is cheaper than moving!

It's True. House prices are high. Lot's of us are thinking of staying put in our present homes. Thinking of improvements all around. Especially improvements in the heating - cooling - humidity systems. That's where Moira Schuster Fuels comes in. If you've got a furnace that is 15 years old or more you certainly should think seriously about upgrading your heating system. You're undoubtedly burning too much fuel and are not getting the efficiency a modern unit can provide. With today's energy costs, none of us can afford to burn money.

Our sales technicians are experts at measuring heat loss. They will give you a firm price for a furnace replacement including installation and taxes. Absolutely no extras. That's Moira Schuster's policy.

With the high cost of energy today, we believe it is imperative that you have your furnace cleaned annually. Remember this — A CLEAN FURNACE BURNS LESS OIL.

PSST! Why not think about central AIR CONDITIONING TOO for the WHOLE HOUSE? SUMMER IS HERE! Think about the comfort during those hot humid days and think about the increase in value of your home, when you have CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING.

Question:
What Is Compliance?
Answer:
Is a measure of the stylus' ability to follow violent undulations in the record groove. Expressed as the amount of deflection (in CM) that a force of one dyne upon the stylus will cause. The larger the figure, the better. Also, depends on the tracking force and should be at least 8 x 10 - 6 cm/dyne.

Ford Encounters European Opposition to Idea of Spain as a NATO Ally

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The current fall NATO meeting in Brussels was not a Canadian event, but a confrontation between the United States and Western Europe.

And it has been less than satisfactory for all member states with the appearance in Portugal in his opening speech, in spite of behind-the-scenes advice from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that he not bring the question of Spain into any formal address.

To the Americans, if not to her European NATO allies, the prospect of a member-nation with a dictatorship looks not incompatible one in an alliance formed in the period to contain or combat Communism in Western Europe.

Mr. Ford's direct reference to a Spain closer to NATO brought open rejection of the idea from the Scandinavian member nations, Norway and Denmark, also from the Dutch and even the West Germans.

As long as even a declining and aging General Franco lives and is ruler in Spain, the northern democracies in NATO will refuse to consider Spain in any NATO-directed relationship.

They were joined in delying the American president by Britain who whose Labor government, considers Spain to be the parish of Europe as long as Franco is in charge.

Then there is Washington's ongoing question of the usefulness of Greece and Turkey within the alliance.

Their renewed enmity over Cyprus has not diminished since last year's bitter land blood Cyprus crisis, nor has the possibility of these two NATO members fighting each other instead of preparing for battle some day against the Russians and in concert.

Greece under her former military rulers, indeed is hardly of anti-Communist in Europe, even though the oppressive rule of the now deposed generals was a contradiction in terms of the democratic ideals whose preservation NATO was formed to maintain.

Turkey in her own right is a restless NATO partner, no longer pleased with her role as a pike the U.S. radar and very high-flying U.S. spy aircraft intelligence-gathering flights over Russians.

The Turks control the Dardanelles, through which a much-enlarged Soviet Mediterranean fleet moves back and forth under a convention signed at Montreux in Switzerland in 1936 permitting such free passages.

Moscow protests that permission of the Turks to move warships through that so far the Turks have not refused it, situated as they are on the borders of the U.S.S.R. in Asia.

Against all these problems, the presence of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, who master-minded Canada's reduced NATO role in a foreign policy shift in 1969, is small potatoes.

Smaller and loyal northern tier NATO members like the Dutch, the Danes and the Norwegians are still miffed at Canada for cutting her military forces in Europe in half.

Rather they would like Canadians to maintain the record of major small nation performance which they had once held during the 1950s.

A Lesson Learned?

In the wake of tragedies that might have been prevented, there are always revelations which, had they been taken seriously at the time, might have changed the course of events.

A reading of the events leading up to the Brampton school tragedy suggests this: evidence for instance of the conduct of the young gunman in the days before . . . things he said and so on.

The trouble is, who is really giving his full attention at the time? Who among us is prophet, detective, and intellectual enough to weigh the evidence and perhaps determine what is going on in people's minds and reach conclusions about what might happen?

It really says a lot about our "dehumanized" society that, aside from what is being said in any conversation, at any given time, most of it goes in one ear and out the other.

Who really cares?

And by caring, is listening? Listening and looking for signs of potential trouble.

It says a lot too about our society that in Belleville, as in many other communities around the western world, telephone counselling is supplying the friendly voice and attention ear that are missing in the ordinary way.

Too bad that the youth who took things into his own hands in Brampton had not considered some such course, or spoken to a school counsellor.

There is this tremendous need to open up more, and especially among the young' who so often mask their feelings behind an image of "cool."

It even might not be a bad idea to try something of the "Encounter Group" style of therapy in the schools . . . but under proper control, for such therapy has its dangers. Better still, parents and offspring and teachers might simply try caring more about each other.

Women and Politics

"It might have been a good idea—if federal budget by the end of May, as originally promised by Finance Minister John Turner.

But the government had what it thought was a better idea. Latching on to a variety of plausible excuses, it took the easy course and postponed the budget until June 23.

Between now and then, Canadians are left with the uneasy feeling that Mr. Turner wishes he had never committed himself to a budget that would try to check inflation.

For the past couple of months, the annualized inflation rate has fallen below 10 per cent. To a government that for years to concede that inflation was a Canadian problem, single-digit inflation is not a matter for concern at all.

But most people have good reason to be concerned when the value of their money is eroding by seven per cent a year, especially at the same time that industrial output is lower than a year earlier.

The first-quarter decline was 1.6 per cent—or 0.7 per cent when seasonal factors are discounted.

It's true that our recession is not the only one. The world is being 21 to 25, bilingual, and carefully chosen after two interviews each.

All the other candidates similarly had their distaff side lieutenants, all of whom, back in 1968. There are now more women in federal politics, in an active role. As for Ontario, the province now has a woman lieutenant-governor, Pauline McGibbon.

There's a woman running for Social Credit in the new Hastings-Frontenac riding in this year's provincial vote. She is Nancy Arnold, a Wasaga Beach newspaper woman, and it will be a three-cornered flight with incumbent Hastings PC member Clarke Rollins and Liberal David Hobson, a Bancroft high school teacher.

That means one woman fewer at least in the ranks of support staff. Rather, Nancy Arnold will be out there looking for the main political chance — even if it is no more (given traditional voting patterns in the area) than a token fight. Her party may not even have much in the way of funds for hoopla, but we may be sure her support staff, in any event, will have its quota of . . . yes, men.

It should be a different style of election all round, with more of the womenfolk's potential role yet to emerge.

Women and Leadership and Radicalism

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — One has to wonder, and worry today about what kind of leadership labor is really getting at the top.

A short while ago a delegation from the Ontario Federation of Labor was here for the presentation of its annual brief.

After the presentation David Archer was interviewed.

Archer is the Ontario president of the OFL and as such should be regarded as the top labor spokesman in the province.

In the interview he was asked about inflation.

And he gave this remarkable answer, Everyone, he said, knew that the reason why wages were not a major factor in inflation.

The remark is so palpably foolish that no further comment is called for.

On that same occasion there was another indication that labor leadership is losing its grip.

A demonstration had been planned for in front of the building. And it was a flop.

Not nearly the crowd that had been expected showed up.

For example the Oshawa Labor Council, who had originated the idea of the demonstration, chartered three busses to bring its demonstrators to Toronto.

Only one of them was needed.

The demonstration did serve the purpose of giving an example of a problem that is at the root of much of our labor trouble today.

When Labor Minister John Munro met with a representative for the Liberal party spoke to the gathering they were constantly booed and Mr. Macbeth was met with shouts of "liar" and "fascist."

But wasn't he afraid that the industrialized nations might use force to prevent economic strangulation through loss of oil? "Not at all," said the Shah. Strangulation could only happen if the supply were cut, and "the supply is not cut." It is just going to cost more. And if nations like the United States and Canada thought the price was too high, they would have made concerted efforts to develop other energy sources. They haven't, so the price is not too high.

All so logical.

And, when you weigh it, all so fantasy. For Canada, anyway. All we have seen is a federal-provincial fight to grab oil revenue, and a federal budget — for those who had the foresight to order it ahead of time — to tell the rest of us how to conserve oil. We have certainly seen no effort to fight the inflation that troubles the world. This would be representative at all of the approach and general attitude of trade union members across the province.

It was representative of the small radical element in the union movement.

Small, but unfortunately tending to dominate it.

And there can be no real hope of reasonable labor relations until its dominance is ended.

That the rank and file in labor doesn't agree with it is evidenced by the fact that, taken from two recent happenings: the dramatic failure of the general strike in Quebec and the failure of most postal workers here to take "sick" or wildcat, leave.

But to date neither labor leadership nor government has come up with any proposals for curbing this element.

And until this is done the future must look unhappy.

Shah of Iran Lays it on the Line

By DON SCHRIBER

The Globe and Mail

The Shah of Iran visited North America in the eye on television and managed to be both impetuous and right. The unhappy combination of consumers he was looking at should measure his words.

Oil prices, he said, would probably be increased in September. After all, costs had gone up. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had lost 35 per cent of its purchasing power because of world inflation, the shaky world monetary situation and the lost of purchasing power of the dollar (U.S., but the Canadian dollar has lost even more purchasing power). OPEC, the Shah pointed out reasonably, had given us a chance to mend; but we hadn't taken it.

Not to worry, though: the increase would not likely be 35 per cent, just enough to defend OPEC interests.

But wasn't he afraid that the industrialized nations might use force to prevent economic strangulation through loss of oil? "Not at all," said the Shah. Strangulation could only happen if the supply were cut, and "the supply is not cut." It is just going to cost more. And if nations like the United States and Canada thought the price was too high, they would have made concerted efforts to develop other energy sources. They haven't, so the price is not too high.

All we have seen is a federal-provincial fight to grab oil revenue, and a federal budget — for those who had the foresight to order it ahead of time — to tell the rest of us how to conserve oil. We have certainly seen no effort to fight the inflation that troubles the Shah.

He has the right to be unctuous.

After-hours Use of Schools

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

As a taxpayer and speaking personally, I would like to clarify some points that were raised in a recent editorial concerning the relationship existing between the Hastings-Prince Edward County R.C.S.S. Board and its custodial personnel. The matter referred to was the discussion relative to the board's policy on the use of schools by the public outside of school hours. A request had been received by the Board to review the policy as it relates to the use of the schools on certain holidays throughout the year, such as New Year's Eve.

The board's policy in making the schools available to the public is a very liberal one, but the issuing of the 200 permits since January of the year has required an excessive amount of night work by our Custodial personnel. They have generously worked many hours of overtime to accommodate different groups, and it was in an attempt to find some way of continuing the existing policy, and at the same time alleviating the excessive number of hours worked by our men, that the discussion ensued.

I feel that there is a high level of regard and co-operation existing between our board and our personnel, and expect that this mutual trust and appreciation will continue. I am sure that the board will be able to find a solution to the problem that will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Critic Explains Stand

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The tranquility of my working day was recently shattered when a very nice fellow called in to voice his displeasure at my stand on the wine and cheese binge in Lake.

I admire this chap as he had the guts to come and beard me in person. He did not resort to anonymous letters or abusive phone calls. The gist of his argument was that, as recipient of wages from public monies I should not be heard voicing my opinions in public.

Like several others, the gentleman felt that I should keep my mouth shut and do what he called "more constructive". By this, in a roundabout way, he meant that I should not be saying unkind things about those things that concern me. It's OK, if I do it on behalf of somebody else to use my rights as a citizen.

It's funny how this chap, despite his obvious intelligence, was unable to separate what I do in the course of my work from what I do as an individual. I am always most careful to make the distinction yet even the editorial writer of The Intelligencer had the same problem, despite the fact that his reporter was served with a copy of my address to city council.

That address contained in the first paragraph a definite statement of my position relative to my elected representatives "as a resident and taxpayer of the city of Belleville". That, in the case of anyone else, would have been sufficient.

It's unlikely, at my age that I can change my spots, nor do I particularly wish to do so, so my critics will have to take me as I am and hope that, perhaps, one day I will see the light.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY,

Union Official's Answer

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

John Harbron's column in the issue of Saturday, June 1, The Intelligencer ("U.S. Union Domination") asserts that Canada is "American-dominated" and asserts in style "foreign domination" of the Canadian union movement.

But he offers not one single piece of evidence to support this sweeping (and unfounded) assertion.

Just about a month ago the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. broadcast over its radio network a lengthy report on the Steelworkers for making the identical charge against the union. I think your readers deserve the opportunity to see what the CBC's report said.

In a CBC broadcast a commentator said "regarded the Steelworkers) international link deprived Canadian Steelworkers of the right to run their own affairs. The CBC acknowledged that this suggestion was "inaccurate and misleading."

The CBC implied that a portion of the dues of Canadian Steelworkers was being siphoned off to the United States. The apology said, "The CBC is satisfied that the opposite is the truth. Over the recent years the Canadian Steelworkers have received back more than its international union than they have paid to it."

Mr. Harbron, in my opinion, should have checked not only the 107,000 Steelworkers in Canada but to the other 1.5 million Canadian members of international unions. To suggest, as Mr. Harbron does, that these Canadians would succumb to "foreign domination" along real contempt for the organized workers of Canada.

Governments' Inflation Psychology Rampant as Turner Eyes a June Budget

It's true that our recession is not the only one. The world is being hit by a budget deficits could accomplish a great deal if they were determined to use their considerable clout to make some positive contribution to economic recovery.

Cutbacks in federal spending are constantly being urged on the government by outsiders, as a necessary first step.

But the government apparently lacks the will to take that step. For example, it has sharply scaled down a plan by Public Services Commission that would have saved millions of dollars in the use of temporary civil-service office workers.

Still, the finance minister and his budget advisers could accomplish a great deal if they were determined to use their considerable clout to make some positive contribution to economic recovery.

Cutbacks in federal spending are constantly being urged on the government by outsiders, as a necessary first step.

But the government apparently lacks the will to take that step. For example, it has sharply scaled down a plan by Public Services Commission that would have saved millions of dollars in the use of temporary civil-service office workers.

This clearly is not the time to ease up on inflation. Growth in output slowdown in the rate of price advance in the past few months, super-inflation isn't going away.

The current rise in interest rates, the fortuitous increase in energy prices, the ever-bigger wage demands of strong unions (especially of public servants and vulnerable to the discipline of recession)—all these show that the roots of dose of inflation is awaiting us as 1975 runs into 1976.

There are plenty of anti-inflationary techniques that Mr. Turner could have introduced in a May budget, and could still offer in June—more effective income-sharing stimulants (including action to moderate interest rates), measures to relieve unemployment and encourage worker mobility, selective cuts in taxes, and tax credit that would more directly encourage business to invest in new plant and equipment.

What is needed most of all, however, is a clear demonstration that the government wants to restore price stability. Canadians have been waiting for that kind of evidence for this decade began.

Three United Church Partners Agreed Only on Basic Points

The period of gestation was long and the labor was painful but a new church was born 50 years ago. How three denominations with proud backgrounds but different beliefs came together was, as explored in this, the last of three stories on the United Church of Canada.

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

The partners were agreed on basic doctrine—the sovereignty of God and the authority of the Scriptures—but they differed wisely on so many other points that unity seemed an impossible dream.

But they did come together, not without pain, and a new church was born June 10, 1925.

That church was the United Church of Canada, self-described as a united and a uniting church which, in its golden anniversary year, reaches out to other Christian communions, even to Rome, six centuries after the Reformation.

The disciplined Methodist Church entered union as a body, losing only a handful of dissidents. About two-thirds of the Presbyterian Church in Canada came in and all but a few congregations of the Congregationalist Union of Canada.

The marriage took place in an old hockey arena in downtown Toronto. More than 7,500 men and women participated in the first communion.

The story of the formation of the United Church of Canada and its progress in a half-century is told by Grace Lane, widow of a United Church minister, in Brief Halt at Mile 50 and in historical documents issued by the church as part of its anniversary celebration.

One church paper says of that union in 1925:

"The new church started with a great wave of enthusiasm and missionary outreach. There was a rather naive optimism that, with church union, the Kingdom of God might now be built in Canada."

Circumstances all but forced union upon quibbling participants.

In a sparsely settled west, flooded with the wave of immigration from Europe early in the 20th century, clergymen were few. Church-goers, willy-nilly, worshipped where they could.

The social activists of the day, they were concerned with problems faced by the immigrants and, more than a little, with the possibility that the Roman Catholic Church might pick off more than its share of the newcomers.

Mrs. Lane says of those days:

"As the CPR snaked across the west, village after village sprang up. At first the churches were intensely competitive. . . .

"Ministers were in such short supply that denominations were forced to co-operate.

"Methodists and Presbyterians agreed not to plant congregations within six miles of each other and working boundaries were set, based on alternate railway stations. A family leaving the train at Y automatically became Methodists; another at X, Presbyterian.

"Local unions were established at such places as Kindersley, Kerrobert, Probisher and North Portal. . . .

"The Union churches were a mighty impetus toward organic union on two counts. First, they proved that harmonious amalgamation was possible; second, it was clear that unless the parent bodies moved they would become a new denomination."

Another common interest brought them together.

Rev. Glen Lucas, archivist of the United Church, explained it in an interview:

"They were all pretty active in the prohibition movement. They were of the rather pietist tradition of the 19th-century Evangelical Revival.

"They were a teetotalling crowd that really didn't care for card-playing or dancing and frowned a bit on the theatre."

The Presbyterians, who in the east were real assets, initiated union negotiations which generally are dated as getting under way in 1904. But there was talk of union long before that.

Mrs. Lane writes:

"Union was in the air. A conference to discuss it was actually held in Toronto in April, 1889. It included Anglicans and Baptists.

"However, the two latter dropped out. For the others, there was no turning back."

Mrs. Lane says in her introduction that Brief Halt at Mile 50 "is not intended for the academician. It is written so that ordinary members may know something of their own story."

A definitive history of the United Church is in preparation but it will not be published until at least 1980.

The United Church of Canada now claims 3.1 million members and adherents—it prefers the phrase "persons under pastoral care"—and is Canada's largest Protestant denomination.

"I think of the church as a wheel," says Mrs. Lane. "Thousands cling to its rim. They use it but are impervious to its real meaning and its challenge.

"The church, though there is latent opposition in the membership, is officially committed to seeking organic union with a new Anglican Church of Canada (1.5 million members and adherents). Negotiations to this end have been under way since 1943.

Some United Church members, not convinced that union with the Anglicans is desirable, were stunned last August when, almost in the dying moments of the 1974 general council, a private motion was approved by the commissioners directing the church leadership to "begin the long journey to union with Rome." Others felt the move was premature.

General Secretary Rev. George Morrison dutifully made overtures to the Canadian hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church. Dr. Morrison, without details, says first responses have been favorable. Practical church leaders view reunion as just possible in the 21st century.

The three men who led their churches into union a half-century ago were concerned with immediate problems. One church history says of them:

"These church leaders possessed a sense of Canadian national feeling. Even the most British-oriented of them laid little stress on ecclesiastical ties with the churches of the mother country.

"All three of the uniting churches had been independent, self-governing bodies for some time and the vast majority of their clergy were Canadian-born.

"They emphasized not the British roots of the Canadian churches but the extent to which the imported institutions had adapted themselves to meet Canadian needs in the Canadian environment."

The three leaders were: — Very Rev. George Campbell Pidgeon 1872-1971, moderator, Presbyterian Church in Canada, 1925, and moderator, United Church of Canada, 1925-26.

Very Rev. William Thomas Gunn (1867-1930), general secretary, Congregational Union of Canada, 1907-25, moderator, United Church of Canada, 1928-30.

Rev. Samuel Dwight Chown (1853-1933), general superintendent, Methodist Church, Canada, Newfoundland, Bermuda, 1910-25 who, had he wished, could have been the first moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Mrs. Lane says Dr. Chown, then 72, was a "towering figure for years in the Joint Union committee." She adds:

"If he had so desired, he could have been the first moderator of the new church. Instead, seeking to reassure unionist Presbyterians who were, understandably, shaken by the bitter campaigning and withdrawal of the minority, he proposed that Dr. George Pidgeon be elected unanimously. This carried."

The Basis of Union, signed by all the commissioners at the first general council of the United Church, is housed in its archives. The pen they used rests today on the desk on which it was signed in United Church House, Toronto, from which is directed the work of the church in 30 languages and in many lands.

In an interview, Archbishop Edward W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, said:

"I have had the privilege during all of my ministry to work in close contact with the United Church. Its contribution to the life of this country has been tremendous."

Rapprochement with the Vatican?

"I was sure that this was the direction in which they would move. The United Church is both a united church and a church which believes in moving towards union with other groups."

Something you should know about air-conditioners
To work efficiently and conserve energy, an air-conditioner's cooling capacity (the BTU rating) should match the size of the room to be cooled, and it should also have a high Energy Efficiency Rating...EER for short.
If the EER isn't already on the unit, it's a simple matter to figure it out yourself.
Divide the BTU rating by the wattage. These figures are usually on the serial plate.
For example, if the BTU rating is 12,000 and the wattage 1500, the EER is 8.
The higher the EER, the more efficient the unit.
The Hydro booklet "Summer Cooling" explains in greater detail how to conserve electricity while using an air-conditioner. It also gives useful advice on other ways of keeping your home cool in summer. Send for a free copy to Dept. C, Ontario Hydro, University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5G 1X6.

Today's Child

by Helen Allen

BECKY, TOMMY, CARL AND GEORGE

Recently the Today's Child column has found homes for two families of five children, so that their brothers and sisters can stay together as they grow up. Although these are large families, they are not the largest to be adopted through the column — three groups of six, and three of seven children are now cherished members of adopting families.

With that background in mind, we have complete confidence that today's four will find the parents they need. Left to right they are: George, nine; Carl, seven; Tommy, five; Becky, three.

They are an appealing quartet of Indian and white descent. All are average in intelligence, with Carl perhaps a bit above. They are in good health. George may need orthodontic work when he is older.

The dark-eyed, black-haired children are good friends as well as being brothers and sister. The boys tend to be protective towards their baby sister but she hasn't been spoiled by the attention she gets.

The four had some troubled times before they came into the care of the Children's Aid Society. Since they are open about talking about what happened to them, they need parents who can calmly accept these early memories.

The children are eager to be adopted and to have a home which in reality is their home. At least the three younger ones are. As you might suspect from George's expression, he has doubts about the idea. However, since he has a strong family feeling, his social worker feels that when a home is found for his brothers and sister, George will want to go too.

George, in Grade three, is a leader and popular with other children. He tends to be bossy at times, especially with his brothers and sister. Though he can be mischievous, he is usually friendly and co-operative.

All the boys have athletic ability and are keen on the outdoors. George is especially fond of fishing.

Carl, in Grade 1 is probably the best student of the four. He is much influenced by George, usually going along with anything George suggests.

Tommy, in kindergarten, is friendly and likeable. Though generally easy-going, he can be aggressive at times. He is easy to care for but needs firm, consistent discipline, to which he responds well.

Sturdy little Becky is a friendly, outgoing child, always happy and busy. She loves to be outdoors. Her favorite playmate is the same age as herself and they get on well, sharing their toys and with no signs of jealousy.

These children will be a fine family for young, active parents with the time, the energy and the ability to give attention and love to four. A mother and father who can win the trust and affection of George will find the others will be integrated quickly into their home.

To inquire about adopting George, Carl, Tommy and Becky, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

How Do Turkeys Mate? Through the Nose!

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is a great tool for educating people. I have learned from it and now I want to educate others. Although I never graduated from high school I am an authority on one subject. Turkeys.

I have raised turkeys for 23 years and discovered something that most people do not know. From ve.y close observation I have learned that turkeys breed through the nose. The Tom turkey has a small excrescence above his snoot which becomes visible when he struts.

Humans are unaware of this but the hen turkey knows. Turkeys strut when they want to mate. It's a lot like a tribal dance. If a hen turkey is interested in mating she will join the dance and rub her snoot against the Tom's snoot. What occurs is the actual mating process.

Some of your so-called experts will say this is not true. I say let them look in books. I took at turkeys.—Topeka Reader

Dear Topeka: Since I'm unable to observe turkeys at close range (they aren't allowed in this apartment. Board of Health regulations) I must rely on books. According to everything I have read, turkeys mate just like all other birds.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is intended to be a violent vituperation to Martin Ferry, the man so said, "I happen to be a guy who wouldn't marry a girl who smokes—and there are many more like me."

The only printable reply to that statement I can think of is this: "I happen to be a girl who wouldn't marry a narrow-minded guy like Martin Ferry and there are many more like ME."

Where is there a commandment written for women that says, "Thou Shalt Not Smoke"?

P. S. To Martin's wife: Honey, I feel sorry for you if you smoked ever feel so much like smoking.—Rockford Puffer.

Dear Rock: Thanks for your point of view. Here's another one.

Dear Ann: I thought for sure my boyfriend wrote that letter and signed it "Martin's Ferry" although we live in another state. He swore on a Bible that he didn't—and I believe him.

When we first started to date I smoked like a chimney and it almost put an end to our relationship. He made it plain that he thoroughly detested smoking and I had to make an important decision. Was he worth giving up cigarettes for? I decided he was and I quit.

That was six months ago and I'm thrilled I chose him over the cigarette. I feel so much better. My nasty cough is gone. It's as if I've been liberated from slavery. I want to shout from the housetops, "I love that man!"—Petunia

Dear Pet: Go ahead and shout. I'll bet it's music to his ears.

Doris Clark

Love Can Always Break Through

Dear Doris:

"Just when I feel that hopelessness
Is merely hocus-pocus,
The asphalt of the earth cracks open
To reveal a crocus!"

The radio was on and I was hearing so much of the agony and suffering of the Vietnamese — then the phone rang, and it was your dear mom.

It reminded me once again that this is God's world, and as long as we have hearts full of love, pouring out that love on mankind, then surely the crocus will bloom, even though it has to break through the hard places in this world.

Dear Irene: I say amen to that, adding that as long as there are people like you, the love will keep pouring out. The light still shines in darkness, and the darkness has not put it out.

Dear Doris: I am interested in your letters about our senior citizens. I am in my late 30's with no mother or grandmother. I have two elderly ladies in their 80's for neighbors and they think it is terrible if I don't stop in for five minutes at least every other day.

My children are going to grow up not knowing a grandmother, only a grandfather (as I am divorced), unless I happen to remarry. Even if my grandparents made us sleep on the floor of the old bathtub when we were small, as they had no room, I remember us kids, how we used to be chased out of the strawberry patch so we would hide behind the raspberry canes and wait until we thought no one was watching and then we would raid the strawberries again or even the peas. We had a garden at home but it was better getting the grandparents mad. They were really great!

I would like a list of a few people in their 70's or so that I could write to, preferably ladies but I would even write to the men too.

M.W., Sask.

Dear M.W: If readers respond requesting mail, I'll pass on their requests.

Dear Doris: My fifty-year-old sister, a widow, is getting married to a widower. We would appreciate the following information about weddings. Is it proper for her:

(a) To have a bridesmaid and ring bearer, (also best man?)
(b) To wear white?
(c) 21-year-old foster child and 11-year-old daughter from the groom to be flower girls?
(d) 36-year-old stepson to give her away?

Brother of Bride.

Dear Brother:

(a) At a second wedding bride and groom just have on attendant apiece.
(b) No.
(c) No (See A)
(d) Not suitable.

Symbolically, a member of the bride's own family are the ones who have the right to give her away. If a stepson-to-be were to undertake this role, it would be as if he gave a person he did not possess. (In his own family, in many cases, second weddings do not include the giving away of the bride, unless there is an older relative, uncle, maybe — or a close family friend — who would like to perform this ceremony.

(Is it a point of etiquette, that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Stephanie Lewis holds her daughter Tina on her lap at home, showing how she burps her after a (weeks) feeding of special formula.

"We had planned to call her Jennifer," says Stephanie Lewis, looking down at her prematurely-born daughter. "But we changed her name to Tina Diane once she was born because my mother said, she was so little you couldn't even write Jennifer across her."

Tina, who weighed 1400 grams at birth (approximately three pounds), came into the world 10 weeks early, surprising Mrs. Lewis — "but I wasn't really frightened until I saw all the equipment they had to have to keep her alive," she says.

Like other babies who enter the world "too early" at Belleville General Hospital, Tina was placed in an incubator where oxygen, humidity, and warmth are regulated to maintain a constant environment. She was fed intravenously and watched around the clock to make sure she was continuing to breathe.

One of the major problems with premature babies is that often their lungs aren't ready to function properly. Head of the BGH nursery, June White explains that a substance called surfactant is not present in the lungs of a fetus before 24 weeks. Although it increases from that point it may not exist in sufficient quantity in babies born much before the full 40-week term.

With the help of hospital staff and equipment, little Tina Lewis kept on breathing, as a growing percentage of premature babies do. The care given to these infants is now a highly-specialized field, so their chances for life are better than ever before.

"The first few days were the worst," recalls Mrs. Lewis. "The doctor wouldn't be more optimistic than '50-50', and there were plenty who gave her zero chance to survive.

"It's not up to us to decide who lives or dies," she says. "As long as a person is alive, he or she need to be kept as comfortable as possible. That's what we're doing here."

Mrs. White feels strongly about the worth of the work she does, and just as strongly against abortion.

"There's so much progress being made in research centres that helps us help the newborn," she says. "Yet so many babies are aborted who have the possibility of a good life. And we're here trying to save the lives of babies who may not be healthy," she says, with an ironic smile.

"The nurses were really wonderful during that period, you know. They helped me get along one day at a time, and they kept my spirits up with an honest, matter-of-fact approach. One nurse said "As long as she's living, she's growing" and that cheered me a lot."

Mrs. Lewis stayed in hospital only four days. Then began the difficult weeks of driving back and forth from her Foxboro-area home to see her daughter.

"If I hadn't had Lisa (her 19-month daughter) at home to keep me busy, I don't know what I would have done," she says. "It was really hard being separated from the baby."

Mrs. White and her nursery staff recognize the hardship of parent-infant division, and try to do what they can to make the time easier.

When the baby is still in the incubator, they allow the mother to reach in and hold a foot, "and even that contact helps," says Mrs. White.

In the BGH nursery for 18 years, Mrs. White has a thorough knowledge of babies' needs, and is trained to look for the smallest signs of discomfort.

"The important thing is to make a nursing diagnosis and then to act upon it," she says. "The fascinating thing about these babies is that even a flicker of an eyelid can mean something. We make regular observations and report to the doctors, and that plays a large part in our nursery care."

As Tina Lewis showed a determination to survive, the method of feeding her changed from intravenous to tubes which began the process of stomach digestion.

"She had trouble swallowing for the longest time", says Mrs. Lewis.

"It really was strange going to see this tiny little creature with tubes and all, realizing she was mine. Her eyes didn't open for six weeks, because it was too early for her sight to develop. That was strange too, though we got used to it."

Even now that Tina is home, she is still within a few days of what her birthday "should have been". But she is doing well, and Stephanie and her husband Arden have high hopes for a healthy daughter.

"You don't really get involved with a baby until it is out of the incubator and home with you," says Mrs. Lewis. "But in a way, it has given me a good rest so I'm ready to take care of her now.

"She's on three-hour feedings, and I still have to keep an eye on her in case she holds her breath."

Mrs. Lewis is full of praise for her doctors and the nurses who helped her through those weeks of worry, who gave her baby the intensive care she needed to live.

"I've never really been a very religious person," says Mrs. Lewis, "but I've come closer to religion than ever before, through this. There were so many friends praying for us, who had their ministers and congregations praying too. It was an unexpected comfort."

Premature Births Decrease

The number of premature births at Belleville General Hospital decreased from 1973 to 1974, according to statistics kept in the maternity ward by Dorothy Taylor, unit coordinator.

Out of 1,174 deliveries in 1973, there were 85 (live) immature births. In 1974, there were only 58 immature babies out of a total 1,189 deliveries.

"We use weight rather than age to define 'premature', or the term we use, which is 'immature'. Any baby under 2500 grams in weight is termed immature," says Mrs. Taylor.

An infant must be at least 30 weeks from conception before it is termed a baby. At this early stage survival is out of the question, but legal burial is necessary.

However, increased medical skills mean that today babies even smaller than Tina Lewis may survive, and grow into normal, healthy children.

"The smallest I've seen born weighed one and a half pounds," recalls nursery supervisor June White, "and that baby grew into a fine, intelligent child."

The decision about whether or not a baby should be given intensive care it not one that need ever be made, according to Mrs. White.

Fire Chief Wants Change

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — William Martin Woodstock fire chief and new president of the Ontario Association of Fire Chiefs, called Monday for centralization of fire inspection services with either the local fire department or the ministry of the solicitor-general.

Under present legislation, he said, the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario (LLBO) is responsible for fire inspection in licensed hotels and the ministry of community and social services inspects nursing homes and other institutions.

He said a Woodstock hotel, under instructions of the LLBO, has constructed two fire exits which are ineffective because they are too close together and lead across the roof of the kitchen—the most hazardous spot in a hotel.

He said that now, the local fire chief has no authority to correct such a situation. The same applied to inspections in nursing homes and other facilities.

Strike Motion Lost

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities has rejected a resolution suggesting the federal government pass legislation to prohibit strikes where public servants or essential services are involved.

Deputy-Mayor William Kergan of Lethbridge, Alta., moved the resolution Monday during a workshop on labor-management relations at the annual conference.

Outside the meeting, Mr. Kergan said he proposed the resolution because "we are facing a very serious situation."

He said unions are running Canada's essential services, such as the post office, and "provide Canadian business."

Workshop participants emphasized the need for good faith and mutual respect in negotiating collective agreements with municipal workers.

Mayor Eileen Stubbs of Dartmouth, N.S., said senior levels of government must become involved in finding a solution to wage settlement problems.

Mrs. Stubbs suggested an answer might be independent labor courts presided over by independent judges.

Asbestos Killed Three

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The Workmen's Compensation Board confirmed Monday that three employees of Raybestos—Manhattan Canada Ltd. here died from asbestosis and said it is checking on three other workers who may have died from the disease.

Jack Hollingsworth, board information officer, said "the medical evidence indicates that death was from asbestosis."

He said former Raybestos workers Adrian Cassidy, Edmund Allen and George Masing died from the industrial disease—Mr. Cassidy Dec. 30, Mr. Masting Jan. 7, 1971 and Mr. Allen Nov. 29, 1971.

Council Votes Itself $1,000 Pay Hike

City councillors Monday voted 7-4 to increase the annual pay of Belleville aldermen by $1,000.

The vote on a resolution and backup bylaw — approved a salary schedule already laid down in the 1973 budget passed last month, which raised councillor's honorarium from $3,000 to $4,000 a year.

Ald. Wally Dever said he doesn't feel the timing of the increase is correct.

He also criticized The Intelligencer for its earlier coverage of the issue which he said had been in error and urged the newspaper to task for "ridiculous" articles following council's first vote on the pay increase at the budget meeting.

The budget also proposed raising the salary for mayor from $8,600 to $11,200. But Mayor Jeffery recommended that hikes for the office remain unchanged until the next municipal election at the end of 1976.

Commission Gets New Name

Its new title under which it is now incorporated is the Belleville Economic Development Commission.

The reason: The commission added not only with industry,but commerce, in fact, the whole economic sector, explained Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Canteen Ups Prices

High prices for canteen snacks requested by Belleville's recreation-arena committee were approved Monday by city council.

The increases mostly involve a five-cent hike for cigarets and drinks. Hot dogs and popcorn will go up 10 cents.

Rising Costs Prompt Delay In Dundas St. Road Project

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A major city road project — the delayed final section of East Dundas St. rewidening — has hit a jarring financial bump.

The shock Monday night caused city council to recoil — and reset the work schedule.

It came after council found the lowest contract bid for the project was 38-per-cent higher than estimated.

Worse, a breakdown of the details showed cost of storm sewer installations were up 70 per cent, road work 20 per cent.

As a result, council went along with a solution of city engineer Joe Angelo: Split the project, separating roadwork and sewer contracts.

mostly because of land acquisition problems.

But, as a result, city Manager Wilbur Purcell said later, it's anticipated the contract for storm sewers likely will be awarded by the fall. Work will go on through the winter and the project in shape for road construction by next spring.

In making its decision, however, city council went against the caution of engineering consultants Greer Galloway and Associates.

W. R. Galloway advised council any delay might mean lower costs. In fact, with inflation they could be higher. The result would see council fail to save and also lose time.

The dramatic variances between estimates and contract tenders which startled council were outlined in a special report from Mr. Angelo on the project — involving Dundas St. to Bleecker Ave.

Bids from three contractors opened last week showed: McFarland Construction — the lowest — $1,234,637; Dagmar Construction, $1,257,957; Tripp Construction $1,262,377.

Had both sewer and road work remained within a 20-per-cent increase, it would have been reasonable to recommend the contract be awarded, said Mr. Angelo's report. With inflation, labor costs alone have climbed 15 per cent in the past year.

However, he felt the 70-per-cent increase for the sewer installations "excessive."

Meantime, Mr. Angelo conferred with the transportation and communications ministry — which pays a big subsidy on the work since it's a Highway 2 traffic link.

Ministry estimates ranged to $900,000-$950,000.

"It is their general opinion that the overall prices also appear to be too high," said Mr. Angelo.

Snow in June?

About 4:30 a.m. today, Constable Don Creelman of the Madoc detachment of the OPP, reported a flurry of new near Moira Lake.

Wash Job

Local Ontario Hydro personnel were shown the merits of good housekeeping with up-to-date equipment Monday as a Toronto insulator washer is put through its paces. Keeping dust from insulators atop hydro poles reduces the chances of short circuits and pole fires, a hydro spokesman said.

Land Banking Draws Support from Ottawa

Federal Hinting Monday about possible land assembly subsidies for municipalities has aroused interest at City Hall.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, federal urban affairs minister Barney Danson said, beginning Jan. 1, only those municipalities with land development plans will qualify for federal land assembly aid.

"Among other things these plans will help us make sure that we have the funds for you when you need them," he told the federation.

Mr. Danson said rather than a detailed official plan for zoning commercial and residential areas, the federal government wants an outline of future needs for serviced land.

"It just means you should know and be able to set out what your total need for serviced land is going to be over the next few years, how much will be provided by the private sector, and when and when government help will be needed."

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey said today during an interview, the city has all the documented information that is required and that city administration is "certainly interested in investigating the federal statement."

The mayor explained Belleville had made formal application to the provincial government asking for assistance in land assembly but at the time received no commitments.

She said the city manager will be taking a look into the federal program immediately to determine if Belleville can apply for funding.

Quinte Cadets Top

A group of young Belleville St. John Ambulance cadets has been the first to win a new trophy presented in Ontario by the first-aid organization.

The 150-C Combined Cadet Division — a group of 24 young people from 11-16 years — have won the Ian Mackay Trophy for efficiency.

The award was presented Monday night by A.J. Eady, divisional superintendent to the group. He earlier received the trophy at the annual open inspection for local St. John Ambulance groups held Sunday in Trenton.

No Word Yet on Fate Of Old CP Station

There still has been no firm response from Canadian Pacific Rail officials over releasing its now abandoned Belleville railroad station for commercial development.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told city council Monday she had a visit late last week from a CP Rail official from Smiths Falls divisional offices.

However, the said, she refused to discuss the issue unless statements were put in writing...

City council April 1 delayed action on a CP Rail request that it agree to demolition of the station after being told a local group of businessmen were interested in its potential conversion to a restaurant.

Council's concurrence was sought before the railroad could file final permission from the Railway Transport Committee to remove the old building on the CPR line near Church St.

At that time, the mayor expressed hope the structure could be preserved for the community.

Seniors Rename Buildings

Ontario Housing Crop. senior citizen buildings are to be re-named after Mrs. Kokesh, OHC manager in Belleville.

"Residents want the change from OHC Seniors Buildings because it has the connotation of being an old person's home," she said.

First of Three Floors

Workmen lay brick here on a new, 82-unit, senior citizen home — a project of the Ontario Housing Corp. Even when completed, the OHC will still have a waiting list of more than 200 Belleville residents seeking entry into the subsidized housing. Rent in this Bridge Street East centre — like all other OHC projects — will be 25 per cent of the occupant's income.

Demand Outpacing Supply Of Subsidized Housing

Senior citizen and geared-to-income housing is in high demand in Belleville according to Ontario Housing Corp. statistics and waiting lists.

Kay Kokesh, OHC manager in Belleville, said during an interview Monday, all corporation units in Belleville are full and more than 500 names are on the waiting list.

Since 1964, OHC has been working in the city to provide subsidized housing with the bulk of attention paid to senior citizen units.

The corporation currently rents 244 senior citizen units and has another 163 under construction on Bridge St. East and Wellington Cres.

Mrs. Kokesh said her office has 316 Belleville residents on the senior citizen housing waiting list. Applicants to the program are assessed in the areas of present accommodation, health and financial means in determining which receive housing first.

Rent for both geared to income and senior citizen units is calculated at 25 per cent of the occupant's income.

"The lowest a senior citizen could pay is $41 a month," said Mrs. Kokesh. "A resident with higher income could conceivably pay $100 a month for the same apartment."

Because of the number of people waiting for subsidized accommodation, Mrs. Kokesh said she believe another large building may be constructed but could not say definitely when the project might begin.

"The city has requested another survey to determine the need for more housing and there's a possibility they'll recommend another building," she said.

OSD Plans Open House

Sir James Whitney School (OSD) opens its doors to the public tomorrow for its annual open house starting at 12:45 p.m.

A spokesman at the school said there will be three orientation sessions beginning at 12:45 p.m. at each of three sections of the school. The session will be followed by tours, displays and exhibits in the various sections of Sir James Whitney.

A swimming display will take place at the Parks Sports Centre at 3 p.m. followed by a fashion show at 4:30 p.m. The fashion show will involve some students and the clothes they made during the year.

Family of 12 Needs Shelter

The Red Cross disaster committee for the Belleville area is trying to find accommodation for a family of 12 left homeless in a fire at Sulphide Sunday.

Mrs. Effie McCabe, committee chairman, said her group had provided clothing, toilet habits of bedding and other necessities for the family of Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty.

Sidney Improvements Divide Area Residents

The tangled dispute over who should pay for what portion of north Sidney St.'s redevelopment must await yet another time lapse before it's unravelled.

And the issue has suddenly sprouted more complications, city council discovered Monday.

At issue is city hall's policy on local improvement charges — the extra amount homebuilders must pay toward street development alongside their properties. This contrasts with the general rate which means all the taxpayers pay.

The dispute was first sparked by a petition from property owners on the west side of Sidney, objecting to charges proposed for sidewalk construction.

They claim their local improvements for the walkway includes its property acquisition costs — which brings their local improvement charges to $19.87 a foot. Across the street their east-side neighbors — without property costs — will be charged $8.91.

The west-siders also want road widening now under way to be paid by the general rate. The reason is the work will make Sidney an arterial road and a future highway link increasingly used by everyone.

They want council to lower the increased property taxes resulting from the street's redevelopment in their area.

It will cost each of them, they claim $1,000-$2,000 extra taxes over 10 years.

Meantime, the wider street will be a service route for more traffic and they too feel the cost of reconstruction should be more evenly spread around the city.

The homeowners who fear such a hinterhgtlare will bring a decline in property values up to $2,000.

"We object strongly to paying while others benefit," the east-side petitioners wrote city hall.

As a result, city council, which two weeks ago scheduled a debate for Monday on the west-side petition, decided another review was needed. It postponed the debate for another three weeks until its next regular meeting.

Longer LCBO Hours Okay

A bylaw authorizing longer opening hours for liquor stores in Belleville was approved by city council Monday.

It permits openings up to 10 p.m. on week nights, and followed a request from the Liquor Control Board of Ontario to permit longer hours for its Station St. store which it plans turning into a self-serve outlet.

Woman Dies in Crash

The woman, Mrs. Florence Bohsener, was a passenger in a late model Toyota driven by her daughter Anne Louise Bohsener, 24. They were travelling east-bound on Highway 7 when the accident occurred.

Mr. Durwood Allan McCoy, 79, the driver of the second car, was north bound on County Road 12 with his wife, Josephine.

Miss Anne Bohsener was taken to Belleville General Hospital with lacerations. Her mother was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. H.C. Parfitt of Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. McCoy were not injured.

Area Artist Preserving History in Work

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Gerry Stapley's first appearance in the main art gallery of Corby Public Library in Belleville is another attempt for exposure — something every artist living full-time from his work needs.

Even more importantly, it is an opportunity for readers in the Quinte area to view the results of yet another example of local talent.

And historians will be interested in the subject of Gerry's exhibit — pen and ink drawings of historical buildings and other structures in the Hastings and Prince Edward counties area which capture and preserve local heritage.

Shows are really good for getting response," he said in an interview Monday while he and his assistant, Jayne Pullman, set up his drawing at the library for display until June 21.

A 25-year-old Stirling area native who resides on his parents' farm just outside of that village, Gerry explained he doesn't sell many drawings during exhibits but people remember him and place private orders afterwards.

Sometime these people wish their own houses to be drawn and other times they want a drawing of a neighbourhood structure related to their location, he outlined.

Gerry said he enjoys drawing historic buildings. "When they started tearing them down, I like to preserve them," he commented.

He noted he mostly does 19th Century buildings and all scenes in his exhibit at the library are depicted subjects from an approximate 25-mile radius of Belleville.

This is Gerry's first major display in the library gallery. Several of his works were included in a corridor exhibit last autumn.

He has been around — with exhibits in Port Hope, Peterborough, Ottawa and Toronto as well as locally in the Quinte Mall, Trenton, Stirling and Madoc. And he said he hopes to revisit the Quinte Mall in January, revisit the library later this year and show works at a Kingston mall this autumn.

Gerry related that he began drawing in elementary school and that his teachers and parents pointed out his work was above-average. But it wasn't until four or five years ago after he completed secondary school that he turned his talents to a full-time vocation.

"I always liked drawing," he remarked. "I didn't really know how much until I got going. I started it as something to do after high school.

That "something to do" became a money-making venture when people wanted to buy and Gerry's fortunes have been on the increase ever since. In fact, he received honorable mention at the recent Artafest '73.

The Stapley exhibit will be on display until June 21. It includes drawings of 19th Century buildings which Stapley says he wants to preserve in artform. Stapley is a Stirling area native.

Fryman – A Little Help from Mauch

Rough Start Nothing New But Fryman Has It Later

"I've had that shaky first inning all my career," said the 35-year-old tobacco farmer from Ewing, Ky., after surviving a two-run first inning and scattering 19 hits as the Expos downed Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in a National League baseball game Monday night.

"I've done everything—warm up longer, warm up shorter, sit down after warming up—nothing ever helps."

But Fryman admitt Mauch has the touch to improve his performance—and demonstrated it in the ninth inning when he trotted to the mound for a chat after Tom Paciorek drilled a two-out run-scoring single.

"Gene came to give me a little encouragement," said Fryman. "He's a funny guy—he seems to know how to pep you up a little bit. He always has. He makes me a better pitcher."

With Mauch's advice in mind, Fryman got Jimmy Wynn to ground out to shortstop Tim Foli to end the game.

"I just went out to give him a chance to get things back together," said Mauch, who managed Fryman with Philadelphia Phillies.

Fryman pitched his fifth complete game of the season and improved his record to 5-2.

The Dodgers got first-inning runs on Wynn's single and a wild pitch, but the Expos tied it in the bottom of the inning on a single by Jose Cruz, a walk by Jose Cruz and Larry Parrish's base hit.

Larry Lintz delivered a run-scoring single in the third to give the Expos the lead, and Fryman dabbled home the eventual winning run in the fourth. Foli followed that by diving in another on a suicide squeeze.

Lintz had entered the ball game in the first inning when he replaced starting second baseman Pete Mackanin. Mackanin left the game after drawing a walk and suffering an ankle injury while evading a rundown. The preliminary report was that the ankle was not broken.

Toronto Golfers Share Early Lead

ASHBURN, Ont. (CP) — Two Toronto professionals, Michael Morris and Tim McCutcheon, shot 72s Monday to take the first-round lead in the 1975 Canadian Professional Golfers' Association Players' School.

Mark Shishack of Thunder Bay, Ont., and Conrad Bergstrom of Kelowna, B.C., were one strokes behind the leaders on the par-72 Thunderbird Golf and Country Club course.

Monday's round was the first of six to be played in conjunction with the school, which also includes lectures for the 18 young pros who plan to play on the Canadian golf tour this summer.

Play continues with one round today and two each on Wednesday and Thursday. The leading golfer after the six rounds will receive a $1,000 bursary to help pay his tour expenses.

A complete list of first-round scores:

Polo Team Edged 7-6

QUEBEC (CP) — Brazil edged Canada 7-6 Monday in the first game of a best-of-three water polo series to determine which country will advance to the world championships in Cali, Colombia, next July.

Canada held the lead until the last two minutes of the game, when Brazil tied the score at 6-6 then moved ahead 7-6 with less than a minute left to play.

AGREES TO TERMS

DETROIT (AP) — Left-winger Mike Bloom has agreed to terms with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League and intends to sign a two-year contract, club officials said Monday. Terms of the contract were not disclosed. The 195-pound Bloom, from Ottawa, divided last season between Washington Capitals and the Red Wings. Bloom, 23, drafted by Boston in 1972, He played junior hockey for St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Last Place White Sox Flexing Their Muscles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago White Sox are buried in last place in the American League West, but manager Chuck Tanner insists they're playing good baseball.

The White Sox wasted little time Monday night in proving Tanner's point to Boston Red Sox Monday night in the first meeting between the two teams since spring training.

Hardly noted for their offence, the White Sox jumped on Boston southpaw Bill Lee for 15 hits and added two more off reliever Dick Drago en route to a 9-3 victory over the American League East leaders.

In National League games, Montreal Expos downed Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, Philadelphia Phillies beat San Diego Padres 5-1, New York Mets blanked Houston Astros 2-0 and St. Louis Cardinals edged Atlanta Braves 1-0.

"Sure, we're in last place in the standings, but we've been playing good ball," said Tanner after the White Sox victory. "Look, we've played .600 ball in the last two weeks, but nobody has noticed.

"Actually, we're 10-6 in that stretch. I'll take that for the whole year."

Tanner also pointed to the statistical sheet in replying to critics of the White Sox' 22-25 record.

"We're 5-17 in one-run games and 6-3 in two-run games," the manager said. "That means that 29 of our 47 games have been decided by two runs or less. That's very important to me. It shows that we've been in games."

Lee, who had allowed only 11 hits and one unearned run in three previous starts, served up a home run to former teammate Deron Johnson in the fourth and Chicago went on to score two more runs in the inning.

The White Sox added another run in the seventh and then shelled Lee, 7-5, in a five-run ninth. Bill Stein had four hits and Bucky Dent three in leading the attack.

Robin Yount singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning as Milwaukee spoiled Vida Blue's bid for a 10th victory. Kurt Bevacqua collected three doubles and George Scott clubbed a home run.

Woodie Fryman went all the way for the Expos to beat the Dodgers although he gave up 10 hits and spotted Los Angeles a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Steve Carlton didn't give up a hit for 5 3-3 innings and then finished with a five-hitter for the Phils. Mike Schmidt had three hits, including a two-run homer, and Bob Boone added a bases-empty homer for Philadelphia.

Jon Matlack allowed four hits in pitching his record to 7-3. The Mets got their runs in the second on Dave Kingman's run-scoring triple and Gary Grote's sacrifice fly.

Lynn McGlothen, 5-4, blanked Atlanta on four singles, outdueling Phil Niekro, 10-6, in a duel. Ted Simmons drove in the game's only run with a single in the fourth inning.

Money Question Still Unanswered

MONTREAL (CP) — The public will have to wait at least another week before it finds out what expenditures will be made the organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics expects in the coming year.

And it will have to wait longer to learn of construction progress at the main Olympic sites—the stadium, the swimming pool and the velodrome.

Simon St. Pierre, vice-president of the organizing committee, said Monday the committee's executive board had failed to approve any expected points included in the budget. It decided on further study of the figures next weekend.

The committee would not issue a statement until the overall study had been completed. He declined to discuss the amount of money involved in the budget.

The committee called a news conference Saturday to announce the results of the meeting, but postponed it when the revision extended through Sunday.

The city of Montreal is responsible for construction of the three main venues, slated for completion by the committee in May, 1976.

Mayor Jean Drapeau has maintained that construction of the $400-million main Olympic site will be completed on time despite two costly labor disputes.

St. Pierre said Monday the board approved last week "to take a full day or more if necessary" to explain the critical paths" of construction on the venues to the press. He said the briefing had been promised during the next two weeks.

When Montreal first prepared its budget for the Games, Drapeau estimated the overall cost at $310 million. That estimate has now doubled, with the stadium and ancillary venues expected to cost more than $400 million.

Pele Will Sign With the Cosmos

SANTOS, Brazil (CP) — Brazilian soccer star Pele confirmed Monday he will come out of retirement and sign later this month with New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League.

Pele, who denied reports he has already signed a multi-million-dollar contract with the Cosmos, told Brazilian reporters he hopes to make his first appearance for the Cosmos on June 18 at Toronto against the Metros-Croatia.

He said he would announce details of the contract at a news conference here today.

Earlier Monday, the Cosmos announced in New York that Pele would decide Wednesday whether to sign with the team.

Cosmos spokesman John O'Reilly said he received word from Pele's advisor, that "because of the complicated nature of the contract, which is in both Portuguese and English, it is taking longer than expected to go over the contract."

Gardner Trophy To Asselstine

Jack Asselstine shot a two over par 74 to win the year's opening field day and the coveted Bill Gardner Memorial Trophy at Bay of Quinte Country Club, Sunday.

Runnerup to Asselstine in the A group was Al Graham with a 75. Third place went to Pete Jones who carded a 77.

Joe Scaife's 68 was low net.

Doug Stewart and Bob Hipson were checked in with a 86.

In the B group, Ron Cass made an 84 stand up for top honors. Don Bishop was good for an 86 and Jim Bibby was in with a 90.

Grant Badgley's 69 was lot net. Frank Geerkins and Don Brockenshire scored a 73.

Elliott Tyke Team Defeats Lindsay

Scoring three times in the top of the seventh and final inning, Belleville Elliott Motors upset Lindsay 6-5 in Lindsay, Sunday, in Eastern ntario Baseball Association tyke action.

It was a close 3-2 ball game until the Belleville explosion. The winners held a 5-4 edge in the bottom inning.

Robert Boomhower went the distance to get the win, allowing four hits, striking out six and walking only one.

David Coughlin checked in with a double and a single to lead the Belleville hitting. Shawn Boomhower and Bradley Gray each collected a pair of singles: Trevor Powell added a triple while John Cook, Robert Boomhower and Andy Balyx accounted for a single each.

Powell's triple came with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh.

In peewee play at Parkdale in Belleville, the home team Broadloom nine lost a close 4-3 decision to Peterborough Sunday. The winners broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth and each team scored once in the seventh inning.

Gord Carley and Alan Henry shared the Peterborough pitching, limiting Belleville to six hits. They fanned five and walked three.

Broadloom hurlers Rory MacLeod, the starter, and Glenn McQuaid, surrendered only five hits while striking out nine and walking four.

Hitters for Broadloom were McQuaid with a double and single; MacLeod, two singles, and Matt Whitley and David Maikawa with a single each.

BYBF Builds Streak To Five in A Row

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund (BYBF) remained the only undefeated team in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League last week when they trounced Ellis Construction 15-3. It was the only game played in the Ladies League.

Sue Morrow fired the win, the fifth of the year for the BYBF squad. She scattered six hits, fanned one and walked one batter. Sandra Claus was the loser.

The Yardmen pounded Claus for 20 hits. Sheila Smith regained her old form with a home run, and a trio of singles. Morrow herself had a triple and a single.

Walkers Raise $3,000 For Wellington Team

WELLINGTON — The Wellington Midgets are a few steps closer to their $17,000 goal for costs to travel to Switzerland next summer, when they raised $3,000 from a 10-mile walkathon Saturday.

All 38 of the 38 people started out from the town hall here and headed up the Town Line Road for about a mile. The group then struck up Swamp College Road, crossed over Consecon St. to hike down another side road and then came back on to Consecon Street and into town which led to Highway 33. From there, they walked back to the townhall.

First prize is one return airfare to Switzerland via Scandinavian Air Lines. Second prize is a Portable black and white TV. Third prize is a $50 gift from Quinte Cycle to all participants when they receive free memberships in the Wellington Midget Hockey Club.

Ken Demille came within one out of pitching the last no-hitter in the Quinte Fastball League, with a 3-0 shutout over the Ellis Juniors, Monday night.

Demille fanned eight Juniors while walking only one. Losing pitcher Paul Wilson struck out six.

Bardon's scored what proved to be the winning run in the first inning when three singles by Harold Foster, Denis Neron, and Ron Weese tallied their first marker.

Through the game Neron had three singles, as did Weese, and Demille helped his own cause with a double and a triple.

In the first game of the night Devolin had no trouble with the Trenton Augers, bombing them 11-2. Don Holloway and Carl Boomhower combined to pitch the win, giving up two hits apiece.

Boomhower led the onslaught with two singles and a double. Ralph Plane and Tom MacDonald had two singles, while Holoway crashed a pair of doubles, and Rick Watt collected a single and a triple.

Thurlow Peewees Get Even

Thurlow Planes Concrete came back from losing to Bowmanville Sunday week in Bowmanville, to win in their home park edging the visitors 2-1, in Eastern Ontario Baseball peewee action played Monday.

Bruce hit Thurlow hits and fanned 10.

Mike Blakely had a triple and Ron Weeks added a double for Thurlow, with Dale and Dave Forestall, and Steve Adams poking singles.

Belleville Teams Are on the Move

Although the Belleville Bantams don't have a sponsor, thereby saving their coaches less, they appear to be out to make a name for themselves.

Sunday, the locals dropped a 13-6 decision to Picton in Ontario Amateur Softball Association (OASA) action, but bounced right back Monday to trounce Stirling 16-0.

In other OASA weekend action, Belleville Yardmen Midgets dumped Springbrook 13-5 Sunday and the Belleville SACO Peewees went all the way to the final game of Grantham Peewee Tournament before bowing out.

The bantams, basically all first year players, just couldn't get going in their last Sunday. Doug Campbell cranked two home runs and added a single and Bob Hedge had three singles.

Rick Tripp took the loss and Kevin Ferguson was the winner with nine strikeouts and three walks.

Dennis Brown was tops at the plate for Picton with a triple and a single and Duane Krock had a double and a single. Brian Brown collected four RBI's for the winners on a pair of singles.

Monday's contest was an entirely different story. The locals got all their bats moving and cranked out 15 hits off loser Bruce Myers.

Ron Begley had three singles for the locals and Campbell pounded another homer. Ward Morrison had a field day at the plate with a triple, a double and three singles.

The midgets got 19 hits off losing pitchers Dale Ray and Wayne Andrews. Danny Vance and Bill Forbes limited Springbrook to nine hits while fanning 10 and walking two.

Terry Pearce had two doubles and a triple for the Yardmen and Kelvin Pope, Brad Rose, Marty Lowry, Bill McQuald, Danny Smith and Scott Bowes had two safeties apiece.

Don Ray and Mark Reid replied with a pair of safeties each for the losers.

In Grantham, Belleville downed the home team B's 8-4 in the opener, nipped Stratford 10-9 in their second start and in the final, lost 9-3 to Simcoe.

Other information on the tournament was unavailable.

KWALICK JUMPS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ted Kwalick, former Penn State all-American and an all-pro with San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, Monday jumped to Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League. Drafted No. 1 by the 49ers after the 1968 season at Penn State, three seasons later he finished as the No. 2 receiver in the National Conference of the NFL with 52 receptions for 664 yards and five touchdowns.

Yardmen Win 10-2

Garry Rideout and Peter Hall combined pitching efforts, in allowing only four hits in leading the Belleville Yardmen to a 10-2 EOBA midget victory over Deseronto, on Monday night.

Howie Coons led the attack with three singles against losing pitcher Kevin Baker.

Hall and Billy Whalen added to the hit column. Each collected a double and a single.

Charlie Murphy collected two singles for Deseronto.

Constellation Now 8-0

Ken Kerik kept his incredible win streak alive in the Belleville Industrial Softball League Monday night when Constellation Carpets downed The Intelligencer 8-1.

In other games Monday, UIC moved into a tie for first place in the West division with a convincing 11-1 win over Canadian Tire and Black Diamond had their unbeaten streak broken when the independents upset them 4-1.

Kerik and Constellation are now 8-0 in the BISL's East Division. They are also the only unbeaten team in the league. The stalky right-hander saw his chances of a no-hitter die in the fourth inning and his shutout come apart in the ninth when The Intell scored their only run after a pair had been given up to left field.

Constellation counted three runs in the first and added single in the fourth, fifth and sixth.

As it was, Kerik settled for a two-hitter. His teammates only got four hits off losing hurler Ron Colburn, but Intell errors gave Constellation more than enough.

Kerik fanned nine and did not give up a walk. Bob Cullinden struck out two and walked a pair.

Injuries Hurt Trojan Cause

By DOUG JEFFRIES

"At least next year, we'll know what to expect". That was the comment Moira Secondary School soccer coach Bill Jacobs had after his team returned from the Ontario Federation of Secondary School Athletic Association championships in Newmarket over the weekend.

Despite being the smallest and youngest team in the tourney, the Trojans put on an awesome display of stamina blanking their first opponents from Port Erie (Welland) 3-0.

After a 15 minute rest, the locals were back on the field playing Hamilton city winners, the Sir Wilfred Laurier Lancers. The locals lost this one 4-1.

"We thought we would never see another tall team like Welland, but there they were", said many of the Moira players.

The Trojans were down 3-1 at the end of the first half, scoring the lone goal. The injuries had many opportunities to score but couldn't put it in the mesh.

After the Hamilton game the Trojan had what may be their capable of continuing.

Some teams, like Moira, played their league last fall and had to wait for the tourney for the Ontario championship.

"It was a few months grace for us", said the coach, "I feel we were much better this spring than we were last fall".

Moira, "Trojans" lost more than likely with a couple of new faces, but we'll be there," he added.

The winner of the tourney was the Downsview Rangers (Toronto), who lost all four of their games beating East Kitchener in the final 3-1.

Lacrosse Rolling

In the tyke-novice section, Tom Cur Wash beat Quinte Hall 6-2 with Peter Little's three goals and two assists a bright spot for the winners.

Chris Rutledge and Wally Inwood led A and D Esso to a narrow 10-9 win over Local 183 midget play, with four goals each. Roger Chapman notched four for the losers.

Bob's Sports-Association was blanked 10-0 by Dairy Queen in peewee action, as David Levinets posted the shutout. Steve Molaski had four goals and two assists.

It Looks Like Swig's Seals

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League is proceeding on an announced as a group headed by San Francisco businessman Mel Swig will operate California Seals next season.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Monday that Swig has been able to make financial arrangements to purchase the league-operated Seals.

The NHL president said the transaction could be completed "in a matter of days."

Swig has been given until May 30 to complete a deal with the NHL for the franchise.

Swig has said he and his group "want desperately to keep the Seals in the Bay area, not only on the basis that we'll have a strong team and a profitable team."

Bill Flett A Flame

ATLANTA (CP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League announced Monday they have signed right winger Bill Flett to a multi-year contract.

Flett, an eight-year veteran who last played with Toronto Maple Leafs, was placed on waivers two weeks ago. Atlanta acquired the negotiating rights to him.

Special Clause Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey players represented by Alan Eagleson will, in future, have clauses in their contracts permitting them to play for their national team, the Toronto lawyer said Monday.

Eagleson said Mike Murphy of Los Angeles Kings and Mike Bloom of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League already have signed such a contract, and the clause will be a condition of the next contract defenceman Bobby Orr signs with Boston Bruins.

Eagleson discussed the clause at a news conference at which he said he is leaving the Toronto law firm of Blaney, Pasternak, Smela, Eagleson and Watson to devote full time to a proposed 1976 international hockey tournament and other hockey duties.

He said he will continue an active interest in provincial politics, at least until after the next election. He is a former president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

He said he will show the owners how much an international tournament could contribute to the NHL "and I believe they'll back the project."

Eagleson said the 1972 series between Team Canada and the Soviet Union produced $300,000 for the NHL pension plan, the equivalent of the owners' annual contribution.

Eagleson met with representatives of the United States, Finland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and the Soviet Union in April to set up the 1976 tournament.

No government funds have been made available to set up a tournament office, Eagleson said.

Representatives of Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland have agreed to use NHL and World Hockey Association officials to ensure adequate refereeing in the proposed tournament, he said.

Each team in the tournament would play each of the other teams twice, with the two teams with the best records advancing to a best-of-three final.

In Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said negotiations are continuing between his league and the Soviet Union for establishment of a series this winter and a playoff series between the NHL champions and the Soviet national league.

He repeated his contention that the proposed 1976 series, announced last Friday by federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde, represents the transfer to North America of a formula that failed in Europe.

NHLs Telephone Draft Set to Go

MONTREAL (CP) — The 18 National Hockey League teams will have their chance today to select from a lean crop of overage junior players in the league's annual draft.

Last season, a record 247 players were selected in a two-day session, which was supposed to be secret. However, the names of early-round draftees were known soon after they were selected.

This season, the NHL will conduct the affair by telephone again, but this time, teams will be permitted to have reporters sit in on the conference-call proceedings.

Unlike last season, the NHL will not draft under-age junior players as the league will honor the guidelines set out by the Canadian government.

"That is any player under 20 who has not exhausted his junior eligibility," said NHL president Clarence Campbell.

While this is a lean season, there are still some top players available, including some good goaltenders. Robert Sauve of Laval Nationals of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, was selected last week in the World Hockey Association's secret amateur draft and should go high in the NHL's proceedings today. Sauve was the second choice of Cincinnati Stingers, who join the WHA next year.

Normand Lapointe of Trois-Rivieres Draveurs is also outstanding netminders in the Western Canada Hockey League.

Harris Stars' Coach

— Defenceman Ted Harris who joined the National Hockey League in 1963, was named Monday as coach of Minnesota North Stars.

Harris, 38, returns to Minnesota after spending the 1974-75 season with the Stanley Cup Philadelphia Flyers.

Harris, who played 11 full seasons in the NHL and was on five Stanley Cup winning teams, is the team's fourth coach in its seasons.

He started his career with Montreal, went to Minnesota in 1970, to Detroit in November, 1973,and St. Louis in February, 1974, He joined the Flyers at the start of the 1974-75 season.

COLTS ACQUIRE MUL-KEY

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts have acquired running back Herb Mul-Key from Washington Redskins in a trade for an undisclosed 1977 National Football League draft choice, it was announced Monday. Mul-Key was the National Football Conference punt return leader in 1973 with 1,100 yards.

PREFONTAINE BURIED

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, North America's top distance runner, was buried Monday. Prefontaine, 24, died in an auto accident early Friday in Eugene, Ore., about four hours after running the second fastest 5,000 metres by an American.

ELIMINATED

LONDON (CP) — Greg Haller and Paul Pospisil, both of Toronto, were eliminated Monday in the first round of an international grass court tennis tournament. Jaidip Mukerjea of India beat Haller 7-5, 6-3, while Paul Van Der Merwe of South Africa downed Pospisil 6-2, 6-4.

Claude Larose, a 48-goal man with Sherbrooke during the season, was the top choice of the expansion Stingers in last week's WHA session. He is reported to have already signed with the club. However, it is likely that an NHL club will also select him.

Bassett's Toros Hold the Line

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bassett, president of Toronto Toros, thinks an increasing number of players will be hoping between the World Hockey Association and National says, there will be less money around to prevent it.

JOHN F. BASSETT

"Our budget for players is going to be $1.5 million per year and we are going to live within it," he said. "When you look at the two leagues, you can see how ridiculous it is to suggest the WHA is not here to stay.

"We have 15 teams—none of them in trouble. That's Ballimore. The situation there already has been solved. Baltimore will operate. Chicago is gone.

"Denver already has selected 15 of their players . . . Don't forget that Denver opted for the tract.

WHA, rather than pay the NHL $6 million.

Looking to the future, he said, "I see everybody loving hockey but getting sick to death of battles between players and clubs, lawsuits between leagues and all the other squabbles.

"Another thing: The season is too long. I'd like to see a 56-game schedule followed by a World Cup of hockey each year, involving the winners of the NHL, the WHA and the club champions from Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden.

Bassett said the WHA will announce a new quota for its in-tra-league draft, with each WHA club allowed to protect 12 skaters and two goalies. Any player not included on that list will be available to any other club in the league, he said.

YOCHUM SIGNS

MONTREAL (CP) — Offensive tackle Dan Yochum has signed a five-year contract with Montreal Alouettes, the Canadian Football League club announced Monday. Yochum, 24, was selected to the Eastern Football Conference all-star team last season, his third with the Alouettes.

SIGNS WITH BRAVES

Gardening Column

Annuals Add Color to Garden

BY ROSS HAWTHORNE

Since we talked a few weeks ago about perennials as the permanent plants in your exterior decorating plan, it logically follows that we should review the plants that you use to spice and to decorate every year — the annuals.

Now when we talk about annuals, we're talking about the plants whose life cycle is completed in a single season — the seed germinates, the plant grows, blooms, sets seeds and dies. And then next year, you have the fun of trying out an entirely new decorating plan. And the beauty of it all is — it can be a brand new plan, creating entirely new and unusual effects — year after year after year.

Because with annuals, your ranges of colors, shapes, heights and textures available is almost limitless. And the color and display combinations you can employ to decorate your garden literally — knows no end. Later, we'll give you some examples. But whatever you do, don't be limited by my or illustrations. Rather take pad and pencil and work out some of your own. And then plot them on your exterior decorating plan.

O.K. now, there are two ways to grow annuals — from seed or from started plants. If you plan to start from seed — better plan on waiting until next year. Because some annuals — such as petunias or geraniums need four to five months from planting to flowering. And of course, if you want the real thrill of filling your garden with a riot of color, that had its beginnings as tiny specks of seed that you planted, germinated and nurtured to maturity, you'll have to become an indoor light gardener, which isn't that difficult.

All you need is a table top, a double fluorescent fixture, germinating and growing containers, peat moss, vermiculite and seed and you're in business. But there I go — getting way off the subject — which isn't hard for me — when I get going on indoor light gardening. So let's get back to where I belong — and the role of annuals in your exterior decorating plan.

You probably know annuals under the name of bedding plants, so-named because they're often grown in beds, en masse. But that is only one way to use annuals. They can be used to edge a rose garden. Example: white alyssum bordering a bed of silver-leaf Cineraria floribunda roses. Or to make an evergreen planting come alive: such as blue mink agratum heavily stippled among shiny, needled, dark green yews.

Use them as bulb covers. Sweetalyssum do an excellent job of covering up the tattered leaves of spent tulips. Or to fill in the spaces in patio stones with low growers, such as rose or purple alyssum. And what is prettier than a flower box overflowing with purple lobelia.

And don't forget to use annuals in the world's oldest form of horticulture — pot gardening. Hanging containers filled with a Niagara of cascading white petunias topped with a saucy red geranium. Or in strawberry pots, cement planters or redwood containers, on posts, porches or patio. And if you do use them in the garden, try using them in combinations that will make full use of their versatility.

Here are a few suggestions:

Red salvia against white or blue lobelia.

Yellow bollyhocks, blue lobelia, and blue cornflowers with pale pink dwarf zinnias.

And these are but a few. Make up your own combinations — and do it with an open mind and a free spirit.

Heritage Explained

EDMONTON (CP) — Defeating the Indian, a resource book designed primarily as a handbook for teachers, has been released by the Alberta education department. The book, published jointly by the education department, the Book Society of Canada and author Emma Larocque, gives a rare insight into Indian culture and heritage as well as suggesting ways to reduce psychological violence done to native students in the white education system.

INDIAN INVENTION

Early explorers found Indians drawing sap from the maple tree by cutting into it and then boiling the sap down to make sugar.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE EDDE OSOL

For Wednesday, June 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be persistent today at such times important to YOU. It may appear you won't succeed, but you will if you hang in there.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't judge others in advance of their actions today. You could be doing them an injustice. Give them the benefit of the doubt.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be careful if you buy something that's new for you, but has been used by someone else. It could be faulty goods.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your authority will be challenged regarding something you're managing. The results will vindicate your methods.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You tend to be very positive about certain things, equally pessimistic about others. Don't spoil your day with needless worry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Follow your instincts today in handling a business situation rather than the advice of one who doesn't have all the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Have faith in your judgment. Try not to be overly influenced by one who always thinks she's right. Today she has to.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For most-productive results, temporarily set aside tasks that seem too time-consuming. Tackle chore you can knock off quickly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This should be a pleasurable day, but there's a little warning about how much you should pay for your fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't make decisions on your own today on a major domestic matter you make should have a hand in deciding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency today to skirt issues without truly saying what you think. Be frank though it may sting the listener a bit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your material prospects are promising today if you're prudent in your dealings. Conduct your affairs along practical lines.

Moles on Breasts Not Uncommon

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About five years ago I noticed two or three small light brown moles on my breasts. In the past few years the moles have grown more rapidly and are larger in diameter. Now I have them across my stomach, too.

They vary in size and in color from white to dark brown. Is there anything I can do to prevent getting more? And what about removal? They are very unsightly. I am taking the pill — D.D.

The breasts are not uncommon sites for moles, which are usually innocent but can be the possible cosmetic removal, usually require no treatment. Almost all of us have a mole or two on our bodies at some time. They arise from groups of pigmented cells, and they can appear more prominently with exposure to the sun.

The pill can cause pigment changes in the skin, and if your doctor suspects this is at work they you might want to change your method of contraception for a while to see if there is any improvement.

A mole that is subject to irritation from a garment strap might be a candidate for removal, but there you seem to have several, removal for cosmetic purposes doesn't seem practical. However, if the mole or any other growth that changes drastically in color or size should be investigated, and definitely cut out that bleeds or crusts. I gather from your letter that your moles have been given appropriate attention in this regard.

If you haven't done so, see a dermatologist, who might decide to remove a bit of the mole tissue for closer analysis.

There is, I said, little you can do to stop the appearance of other moles. Occasionally, one will disappear on its own, little rhyme or reason.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I just had a blood test that shows my cholesterol count at 285 and my triglycerides at 222. This was taken after a day of no food.

The next week I had another test, but after breakfast. Both counts were even higher. The doctor thinks I am one of the people who cannot assimilate fat. Is it possible that I may eventually get both counts down to normal if I get my weight down about 30 pounds? — H.D.

Both readings you mention are somewhat high.

To lower blood cholesterol, the saturated fat-containing foods are restricted. Sugar-content foods are restricted to lower the triglycerides level in the blood.

Since both diet restrictions result in a substantial calorie decrease, the natural result is going to be weight loss. And generally any substantial drop in calorie intake is going to cause a drop in the cholesterol and triglycerides level.

This is why the whole matter of cholesterol and triglycerides is currently a subject of much confusion. Yet it is rather simple. If you lose overweight, and if you lose 30 pounds, you are going to bring both levels down. There is no magic to it, simply less caloric intake.

However, the changes in readings are not going to be dramatic but gradual — as gradual as your weight loss. If you are planning a sensible reducing program, which I hope you are.

Dear Drs. Thosteson: I am 16 years old and have an important question to ask. Somebody told me that if you wash your hair everyday it will get gray sooner. My father says I'm crazy to believe this. What do you say? — J.

It is not true. Listen to papa.

Italian Coins Vanish

ROME (Reuter) — Italian officials are bewildered by a mysterious jinx on the country's coinage. As soon as it's minted it disappears.

The lira bit mint has been working overtime to end a shortage of small change that has become a major irritation in Italian life.

But apparently it has been working to no avail.

Recent official figures show 99.38 million 50-lire pieces (twenty a bit more than five cents) are "missing." This is about 10 times the amount actually in circulation.

It is depressing news for the Bank of Italy, which recently succeeded in increasing the output of 50-lire pieces, probably the most commonly used of Italian coins.

No official figures are available for the number of coins of other denominations that have disappeared from circulation. But any Italian can confirm that it is high.

The problem has become so acute that officially minted coins have gone out of common circulation altogether in some parts of the country, replaced by chewing gum, sweets, plastic tokens and stamps.

At a popular resort near Rome recently, vacationers were not surprised to find the restaurant entirely bereft of change. Instead, the cashier handed out packets of mints and a huge pot of chocolates.

Nor was the cashier put out when customers said for their coffees and teas in chocolates.

In Rome, where the small change crisis is not generally as grave as elsewhere, a shop has displayed the sign: "Closed because of lack of change."

Many shopkeepers are producing their own tokens to get around the shortage. A specimen piece of paper money discovered in a northern Italy recently was endorsed with the verse: "This is valid until the end of the summer."

Wild rumors are going about the country to explain the phenomenon of disappearing coins. The latest is that they are being smuggled out of Italy in huge cargo ships bound for Japan.

The object of the alleged operation? Italian coins are an excellent base metal for cheap watches.

Needless to say, it is highly illegal for anyone but the Bank of Italy to mint currency. The understanding for the treasury has publicly warned shopkeepers to discontinue the practice.

Lancelot the peerless looked over dummy with distaste. Dinadan, the worst player at the square table, raised Lancelot every time he could. But the peerless one wished that Dinadan had just a wee bit less.

Then Lancelot went after the hand like he would go after a dragon or giant. He let a club toward dummy and went up with the king after West played low. The king held and the first dragon had been taken care of.

Next came the queen of spades finesse. Lancelot wanted to take all some time or other and this just might be his only chance.

The queen held and the second dragon had bit the dust. He ruffed the jack of spades, covered with the ace, ruffed a spade in dummy and led a trump.

It was equally positive for Lancelot to go right up with his ace. He wanted to be able to ruff his last spade in dummy and a closing finesse might make that impossible.

The ace dropped the king, but that was frosting on the cake. It just gave Lancelot an overtrick.

WARY OF DRILLING

NEW YORK (CP) — More than 50 countries around the world are turning their eyes seaward for oil, the last major unexploited source of petroleum. But experts say not enough is known about the long-term effects of offshore drilling to submarine organisms or how the adjacent shoreline environment can be protected, says the Conference for International Environment.

Search for Scapegoats Response to Inflation

EDMONTON (CP) — One of the routine responses to inflation is a political search for scapegoats, says Dr. Max Brunck, an agricultural economist at Cornell University.

Dr. Brunck, visiting Edmonton on a lecture tour of Canada sponsored by the Agricultural Institute of Canada, said the early stages of inflation usually are ignored or interpreted as economic growth.

"As it begins to bear hardships, a political search for scapegoats ensues."

Commissions of inquiry are established with investigations commonly centring on food because people are sensitive to food prices.

"First the finger points to the retailer, then the distributor, manufacturer and finally the farmer."

When a culprit cannot be found, various forms of economic controls are tried limiting prices, wages, margins and profits but these so stimulate the consumption of scarce goods and discourage their production, that "they are short-lived."

Casting controls aside, governments finally resort to a reduction in deficit spending, reducing services, increasing taxes and tightening credit.

This gets results but the unemployment and reduced production that accompanies the cure are less acceptable than inflation.

"The price increases now ignored are greater but accepted for a time as essential to restore economic growth and employment so the cycle can be started all over again."

Dr. Brunck sai dthe repeated performance of this cycle in the many independent representative governments of the world indicates that society, by choice, will continue to force inflation.

The difficulty is in learning to live with inflation. For example, farmers tend to make production decisions on the basis of present prices and past costs. "a practice that can be disastrous in times of rapid inflation."

He said there are many social benefits of inflation, including the maintenance of full employment and real productivity, "hence the economists' support for policies contributing to mild inflation."

The task of consumers in riding out inflation is difficult because while inflation simplifies the liquidation of debt, consumer debt is not revenue-producing and must be held within the bounds of anticipated income.

"Consumers who are willing to radically alter their consuming practices in response to market price opportunities will fare better than those who are inflexible," Dr. Brunck said.

This is a problem for most consumers because food habits tend to be fixed but even more important is the seemingly hopeless problem of protecting savings.

"Skill in doing this lies very much in one's ability to recognize the various processes by which society, through the instrument of the politician, seeks to redistribute wealth from those who have saved to those who have not saved.

"The most traditional forms of savings, by their consciousness, will always be the most vulnerable to erosion."

New York Entry Fee Boost Brings Protest

NEW YOK (Reuter) — It costs a motorist nothing to leave New York City but the admission charge is going up. The aim is to raise money to improve mass transit. However, the idea has upset the thousands of people who enter the city every day to work and politicians, ever wary of the consequence, have reduced the increase.

The admission charge is the toll levied by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey on vehicles using the bridges and tunnels across the Hudson River.

Six crossings are involved, ranging from the heavily-used George Washington Bridge and the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels, to links between New Jersey and Staten Island. They were used by almost 160 million vehicles last year.

The port authorita—a massive organisation "belonging" to both states and operator of John F. Kennedy, LaGuardia and Newark Airports, the docks and the biggest building in New York, the twin-towered World Trade Centre—stunned the public by announcing earlier this month that tolls for commuters would be trebled, while those paid by other motorists would be increased by half.

The authority said its decision—made without warning or any public hearings—would help raise an extra $39 million to be spent on expanding its big bus terminal in Manhattan, building rail links to Kennedy and Newark airports and other improvements in mass transit.

Since the Holland Tunnel from New Jersey to lower Manhattan opened in 1927, the round-trip cash toll has been $1. For the last few years this has been collected only on the New Jersey side. Motorists leaving Manhattan do not pay on the assumption that they came from New Jersey in the first place.

The port authority decided to abolish this 50-cent toll and set a standard charge of $1.50. It proposed a 50-cent fee, however, for cars containing three people to encourage car-pooling.

There has been little objection to these objectives. One anti-pollution group even said the new tolls would not be high enough and called for a $2 charge on each side of the Hudson.

But the suddenness of the decision infuriated motorists. Legislators rushed to ... solidarity with them with both New York and New Jersey state assemblies condemning the move.

A group of teachers who live in New Jersey but work on Staten Island drove slowly in convoy across one bridge in protest, tying up rush-hour traffic.

Others said the new tolls were discriminatory, especially for shift workers who have to drive to work at times when there are few buses or trains. They said it would not be possible to form car pools outside normal working hours—and the three-passenger concession did not apply at weekends.

So the tolls were revised by the authority under the threat of a veto by the governors of the two states.

At 47 stands, the 50-cent concession to car pooters is retained. Regular commuters can buy tickets worth $1 and the $1.50 toll remains for the driver paying cash.

Commons Roundup

Auditor's Powers Strengthened

OTTAWA (CP) — The powers of the auditor-general will be expanded but not to the extent sought by the Opposition, Treasury Board President Jean Chrétien said Monday.

The Progressive Conservatives want the auditor-general "to do the job of the official opposition," Mr. Chrétien said in the Commons. The auditor-general is the watchdog of government spending.

The federal cabinet is studying a report urging expanded powers and a bill "to implement what is good (b the report" might be introduced in the fall.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the auditor-general's powers need strengthening to enable him "to inquire into, prevent and correct abuses in the expenditure of public money by the government."

The government and top civil servants possess "near dictatorial powers," he added.

An independent committee appointed by Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell has said the auditor-general needs additional powers to reveal inefficiency, waste and bungling in federal spending.

The auditor-general should have guaranteed freedom from government meddling, said the report.

Mr. Baldwin said the auditor-general is not just a financial auditor.

"He has the duty to examine payments made by the executive and civil servants to see that they follow the basis on which they were passed by this Parliament."

Government expenditures this year will exceed $31 billion, Mr. Baldwin said.

"The final line of defence for the beleaguered taxpayer of Canada is the office of the auditor-general."

Mr. Chrétien said all government expenditures are subject to parliamentary approval and only Parliament can change spending decisions.

Stanley Knowles, New Democrat House Leader, said Parliament should find a way to let MPs decide how the money will be spent before the government draws up its estimates each financial year.

Given the government decides its expenditures, there is little an MP can do in the Commons in committee.

"We need parliamentary participation on how money is to be appropriated and spent," he said. "The auditor-general's report is after the fact and unless it might have salutary effect, it isn't a check on current expenditures."

John Reid, parliamentary secretary for the privy council, said the executive has grown because the Commons has fallen behind the times.

He said the Commons wastes time on trivia, "and had not changed "to be able to cope with our changing society."

"Many people feel the Commons is no longer equipped to do its job."

The Commons is taking more time because the members don't speak to the contents of the bill under study.

"We have to work out some sort of allocation of time procedure."

Vietnamese General Will Leave

OTTAWA (CP) — Derek Blackburn (NDP—Brant) said Monday that Gen. Dang Van Quang, former South Vietnamese army officer, will leave Canada of his own volition.

Mr. Blackburn would not elaborate for reporters on when the general might leave or the sources of the information.

Mr. Blackburn said in the Commons that Immigration Minister Robert Andras is waiting for the general to leave instead of taking any action against him.

Mr. Andras said last Thursday he is studying information from a variety of sources before making a decision on Quang.

Quang entered Canada in mid-May from a United States refugee camp on a one-year ministerial permit. He has been linked with wide-spread corruption and narcotics trafficking in Vietnam by a number of sources.

He has been living in Montreal with his wife and three of his children.

Mr. Blackburn has been attacking the government's method of screening Vietnamese refugees on grounds it might make Canada the dumping ground for all of Saigon's undesirable elements.

Mr. Blackburn asked if Trang Sĩ Tuấn, who he called former Vietnamese special police chief, is in Montreal.

Mr. Andras said checks were being made on the backgrounds of refugees.

Outside the House, Mr. Blackburn said there is a highly organized group in Montreal seeking to bring in undesirable refugees from Vietnam. The group was under pressure from the U.S. because the undesirables "would be an embarrassment in the U.S."

He said he was not able to name group members but was continuing to get information from Vietnamese groups in Montreal.

Because most Vietnamese spoke French, Montreal was chosen by the group that has been working for a couple of years.

Government Preparing To Kill Wildcat

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the government is preparing legal actions to end a wildcat strike by about 900 Montreal longshoremen.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons that information is being gathered, with a view to legal remedies to be sought, when say what specific steps will be taken. Legal action will be revealed today, he added.

The longshoremen went back to their jobs less than three weeks after Parliament ordered an end to a strike on April 24, but they walked out again Friday.

Mr. Trudeau said the government views the walkout as most serious problem for the port of Montreal. The Montreal Employers Association, which employs the longshoremen, says it fears the reputation of the port will be irreparably damaged.

The prime minister said he thinks there would be strong public support for action by the government to end the strike.

Don Mazankowski (PC—Vegreville) said Japanese flour millers say Canada's reputation is being damaged by failure to meet grain sale commitments.

Market Sends Ambassador

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Monday that the European Economic Community (EEC) will have an ambassador in Ottawa before the end of the year.

When the ambassador arrives, Canada will become the third country, after the United States and Japan, to receive an EEC ambassador.

Canada has had an ambassador accredited to the EEC since December, 1970. The present ambassador is Marcel Cadieux.

Irvine Rejects Sudbury Land Inquiry

"Those who have called for a judicial inquiry are seeking headlines rather than facts," he said in a prepared statement to the Legislature.

Opposition parties called for an inquiry Friday following publication of an article in Toronto Star, which said a Sudbury engineer, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vannier, both active Progressive Conservatives, made $200,000 by selling land to OHC, the province's public housing authority.

Mr. Irvine referred to the article as "one of the truly great non-stories of all time." He said OHC appraisers indicated OHC was paying a fair price for the property.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said outside the legislature they were uninpressed by Mr. Irvine's remarks.

"He's covering-up for his Progressive Conservative friends who are making unconscionable profits selling land to OHC," Mr. Nixon said, adding that OHC has outlived its usefulness and should be subject to an immediate and full review.

Mr. Lewis said he is remaining convinced the Sudbury land deals were improper, adding that in focusing criticism on the newspaper, Mr. Irvine was using an old political ploy—create a "bogie man" out of the media to distract attention from the issue.

Mr. Irvine said: "If there is fault in this case it lies not so much with the opposition who have been misled, or with the authors who have laboured mightily to produce little, but rather with the decision of The Star in running the article in the first place."

OHC bought 21 acres of land in the city of Sudbury from Mr. Vannier in 1968. Mr. Vannier received $1,300 and Mrs. Vannier $27,225.

"The innuendo is that the land was sold by one who supports the Progressive Conservative party and therefore the price must be too high, that the whole thing occurred in a Tory period, and there was unexplainable delay in bringing the land to market," Mr. Irvine said.

Shelving Blamed On Public

TORONTO (CP)—Mandatory seat-belt legislation was shelved because the public was not convinced it was necessary, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Monday.

Mr. Rhodes told a legislative committee study department estimates that people wanted to judge for themselves when and where seat belts were needed.

The government proposed a mandatory seat belt bill in the Throne speech but later withdrew it.

Mr. Rhodes said he received "volumes of mail from those who opposed it" and some from those in favor.

In the ministry's estimates, $301,000 has been allotted to seat-belt research and education campaigns, including visits to schools and printed material.

Hydrofoil Research Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly 3½ years after it got its highly-expensive experimental hydrofoil into mothballs, the armed forces are still conducting research into whether such a vessel will be needed.

Defence officials now wonder if the research will be forced to slow down as a result of a defence structure review under way.

The continuing research and interest in a vessel that rides at high speed on a skim above the surface of the sea came out recently in the Commons defence committee in response to questioning.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) has been pressing defence officials for plans for the hydrofoil Bras d'Or, in storage at Halifax since November, 1972, while charging it amounts to a $35-million waste of taxpayers' money.

He charged last week that the vessel was unnecessarily developed by the Canadian Armed Forces at a time when all the information needed was available from the United States and has demanded to know what is involved in a $190,000 study that officials have been mentioned in connection with the Bras d'Or.

The 150-foot Bras d'Or was developed in the late 1960s as a fast anti-submarine patrol vessel, but vessel was put in mothballs in November, 1971, when it was shown that at between $15 million and $20 million per ... "was too expensive for any navy."

Stewart Awaiting More Meat Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Monday he would "throw the book" at anyone proven to be involved in illegal distribution and sale of tainted meat in Ontario.

Investigations by ministry officials have failed to turn up any substantial evidence of the tainted meat or bonesmeat alleged to have been distributed for human consumption in the province, he said.

Mr. Stewart was questioned in the legislature about assertions by former Ontario Human Society employee who said a ring with possible organized crime connections has been selling meat from dead and dying animals in Ontario for years.

Witnesses at a Quebec probe into organized crime sparked the issue last week with testimony that tainted meat was being sold for human consumption in the two provinces.

Mr. Stewart said he has no reason to believe his position is any different from that taken last week when he assured the legislature there was no evidence to support the allegations.

Quinte Labor Council Planning 1500-seat Convention Hall

COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Construction of a 1,500-seat convention centre and labor administration building is being planned by the Quinte District Labor Council. It was announced Tuesday.

Two weeks ago labor council executive members met privately with the leaders of 30 of the area's largest unions to win moral and financial support of the project.

Explaining the project, council president Doug Sword said during an interview "Labor unions represent the largest portion of the community and it is fitting that labor have some establishment."

While the resolution passed by the council specifies either purchase or construction of a building, Mr. Sword said: "Labor leaders at the private meeting voted overwhelmingly to build a new structure that would serve not only labor but the entire community."

Mr. Sword said the project has received the financial blessings of council's member unions and that once constructed, facility rental will take care of building overhead.

The president said in addition to union contributions towards the capital construction costs, shares are also being considered allowing individuals to donate money to the project.

He said the building would ideally include a number of meeting rooms of various sizes and a main theatre seating capacity of 1,500.

Jack Thomas, council treasurer, told the membership, "We have quite a bit of money promised . . . but we'll need a good deal more."

"There's a hell of a lot of work to be done before any sod will be turned," said Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Sword said the council was looking at a minimum capital expenditure of $200,000 but could not say firmly because "project details are still sketchy".

"Whatever happens, there must be a good deal of money in the bank before the project is kicked off," said Mr. Thomas.

The council's executive will now begin seeking legal advice and considering designs.

Ottawa Legislation Works

Dockers to Return

MONTREAL (CP) — About 900 longshoremen walked out of a meeting today after telling their union executives they would return to work Thursday.

After several hours of heated discussion with union leaders, the men decided to forego a scheduled secret ballot and vote by acclamation to end a walkout begun Friday.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said charges of contempt had been initiated in Montreal against Local 375, International Longshoremen's Association, for disobeying a Quebec Superior Court injunction ordering the union members back to work after Parliament passed legislation requiring them to return.

The government also is taking action against five members of the local, including president Adrien Tremblay, under both the Criminal Code and the Canada Labor Code.

The special act of Parliament forcing the longshoremen back to work, passed in late April, included a provision for penalties if the order was not obeyed.

If the union is found guilty of contempt of court, it is subject to a fine of up to 150,000 for violating the Quebec Code of Civil Jrtocedure.

For violating the Canada Labor Code, union officers can be fined up to $10,000 and individual members are subject to fines of up to $1,000. For failing to obey the law forcing a return to work, the five face imprisonment of up to two years.

Mr. Lang told reporters after the charges were announced in the Commons that the prosecutions begun by the government were not negotiable—they would not be dropped in exchange for a return to work.

In the case of the five individuals, Mr. Lang said the government intends to proceed with actions under both the Criminal Code and the Canada Labor Code. A decision will be made on whether to proceed with only one charge.

The government was using all legal avenues to enforce the law. He hoped the longshoremen would soon be back to work.

Labor Minister John Munro said earlier that federal officials were checking into evidence of possible intimidation of employees and this information would be turned over to provincial authorities for action, if required.

Main issue in dispute between the union and the Maritime Employers' Association is the length of a guaranteed work-week for the longshoremen in Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres.

A conciliation report, which formed the basis for the back-to-work legislation, proposed a guaranteed annual work-time of 1,600 hours in Montreal, 1,400 for those in Quebec and 1,200 in Trois-Rivieres. The union wants a guarantee of 2,000 hours a year—a full 40-hour work-week.

Salvager Testifies Carrion Sold for Food

MONTREAL (CP) — A meat salvager who collected carcasses for pet food manufacturers told an inquiry Tuesday he supplied a million pounds of carrion for sale to humans in Montreal-area stores in the last eight years.

Rodrigue Dumais, operator of J. M. Lefrancois Ltd., told the inquiry he sold the meat, on an irregular basis between 1973 and 1975, to Corvin Quality Meat of Montreal, Marche Richard of suburban Verdun and Marche Caboneau of nearby St. Hubert.

Rejean Paul, chief counsel for the Quebec Police Commission organized crime inquiry, described the ring supplied the slaughterhouse in St. Constant de Nahierville, Que., as "a makeshift operation" and was responsible for a lot of people being sick.

For one of his customers, Corvin Meat Market, Mr. Dumais said he included meat from dead or diseased horses to keep the price competitive.

"It was if who suggested mixing in horse meat," Mr. Dumais testified. "I tried it, it worked."

Mr. Paul said indicated Corvin was not aware of the horse meat content.

Mr. Dumais testified he also sold meat to Art Burrett of Keene Animal Food Ltd. of PeTerborough, Ont.

Meat salvagers are licensed to purchase dead animals for use in pet foods but are forbidden to sell the same meat for human consumption.

Mr. Dumais testified he took over the J. M. Lefrancois plant in July, 1973, from its owner, Jean-Marie Lefrancois. Mr. Lefrancois, too ill to appear before the inquiry Tuesday, stated in a sworn statement read to the inquiry that he had been selling salvaged meat to retail outlets before Mr. Dumais took over he business.

Mr. Dumais said he bought beef carcasses from farmers for as much as $45 or $50, and sold the meat to retail stores for from 25 to 45 cents a pound.

Daredevils Ride Cycle Over Whirlpool Rapids

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CH) — Henri Rechalin, his wife Janyck and motorcycle driver Frank Loosa crossed the churning waters of the whirlpool beneath Niagara Falls by motorcycle on a cable today in a daredevil display for news reporters.

For Mr. Rechalin, the feat was the realization of a dream he has held for years. He asced permission to walk a cable across the whirlpool in 1967 but was refused by the Niagara Parks Commission.

Today's demonstration, the three French nationals drove across the greasy pull cable of the Spanish aerocar, the cable car that spans the Niagara gorge.

They didn't wait to ask permission from anyone. At 6:30 a.m., with invited reporters watching, the three set out from the south bank of the Whirlpool and slowly drove across the cable, with Mr. Lucas at the controls.

Mr. Rechalin stood atop the machine on a specially-constructed steel frame and his wife made the trip upside-down, hanging by a foot from another frame underneath.

Mr. Rechalin said Tuesday he was in Niagara Falls to prove he is a professional daredevil.

He demonstrated his skill Tuesday morning at the Skylon Tower when he balanced on two wooden chairs on a narrow platform 520 feet above the ground. He said he wanted to prove to everyone he was not crazy and was capable of fulfilling his dream of crossing the gorge on a tightrope.

Northwestern Ontario

Labor Problems Snowballing

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A total of 3,496 persons were off their jobs Tuesday as labor unrest continued to snowball in northwestern Ontario.

In most developing cases, contract negotiations have broken down and further sessions have not been scheduled.

A union meeting is scheduled for Wednesday to assess the position of 1,200 members of Local 1669 of the Carpenters and Joiners Union. Under terms of the old contract that expired April 20, carpenters' wages averaged $8.73 an hour.

The 200 members of Local 628 of the Plumbers and Pipefitters Union have rejected a wage package by the Construction Association of Thunder Bay (CATB) providing wage increases of $2.83 an hour over two years. The plumbers, who made $8.81 an hour under the previous contract that expired April 30, are seeking increases of $4.67 an hour including vacation pay.

And no additional meetings are planned in the dispute of 300 members of Local 207 of the Sheetmetal Workers International Association and the CATB.

In Atikokan, Ont., 432 members of Local 2466 of the United Steelworkers of America remain off he job at Steep Rock Iron Mines to back wage demands. Under the old contract, wages ranged from $4.28 an hour for a general labor to $5.97 for a machinist leader.

The 300 members ofa of Local 5899 of the same union are also on strike at Cealand Ore Co. over the issue of wages. Negotiations are at loggerheads in both situations.

And 800 members of Local 1975 of the United Auto Workers International Union are on strike at Canadian Car Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. Under the old agreement which expired May 31, wages ranged from $4.18 an hour to $5.11 an hour under a three-year contract provision.

Elsewhere, 300 members of the International Union of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers Union were in legal position to strike Wednesday. Under the previous contract that expired April 30, wages averaged $8.86 an hour.

Israel Warns Egypt Against Hostilities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel completed the thinning out of its forces and firepower near the Suez canal today but said the cuts could be reversed if Egypt makes any hostile move.

"We hope Egypt will not be tempted to take steps that would force us to withdraw our gesture," Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told the Israeli parliament as reply to opposition criticism of the reduction.

Completion of the pullback a day before Egyptian President Anwar Sadat plans to sail through the canal in a reopening ceremony was announced by Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres.

Both Israeli ministers voiced hope that the move would relax tension.

Allon said a ceasefire line along which civilian ships move, serviced by thousands of Egyptian workers, was preferable to "a line in the desert bristling with tanks and troops on either side."

The foreign minister said Israel "expects that there will be full freedom for our cargoes to pass through the canal."

Asked by reporters if he thought Israel would make similar partial withdrawals on the other fronts with its Arab adversaries, Peres said:

"We don't see any major change on any other front that would warrant such a move on our part."

He said the Jordanian and Lebanese fronts were relatively quiet and he didn't think Syria would make any drastic change toward peace.

In Washington, State Secretary Henry Kissinger said President Ford's summit meeting with Sadat may have laid a basis for a new period of Middle East diplomacy.

"I'm not saying there is going to be progress. I'm saying there could be," Kissinger said.

"We can move into a phase of more specificity" after Ford meets with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin in Washington June 11-12, said a senior U.S. official who accompanied Ford on his European trip.

News Briefs

Fewer in Jail

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of men and women in federal prisons numbered fewer than 8,600 this week compared with more than 8,200 in the same period a year ago.

Policeman Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Beauvais, 35, of the Montreal Urban Community police force died in hospital Tuesday night from chest wounds received earlier as he was investigating an attempted robbery, police said.

Corporal Drowns

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Canoeing has been suspended for British soldiers taking adventurous training in the Rocky Mountains after a British corporal drowned Tuesday in the North Saskatchewan River, said Capt. John Adams, a spokesman for the British Military Unit at Suffield, Alta.

French Freeze Prices

PARIS (AP) — The French government moved Tuesday to check rising prices through price freezes on certain products and the mandatory control of profit margins on others, effective immediately. It also announced price reductions of two per cent on household heating oil and seven per cent on industrial fuel. Prices of all clothing, footwear, linens, household goods, shirts, household linen, knitting threads, porcelain china, plastic made household materials and sanitary paper will be frozen at current levels through Sept. 15.

Pension Change on Way

OTTAWA (CP) — A long promised government bill to pay an old-age pension to a pensioner's husband or wife between 60 and 65 years of age was introduced Tuesday by Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde.

The bill to amend the Old Age Security Act is designed basically to assist couples now forced to live on one pension.

There now are 1.9 million persons receiving Old Age Security payments, which go to all persons 65 or older. The amendment would apply to about 85,000 spouses whose marriage partners are 63 or older.

They would have to pass a means test to qualify for benefits the amount of which would be determined by outside income.

The bill would extend the present system whereby pensioners may receive income supplements of varying amounts. The amount depends on need as demonstrated in an annual means test.

The basic pension for couples both 65 or over, now is $248.84, and the maximum supplement $123.76, for a total of $400.60.

Under the new legislation, a couple might qualify for the max'mum pension and benefit of $400.60 a month even if one of the partners is under 65 but over 60.

Bay Bridge Back on Job

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Bay Bridge is swinging again.

The first pleasure craft to make it up the Bay of Quinte from Belleville to three days passed through the bridge late Tuesday afternoon.

Its passage marked the repair of the aging structure's latest breakdown which had hampered water traffic since Saturday.

Only small craft have been able to travel the Bay since the swing section of the Belleville — Rossmore Highway 14 link went out of commission.

The latest breakdown of the problem-plagued bridge occurred when a drive shaft on its swing mechanism snapped early Saturday afternoon.

A ministry of transportation and communications repair crew was dispatched Sunday to wait until Tuesday morning while a new shaft was being hurriedly machined at a Trenton workshop.

The shaft arrived and the crew worked through most of the day to get the bridge operable.

The first craft — whose owner had docked in Belleville while awaiting the repairs — passed through the bridge at 4:30 p.m.

In recent weeks the bridge's steel supports have been strengthened — the latest repair project aimed at keeping the structure sound until it is replaced.

Site of a new highway link across the Bay has been under study by the ministry since late last year when Transportation and Communications Minister John Rhodes confirmed the old structure would be finally scrapped.

It Swings Again

After three days out of commission because of broken drive shaft mechanism, Belleville - Rossmore swing bridge opened Thursday afternoon to allow pleasure craft up the Bay of Quinte. Repairs ended latest breakdown of aged structure now scheduled for replacement after current provincial government site study.

Rezoning Action Angers Planning Board Head

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton council's approval in principle of a zoning request by Weld Realty Co. This week may reduce any enjoyment it may if given by local planning boards, to simple "rubber stamp" action, says Trenton and Suburban Planning Board chairman Douglas Livingstone.

He was commenting Tuesday on council's approval of a request to remove a 204-by-85 foot lot at the corner of Dundas and Division Sts. from residential to commercial use.

Weld Realty Co. principal Gerald Weaver wrote to council with plans to build a small, six-store plaza on the site, owned by the company since 1965. Weld Realty has made two previous rezoning requests.

Mr. Livingstone said Tuesday the plan has been seen by his board once and at the time, it was opposed as poor use of the site.

"We suggested to council that it was definitely against the official plan to spread commercial use outside the central business district (downtown) to residential land," he said.

He suggested Tuesday that any comments his board would make would be unnecessarily time and work consuming since the plan had already been approved by council.

" 'In principle' to me means the same thing as approval," he said. "It's useless to go through the steps to advise them when they've already approved it."

Normally, a rezoning request goes before council which turns it over to the Quinte regional board for comment. The plans are then circulated to various local boards and agencies for comment, before any recommendation is made. Any suggestions then go to the Trenton board for study and recommendation to council.

Approval of the plan in principle came Monday under strong opposition by Mayor Bob Patrick. He warned the move (approved by a 4-3 vote) would set a precedent for other Trenton developers to attempt circumvention of the planning process.

Mayor Patrick told council it was putting the cart before the horse: "We may sanction something that we don't know about."

Trenton clerk Aubrey Sharp called council's move "unusual" Tuesday and said he feared the possible reaction of the Quinte Planning Board.

The Board, he said, might not choose to comment on the plan, feeling the decision has already been made. The departure from normal council procedure may set a precedent and "council could find itself facing the situation again."

It is council's prerogative to take the action it did, since both planning boards are only in the advisory capacity, officials says.

Condition of Road Prompts Council Jokes

PICTON — A connecting link to the town of Picton, Johnson St. has fallen under steady discussion in town and county council meetings recently.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson last month complained of the bumpy condition of the street to Picton's Edward County councillors for what he termed "the 17th or 18th time."

Improvements to the rough surface of the road were made by the county roads department recently but Picton town council remains unimpressed.

When it was agreed this week to petition the ministry of transportation and communications for the painting of traffic lines on connecting links in Picton mayor Donald King facetiously suggested the usual methods might not work on Johnson Street. He noted the road is so uneven and winding it may be necessary to do the job by hand.

Residents to Discuss Napanee Improvements

A meeting will be held in Napanee Town Hall Monday at 7:30 p.m. to organize guidelines for the rehabilitation of the Water Street neighbourhood.

Under a joint venture from the federal provincial and municipal governments, a redevelopment program has been created for general improvement. The Neighbourhood Improvement Program (NIP) will assist in the upgrading of municipal facilities such as sidewalks, curbs and storm drains.

The Water St. area, bordered by Robert St., Mill St., Hessford St., and the Napanee River, is destined to be transformed through the NIP program.

In addition, the Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP) will shortly finalize assistance to homeowners in the area enabling home to be repaired.

Building Strong

PICTON — Building permits for the town of Picton in May totalled $450,600.

In a report to town council this week, building inspector Morley Brooks stated $80,000 permit has been issued to Jayel Development Corp. Ltd. for a 12-unit condominium on Richmond and Thomas Street. Westwood Nursing Home was granted permit for an addition of ceiling at $100,000.

The balance of the permits were granted to Picton homeowners making improvements and additions.

Rec Staff Announced

PICTON — The 1975 summer staff hired for programs organized through the Picton recreation and parks committee this week was reported to town council.

Program co-ordinator this year will be John Dunlop and playground co-ordinator, Valerie Ostrander.

District at a Glance

Legion Plans Dinner

TRENTON — The Trenton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion will hold its annual Vimy V.E. dinner and dance at its Quinte St. Hall Saturday, June 7. Dinner speakers will be winners in the Grade 8 and 11 classes of the Legion—sponsored public speaking contest. Tickets are available for $2.50 per person at the Legion hall.

Field Day Planned

PICTON — The Picton Firefighters' Association will sponsor the annual Mutual Aid Field Day on June 22 at Delhi Park. Time of this popular event is 1:30 p.m.

Parking Discussed

PICTON — Town council learned this week that a draft schedule of "no parking" areas in Picton will be submitted for approval soon. It was also learned that chairman of the special committee on traffic and parking, councillor Charles Hepburn, narrowly escaped parking tickets on more than one occasion recently as he toured the town to pin-point " no parking" sites.

Tender Accepted

PICTON — Picton town council this week voted to accept the tender of James Wycotte for haulage of 10,000 cubic yards of clay from Bloomfield mill pond to the dump site here. The tender price, lowest of three submitted was $10,500 with provision for a five per cent discount if work begins immediately. Other tenders were Cecil Bleskie of RR 3, Picton, $12,700 and John Leavitt with a price of $13,600. The clay will be taken from the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority property in Bloomfield where dredging of a mill pond is underway.

Mishap Costly

AMELIASBURG — An Echo Bay motorist escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon in a single car accident on Smoke's Point Road that caused damages totalled at $2,150.

Police say Rolland Beaudry, 20, of RR4, Echo Bay, was westbound when his car skidded into a ditch striking a hydro pole. The driver received cuts and bruises.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000 and to the pole $150.

Home Stretch

Construction workers for Bell Canada Ltd. in Picton this week are in the home stretch as pavement on Main Street East is patched following improvements to the local telephone system. A number of ducts were laid as part of a program to provide better customer service by making more phone connections possible.

Divers Still Combing Waters For Four Missing Boaters

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police divers are still searching for the bodies of four men and the 15-foot fiberglas boat in which they were riding in the waters of a channel between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

Missing and presumed drowned are Bradley Gibson, 21, of Amherst Island, Robert Gibson, 24, of Napanee, Donald Lougheed, 27, of Napanee and Robert McGinnis, 29, of Kingston.

They and two women comprised a party of six people who left the northwestern tip of the island at about 1:30 a.m. on May 25 on a one-mile trip across the channel to a point where their cars were parked off Highway 33 near the Lennox Generating Station at Bath.

They were reported missing at 10:30 a.m. and several hours later, searchers recovered the seats and paddles of the boat and the two women.

The body of Patricia Lougheed, 23, of RR3, Napanee, was found along the shore of the mainland at Conway, about three miles west of the generating station. Death was established as by drowning.

About 15 minutes later, Deborah Gibson, 23, of Napanee, was discovered on the shore at Bayshore Rd. about two miles west of where the first woman was located. She was recently released from Kingston General Hospital after several days' treatment.

A spokesman for provincial police at Napanee said the search has expanded from waters between the departure and arrival points and an area immediately to the west. "I guess the whole channel is suspect right now," he said.

He added that searchers expect the bodies to surface in the next few days. "In seven to nine days, they usually come up again," he noted.

Old Converted Barn Makes Good Dancehall

SALMON POINT — The Hayloft, a combination dancehall and entertainment centre, fashioned from a 120-year-old barn, near Outlet Park, swung open its stable doors for the third consecutive year last weekend.

The Hayloft, a renovated barn on the Salmon Point Road, is the first and only dancehall of its kind in Prince Edward County, remarks owners and operators, Frank McConnell and his son Lynn.

This season it has taken on a new look. Once open to the general public, the popular dancehall now is a social club and only those who purchase memberships may be admitted this year.

A new addition including expanded canteen facilities, new washrooms and more seating capacity are featured at the Hayloft Club this year. An old orchard on the McConnell property has been removed to provide more parking space for cars.

The new addition boasts modern construction and decor, but the main dancehall and seating area still retain an authentic atmosphere. The original framework of the barn remains the same, sprinkled with old wagon wheels, milk cans, pieces of horse harness, wooden harrows, ladders and milk pails.

Although closing in October, the McConnells say they hope to make further renovations to the structure to include a heated area to accommodate snowmobile parties in the winter.

Ski Club Meets

PICTON — The Prince Edward Water Ski Club will hold its inaugural meeting Monday, June 9 at Benson Hall where a summer program will be discussed.

The ski club has been organized to assist in providing opportunities for all interested persons to learn to water ski and to improve their abilities.

The club's first meeting will attempt to deal with possible means of opening the sport to spectators.

Career Planning: Be Prepared—and Specific—When it Comes to That Interview

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The motto, "be prepared," is good advice not only for Boy Scouts but for job-seekers. Thousands of young Canadians are leaving school or university behind and entering the labor force this month.

The Canadian economy needs and will benefit from their talents. At first, though, the task of finding the right-place in the economy may dampen youthful enthusiasm.

—Take the trouble to become well informed about the industry or field of activity. If you are dealing with a monopoly, who regulates it? If it is not a monopoly, who are the principal competitors and where does this company rank among them?

—Display a reasonable knowledge of the organization. Know where it operates, and if possible whether it is controlled within Canada or outside.

—If the company has a big branch network (as chartered banks and chain stores do), be ready with a considered answer when asked how you feel about travelling or being transferred.

—Be as specific as possible about the type of position that interests you the most, and be prepared to say what strengths you have that would fit you for that type of work.

—Try to get a realistic picture of salary levels for beginners. Then decide what minimum you would expect, since that question will probably be asked if the interview progresses favorably.

—Closely linked to the question of starting salary is the prospect of future progress. If given salary figure might be satisfactory if you could anticipate advancement, but unsatisfactory in a dead-end situation, will you have worked at vacation or spare-time jobs while at school or university, you will probably be asked to describe those jobs and your feelings about them, the organization and the people you worked with. Your answers could reveal much about how you would fit into the environment of the organization concerned.

—You may think it's none of his business, but the personnel officer may well question you about your scholastic record. If the books you read and similar topics. This is a legitimate effort to discover the breadth of your interests.

—To test you, the interviewer may unexpectedly ask you question with a mild shock value. One newspaper editor used to ask would-be reporters, "Where do you expect to be five years from now?" And some interviewer would simply say, "Tell me a story."

This tactic and others like it are not designed to discomfort the young and impressionable job-seeker. Rather, they are intended to bring out the applicant's personality, attitudes toward others (and especially toward the potential employer), career objectives, interests and enthusiasms.

If they show that the job-seeker hasn't thought much about career-planning, the organization, the industry, or even about life, then the job may be somewhat jeopardized.

But even in the current recession, with relatively high unemployment, there is a variety of interesting jobs for the young person who displays excellence, intelligence, imagination, and dedication to work.

Hit-and-Run' Menace

An unfortunate coincidence it may be, but Statistics Canada indicates that the rate of hit-and-run accidents has steadily increased since the introduction of mandatory breathalyzer testing in 1969.

That of course does not call for an easing of existing drunk driving penalties. Hastings MP Jack Ellis was on the right track when he put a private member's bill on the floor of the House of Commons seeking mandatory jail terms for impaired drivers involved in fatalities, and stiffer penalties across the board for apprehended drinking drivers.

Leaving the scene of an accident, no matter how minor, should be treated by the courts with an equally heavy hand. The offence is a flagrant disregard for the law for which mere fines cannot always provide adequate punishment.

There were some 105,000 hit-and-run accidents in this country last year, and the numbers are snowballing.

The Criminal Code provides that a convicted hit-and-run driver may be dealt with "summarily" — that is, he might face MAXIMUM penalties of a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment. Or, under an indictment, a convicted driver could receive a maximum of two years in jail.

This is one crime that needs to have a minimum punishment established by our courts.

Some Countries Make it Tough For Impaired

The country is El Salvador where the penalty, according to one report noted recently, is death before a firing squad.

The Scandinavians are not quite as harsh, but nevertheless they make the drinking driver pay for his irresponsibility; and in a manner that benefits him too.

The punishment generally takes the form of hard manual work. Like that meted out to a Swedish television performer — a stint in the forests. He said later: "My career was ruined . . . but I was as strong as an ox."

Something of the same treatment here might also restore a lot of people in Canada to better health, as well as making the roads safer.

Links with S.-E. Asia

The troubles in Laos have been brought home to Belleville in a personal way.

There have been routine news reports of course, but the Southeast Asian country assumed more than just the proportions of another political domino, coveted by the Communists, with the return recently of 31-year-old Robert Burr.

Burr for several years worked with international development agencies in Laos and he was luckier than his UN-appointed successor who was recently reported under house arrest.

The latest word from Vientiane is, that the United States aid establishment in the country will be wound up by June 30, this in a land which since the Vietnam debacle, has veered sharply toward Communist control.

Two years ago a young Canadian missionary, Lloyd Oppel, was released after five months in Communist captivity in Laos. Oppel, of Courtenay, B.C., later told of his experiences on a speaking tour which included Belleville. During an earlier stopover in The Philippines, en route home, he revealed that two U.S. women missionaries taken at the same time had been burned alive by their Communist captors.

And this, long before the end of the war in Vietnam and Cambodia. It is something with which to jog our short memories of that part of the world now largely under Communist control.

Neighbors Eye the Phosphate Riches of Spanish Sahara

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Africa still possesses a major European colony, the arid, mainly empty but phosphate-rich Spanish Sahara. Spread out along the southwest African coast, about an hour by air from the nearby Canary Islands, the Spanish Sahara remains Generalissimo Francisco Franco's last diadem in a North African empire, now mainly gone.

He helped to carve it out as a young officer of the Spanish Foreign Legion of the 20s.

Last week Madrid unexpectedly announced Spain would grant independence to a colony which is believed to have 50,000 people, mainly nomads who ignore political boundaries and who willy-nilly cross into the three neighboring independent Islamic nations.

These are Morocco, Mauritania and Algeria, once Spanish or French colonies. They all lay claim to the big Spanish colony, but chiefly to its rich beds of phosphate ore.

In fact the estimated 1.7 billion tons of it only just below the surface of the arid desert is the world's largest single deposit of a raw material vitally needed in the growing global demand for fertilizers.

The ore is presently being moved out of the interior to the port capital of El Aiun on the coast via a 62-mile-long continuous conveyor belt part of a $120 million mining investment.

In 1963, the Madrid government promised the United Nations Commission on De-Colonialization, that some day Spain would go to pull unreal the British in Gibraltar, that it would grant independence to the Spanish Sahara.

UN referendums of the roaming population had been promised and were to begin this fall. But the colony's frankly greedy neighbors are already quarreling over who should have the territory and the rich minerals which are now believed in the whole unexploited titanium, vanadium and zinc.

Algeria wants to see the colony independent to fit into her own emerging phosphate o-e industry which is 1,000 miles from the sea. The present Saharan port and conveyor facilities built by Spain could be interlocked with a future Algerian system.

The Moroccans seem to have more and more imperialist tendencies about the region and it extend a Vietnam-style war in the desert if the Spanish did not leave.

As for the Spanish, they have already endured the same mysterious bombing attacks on their open and vulnerable desert conveyor belt which Middle Easte a pipeline operators experience during periods of domestic tension in Arab oil-producing nations.

The Spanish, like the British and French in other extractive-rich former colonies, will probably stay to manage, if not own the multi-million dollar Saharan mining operation.

Delusions of Grandeur As Canada's Gerin-Lajoie Hands Out Our Largesse

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Education Conservative MP Douglas Roche, a foreign aid freak on a world-saving kick, has been bleating about Parliament's indifference and opposition to what he calls "the new order of international trade and monetary arrangements."

What bugs him is that Parliament — the talks regularly the public, as established by opinion polls — is not exactly wildly enthusiastic about handing out hundreds of millions of dollars, with no questions asked, to the Third World.

Mr. Roche is not satisfied that Canadians are being dragged for close to an annual billion dollars in aid. It turns out, not always for the hungry multitudes of the underdeveloped world, but often for the sticky-fingered bureaucrats of their usually authoritarian governments.

He wants the whole economic system realigned for their benefit.

Retiring Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith is glooming and dooming about the Third World crisis. Our nuclear power we have given them in the name of aid, to blackmail — or blast us into "atomic dust" if we don't come across with a new global economic deal.

Canadian International Development Agency President Paul Gerin-Lajoie has been cheerfully conceding that yes, much of Canada's foreign aid is "sold" by recipient Third World governments.

Apparently the bureaucrats on the receiving end of Canada's annual billion dollars worth of aid, a great part of it food, are wholesaling and retailing it to their supposed famished subject-citizens.

But not to worry, chirps Gerin-Lajoie in a mood of sweet charity, it is all for a good cause.

And anyway, it helps the donor a hard buck — it maintains the image of a sort of effective Canadian prince of the Empire, bureaucratic blood, flying around the world in the class — plus dispensing his benedictions and benefits on the multitudes.

Some suspicious parliamentarians have been around say they have picked up clues in Faraway Places that Gerin-Lajoie sort of paints himself off grandly as some kind of a super ambassador Canadian prime minister at home.

It is all so good for the soul.

Labor Extremism and Economics

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — A few days ago I mentioned the dominant influence that the extremist element in labor was having on our labor relations and our economic health.

This element represents a relatively small portion of union membership but it is widespread, extending from teachers to laborers, and in view of the harm it has fostered and can foster in the future it represents one of the most important problems we have in Canada today.

Through the illegal strikes and work stoppages, rejection of proposed agreements and extreme demands it has fomented it has over the past few years led labor-management relations into chaos in many fields and made our labor laws insufficient.

Everyone now recognizes that it is there and its dangers.

Even top labor leadership itself privately would admit to this and also that it is worried. But publicly, except in the most extreme cases of radicalism, it has done nothing.

Done nothing, one has to conclude, because it doesn't dare.

For it knows the power of the demagogue y and pressures of the extremists and has to face the picture of losing its own position if it continues them.

Government, for the most part, has appeared to be in the same position, except that it fears are political fears.

And, of course, there is little avenue for action open to management.

In recent days, however, one ray of hope has appeared.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey has put his finger on the radical element in the Montreal post office.

He says that it is disrupting the whole postal service.

And, he says, he is going to clean it out.

Can he do it and how?

If he does do it will the leadership and rank and file of the post office unions stand behind him or will they pillo y him?

The Mackasey course of action is of great interest to Canada, and to us here in Ontario as its most unionized province.

It might turn out that he can give us a lead.

Then again he might fail, and shows us just how much we are in the grip of irresponsible hands.

Council Outlines New Sewage System Costs

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — Now that the

Septic Problem Delays New School Opening

FOXBORO — An electrical problem in the septic system at the new senior elementary school here has delayed the move of nearly 340 students to this new school.

Director of education Eric Rumacres said Tuesday students from Harmony Public School and the old Foxboro were scheduled to move to the senior elementary school last week but due to electrical problems were unable to make the shift.

County board of education officials wanted a portion of the classes to make the switch a month before school closes to eliminate the children to the new school, which will cost slight over $1 million. About 250 students from Harmony Public School will attend the new school with additional students from the surrounding areas of Foxboro.

Harmony currently houses about 680 students and is desperately overcrowded. The board maintains six of its 45 portable classrooms here.

Mr. Rumacres said not all classes will make the change this week because some of the classes have both Foxboro and Stirling students and the board does not want to disturb these combined classes.

Mr. Rumacres said the electrical problem is due basically to new Ontario Hydro specifications that altered plans slightly. He said there will be virtually no cost in making the change.

Dr. Scott To Speak

The annual meeting of the Hastings-Prince Edward Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association will be held June 11 at the Belleville Shrine Club.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Arthur Scott, president of the Ontario Thoracic Society.

The association will hold a dinner and business meeting in the same evening beginning at 7:15 p.m.

pipes have been laid, the treatment plant constructed, and houses are being connected, Bancroft council is faced with the problem of collecting enough money to cover the costs of the villages new $1.5 — million sewage disposal system.

During meetings held Monday and Tuesday, council members met with consulting engineers from the office of M.J. McAlpine to determine the basis for charging village residents for the new improved service.

The large local sewage system was financed by the Ontario ministry of the Environment and will be operated by employees of that ministry.

However, the job of reckoning for the village to the provincial government is fast approaching.

There will be three basic payments made by each village resident who chooses to hook into the new system.

A charge of $3.50 per foot will be made for the front of frontage owned, but there will not be any charge for the flankage measurement of corner lots.

Village councillors decided Tuesday that the frontage will be determined by the street address of the house.

With the new sewage system, council had a policy of charging for the frontage measurement of the lot.

"This new way has to be the fairest way to do it," said village Reeve Russell Hawley. "We figure it has to be done by the street address."

A connection charge of $2.87 and a monthly service fee of $4.70 will also be charged to village residents using the system.

According to council, it hopes to have the frontage charge included on the 1975 tax bill and be sent out the next month.

The monthly user's fee will be included on the Public Utilities bill and the connection fee will be paid upon hook-up.

Both the frontage charge and the connection fee can be amortized over 40 years.

Village residents who were connected to the existing sewage system, will pay only a user's fee for the service.

According to council there are several sets of circumstances which could result in a reduction or an increase in the charge for frontage.

Unusually shaped or triangular lots or lots because of elevation or other natural hazard which makes it unsuitable for building, can be considered for reduction.

The local council members meet the consulting engineering firm on Tuesday and toured areas of the village which will be considered for the special reduction.

Houses which cannot be completely serviced by the new system because of elevation can also be considered for reduction.

The sewage system began operations in early May, with the completion of the treatment plant and the 26,000 feet of installed pipes.

Lawn Bowling Under Way

MADOC — Madoc Lawn Bowling Club opens this week for the new season. The club requires additional members and anyone who would like to arrange for private instruction call call Jack Booth at 473-4338. Maxmera and Tweed residents are also welcome. The Club green survived the winter in good shape.

Stirling on TV

STIRLING — The television show on CJOH—TV (Channel Six in Deseronto) which will spotlight the residents of this village, entitled New Faces, a 30-minute regional entertainment program has been postponed until June 19th at 7:30 p.m. Two chartered buses hauled 88 people to Ottawa for taping on May 25. Co-editors for the program at the village end are Jack and Dorothy McCaughen, organizers of the annual Fiddar Mills Jamboree.

OPP Report

KALADAR — During a week in May, Ontario Provincial Police at Kaladar investigated six motor vehicle collisions with damage estimated at $6,500. Six occupants were taken to hospital as a result of the accidents. There were 34 general occurrances investigated including various Liquor Control Act complaints, missing persons and compassionate messages. Detachment personnel laid 36 charges under the Liquor Control Act, two charges each under the Criminal Code and the Provincial Parks Act and one charge of careless driving under the Highway Traffic Act.

Hard at Work

Richard Morton, a 27-year-old Toronto high school teacher, puts the finishing touches to a pine chest he made recently at his cottage-workshop located about five miles south of Tweed on Highway 37. Rick plans to open a small shop, called The Pine and Cedar Craft at his residence. He resides most of the year in Toronto but spends his summers near the village of Tweed.

Hobby Becomes Business

TWEED — This area has a new seasonal business and a big one but one that is unique.

Just five miles south of this village a Toronto high School teacher has turned a five-year hobby into a small summer business to be opened July 1. He makes pine and cedar furniture.

The new shop will be called the Pine and Cedar Craft and is located about five miles south of Tweed on Highway 37. Rick, his wife and child, live in the Tweed area during the summer months.

Rick builds both outdoor and indoor furniture, mainly for recreation rooms or for patios. Th finished products have a distinct old world appearance.

Rick plans to open a small showroom at his workshop where area residents can view his craft. Most of his pieces are finished in the natural wood. Rick can be reached by calling 478-6694.

June Recital Planned

The 60-plus Stirling High Steppers are getting ready for an indoor stage presentation this month with a theme of the centuty'. If you think you are seeing triple, the three girls on the left are from the Stephens family. Front to rear are Tammy, Julie, and Cindy. Rear right is Kim Williams, and right front is Lori-Ann Rankin. Ballon instructor Lee-Ann Satpley is at right centre.

Inflation Even Hitting Garbage Collection

BANCROFT — The Hastings County Board of Education found out this week increased costs and inflation have hit all areas of life including garbage.

Welding Artists Sought

The contest is open to any Canadian amateur sculpture with application deadline of Sept. 30, says a company release.

"We hope Weldart will stimulate and encourage the participation of welders and other industrial workers in the arts and also provide recognition of the creative talents of many Canadians whose artistic efforts are usually only seen by family and friends," said company president Ray Dow.

Local artists may acquire application forms at either Delore Stellite or at the Sidney St. Canoe plant in Belleville.

The handmade Cadillac will make an appearance in Belleville for exhibit June 21, a company spokesman said Monday.

Stirling High Steppers Preparing for Recital

STIRLING — Lee-Ann Stapley, 17, teacher of the baton twirling Stirling High Steppers says she hopes to enter her group in provincial competition next year.

"I have been accepted by a college, but I am going to stay on here," Miss Stapley said in an interview.

At the moment, Miss Stapley and over 60 of her twirlettes are preparing for a big recital to be held in the Stirling Primary School Tuesday, June 17. The theme is song of the century. Miss Stapley explained the girls make their own costumes and each appears in at least two different numbers. There are songs from wartime and the 50s, for example, and costumes to go with them.

Miss Stapley, of RR 2 Stirling, does her teaching voluntarily, and started taking lessons eight years ago at the YMCA in Belleville from her cousin, Cathy Adams, who now is 22. There has been an interesting coincidence between the two every year since the Belleville Santa Claus parade in December, 1972. The Stirling High Steppers won the majorette corps prize that year.

In 1973 the Stirling girls tied for first in Trenton with the Prince Edward High Steppers, then won in Picton, Belleville, and entering the Madoc parade but no prizes were awarded.

Miss Stapley said her cousin beat her in almost every parade in 1974, but the Stirling girls defeated competition from Peterborough, Lindsay, and two smaller communities during the Campbellford Santa Claus parade. She added that her cousin has switched to Trenton with the Murray Centennial School Majorettes.

Next year, Miss Stapley says she hopes her group will raise enough money to have costumes made by a seamstress so they will all be the same and reusable another year. They raise bus fare through bake sales to go to parades.

Miss Stapley started teaching 30 girls in Stirling in 1971 and every Saturday morning since except for summer holiday. She says that they never help her when she wants them but adds she appreciates the fact that they do not interfere with her in any respect. She had her assistant, Julie Stapley, 14, has been a "fantastic helper".

Hospital Tech Students Graduate This Friday

The Belleville General Hospital school of medical laboratory technology will conduct its 1975 graduation exercises Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Two awards will be presented — the Board of Governors Award (gold medal) presented annually in recognition of the highest aggregate mark, and the Medical Staff Association Award (silver medal) also awarded annually for outstanding achievement during the practical training.

The gold medal will be presented by Philip Rickard, hospital executive director and the silver medal will be handed over by Doctor Morgan, medical staff association president.

The welcome will be given by Carl Bateman, board chairman and congratulations will be offered by Selma Bochnek, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and Dr. Morgan.

Deer Killed

MADOC — Gene-Marie Guay, 6, of Ottawa hit and killed a deer on th of Millbridge on Highway 62 early Tuesday.

However, when Constable Rick Dowcett of the Madoc detachment arrived the carcass of the deer was gone.

There were no injuries in the mishap but $500 damage was reported to Mr. Guay's car.

Ann Landers

Losing Coins Makes Men Monsters

Dear Ann Landers: I work in an office where there are several vending machines. They dispense such items as coffee, cigarettes, candy bars and chewing gum. My desk is situated at an angle that allows me to look up and see everyone who uses the lunch machines.

Occasionally, something goes wrong and somebody loses money. You wouldn't believe the ugly performances I have witnessed. I've seen smoothies pound the machines with their fists, kick them, and swear a purple streak. This morning, a secretary took a paperweight and broke the glass. These men behave as if the machine were people who were intentionally trying to cheat them.

Please print my letter and tell your readers two things. First: They would lose fewer coins if they were more patient. Never push a button or pull a lever until you have given the coins plenty of time to click on through. Second: If, after a reasonable time, the merchandise doesn't appear and the coins don't come back, notify the office manager who should inform the vending company that a restitution can be made—Free Show

Dear Show: What you are witnessing is the behavior of adults who deal with frustration and anger at an adolescent level.

Dear Ann Landers: You have caused a lot of trouble in our house over the weekend when you said gainfully-employed children should contribute 15 per cent of their pay cheques for room and board.

My sister and I are both working girls. She is planning to marry in October. She pays $100 a month on furniture for her future home. I am paying $100 a month on my new car.

The baby put us through business training, paid for our clothes and housed and fed us. Neither of us pays room or board nor do we intend to.

We help with the dishes and housework. We iron our own clothes and babysit for our parents. All we ask is free room and board. If our parents ever needed anything they know we would be there to help.

If we were expected to hand over 15 per cent of our pay we'd rather move into an apartment and not have the family breathing down our necks.

Then Mom would have a fit. She thinks it's indecent for unmarried girls to live away from their families.

It's wrong for you to condemn unmarried children for living at home, and even paying 15-per-cent room and board. Retract it please.—No Pushover Here.

Dear No Load: No retraction is necessary because I never made such a statement. My response was to a mother who wanted to know how much to ask her highly salaried, self-indulgent son to pay for room and board. (He was paying sick.) I replied, "Fifteen per cent—and if he thinks he can get food and lodging, maid-service, laundry, dry-cleaning and a phone for less elsewhere, invite him to try it."

Circumstances alter cases. Some parents neither need nor want payment from their children. Often they encourage them to save their money instead. So please don't put words in my mouth. There are plenty there already.

Doris Clark

Time Out Will Make Her A Better Wife and Mother

Dear Doris: I want to take a job but my husband says if I go I better not come back. He says my place is here to look after my two three-year-olds. I agree that the kids do come first but I feel like I'm in prison.

Am I so wrong to want to get away for part of the time? I think I could handle it and would at least like to try. Is it wrong to leave the kids with a good sitter for a part of each day? Right now I don't really even want to have anything to do with him; he is my prison guard!

Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Yours is not the only husband who thinks like yours does.

Actually you'll make a better mother and a happier one for your children and your husband, if some variety is introduced into your life. The important thing it is find a capable baby sitter; and one who will make a lasting friendship with the children.

Get to your family agency and talk to a trained social worker for a means of approach — one that your husband will open his mind to. His marriage is at stake. So is your life.

Dear Doris: What do you do when you're almost 18, and still treated like the baby of the family? Guys can't phone without me being asked all kinds of questions. When my friends are going to a party I can't go because there are boys there.

A really nice guy started phoning me every night, but my father always listened to my conversations. Don't we deserve a little privacy, too?

I could be married in a couple of years. How am I to know what kind of guys I like unless I go out with them? Parents expect us to act like mature adults and go out and work, yet they treat us like children about dating.

Baby At Sixteen.

Dear Sixteen: You've made some good points. By 16, you should be considered trustworthy, responsible and entitled to some privacy.

Talk this over politely with your parents. Ask them to help set down some sensible rules for dating, and promise to abide by them without complaint.

Confidential to Tribulation: I read between the lines that you would like to marry again. Yet right now you have no prospects.

For one thing, you are going to have to relax and enjoy each day as it comes along. For another, you are going to have to get out into circulation and take part in at least two activities involving both men and women. But don't set up a whole list of impossible attributes you require in a man. He may not be the six-footer and have a beard. Keep an open mind and look for the personal qualities which will harmonize with yours.

Above all, stop feeling sorry for yourself.

(Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Advertising Supports Cliches About Women

TORONTO (CP) — Rena Bartos wants advertisers to stop lapping along the working woman and to drop their well-worn clichés.

As vice-president of J. Walter Thompson, International, of New York, the largest advertising agency in the world, she cause have to tell executives of two big firms doing just that.

The two companies are the biggest advertisers to women but still use most of the stereotypes.

"How many women do you know who hang breathless till their husbands give the definitive nod on their new brand of instant coffee, margarine or panty hose? Or engage in joyous debates about whose wash is whiter or whose drain is less clogged?" she asked:

She noted that 40 per cent of all women work outside the home, but you'd never know it from looking at the ads.

Women are being wives and more involved in household chores of shopping and cooking and probably help decide what brand of coffee or detergent to buy, Mrs. Bartos added.

Advertisers were aware of these criticisms but had not changed because they were locked into outdated methods of market research.

Versatile Pork

Pork is one of the most valuable meats for warm weather because it's so useful for both barbecuing and serving on a cold buffet.

If you'd like more pork recipes, write the Pork Institute, P.O. Box 80, Mississauga, Ont.

Honey and Lemon Ribs

3-4 lb side spareribs
½ cup vegetable oil six tbsp. liquid honey
two tsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
Dash Tabasco sauce

Place spareribs on rack in roasting pan and bake in moderate oven (350) degrees F) for 45 minutes. Turn spareribs over halfway through baking time.

Meanwhile combine oil, honey, lemon juice, garlic salt, mustard and Tabasco; mix well.

Cook 5-10 minutes on each side, basting frequently with the lemon and honey mixture. Serves four.

Glazed Ham With Rhubarb Mint Sauce

4-5 pound boneless dinner ham one cup brown sugar
one tsp. crushed dried mint leaves one pound rhubarb, cut into 1 inch pieces ½ cup sugar
pinch of salt
½ teaspoon crushed mint leaves

Place the ham on a rack in a shallow pan. Heat at 325 degrees F. to an internal temperature of 130 degrees F. — about 1½ hours. Ham may be cut in half horizontally to form 2 half rounds, if desired. If this is done, heat about ½ hour total time. Combine the brown sugar and mint leaves. During the last 25 minutes heating time, sprinkle brown sugar mixture over the top surface of the ham. Return to oven and continue to heat until glazed.

Sauce

Place rhubarb and 2 tablespoons water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil stirring constantly. Add sugar, salt and mint leaves. Heat two to three minutes longer. Serve with ham.

Southern Ham Steak

Use four ¾-inch streaks cut from a boneless ready-to-serve ham. Remove casing and slash fat, if present. Brush with Pineapple Sauce while barbecuing (15-20 minutes) turning often.

Pineapple sauce

½ cup pineapple juice
¼ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
¼ cup liquid honey
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Pinch of ground cloves

Pineapple Barbecued Ham

¼ cup table molasses
¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup vinegar
2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce one cup tomato sauce
one tbsp. chopped onion
two tsp. celery seed
one 5-6 pound ready-to-serve Bone-In Ham

Blend molasses and mustard together. Stir in remaining sauce ingredients.

Balance ham on spit. Place drip pan under meat to catch drippings. Barbecue ham for 15-20 minutes per pound or until meat thermometer registers 130 degrees F. Baste with sauce during last half hour.

Baked Pork Chops And Apples

two tablespoons butter or margarine six pork chops
½ cup chopped fresh onion
½ teaspoon dried leaf rosemary
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup water
three apples, cored and sliced crosswise

In a large skillet melt butter. Add pork chops, 3 at a time, and brown well on both sides. Remove chops from skillet. Add onion, rosemary, salt and pepper. Cook five minutes, until onion is tender. Stir in water. Arrange pork chops and apples slices in a shallow baking dish. Add onion mixture Cover and bake in a 350 F. oven one hour, until pork chops are tender. Serves six.

Bavarian Meat Loaf

two lbs. ground lean pork (about 4 cups)
18 ginger crisp cookies (1¼ cups crushed)
¾ cup dairy sour cream
one egg beaten
½ teaspoon lemon-pepper
½ teaspoon salt eight whole cloves
three bay leaves

Crush cookies between 2 sheets waxed paper with a rolling pin or crush in blender. Combine meat with crumbs. Mix sour cream, egg and seasonings. Pour over meat mixture and mix thoroughly. Transfer to large 9 x 5 x 3-inch pan (bread pan size) Pack well mixture will come to within 1 inch of top of pan. Stack whole cloves and bay leaves into top of meat loaf.

Bake in a moderate oven of 350 about one hour or until center is cooked when tried with a cake tester. Remove cloves and bay leave before serving. Serves six.

Sausage in Beer

12 oz. beer
six whole cloves
one bay leaf
4 peppercorns

Place sausage in cold skillet. Cook over low heat 12 to 15 minutes or until browned. Pour off fat. Add beer, cloves, bay leaf, and peppercorns. Bring to boiling point cover and simmer 20 to 30 minutes. Serves six.

Honey and Lemon Ribs

People and Events

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

Tuesday, May 27, the women entertained the Anglican Church Women of Hastings Deanery. The guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. George Elson of Bancroft, who spoke about the Wycliffe Bible Translations and showed slides of New Guinea. A collection was taken to be sent for further work of the translators.

SHANNONVILLE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

A decision was made to extend the Shannonville World's Fair to include Sunday. The dates are now September 6 and 7.

The events for the fair include a parade and community draws on Saturday; to a horse team drawing contest and a softball game on Sunday. Concession will run on both days.

Entry forms are available from any society member. The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. June 23, at the Melrose Hall.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Welch, Belleville, wish to announce the marriage of their second eldest daughter Sharon Diane to Robert Charles Sills, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sills, Belleville. The wedding will take place Saturday, June 21, at 4 p.m. in Christ Church, Belleville.

Social Notes

Raycroft — Naylor

The May 3 wedding of Gail Lorraine Naylor and Robert Michael Raycroft took place in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church in a service conducted by Rev. J. C. MacFarlane.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Naylor and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Raycroft.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown made by her mother, of white satin covered with tiers upon tiers of chantilly lace with a scalloped neckline, and long sleeves. Her four-tier veil was caught by a crown of chantilly lace, and she carried a cascade of red roses and fern.

Karen Hurst, Noreen Eimers and Tammy Cox were bridesmaids in peach organza dresses similar to the maid of honor's. Pamela and Judy Hurst were flower girls in peach organza dresses featuring empire waistlines and puffy sleeves. They carried the same type of flowers as the other attendants.

Ronald Beslow was the best man and the ushers were the groom's brothers, David, Joseph, Patrick and Dennis Raycroft.

After a formal dinner and dance at the Quinte Hotel, the newly married couple left for two weeks in Florida. They live now at 340 Lingham Street.

'Canada Today' Best Magazine

WASHINGTON (CP) — "The best magazine bargain in town" is all about Canada, but few Canadians ever see it.

The subject of this generous accolade is Canada Today—D'Aujourd'hui published monthly—except for July and August—by the Canadian Embassy.

Its announced purpose is to inform Americans about Canada in an entertaining manner without editorializing and with only the softest of sell.

The compliment, on the occasion of Canada Today's fifth birthday, was paid this spring to "our small but elegant neighbor" by Washington Magazine, itself a large but elegant publication.

Canada Today is mailed without charge to 44,000 subscribers and distributed through 15 consular posts throughout the United States.

It is not available outside the U.S.

As the Washingtonian points out, it is small—seven by 10 inches and linking itself to an average of about 16 pages an issue. And it is as elegant as anything available on the newsstands.

Pictures are reproduced in piercing color. Articles are generally concise. Makeup is ever-changing and imaginative. And the whole package is printed on the finest stock.

The managing editor is Keith Percy, 39-year-old first secretary in the embassy's information division, who has been at the helm for two years.

"We maintain and guard jealously our editorial autonomy," Percy says. "There is no question of sending matter to Ottawa for prior approval."

It's a policy that has kept the magazine from "slipping into the status of a blatant propaganda organ. But it's a policy that has caused headaches.

The January, 1973, issue was a case in point. That issue was given over to a history of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on the force's 100th anniversary.

Chronicling not only the triumphs but the problems of the RCMP over the years, it drew sharp criticism from the commissioner, Ambassador Marcel Cadieux, diplomatically but firmly, backed the magazine.

Last May, Canada Today devoted the issue to a review of Canadian books and included a selection on Canadian painting from Krieghoff to David Blackwood. This issue was so successful that Percy is considering making it an annual presentation.

Another issue was an encapsulated history of Canada aimed at Ann-teens; preparing to mark their bicentennial. Yet another was devoted to Canadian architecture from coast to coast.

Immigration, French Canada, mining, hockey, whaling, all have come in for feature treatment.

There's a free-swinging informality to the writing, most of which is done by free-lance editor Tom Kelly, an American.

"We try not to take ourselves too seriously," Percy says. "We feel this is necessary if we're to maintain our credibility."

An American as writer-editor of a magazine on Canada? Certainly, Percy argues. "As an American, Kelly is sensitive to the question of what it is Americans don't know about Canada."

You won't find long, dull profiles of Canadian politicians in Canada Today—it's not that kind of publication. Articles with an international theme put across the Canadian viewpoint, it contends.

The magazine, which carries no advertising, operated last year on a budget of $175,000, up from 100,000 the year before.

And despite its bilingual title, it is not a bilingual publication.

"We publish in English because English is the official language of the people we're publishing to reach," Percy says.

To judge from the response, the issues of November and December, 1974, were the most popular in the publication's five-year history.

The embassy received requests for "in excess of 2,000" extra copies of the November issue on French Canada.

The greatest number of single letters for extra copies was prompted by the December issue, a 1975 calendar with date-by-date capsule comments on milestones in Canadian history.

Three-man Team Tosses Those Pies

Photographer?

Well, anyone laying out $25 to have someone hit in the face with a pie is entitled to a souvenir.

Pie Surprise, whose employees wear black shirts with a pie emblazoned on them, once nailed a well known radio disc jockey right in his broadcasting booth.

Rent A Pie offers a customer his money back if it fails to decorate his victim within a week.

Gord Robertson, proprietor of Rent A Pie, offers a choice of flavors with cream topping. Lemon is the most popular but a few sadistic clients opt for blueberry. Pie Surprise sticks to pure whipped cream.

Both companies prefer to make house calls when lining up their contracts rather than expose their office locations to unfriendly visits by former victims.

Preparations are meticulous. The customer is asked for a photograph of the target and detailed information including age, home address, place of work, travel patterns and disposition.

Not every contract is accepted. Robert Coyle of Pie Surprise turned down a client who wanted a pie hurled at a big, mean, fast football player.

He also avoids assignments on upper floors of apartment buildings or office towers to protect his employees from being cornered by a victim while waiting for the elevator. Rent A Pie is willing to take the risk, but at a higher fee.

Winter, driving conditions are another hazard. "I wouldn't ever want to get stuck in the snow with an angry victim running after me," Mr. Coyle explained.

If conditions are favorable, the pie-throwers choose a site and check it for dogs, gates, nearby neighbors. At the appointed time, the hit man appears bearing a pie in a flat box with a hole in the bottom. When the victim appears, he removes the lid and flips the pie in one swift, easy motion.

Rent A Pie, operating part-time, disposes of about 10 pies a week. Pie Surprise, working full-time, delivers about five a day.

Both companies take pride in their professionalism, but Mr. Robertson admits to one exception.

"I threw one for my girlfriend at her old schoolteacher," he said. "That one was on the house."

'Whose' Pool Is This?

South Africans Resist Lure of Coming TV

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South Africans are showing an embarrassing resistance to being turned into a nation of television watchers.

Embarrassing that is, for the country's home-grown television industry and for the government which has carefully planned every step of its belated debut.

At the moment, South Africa is the only developed country in the world without television. Until 1971, the government opposed it as a threat to public morals and a waste of money.

Now, seven months away from what is supposed to be the great TV switch-on, the television industry is in a state approaching panic.

Shops and warehouses are choked with unsold television sets. One estimate is that only about 4,000 sets have been sold and that earlier estimates of 400,000 sales by next January are wishful thinking.

The main reason is cost. Most of the sets are large, color models. The 23½-inch screen version retails at between 1,320 and 1,400.

Television rentals are also relatively higher here.

The high price of TV sets can be traced to the government's protective policy.

Fearful of spending it decided to totally to shut out foreign exporters by setting up a national television limited to local manufacturers. These were given preferential tariffs, while imports were limited and subject to hefty duty.

Starting a TV manufacturing industry from scratch is costly. Coupled with the government's decision to allow retailers a 50-percent markup it has resulted in what many people regard as prohibitive prices.

As the Johannesburg Sunday Express put it recently: "Have we waited so long for it in the face of a ridiculous government ban, it is hard for South Africans to swallow that they now are going to get the most expensive television sets in the world . . . on which to watch the shortest TV service in the world."

Initial program time initially to four hours a night, two hours in English and two hours in Afrikaans, with the languages taking it in turn for "first go" on alternate nights.

Thus far, there are only tentative plans for services in the African languages. But with sets at current prices there are not likely to be many African viewers.

Alfred Mabina, a postman from Johannesburg's Soweto African township won a color set in a crossword contest and became the first African TV owner.

Now all he needs is the money for the annual licence fee (about $35) and for gasoline to drive the generator.

Tarzan's Paradise Towers Over Lake

SKELETON LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Steve Rusnak didn't want to build an ordinary cabin.

"I wanted to do something else," he said as he proudly looked up at Tarzan's Paradise, a structure that towers above cabins along Skeleton Lake, 100 miles north of Edmonton.

It took 14 months to build and he did most of the work himself.

Tarzan's Paradise is 14 feet above the ground, has six sides and a roof that slopes in towards the centre. There are windows on all sides and a four-foot gallery surrounds the outside.

Mr. Rusnak shrugged. "I wanted to build something, so I built the treehouse." It's a treehouse, he said because it's up in the air.

His wife Mary had another idea: "It's a boy's dream climbing up trees."

The Rusnaks use Tarzan's Paradise in the summer and although the family is spread out across Alberta they often return.

There are no beds, but Mr. Rusnak has built two small bunkhouses beside it. His sons bring their campers.

Every year they hold what Mr. Rusnak calls a celebration in the treehouse and for the Rusnaks that means inviting all their friends, playing music and dancing until 4 a.m.

When Mr. Rusnak decided to go ahead with his venture, he bought an old railway station at Boyle, Alta., for $125 and dismantled it. He used the beams and most of the wood from the station.

His sons helped him erect the six beams and pour the cement. "From there on I took care of it myself," spending about $2,000.

Now that Tarzan's Paradise is up, Mr. Rusnak hasn't decided about building anything else.

"I'll think about it. Something that is difficult and different."

The program is designed for veterinarians who desire postgraduate training but who are interested in applying scientific knowledge and technology rather than teaching or doing research.

Lake Baykal, Siberia, Is Deepest in World

LISTVYANKA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Here in Siberia lies the world's deepest lake at 5,700 feet. It stretches in a gentle arc for 381 miles and holds the world's largest reservoir of fresh water, a fifth of the global supply.

It is Lake Baykal, which Siberians call "our sacred sea," and not long ago it became a centre of controversy.

Wins Third Award

HALIFAX (CP) — The Teacher, a semi-monthly tabloid publication of the Nova Scotia Teachers Union, has received an award from the Educational Press Association of America international for excellence in educational journalism. The award was for a special one-theme issue published last fall on a campaign by provincial teacher for negotiating legislation.

Aside from containing some 1,200 species of animal and plant life found nowhere else, Lake Baykal holds a unique place in the battle for preserving the environment in the Soviet Union.

Industrialization and production have always been a bone of Communist party planners and in the early 1960s they had their eye on Lake Baykal, fed by 336 rivers and streams.

Plans were announced for a series of pulp mills that would produce needed paper and other cellulose products. They would also foul the purity of the lake with tons of sulphurous wastes.

In an unprecedented outpouring of protest in a society where such decisions are normally the sole business of Communist officials and planners, thousands of writers, poets, scientists and ordinary people denounced the plans that might ruin the "Pearl of Siberia."

The government dropped plans for several plants and the one commissioned on the Selenga River at the lake's southern shore was required to install pollution control devices.

The Lake Baykal issue marked the awakening of wide segments of the Soviet public to the matter of environmental protection.

A group of foreign correspondents on a trip through eastern Siberia found public officials quick to give assurances that protection of the environment was in the forefront of their calculations.

But the plumes of smoke rising over Irkutsk, extensive logging along the Angara and open-pit mining operations and gold dredging near Aldan indicated that, as in Western countries, the battle for the environment will be a long struggle.

Israel Is Battling Strange Tree Disease

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Israel is about to embark upon biological warfare against a killer that is ruining one of the country's historical and tourist landmarks.

The enemy is a mysterious disease which is rapidly turning pine-covered slopes near Jerusalem into a dying forest.

The tall trees affected are in the Sha'ar Hagai forest, which lines one of the most picturesque" stretches of the road from the coast to Jerusalem.

The forest forms a natural backdrop to the steep, twisting road which was the embattled supply route to Jerusalem after Israeli forces broke through the Arab siege of the city in the Palestinian war of 1947-48.

Sections of old armored cars stand at the roadside as monuments to those who died in the fierce fighting.

The pines started turning a ghostly white about four years ago. In recent months the disease has attacked hundreds of trees, disfiguring the landscape.

With the phenomenon beginning to cross the Jerusalem city limits and endangering an estimated 40 per cent of the country's woodlands, the experts were getting desperate.

The sickness attacks only the Jerusalem pine, which dies in a highly unusual manner—not from the top down but from the roots upwards.

Local and foreign experts had suggested a number of possible causes, including tree disease, soil deficiencies or air pollution. But a visiting American scientist is thought to have the real answer.

Prof. Hugh Wilcox of the State University of New York at Syracuse believes the problem is caused by a microscopic insect called the matsucoccus, which may be injecting a toxic solution into the trees.

He saw that the tiny insects, invisible to the naked eye, were killing new buds as they began to sprout. He also spotted a black fungus at the base of the pine needles.

After seeing the results of the professor's investigations, Dr. Rene Kenchon, director of the government's forestry research institute, said it was 95 per cent certain the visitor had hit on the cause of the disease.

Although the matsucoccus has been known to kill young pine trees before, some of its new victims are up to half a century old. Prof. Abraham Fahn of the Hebrew University said a mass attack of the insect might be involved.

Officials of the Jewish National Fund, which maintains the forest, said the best way of controlling the matsucoccus would be to import a natural enemy of the insect to try to wipe it out.

Spraying of the forests, they said, would upset the natural balance and possibly enable another dominant insect to move in.

More Nuisance Calls

HALIFAX (CP) — Nuisance calls, ranging from mock conversations to bomb threats, have increased 60 per cent in the first four months of 1975 from the corresponding period last year, says a Halifax spokesman for Maritime Telephone and Telegraph. Eight of the 175 complaints received resulted in court convictions.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge" doesn't make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors—and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. One of 32 articles and features in the June Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

Ottawa Due to Make Next Petroleum Move

OTTAWA (CP)— The federal government probably will decide sometime this week its next step in negotiations with the provinces over higher petroleum prices.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday that individual meetings with the provinces in the last month made little progress towards a compromise on price increases.

The one-on-one talks, mostly with senior government officials, were scheduled after a formal meeting in April of Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 premiers failed to settle the issue.

Two provinces—Ontario and Nova Scotia—said they will not accept any price increase during a time of high unemployment and growing inflation.

"The reading we get is that the provinces haven't changed their positions much since the first ministers' meeting," Mr. Macdonald said.

"I'm not sure at this point exactly where we will take the negotiations."

He said he planned to discuss the matter sometime this week with Prime Minister Trudeau, who suggested the individual meetings with provinces at the breakup of the first ministers' conference.

Agreement on the current frozen domestic oil price of $6.50 a barrel was reached over lunch with the premiers at the prime minister's residence last March following the failure of a formal conference.

"The least likely option is another full-scale, formal meeting," said Macdonald in an interview.

Asked if he still hoped for a negotiated settlement in the face of the continuing Ontario and Nova Scotia opposition, Mr. Macdonald replied: "We're still working on it."

But he turned aside questions of whether Ottawa would unilaterally set a higher price if no agreement is reached, using the power proposed in the petroleum administration bill.

"The possibility is there, but it's hypothetical at this point."

The bill, giving Ottawa the power to set interprovincial oil and natural gas prices, needed only Commons ratification of minor amendments made by the Senate before it can be signed into law.

Although Mr. Macdonald declines to say how much of an increase he wants, the figure most often used by federal government officials is $2 a barrel—or about four cents a gallon on the price of gasoline or home-heating fuel.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Liberals Threaten Tory Oil Blockade

OTTAWA (CP) — Angry Liberals threatened Tuesday to end a Progressive Conservative blockade of legislation setting up a national oil company by moving to set limits on debate in a Commons committee.

After sitting through his 30th committee meeting on the bill with still no end in sight, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the Opposition has "an obligation to be more responsible."

Committee chairman Denis Ethier said Tuesday he felt the committee could set the length of time a member could question the minister, but could not restrict the number of questions.

The Conservatives say they object to the wide powers granted the proposed company under their bill.

Harvie Andre (PC—Calgary Centre) said he wants elimination of a clause requiring the Crown company to obey all the written requests of the minister, saying it opens the way for decisions on "a political rather than business basis."

The Conservatives also want references to refining and marketing of oil removed from a clause listing the objective of the corporation.

Mr. Macdonald said the changes being suggested would emasculate the bill and that ministerial discretion may be needed to develop products in the national interest.

Nixon Wonders about Picnic Wine

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should liberalize its liquor laws but curb advertising of alcoholic beverages, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday.

Speaking in the legislature during debate on second reading of a government bill to amend the Liquor Control Act, Mr. Nixon said he cannot see why it should continue to be illegal to take a bottle of wine on a picnic.

Advertising of alcoholic beverages through, he said, must be reduced since it is "adding unnecessarily to the consumption of alcoholic beverages which, in turn, adds to the social costs that we all deplore."

The use of alcohol is far more injurious to society than the use of tobacco, he said.

"For that reason I feel very strongly that there has to be some leadership taken in the removal and the reduction of the advertising of alcoholic beverages."

Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, introduced his government's new liquor bill by saying liberalization was not of primary interest.

"There have been pressures brought to bear on the government since the introduction of the bill, and prior to it, to take a more liberal attitude toward availability of beverage alcohol," he said.

The government rejected a more liberal approach as inconsistent with more important social goals, he said.

"We find public health and safety more important than longer drinking hours, beer in supermarkets or consumption in public parks.

"Much as we may like to forget it from time to time, there is a direct relationship between freer drinking and the social problems of alcohol abuse."

He said it would be inconsistent for the government to concern itself with an increase in crime while at the same permitting greater access to alcohol.

"Many studies have pointed out the link between violence, crime and alcohol consumption. How could we actually try to improve highway safety while also relaxing controls on one of the most important contributors to highway deaths?"

The new act will make it legal for parents to serve alcoholic beverages to their children, regardless of their age, in their residence. It will also allow for transport of opened bottles of liquor in a place not readily accessible for consumption.

Only 1 in 6 Buckle

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial ministry of transportation and communications survey released Tuesday showed 16.4 per cent of 6,000 drivers interviewed were seat belts regularly.

The survey, released during a legislature estimates committee meeting, said the highest percentage of seat - belt wearers, 23.2 per cent, was those who drove on expressways.

It said those most likely to be wearing seat belts are persons driving late-model cars on long trips.

Queen's Park Briefs

Principals Essential

TORONTO (CP) — Principals and vice-principals have been denied the right to strike under new legislation because the government considered them essential to the operation of Ontario's schools, says Education Minister Thomas Wells.

Trains Lost Millions

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) lost $4 million last year in its passenger rail service, F. S. Clifford, ONTC general manager, said Tuesday.

Won't Set Truck Rates

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government should not set trucking freight rates, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Tuesday.

He told a legislature caucus studying his ministry's estimates that the setting of rates would eliminate competition within the industry.

But he could see the possible establishment of a tribunal to hear complaints by shippers or other interested parties about high rates, he said.

Homes 'Rat Traps'

TORONTO (CP) — Some provincial public housing projects are being constructed with deficiencies including "leaks in basements the size a rat could walk through," Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) told the legislature Tuesday.

Escaped Convict Nabbed

An escapee from Rideau Correctional Centre near Smiths Falls was arrested and charged with break and enter by city police midnight Tuesday, police chief Douglas Crosbie said today.

Charged is Robert Paul Jones, 20, of 71 Herchimer Ave.

Police were responding to a report of "noises" inside the Oddfellows Hall on Bay Dr.

Jones had escaped the correctional centre May 29 while serving a six-month sentence for break and enter, mischief to public property and theft, said Chief Crosbie.

He began his sentence April 24.

Chief Crosbie said Mr. Jones will be given a bail hearing today. If he is held, he will be kept in Quinte Detention Centre to await trial, the chief said.

Cyclist Injured

TRENTON — A Frankford man remained in stable condition in a motorcycle-car collision which resulted in $2,500 damage to the two vehicles, Tuesday.

Treated and released from Trenton Hospital was Brian Scott, 26, of RR 2 Frankford.

Police say that the Scott motorcycle was in collision with a vehicle driven by Jean Joseph Melancon, 18, of CFB Trenton. Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $1,000.

Songsters Pay Visit

Next Tuesday, Bridge St. United Church will present the Cambridge Heath Songster Brigade from London, England. The concert will begin at 8 p.m.

Since the choral group was formed in 1960, they have travelled extensively in the British Isles and have appeared on television there.

Under the present leadership of Victor Handscombe for the last 10 years, the brigade has maintained its original style.

Backed by a brass ensemble, the songsters' repertoire extends from the late Baroque Period (1600-1750) which is an expression of two cultures, Italian and German.

Students Undertake Labor History

Members of the Quinte District Labor Council have asked for assistance in compiling a concise history of Quinte area labor — a project undertaken by four university students.

Working on a $5,000 opportunities For Youth (OFY) grant, the four students explained to council members they will gather the information and then give it in rough form to the council for future publishing The OFY grant was applied for by the Quinte council.

Mr. Ken Everard, a spokesman for the students, said there is considerable difficulty in documenting Quinte labor history, thus, the need to interview anyone with personal recollection.

The group intends documenting the history back until about 1870 — "roughly when organized labor came into strength in the area," said Mr. Everard.

The project will run for 16 weeks, wrapping up around the end of August.

The finished material will deal with three major labor areas, manufacturing; transportation, communication and service industries and finally agriculture, mining and lumber.

Election Chatter Begins

New Democratic Party candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox Jan Nicol spoke at a meeting of the Quinte District Labor Council Tuesday. While a provincial election seems not far off, Miss Nicol says she is working full time organizing the riding and building NDP support.

NDP Candidate Says Win Would Be 'Twist of Events'

Provincial New Democratic Party candidate for the Prince Edward — Lennox riding Jan Nicol says "it would have to be a real twist of events" for a personal victory in the upcoming provincial contest.

Critical of the ruling Progressive Conservative party, the NDP candidate blasted incumbent James Taylor as "an embarrassment to even his own party".

She said Mr. Taylor believes "the myth perpetrated by the Tories . . . that workers either quit to go on unemployment insurance benefits or sit around thinking of reasons for going on strike.

"He really believes people (workers) are that way," said Miss Nicol.

Miss Nicol said the NDP in her riding have a campaign organization prepared while she tours the riding on a full time basis.

Labor council president Doug Sword presented Miss Nicol with a campaign donation and said, "I'd rather see you win on a labor ticket than Mr. Taylor win on his anti-labor ticket."

Study Under Way

Most educational systems are behind private industry in the area of professional development, says Dennis King, a former production manager and now an internal consultant with a large American manufacturing company.

The 36-year-old consulting expert is in Hastings County this week working with administrators of the Hastings and Prince Edward District.

Mr. King, who has never been a classroom teacher himself, has been invited to this county on several occasions to work with educators.

Educated as an engineer, Mr. King said today most good educational systems should be talking a close look at local industry. "Most manufacturers are way ahead of education systems in the area of professional development," he added.

Virtual fiefs the Hastings County Board of Education now is launching an 18-month study to determine the needs of local industry in the county. The study, being done through personnel interviews, is also attempting to gather opinions from industried on high school graduates and the education system in general.

Elderly and Youth Benefit From Assistance Project

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Youth and the elderly may be at separate ends of the life span.

But there are numerous in-between contact points.

The most current — and mutually beneficial — is a project in the Belleville area.

Because of the scheme, elderly folk in the district throughout the summer will reap the benefits of youthful helping hands and companionship.

"What we're trying to do is help old-age pensioners who can't help themselves and really can't pay anyone to do chores for them," explains Dan.

He heads a team of five young Bellevillians already at the disposal of the elderly.

They're willing to do anything — from mowing lawns, to errands, to organizing outings.

A second-year arts student at Carleton University, Dan conceived the project earlier this year and submitted it to the federal government for an Opportunities for Youth grant.

The proposal won $7,400 from OFY — and the team launched a project that will run through to the end of August.

The group — which also includes Jennifer Jaynes, 17, Rob Graham, 20, Gary McNamara, 21, and Jan Everard, 17 — got their first message across in a free advertisement on Radio Station CJBQ.

The response was immediate — if somewhat surprised.

"Most people are really appreciative of the work we've done so far," says Dan. "They can't believe it is something they don't have to pay for. They just can't get over the fact they get it free."

The project fills a social need, he believes.

"Even with the social help older people get, there's a need for aid with the everyday things of life — mowing lawns, changing storm windows. And there's no one to help them. It often costs too much."

Mary Bean readily agrees.

The 79-year-old Foxboro widow Tuesday was among recipients of the team's services as the young people did her spring household chores.

"I think it's absolutely wonderful," she said as the OFY group busied themselves around her three-bedroom bungalow. "I had been wondering just who I could get to do all this."

"For young people there are also benefits in such an undertaking, believes Dan. The contact with older folk brings wider communication and "just by talking to them you learn a lot.

More young people should be involved in such undertakings, he believes.

"These are people who helped their community in their time," he says. "This gives you a feeling that you're now helping them."

He hopes the group can expand its services — by taking pensioners on outings and picnics. What's needed is proper transportation and he's hoping somewhere for a donor of the right type of vehicle. Right now, all that's available are the group's automobiles.

In the meantime, the errands, domestic and gardening chores will continue.

Anybody needing Services for Pensioners, says Dan, should call 962-9600.

UCS Hopes to Expand Counselling Services

The United Community Services is looking to expand its family counselling service, it was learned at a board meeting of directors meeting.

The program has been given little publicity on the part of the board in recent years because of the voluntary nature of the service.

A spokesman for the counselling service said "two or three cases are being handled each week."

"We can handle crisis situations — deal with the cases as they come," the spokesman said.

The board Thursday voted to allocate $500 to the family counselling service to aid in costs of operation.

UCS director Gord Mullin said during an interview "we are trying to expand the program — though it is not likely it will ever get to the status of a United Way agency."

Mr. Mullin suggested that once the service is established it might be assumed by a government department.

Keegan Wants Stiffer Gun Control Laws

A Belleville city councillor wants tighter provincial gun controls following last week's Brampton shooting in which three died.

Ald. Arthur Keegan told city council Monday he wants it to show is concern for the "loose way" firearms are sold in Ontario.

He said the Ontario government must study what is becoming a "serious problem."

His protest came in a notice of motion that will come before council when it its next meeting three weeks from now.

He said council he will seek its support for a resolution requesting the provincial government to control the sale of guns and have all firearms registered.

Later, Ald. Keegan said his move was spurred by last week's fatal incidents at a Brampton high school.

But there also "has been so much vandalism in the use of guns," he added in a interview.

He said too many "irresponsible people" throughout Ontario could have access for firearems.

Sportsmen, he said, if they're interested in public protection should not object for having weapons registered.

Salvation Army Head Outlines Camp Use

Actually, the march was a ploy intended to give the service organization a refresher course on its part in the development of the fresh air camp at Roblin Lake in Ameliasburg, about 12 miles west of here.

Lt. Col. Harold Sharp, divisional commander, related that the camp was donated to Belleville Kiwanians in 1944 by a fellow member.

The club operated the camp for underprivileged children until 1948 and 1950 when it allowed the Army to use the facilities during the summers for the same purpose, he said.

In 1951, the club sold the camp to the Army for $10,000 although it was worth $20,000 Col. Sharp pointed out that the club made the other $10,500 an outright gift.

He explained the camp, which can accommodate close to 200 children, is also used as a conference centre and a weekend retreat for Army meetings.

Col. Sharp noted, "we are trying to develop a boating program" on the lake. He elaborated that the lake front is suitable for a concentrated swimming program due to rough underfoot-ing and a steep drop-off several feet out from shore.

However, swimming is carried out in a new pool which was installed in July, 1974, he said. One of the other improvement at the camp was the erection of bleachers at the baseball diamond.

Merchants Plan Petition For More Parking

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A majority of businessmen on Bridge St. are demanding the city provide more outdoor parking — a need inspired by the removal of parking spaces around the Court Place construction project.

In recent weeks, customers and merchants alike have been parking their cars along the blue and white retaining wall which surround the project.

Last Monday city council ordered no parking signs be placed along the wall drawing the ire of Bridge St. businessmen.

A petition signed by several businesses, demands the city either re-instate, south side parking by the retaining wall or allow parking between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. on the north side of the street.

Ordinarily, parking is not allowed between these times to allow additional lanes for rush hour traffic.

Petition originator Gord Graham said an interview is being sought with Mayor Bob Jeffrey before city council is presented with the document.

He added the parking ticket he received only yesterday before no parking signs were placed will be fought in court.

"I don't think they have a (legal) leg to stand on," he said during an interview.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said during an interview Wednesday, a number of problems were being caused by traffic parking along the retaining wall.

"Parking by the boards would create a congested, traffic situation," said the chief.

When asked about the feasibility of removing the two-hour rush hour parking restrictions, the chief said, "we'd have to take a look at the situation."

Centre Gets Zoning

Technicalities delaying approval of rezoning for the Belleville Tractmen's Quinte Sports Centre on Cannifton Road were cleared by city council this week.

The amendment to a rezoning bylaw passed sometime ago involved a more specific definition of commercial uses for the centre. It was requested by the housing ministry as a clarifying modification to Belleville's offical plan.

Camp Outlined

Lt.-Col. Harold Sharp, divisional commander for the Salvation Army in Belleville, provides the commentary for a slide show he presented to the Kiwanis Club of Belleville on Tuesday. The subject was the Army's fresh air camp at Roblin Lake in Ameliasburg which Belleville Kiwanians sold to the Army in 1951.

Victoria Cougars' Centre

Flyers Select Mel Bridgman

Montreal (CP) — Centre Mel Bridgman of Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League was the No. 1 selection in the annual draft of amateur players conducted by the 18 National Hockey League clubs yesterday.

Bridgman, who scored 66 goals and added 91 assists with the Cougars last season wound up with the Stanley Cup Flyers, after Washington Capitals ceded their initial pick to Philadelphia because of a prior deal.

Left winger Barry Dean of Medicine Hat Tigers of the WCHL was the second pick. Dean, with 40 goals and 75 assists last season, was selected by Kansas City Scouts.

Left winger Jim Dorey was the first seven selections all were from WCHL teams and in all, 11 of the initial 18 picked were from the Western league.

Philadelphia Deals For Caps' No. 1 Pick

Philadelphia (UPI) — Philadelphia Flyers traded centre Bill Clement, defenseman Don McLean and their No. 1 draft choice to Washington Capitals yesterday, for the rights to Washington's first choice in the National Hockey League draft, the No. 1 pick. The Stanley Cup champions chose Mel Bridgman who already had agreed to terms with the Flyers. Bridgman, a 6-foot, 185-pound centre from Victoria of the Western Canada Hockey League, had 66 goals and 91 assists for the Cougars last season.

Clement, who played four years with the Flyers, was their first round draft choice in 1970. Last year he had his best season with 21 goals, 16 assists and 37 points. He scored one goal during the Stanley Cup playoffs. He told reporters he was "stunned" by the trade.

McLean, the Flyers' first pick last season, played last year with Richmond of the American Hockey League. He had one goal in 58 games, eight assists and 186 penalty minutes.

Third choice went to Calgary Cowboys when they selected Ralph Klassen from Saskatoon Blades. Klassen scored 40 goals and added 75 assists.

Detroit Red Wings went back to Victoria Cougars for defenseman Rick Lapointe and Toronto Maple Leafs then selected Don Ashby from Calgary Cowboys. Ashby scored 20 goals in 58 games completed the run on WHCL players when they selected Greg Vaydik of Medicine Hat Tigers.

Defenceman Richard Mulhern of Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League was the first non-WHCL pick. Mulhern was chosen eighth by Atlanta Flames.

St. Louis Blues ceded their first-round pick to Montreal and the Canadiens went back to the WCHL for Robin Sadler of Edmonton Oil Kings. Rick Kehoe of Brandon Wheat Kings was then picked by Vancouver Canucks.

In a departure from proceedings to that point, the New York NHL entrant went to the rival World Hockey Association for their initial picks.

The Islanders selected defenceman Pat Price, who played formerd with Vancouver Blazers of the WHA last season before the team moved to Jacksonville. The Rangers, who had already announced that 20-year-old forward Wayne Dillon will join their club in 1976, made as their first pick drafted him from the WHA Toronto Toros.

Pittsburgh Penguins took their first goaltender, Greg Laxton from Men Westminster Bruins.

Boston Bruins then took Doug Halward from Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Los Angeles Kings ceded their choice to Montreal when the Canadiens selected Pierre Mondou from Montreal Juniors of the QMJHL. Montreal then reciprocated by turning their pick over to the Kings. Los Angeles selected Tim Young from Ottawa Gk.

Robert Sauve from Laval Nationals of the WMJHL was the second goalie picked in the first round and he wound up with Buffalo Sabres.

In the final pick, Philadelphia gave its pick to Washington and the Capitals took Alex Forsyth from Kingston Canadians.

The NHL, which has dipped more and more into college ranks for talent in the last three or four years, did so again yesterday.

Minnesota ceded its second-round choice to Montreal and the Canadiens selected defenceman Brian Engblom from the University of Wisconsin. Pittsburgh followed and chose Russ Anderson from the University of Minnesota.

Goalender Ed Staniowski of Regina Pats, selected the outstanding junior player in Canada last season, went in the second round, selected by St. Louis.

In the fourth round, Buffalo general manager Punch Imlach took what could be term as a calculated risk when he selected talented defenceman Greg Neeld from Calgary Centennials.

Neeld lost his left eye in December, 1973, while playing with Toronto Marlboros of the OHA. But last year, with a protective covering for his good eye, he scored 20 goals and added 37 assists in 63 games with the Centennials in the rough WCHL.

Neeld, president Clarence Campbell said earlier that Neeld was eligible for the draft, "but it wouldn't do any good because it would depend on the league's physical examination — the vision test."

But threatened by a law suit on behalf of Neeld, the NHL has agreed to allow him to present a comprehensive brief to the league's rules committee June 18.

Toros, Nordiques Announce Choices

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Hockey Association completed its draft of amateur players Tuesday, but league officials would not disclose the names of players selected.

The league, which conducted the first three rounds of its draft May 22, billed the 12-round draft as secret, the identities of players picked May 31 became available the same day.

However, names of Tuesday's selections were available only on a piecemeal basis. A league spokesman in Newport Beach, Calif., said a draft list had been prepared, but she did not have the authority to release it.

The Nordiques had drafted centre Pierre Lacroix of Montreal and centre Pierre-Yves Girouxe of Hull in the earlier session, along with defenceman Doug Halward of Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

In the first three rounds, Toronto picked defenceman Rick Lapointe of Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey Club, both Western Canada Hockey Clubs, and defenceman Paul Heaver of Oshawa Generals of the OHA.

Islanders Corral Pat Price

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — New York Islanders said yesterday that newly drafted Pat Price is "optimistic" about joining the National Hockey League club and that only final arrangements with his agent need be worked out for the signing.

Price was drafted No. 11 in the first round yesterday and would join former Saskatoon Blades teammate Dave Lewis, a defenceman, and centre Bob Bourne on the Islanders.

"We do not expect to have to match the million dollar, ten-year contract he had signed with Vancouver of the World Hockey Association," an Islander spokesman said. "We do hope, however, to sign him to a long term contract."

Bourne apparently released Price from thei agreement when it became apparent he wanted to get out of the contract. He said disappointed in his rookie season with the WHA club, in 1974-75.

BEARS SIGN NO 1

CHICAGO (SP) — Chicago Bears announced the signing of Walter Payton, Jackson State running back and the Bears' No. 1 pick in NFL draft, Tuesday, in Lake Forest, Ill.

Terms of the contract signed by Payton's contract, Payton also was reported to have negotiated in the rookie season with the WHA club, in 1974-75.

Lariviere Completes The Deal

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — In completion of the deal that sent goaltender Gerry Desjardins to Buffalo, the New York Island ers have acquired the National Hockey League rights to Gary Lariviere, an all-star defenceman in the Central League, plus an undisclosed future draft choice.

Lariviere, 21, was the Sabres' fifth round amateur draft last summer but elected to sign his first pro contract with Phoenix of the World Hockey Association and was farmed out to Tulsa.

He ate from 180 pounds defenceman posted 15 goals and added 38 assists in 76 games at Tulsa while compiling 138 penalty minutes. He was named to the first all-star team in a poll taken by the CHL coaches.

McDonald's Finally Get Hits Together — Earn First OFL Victory

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

TORONTO — Belleville McDonald's took on the bot Toronto Wazman-Globals in Ontario Football League action Tuesday night and came out with their first victory, a 4-0 win by Bob Ethier.

"That's probably the worst game I've ever pitched in my life," said the big left-hander, "anyway, it's the worst start I've ever gotten off to in my life."

Ethier had runners on in every inning except the seventh and faced a bases loaded situation in the first. The hurler, in his fourth OFL start, came out of every inning smelling like roses thanks to some tough defensive ball by his teammates and a few breaks, something the Macs haven't had all season.

In the nightcap, the McDonald's dropped a 1-0 decision. Scott Reid took the loss.

"We should have won that one," said GM Doug Adams, "Scott pitched a terrific game."

The only mistake Reid made over seven innings was in the second inning. That's when John Barbowski cranked a solo shot over the left field fence.

"It was as upshot," said Reid, "only problem was it just hung."

"We played our best defensive game of the season in that second game," said about stop Paul Goodfellow, "but our hitting was terrible."

The locals turned in an errorless effort, but only touched Toronto pitcher John Young for two hits.

"Oh well," said Reid, "everybody was too excited about winning their first game to do anything in the second."

The Globals were hot off a pair of weekend victories over Kitchener when they took on Belleville. Prior to this weekend the Toronto squad was in the same position as the Macs — just missing wins.

The locals never left Belleville until 5.30 p.m. the bus was a half-hour late getting down from Peterborough) and they never got to the ball park until 7:15 p.m. — 15 minutes before game time.

They changed into their uniforms on the bus on the way up and took to the field with very little warmup and no batting practice.

Still, they collected seven hits, putting three together in the third and two in the sixth to account for their runs.

"That's why we won," said coach Harold Reid, "we got a lucky and bounce or a change. Up in Woodstock we outhit them 7-1 in one game and lost 3-1. We put the hits back-to-back here and came out with a 4-0 win."

Larry Mavety collected a pair of RBI's in the third inning. He cranked a triple off the right field fence after Steve Ling and Pete Martrias had singled, Ling's safety was his first of two.

In the sixth, Dale Duvall, playing his strongest game this season, pounded a home run down the left field line with Terry Merpher on base. Meagher had also gotten on with a single.

Ling, who had three potents in right field, dug the Macs out of a hole in the second inning. Two runners on one out and third and one out, the stalky fielder pulled in a line shot and threw the third base runner out at home plate for a double play.

Jim Clement got the seventh McDonald hit.

Ethier scattered four Toronto singles over the course of the game. He fanned six and walked four. Global ace, Doug Martin took the loss striking out three and walking a pair.

Harrison and Frank Robinson did all the McDonald hitting in the second game. Both touches were singles.

Brian Haynes had a double and a single, Young a double and Gary Battaglia a single for Toronto.

Young fanned eight and walked one. Reid, struck out five and walked two.

Paul Goodfellow made the play of the game when, in the second inning and a man on second, he pulled a shoestring line-shot out of the dirt and backhanded it while lying on the ground, threw the runner out.

The Macs will be looking for number two, three and four this weekend. Saturday, St. Catharines is in town for a doubleheader and Sunday, Burlington is at Alemite Park for a single contest.

Perseverance Pays For Mead Johnson

After tying the first game of the season, Mead Johnson went five straight on the other end of the scores in the Belleville Industrial Softball League (BISL).

Tuesday night, they finally broke out and found what the top half of the score looked like when they dumped Brooke Bond 7-3.

In the other BISL contest Tuesday, Canadian Tire scored three runs in the first, fourth and fifth innings to down the Lenders 9-6.

Fred Davis earned Mead's win with relief help from Sonny Holoway. The pair combined to fan nine while yielding five and giving up six hits.

Ross Geen was the loser. He and Tom St. Jules gave up 11 hits and walked three. They struck out four.

Dave Dolan cranked three singles for the winners, Gary Generaux got two, and Rod Brown had a double and a single.

Don Goodfellow singled twice for the losers.

The Lenders outhit the Tiremen 14-12, but couldn't put them together to score enough runs to pull out the win.

Andy Prudden pitched the victory, walking one and striking out three. Ed Dawson took the loss.

Tim Boisvert cranked a home run and added a pair of singles to top the CTC attack. Wayne Trice added a four-bagger, Al Moorcroft had a triple, and a double, Ron Prest a triple, Alex Belch a double and Jim Parks punched out two singles.

Randy Bristol had a double and a single and Jim Kincaid doubled to lead the Lenders hits. Their other 11 hits were all singles.

Completing Double Play

Belleville McDonald's catcher, Larry Mavety, blocks home plate and puts the tag on Toronto Global Rick Alston in the second inning of the first game at Belleville McDonald's Tuesday night. Steve Ling threw Alston out from right field after catching a line shot. Alston singled up on third and booted for home, but Ling's throw was right on the money and the Macs came up with a double play to retire the side. The McDonald's went on to win the Ontario Fastball League game 4-0.

Hill Blanks Rorabeck

Rosebush and Holoway Devolin One-two Punch

Rick Rosebush's seventh inning single, his fourth of the night, gave Devolin Motors a 1-0 victory over Trenton Augr-ers Men's Wear in Quinte Fastball action Tuesday night.

In the first game of the twinbill Howard and Robert Printing scored a 2-0 win over Rorabeck Real Estate. It was the third consecutive shutout, and the fourth in five games for the Printers.

In the Auger-Devolin contest, Don Holoway of Devolin and Chris Long of Auger's were th a scoreless battle heading into the last of the seventh.

With one out, Carl Boomhower singled and advanced on a sacrifice. Rosebush then singled to score Boomhower who was on the move.

Winning pitcher Don Holoway scattered three Auger hits. He fanned 11 batters. Chris Long pitching his first game with Trenton gave up eight hits and struck out three.

In the other match, Ron Hill was on the mound for H and R for the shutout victory, as he allowed Rorabeck only two hits, both singles, by Pete Pettingill and Gary Kleinsteuber.

Losing pitcher Mark Sheridan did his job, holding the winners to only three hits in the closely played contest.

The Printers scored the runs they needed in their first at bat. A walk to Ken Generoux started things off, and he was sacrificed to second base by Rick Graham. Dwight Rathwell followed with a single scoring one run, and later an error scored Rathwell.

The Printers are still the only team in the Quinte league who have yet to lose a ball game. They have five victories to their credit. Rorabeck is still winless.

It's A Rude Welcome For Lakeside Team

Lakeside Oxygen, after several delays, finally got started Tuesday night in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League. Now they probably wish they hadn't.

Belleville Broadloom scored nine runs in the fourth inning and five in fifth to break an otherwise close game up and trounce the new Lakeside entry 17-1.

Norma McQuarrie took the loss. She gave up 18 hits and walked seven. Sue Fobert struckout seven and fired a one-hitter for the Broadloomers, but walked nine to give Lakeside their run.

The score was only 2-1 going into the top of the fourth, but the winners got their bats rolling and never looked back.

Norma Fuller led the onslaught with a pair of triples and a single. Fobert had a double and two singles, Chris Smith had a double and a single, and Mary Anne Sills had three singles.

Adams in Top Form

Garney Adams was up to his old tricks in the South Hastings Baseball League Tuesday night. The deceiving right-hander fired third strikes past 11 batters, walked none and gave up only two hits as Plane's Concrete blanked Deseronto 4-0. The win gives the Cannifton team sole possession of first place in the league standings with seven points.

Deseronto went through four pitchers who combined for four strikeouts, seven walks and allowed six Plane's hits.

Steve Moore and Jim Robb had two singles each for the winners and Ralph Plane added a double.

Dave Metcalf was the only batter to touch Adams. He had a triple and a double.

'Hit' Group Uses Pies

SAN ANSELMO, Calif. (AP) — While there are supposedly four other groups in the United States who will score a "hit" for a fee by throwing pies, four girls who refuse to be identified, say they are independents. The standard price for a "hit" is $15, but they claim that's not high. A group in Florida charges as much as $50 to $1-000 to do the job. "Our motto," the girls said, "No person stands so tallthat he cannot be put down by a pie."

Mixed Up Young Man Finds Himself in Time

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At times Tuesday night, Ron Reed almost forgot which team he was pitching for.

Reed, traded last week to St. Louis Cardinals by Atlanta Braves, admittedly almost walked into the dugout at the beginning of the game through sheer force of habit.

But he got straightened out and so did the Cardinals, who beat the Braves 4-2 in a National League baseball game.

"A couple of times after the third inning I started toward the Atlanta dugout. Then I said, 'Wait a minute. You're wearing the white uniform tonight.'

"I was a little mad for a while when the Braves traded me and then I said, 'Hey, I'm going to the Cardinals. I've never heard anything bad about the Cardinals.'

In other National League games Tuesday, Chicago Cubs shipped San Francisco Giants 6-5; Philadelphia Phillies trimmed San Diego Padres 15-1; Cincinnati Reds tripped Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4; Los Angeles Dodgers edged Montreal Expos 6-5, and New York Mets shaded Houston Astros 4-3.

Last Of The Vikings

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears announced Tuesday the acquisition on waivers of tackle Grady Alderman, last of the original Minnesota Vikings, departing that team. Alderman, 6-foot-2 and 247 pounds, has missed only six National Football League games in his 15-year pro career that includes three Super Bowl appearances and six in the Pro Bowl.

Squires' Three Goals Spark Bolts to Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bolts preserved their North-poles National Lacrosse League standing Tuesday night, turning back Detroit Wings of Long Island Tomahawks 11-11.

In other action, Maryland Arrows moved into sole possession of first place with a 23-12 decision over Philadelphia Wings before about 5,000 fans at Landover, Md.

The Bolts took their seventh win against nine losses and a tie. Long Island is now three points ahead of the surging Tomahawks. Brian Thompson scored two goals to back up Squire's output, while Charlie Henderson and Doug Hayes fired two goals each for Long Island.

League leading scorer Brian Tasker scored four goals for the Arrows in a game that was delayed 23 minutes in the second period after a bench-clearing brawl. Ken Henderson, who scored three times for Maryland, knocked out Bob Shaw of the Wings with a cross check to precipitate the altercation. The crowd became involved, tossing debris at Wings players.

Bill Cogill and Brian Campbell stars scored a pair of goals apiece for the Arrows, while Larry Lloyd tallied twice for Philadelphia. In the only game tonight, the Arrows invade Montreal to try to increase their two-point edge over the second-place Quebecois.

Oilers Sign Four

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association announced Tuesday the signing of four players to two year contracts.

Defencemen Ted McAneesley and Kerry Ketler, centre Bob McAneesley and left winger Allie Sutherland were described by general manager Bill Hunter as having the "youth, talent and aggressiveness" the Oilers are looking for.

The McAneesleys, 24-year-old twin brothers from Cranbrook, B.C., played for Salt Lake City in the Central League last season. Both played their junior hockey with Edmonton Oil Kings.

Ketler, a 21-year-old from Prince George, B.C., has played in the Central and American Leagues and was with Atlanta Flames of the NHL for 41 games in 1972-73.

Sutherland, a 24-year-old, 170-pounder from Noranda Que., spent the last three years with Omaha Knights of the CHL.

Financial details of the contracts were not announced.

Riders' Evenson Is Odd Man Out

OTTAWA (CP) — With two high priced quarterbacks reporting to camp this season, Ottawa Rough Riders have decided they won't be needing the services of high-salaried fullback Jim Evenson in 1975.

"I've informed Evenson that we're talking to other Canadian Football League clubs about him," says Rider general manager Frank Clair. "The odds are he will not be here when we open training camp."

Ottawa acquired Evenson from British Columbia Lions in 1973 in exchange for two Canadian players and he is drawing about $40,000 a year from the Riders.

Riders have invited quarterbacks Condredge Holloway of Tennessee and Tom Clements of Notre Dame. If they stick, both will draw top wages.

John Bledsoe, who came to Ottawa last year after Evenson was injured, is expected to be Ottawa's full-back.

Jets Acquire Sunde

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Jets announced Tuesday the acquisition of veteran National Football League guard, Milt Sunde, on waivers from Minnesota Vikings. Sunde, 32, a native of Bloomington, Minn., spent 12 seasons with the Vikings, nine of them as a starter.

When He Sees Plate, Boston Pitcher Sharp

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that Dick Pole can see the plate properly, pitching is a lot easier way to make a living.

"I think the contact lenses are a big help because I see the plate much better now," said the right-hander from Trout Creek, Mich., after pitching Boston Red Sox to a 4-0 win Tuesday night over Chicago White Sox in an American League baseball game.

"The big thing as that I threw hard to good spots," he said. "I just wish I had that kind of stuff every time out."

Pole, who wore his recently acquired contact lenses for the first time Tuesday night, has been not sore-off, mostly off with the Red Sox since 1973.

He had never pitched a complete game before but on the strength of his three-hitter, which strikeout shutout Tuesday night, he appears in Boston's starting rotation for a while longer.

"You just don't pitch much better than Dick did tonight," Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "Every young man has growing pains and Dick has worked hard in the bullpen and now he looks ready."

In Tuesday's other American League games, Kansas City Royals whipped Cleveland Indians 8-2, Milwaukee Brewers edged Oakland A's 5-4, Baltimore Orioles defeated Texas Rangers 6-3, New York Yankees edged Minnesota Twins 5-4 and Detroit Tigers topped California Angels 9-4.

Rookie Jim Rice gave Pole three runs when he hit a homer off Lloyd Allen in the first inning. It was Rice's ninth homer of the season. Juan Beniquez singled home an insurance run in the fifth.

Girls' Softball Teams In Harvest of Runs

Play in the Belleville Minor Softball Association girls section produced plenty of runs, hits and excitement last week.

In the junior division, Reid's Dairy topped Branch 99 20-12 and Dairy Queen subdued Dixie Lee 25-4. Little Misses, with home runs from Kerri Emerson, Judy Kingsman and Hallie Reid, posted a 23-8 win over Belleville Yardmen. Kelly Fradette homered in Dixie Lee's 38-14 defeat of Yardmen; Little Misses topped Reid's Dairy 19-9 and Dairy Queen beat Branch 99 13-9.

Intermediate action saw Terry Mérison poke a homer as for Clayton TV nine defeated Tebby's Texaco 11-5; Peggy Mudd hit for the circuit in Belleville Conductors' 38-18 win over Quinte Drive-In; Sonia Wilson and Debby Smith provided much of the power as Cozy G-Ill downed Dairy Queen 19-10 and Lynn Lucas pitched Union Carbide past Belleville Yardmen 23-1.

The Texaco squad avenged its earlier defeat by taking Belleville Conductors 19-12 as Rhonda Tuttle hammered a pair of homers. Debbie Smith's two homers sparked Cozy Grill past Quinte Drive-In 19-11; Yardmen outlasted Dairy Queen 17-14 and UCERA turned the tables on Clayton TV 25-7.

Four games were played in the senior section with Stirling Sheet Metal edging AVCO A-- ON Debbie Warden's 9-8 on Debbie Warden's tamed Mel Barriage 44-18; Stirling Sheet Metal topped Mel Barriage 42-12 and AVCO tripped Belleville Yardmen 24-16.

Trudeau's Tadpoles Score Twin Victories

House League teams in the Belleville Minor Baseball Association operation were busy last week with a full slate of games in four divisions played.

At the tadpole level, Kinsmen doubled the score on Legion 16-8 as Pat Doran and Bobby Dafoe each slammed a home run for the winners. Trudeau Motors topped Belleville Conductors 11-1 and then turned around and whipped Kinsmen 14-9. Tony Nelson was credited with 20 strikeouts for the winners.

Belleville Conductors and Legion House Dart League tied 11-11 and Kinsmen turned back Thurlow 20-7.

In tyke play, Alhambra 109 shadged A and B Precast 14-13 as Dwayne Embury cracked a triple and a double for the winners. Ron Urch and Carl Vance belted homers in defeat. Cablevue overpowered Belleville Broadloom 25-2 as Robert Boomhower and Dave Coughlin each poked a homer. Team No. 6 scored an 11-9 win over A and B Precast. Todd Woodward homered for the winners.

The peewees were busy, too. H and M Variety took Mel Barriage 13-8 with John Ricketts and Jeff Ricketts each slamming a homer. Bob's Sports slopped Richard Ellis 24-4; Legion 99 beat Mulroney's Pizzaco 22-15.

Stopette downed Thurlow 9-5 and Kinsmen beat Stopette 16-3 in the bantam section.

Wright Night

It was the Wright night for Sidney Inn in Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt play but the scrad had to settle for an 18-18 tie in eight innings in its contest with Complete Rentals.

David Wright went four for four at the plate and Bruce Wright had a three for four night. Steven Gough had four hits in as many trips for the Rentals team. In other squirt action, Belleville Plaza trimmed Eastern Business Equipment 14-8; O'Neil Stationery outscored Wm. Belch 17-14 and Ernie Tuck Appliances downed Colonial Real Estate 15-9.

At the peewee level, Raymond Gee pounded a homer, double and single as Belleville Police whipped Red Shark 19-7. Kinsmen Squirts outlost Stephen Licence 20-5 on the way to a 34-4 win.

SACO Peewees rolled to a 28-7 win over Shell Car Wash in the bantam division and J. F. Nelles lowered the boom on Richard Ellis 28-12.

Stiff Suspension for 2 Players

Bay of Quinte Soccer Association officials left no doubt they'll stand for no shenanigans by players in their group when it was announced this morning that two stiff suspensions have been handed down to members of the Quinte Hellenic and Quinte Italo-Canadian teams.

Hellenic has lost Frank Tsourallis for one year.

According to a league spokesman, Tsourallis caused some difficity when he was ejected from a game with Italo-Canadians at Zwick's Island, May 25. It was also reported that the player was facing suspension for pushing a referee in an earlier game.

Tsourallis will not be eligible for league play until June 7, 1976.

Italo - Canadians' Joe Cordeiro was suspended for one month, when it was alleged he had directed uncomplimentary remarks at the referee during the same May 25 game.

A special three-man disciplinary committee dealt with the case of the two players and decided on the suspensions.

League action this week has Brighton hooking up with Citizens Finance at Trenton's Centennial Park and Belleville Olympics at Warkworth, tonight; Thursday, Italo-Canadians are at Canadian Forces Base Trenton and Hellenic meets Cobourg at Centennial Park.

LIONS SIGN TWO

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference announced Tuesday they have signed two import tackles. All American Loren Mulkins and Paul Poole.

Mulkins, from Colorado State, is expected to be a prime candidate for the defensive tackle slot vacated by Garrett Hungerger. Poole, from Weber State, will be trying for the offensive tackle position occupied last year by Layne McDowell who will be returning for his fourth season with the Lions.

Live in Silent World

Nick Flessar, 11, deaf since birth, holds dalmation puppy, Freckles, who was born deaf about six weeks ago. Other puppies in litter were normal and Nick's mother, Mrs. Judy Flessar, has been advised that the deaf puppy should be killed — she refuses in hopes of finding a home for the dog destined to a life in a silent world. Old Folks Make Report On Homes for Aged

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Deep-piled carpeting may look attractive in an architect's plans. But it is not welcomed by someone who has to navigate across it in a wheelchair.

That was one of the observations of residents of five homes for the aged in the Niagara region when they were asked how their living conditions might be improved.

They were summarized in a 41-page report, called This Is My Life and This Is My Home, of a study funded by a federal New Horizons grant and conducted by a committee appointed by the residents' councils of the homes.

Lawrence Crawford, executive director of the Ontario ministry of community and social services, has asked that the report be distributed across the province.

Many of the problems that came out in the study concerned wheelchair patients. It noted that basins and mirrors in washrooms often are placed too high for them.

Another concern was bedroom accommodations. The report said residents confined to wheelchairs prefer to share a room while others like a room to themselves.

Almost all residents agreed that night checking by the staff makes them uncomfortable. They felt it should be restricted to those ill enough to need it.

They said nursing care in the homes is really better than is actually needed. To most residents it meant a loss of independence.

Singapore's Discipline Impresses Businessman

SINGAPORE (AP) — "I've discovered the parliament is works," a visiting businessman joked when asked what he thought of Singapore.

He explained that he was impressed by Singapore's national discipline.

Obedience, hard work, cleanliness, thrift and the profit motive are all featured in Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's "rugged society," which has transformed this island republic in just 15 years.

Lee runs a one-party government with a reputation for efficiency and a high sense of direction.

The annual per-capita income in Singapore is more than $1,000, second in Asia only to Japan.

Singapore's currency, also called the dollar, is worth a little less than 50 cents and is one of the strongest in the world.

It is backed 100 per cent by gold and foreign currencies.

Singapore's foreign reserves total $2.9 billion in U.S. dollar terms.

Prime Minister Lee and Finance Minister Hon Sui Sen say that because Singapore lacks natural resources and its economy depends on trade and foreign-backed manufacturing, large foreign reserves must be held as a defence against crisis.

Singapore's superb harbor is the world's fourth-busiest port. This is the third-largest oil refining centre after Houston and Rotterdam.

The city-state dislodged Hong Kong as the area's financial centre when the Asian Currency Unit, or Asiadollar, was originated seven years ago to join Eurodollars in international money markets. Scores of big-name banks from North America, Europe and elsewhere have opened branches.

In 1968 there was 3.3 million square feet of office space; last year more than 13 million.

Many economists and businessmen had forecast that Singapore, like virtually every other country in the region, would be hit hard by recession.

Experts now say that Singapore, which got through 1974 relatively unscathed, has a reasonable chance to do the same this year and may shift into high gear again if there is an upturn in 1976.

President Benjamin Sheares said the government expects a minimum growth rate of five per cent in 1975. The real growth rate was about seven per cent last year against a target of 10 per cent. Real growth in the five years to 1973 averaged 12 per cent.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 employees of a work force of about 800,000 are believed to have lost their jobs. Firms in electronics, plastics, textiles and plywood felt the pinch and a number of major capital investment projects were delayed or cancelled.

But instead of demanding government handouts for unemployed workers, the National Trade Union Congress told its members to tighten their belts. The recession might even be good medicine, said its secretary-general, C. V. Devan Nair.

"We in Singapore must eschew the kind of empty-headed heroes which passes for trade unionism elsewhere."

The 224-square-mile country has no natural resources except the strategically located harbor and the skills of its 2.2 million people.

Singapore's style has been to run scared because, in one of the prime minister's favorite phrases, "nobody owes us a living."

Lee is stamped on the country like the pattern on a blue vase. He loathes dirt, so Singapore is spotless. He champions hard work, so it buzzes. He hates hippies, so hair is short.

The "rugged society" has given Singapore a moral code which critics term unnecessarily authoritarian. But they do not deny that Singapore "works."

Museum Bound

CALGARY (CP) — The 28-year Bluebird of the Century has ended its last southern Alberta city limit — it when Coach 422 made its last run. Coach 422, one of the original 20 trolley buses purchased by the city in 1947, has been put into storage until a museum home can be found for it.

Appointed to Games

EDMONTON (CP) — Hugh Boyles, coach of the University of Alberta Golden Bears volleyball team, has been appointed volleyball co-ordinator for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal. His duties will include the arranging of accommodation for visiting teams, practice schedules, hostesses, announcers and transportation.

Blakeney Still Likes Politics Although Rhetoric Has Changed

REGINA (CP) — After four years as premier of Saskatchewan's democratic socialist government, Allan Blakeney still finds politics fun, but not when the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation was implementing trail-blazing social legislation.

But the political rhetoric has changed somewhat since the CCF was transformed into the NDP, he noted in an interview during the campaign for the province's June 11 general election.

"We're no longer going to burn the churches."

That's what the old CCF was always accused of going to do, not only going to seize the land but burn the churches.

"We're now back seizing the land"—a reference to opposition charges about an NDP government land-bank program—"but we're not burning the churches and I can only regard that as an improvement."

The 49-year-old NDP leader relishes poking fun at political rhetoric, particularly that of an opposition politician.

His usual style, as befits a mild-mannered Oxford graduate, is serious, carefully organized and grammatically precise.

Yet when the occasion calls for a conventional political speech, as in legislature jousting with opposition Liberals, he can skilfully use all the linguistic techniques of politics.

In humorous remarks, as in more serious conversations, Allan Blakeney's interests seem to revolve almost wholly about politics and governments and their effect on people.

In a published interview, his wife Anne once recalled that in the early days of their friendship, she would ask him to talk about himself and he would speak of issues like low-cost housing.

On their honeymoon, their western itinerary was adjusted so he could inspect several power dams.

He says his personal goal is to leave Saskatchewan as a province where the people as a whole have more control over their climate destiny.

"That, for example, is why he objects to suggestions that railways be allowed to set flexible grain rates.

"The railways then by simply adjusting tariffs will be able to decide which rail lines stay, which ones go, which towns live, which towns die.

"We don't think those decisions should be made in Montreal, either at the head office of the CP or at the head office of the CN.

He says that is also the reason for such measures as appointing an ombudsman to investigate citizens' complaints about bureaucracy, setting up a human rights commission, holding public cabinet meetings about the province and generally trying to make government accessible.

"If anyone has seen a society where most of the decisions are made by a very small group, it's not nearly as healthy a society as Saskatchewan is.

"It's people who feel powerless who very frequently act against the society. I feel that is the sort of thing we are trying to avoid."

For Allan Blakeney, the way to give power to the people is democratic socialism—he is careful never to omit the adjective—and that is what brought him to Saskatchewan in 1950.

He says that is also the reason for such measures as appointing an ombudsman to investigate citizens' complaints about bureaucracy, setting up a human rights commission, holding public cabinet meetings about the province and generally trying to make government accessible.

"It's people who feel powerless who very frequently act against the society. I feel that is the sort of thing we are trying to avoid."

For Allan Blakeney, the way to give power to the people is democratic socialism—he is careful never to omit the adjective—and that is what brought him to Saskatchewan in 1950.

Born in Bridgewater, N.S., his first political involvement, following his father's footsteps, was with the Nova Scotia Conservatives.

But while studying law and history at Dalhousie University in Halifax he was attracted by the CCF and came to work for the CCF government in Saskatchewan after earning an MA at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar.

His contacts made in several civil-service positions were reinforced in eight years of private practice as a labor lawyer and by involvement in the co-operative and credit-union movements.

Left with two small children after his first wife died in 1957, he remarried in 1959 before seeking election to the legislature. After serving in the ministries of education, the treasury and health, he spent six years as an opposition MLA before becoming party leader in 1970 and premier in 1971.

Along the way, he was careful not to drew his children into politics: "I try not to involve them particularly. They have their own lives to lead and it's tough enough for them to be associated with someone in public life as it is. It's hard for them to keep their privacy."

Tribal Groups Given Right To Run Stills

BOMBAY (CP) — At one stroke, the Indian government has succeeded in displeasing prohibitionists, social workers and liquor manufacturers by decreeing that members of tribal groups will be permitted to set up their own stills.

Tribal leaders welcomed the decision as restoring one of their ancient rights. Government spokesmen said it was taken to prevent the tribesmen from being victimized by dealers who were profiting from sale of cheap liquor in tribal areas. They said tests of some of the whisky sold showed it to be unfit for human consumption.

Tribesmen would be permitted to brew liquor only for their own use and not for sale.

Pandit Kashinath Acharya, an ardent champion of prohibition, said the decision will wipe out the achievements of prohibitionists in his native state of Madhya Pradesh and other states with large tribal populations.

"Every house in tribal areas will have a still," he said, accusing the government of giving a boost to the liquor business.

Social workers also expressed fears of increased drunkenness and alcoholism, although Sunil Burma, a Socialist politician, said tribesmen only drink in moderation.

Spokesmen for the liquor industry were equally anxious to have the decision overturned. Industry were equally anxious to have the decision overturned, arguing that most tribal families have forgotten the art and might slowly poison themselves by drinking inferior moonshine.

"It is just not true that we are flooding tribal hamlets with liquor," said Ramakant Mehta, a liquor contractor with a flourishing business in tribal areas. "We are meeting a certain need and know our responsibilities."

Some politicians also were unhappy with the government's decision but their protests were muted.

A notorious election practice in India is to distribute free bottles of liquor to prospective supporters in tribal villages. Such gifts, presumably, would have little influence on a householder who makes his own.

All Examinations Called Irrelevant

BOMBAY (CP) — "All examinations should be abolished. They have lost their relevance in this revolutionary world," said Laxman Dube, a Bombay University student.

Dube is a member of the Revolutionary Student Front (RSF), a new organization of students who want to reform the Indian education system.

RSF says that the Indian government is "blindly copying" the British system of education and that it is not "oriented to the real needs of Indian society, of the large masses of underprivileged people and not to those of a few citizens at the top."

To begin with, the RSF is demanding that all examinations except those leading to medical, engineering and other professional degrees should be abolished.

The RSF demand has sparked a major controversy in Bombay, Poona, Kolhapur and other big educational centres in western India. Students opposing examinations and those supporting them have clashed.

The National Students Union of India (NSUI), an organization associated with the ruling Congress Party of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, says the RSF demand is "politically motivated and calculated to bring about chaos in education."

CP News Roundup

Cable Firms Seeking Network

TORONTO (CP) — Three of the country's largest cable television operators will seek federal permission for the initiation of a large-scale pay-TV network.

Canadian Cablesystems, Rogers Cable and Premier Cable will outline their plan before the Canadian Radio - Television Commission next week in Ottawa. They say such a network could pump about $4 million annually into Canada's movie and television production industry within five years.

Premier owns the country's largest single cablevision system in Vancouver with about 179,000 customers. Canadian Cablesystems has companies in several centres including London, Ont., and Hamilton. Rogers Cable serves much of Toronto city and surrounding areas.

Shriners Coming

The Shriners and their families — 65,000 strong — will converge on the city June 29 from across North America for their annual convention.

It is estimated that most Shriners will spend at least 10 days in the area and spend a total of $2 million each day.

Japanese Scotch?

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuter) — Scotch whisky workers have urged the British government to stop exporting malt to Japan because Japanese whisky, the workers say, is a serious threat to the Scottish industry. Union leader George Robertson said Tuesday only an expert can differentiate between scotch and the whisky being made in Japan from malt imported from Britain.

Ovens Recalled

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian General Eclectric (CGE) will contact seven consumers who own microwave oven-range combination units similar to a type being recalled for inspection in the United States, the company announced Tuesday.

Francis Moskal, CGE vice-president and general-manager of the major appliance company, said that while about 5,200 units of the General Electric model JBS1 Versatronic microwave double oven-range combination are being inspected in the U.S., only nine units were imported to Canada. Two are in inventory.

Mr. Moskal emphasized that CGE countertop microwave oven models JET 70, JET 78 and JET 80 are not involved. The countertop models meet all domestic safety requirements.

Police Car Flunks

SARNIA, ONT (CP) — The vehicle emissions branch of the Ontario environment ministry has given the city's police department 14 days to upgrade one of its cruisers or face being fined.

The ministry is conducting car emission checks in the city this week to trap offending cars and the first car to fail the test Tuesday was a city police car

Falls Favorite

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Agents selling travel packages still consider Niagara Falls Canada's most famed tourist attraction despite Toronto's claim to be No. 1 in tourism.

The 1973 figures available from the ministry of industry and tourism show 16,325,000 people visited the Niagara-Iroquois tourist area compared with 15,827,000 visiting Toronto.

These visitors are from Ontario, other provinces and the United States only.

Escapes in Trash

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Following discovery of an abandoned car in a field 25 m.n southeast of here Tuesday, provincial police began searching for David Johnstone, 25, who escaped from a Toronto jail earlier in the day, hidden in a garbage drum.

Johnstone, awaiting trial on a charge of armed robbery, was reported missing after a load of refuse was taken from the jail.

Provincial police said the escape was believed armed and heading for Detroit.

Staff Added

TORONTO (CP) — The royal commission into television and movie violence has added two 150-a-day staff researchers, Jody LaMarsh, commission chairman, said Tuesday.

Sheila Kieran, 45, a former Globe and Mail reporter and now a free-lance writer-broadcaster, was appointed director of public participation.

Agency Pays Bills

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The threat of New York City's financial collapse eased Tuesday after Mayor Abraham Beame gave tentative approval to a new state agency that would pay off the city's short-term debts.

The agency would pay $2 billion of new york's $6-billion short-term debt, saving the city from any final day of reckoning until at least Sept. 1.

HEALTHY SUMMER EATING

Perishables need extra care in warm, humid weather. Here are some hints for hot months:

*Refrigerate leftovers within an hour of serving. When re-using, cut them cold or re-heat quickly and thoroughly. Boil broths or gravies.

*Use foods containing meat, poultry, eggs, fish, soups, milk, or salad dressing containing egg or milk, within 2 hours of preparation - or refrigerate at once. Keep such foods below 40 or above 140 degrees F.

*Cookies prepared the previous night must be refrigerated overnight. Small cuts of frozen fruit or frozen sandwiches in a lunch set to refrigerate, and thaw by serving time.

*Buy ready-to-eat barbecued chickens very hot, and keep them hot or refrigerate quickly.

*Keep all working surfaces meticulously clean.

IN MEMORIAM

BAKER — In cherished memory of a dear father and grandfather, Walter Baker who passed away 13 years ago, June 6, 1963.
A light in your household gone,
A place in your home left lone,
A place in vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled,
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
But in memory you are with us,
Just as dear as ever you were.
— Love but never forgotten, by daughter Barbara, son-in-law Milton and grandchildren Ken, Ron and Patrick.

ELLIS — In loving memory of a dear son, brother and grandson, Franklin Richard Ellis who passed away 7 years ago today.
Death's sudden was the call,
To darling loved by one and all,
His memory is as sweet today,
As in the hour he passed away.
—Loved by Mom, Dad, sister and brothers and grandparents.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, June 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be under a magnifying glass in social situations today. You could get off on the wrong foot if you're not on your best behavior.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Trying to self-snoop others today will be the wrong tactic. One may even promise to help, but he won't deliver.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You tend to count your chickens before they're hatched today, by assuming financial gains will materialize. There could be pitfalls.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Ambitious you have a strong desire to satisfy today may take more—tenacity than you can muster. Don't kid yourself. It won't be easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Not a good day to try to sell others on ideas you're not fully familiar with. Take more time to study them first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Business matters continue to be your trickiest area. Be on guard lest you buy the sizzle instead of the steak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can't be all things to all people today, though you'll try. You'll wind up pleasing no one—including yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be especially cautious today when working with unfamiliar tools or materials. Proceed slowly. Check your methods as you go.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, bet only on something over which you have a measure of control, not where someone else calls all the shots.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared for some unexpected disruptions at home today. Don't let them shake you too much. They'll be manageable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Use a soft touch on the gas pedal today. There's no place that you have to go that's worth jeopardizing your safety by hurrying.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have a little cash surplus burning a hole in your purse. It should go into the bank, not the boutique.

Opening lead — 2 ♦

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Today's hand from "Bridge Brilliance and Blunders" might well be titled "We'll never know."

West's opening two-spade bid was one of those weak two-bids that are popular in tournament circles. He, of course, combined with East's jump to four, was to catapult South into six clubs.

Against a spade lead, South would have had no problems. He would simply ruff the second spade, draw trumps and claim.

West's singleton diamond lead gave South a problem. Two rounds of trumps left West with another. So South cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off the rest of his trumps to come down to two hearts, two spades and a diamond while dummy held king-queen-eight of diamonds and king-jack of hearts.

East had chocked all his spades and a diamond to come down to two hearts and three diamonds.

Now all South had to do was to play out dummy's diamonds. East won the last one and had to lead up to dummy's hearts.

Why the suggested title? If East had quickly ungifarded his queen of hearts South would have been forced to guess where that card was. With ability to see around corners, he would have known enough to drop the queen. But he might well haves finessed and gone down.

Inflamed Bladder Is of Two Types

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me what "inflamed bladder" have been troubled with this off and on for two years. My urologist put me on medication. How much water should I be drinking a day?

I ask my doctor what causes this, and he tells me he doesn't know X-rays don't show anything. — Mrs. L.H.

This is inflammation of the bladder, and there are two general types of infection involved, an "ascending" and a "descending" type. In the ascending variety the organism, usually a bacteria, enters somewhere in the urinary tract through the urethra to the bladder. Since urethritis often accompanies this type of cystitis.

In the descending infection, the organism originates in the kidneys and descends into the bladder via the urinary duct. The ascending type seems to be the most common. Here, the origin of the infection is at the exterior. The offending organism is often the colon bacillus. Some women will have bouts of cystitis after intercourse. Thus the recurrence.

A recent report on this aspect suggested the use of an antibiotic for a day or two after sexual relations. It might be practical in cases where intercourse is infrequent. You might discuss this with your doctor. It is possible to identify the specific organism causing the infection, which I assume has been done in your case. The medication you mention taking is to combat that organism.

Once it has disappeared, then emphasis on careful hygiene should be observed.

A normal liquid intake (a quart or more a day) should suffice in your case.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please tell me what ferrous sulfate is? Why would a person be taking this? Is it harmful to the teeth? How long should a person take it? — J.M.

The "ferrous" part of the a possible tip-off as to what it is used for mainly. It is commonly prescribed in cases of iron deficiency anemia. Iron is a major constituent of hemoglobin, the substance that gives red blood cells their color.

It should be administered only with a doctor's supervision and not be taken on an empty stomach, but preferably after a meal. The medication will tend to turn stools a dark green, even blackish, which is to be expected. I know of no harm of can do to the teeth, except that it liquid form it can stain natural teeth or dentures.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me about "idiopathic thrombocytopenic purpura." Our 13-year-old daughter had just returned form a 13-day hospital stay. Her platelet count is up to 100,000 now (from 6,000), and she is now taking a blood test and taking medication.

"The doctor says diet has nothing to do with it. This little girl has always been very healthy and active, eats well, and has never been on any medication before.—Mrs. J.K.K.

You can eliminate a couple of those tongue-twisters. The three words mean purpura, the well known cause or "primary purpura," to distinguish it from the "secondary" type, in which the underlying cause is known — diseases of leukemia, for examples.

The problem is fundamentally a lack of sufficient platelets in the blood. Since the platelets are essential in proper clotting, purpura is marked by a tendency to bruise easily and bleed abnormally.

It is suspected when the platelet count falls to 100,000 or below. A normal blood platelet count is about 250,000. The 6,000 count was extremely low then.

Steroid therapy, which may cause your daughter is very receiving, can raise the count temporarily, but this is not a cure. If your daughter's case is severe, and from the counts you mention it seems to be, then splenectomy (removal of the spleen) may be necessary for permanent relief.

Such surgery is successful in the majority of cases.

Mediator In Labor Area Vital

VANCOUVER (CP) — The need for mediation in labor disputes is not going to disappear in Canada as it is today, says Ed Sims, British Columbia government mediator.

Mr. Sims, who in June became the first provincial mediation officer, said the need for mediation will be around for a long time.

"We will never have industrial peace without someone to act as distinct third powers, which we are not ready for in this country," he said.

Under B.C. legislation, either side can unilaterally ask for a mediator if a previous mediator.

Mr. Sims explained that if the application is in order with respect to the B.C. labor code, it is usually granted. In cases where strike or lockout notice has been given both sides must agree to mediation before the government officer can step in.

"I believe that the system is working fairly well. I think that of all the legislation I have seen and have helped, I find with legislation in every province and in many states of the United States—the legislation we have now is the closest to what is required."

Mr. Sims said it gives both sides the opportunity "to exert themselves towards industrial relations peace, as far as it can be obtained."

"Our job is to assist the parties to get together—but there must be a desire, a real concrete desire, on the part of the bargaining parties to find common ground to reach an agreement."

Mr. Sims, who has a long history of association with the labor movement, said a good mediator needs a solid background in the collective bargaining process.

Lebanon Aggressor

Suez Open, Rockets Fly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab gunners in Lebanon fired rockets into Israel today and Egypt reopened the Suez canal on the eighth anniversary of the 1967 Middle East War with a pledge to liberate all occupied Arab lands.

The rockets hit an empty kindergarten class in the frontier settlement of Qiryat Shmonah, set off a few fires and wounded a civilian, the Israeli military command reported. Residents said artillery was heard from the frontier zone after the half-hour burst of rocket fire, indicating the Israeli army retaliated for the attack.

Israeli security forces were on guard against terrorist action on the anniversary of the Six Day War in which Israel defeated three Arab armies, conquered 26,000 square miles of Arab territory and closed the Suez canal.

A terrorist bounced a grenade off the roof of a tourist bus in the Arab quarter of Jerusalem and wounded an Israeli civilian and a civil defence guard riding in a police car. But no tourists were hurt.

Sadat Vows Liberation Of Occupied Arab Land

PORT SAID, Egypt (CP) — President Anwar Sadat reopened the Suez Canal today as a "tributary of peace and a channel of prosperity and cooperation among men." But at the same time, he vowed to liberate all Arab lands from Israeli occupation.

Sadat said Egypt, in reopening the canal, wants to "remind friendly people everywhere that shelled parts of Arab land are still suffering under foreign occupation and Arab people are enduring the anguish of forced exile."

In two days of celebrations, the Egyptian leader will travel the length of the waterway linking the Mediterranean and the Red Sea.

After the celebrations, shipping convoys will start moving through the 100-year-old canal. The first will have only seven ships, but the Egyptian government is hopeful that eventually business will at least return to the 1967 level of 60 ships a day.

Israel, in an unexpected conciliatory move this week, pulled back half of its troops and tanks and all of its artillery and missiles on its desert front line 12 miles east of the canal.

Sadat welcomed the Israeli move, but its unexpectedness was underlined Wednesday night by a Beirut broadcast in which he warned the Israelis that any attack on the canal or its cities would be met with a missile attack on Israel.

The broadcast, however, had been recorded last week, before announcement of the partial le-

Britain Votes On Market

LONDON (AP) — Britons began voting today to say whether they want to stay in the European Economic Community (EEC) with public opinion polls indicating a strong majority in favor of retaining membership.

raeli pullback improved the atmosphere.

Recognizing the easing of tensions in the area, London underwriters decided to reduce the insurance surcharge on ships and cargo going through the canal.

Egypt closed the canal after Israel in the 1967 Six-Day War took the whole of the Sinai Desert from Egypt and established its front lines on the east bank of the 103-mile waterway, resulting in its closing. The Egyptian army crossed the canal in the 1973 war, regained the northern half of the east bank and got the rest in the disengagement agreement negotiated by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger in March, 1974.

Sadat said the canal will be closed to Israeli shipping until there is a final Arab-Israeli peace settlement, but he has indicated that cargo bound for Israel on ships of other nations may be permitted through if Israel makes further concessions.

Over the Whirlpool

A team of daredevils led by Henri Julien Rechatin (top) crosses over the Whirlpool at Niagara Falls, Ont., early Wednesday morning. The team made the crossing on the cables of the Spanish cable car, with Rechatin riding on a motorcycle with driver Frank Lucas and Rechatin's wife, Janyck, hanging from a trapeze suspended below the vehicle. Leaders Meet

Reunification Near in Nam

VIENIANE, Laos (AP) — Sources say that North Vietnam's top leaders flew to Saigon last week for meetings with members of the new government of South Vietnam and there is speculation that preparations are being made for the formal reunification of North and South.

A report of the visit was filed from Saigon by cable May 28 but apparently was stopped by the censor. This reporter was able to bring the report out today when he and three other foreign newsmen were expelled from South Vitnam.

The North Vietnamese leaders reported in Saigon included the top three members of the ruling Politburo—Le Duan, who as first secretary of the North Vietnamese Communist party is the first-ranking member of the Politburo; Truong Chinh, chairman of the National Assembly's standing committee, and Premier Pham Van Dong.

Xuan Thuy, a secretary of the party's central committee, also was reported in Saigon, and Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defence minister, vice-premier and architect of the Communists' military strategy, had been seen there previously.

De facto reunification of the two sides is already taking place.

North Vietnamese military forces control most of Saigon and hold key positions on the military management committee which has been running the city since its surrender April 30.

Uniformed North Vietnamese troops walk in formation in the city. The flags of both the PRG and North Vietnam fly together at the same height over the former presidential palace, now the headquarters of the military management committee headquarters, and over other buildings.

Dock Work Stoppages May Not Be Over Yet

MONTREAL (CP) — Most of the 800 striking longshoremen were back on the job at the Port of Montreal Wednesday, some of the men said there were chances of further work stoppages.

"If we don't get our pay increase, we don't go back," one management offices and find out why," one longshoreman said.

"It could be that we'll stop working again."

Harbor police reported the men returned quietly and without incident. The full morning shift and extra crews began working to clear the backlog following a federal government announcement that legal action forcing the men to return had been taken.

Sixteen ocean-going cargo ships from the Soviet Union, Sweden, Brazil, Greece, Panama, Greece, Cyprus, Spain and Denmark were awaiting unloading and Jacques Delacarpe, port operations manager, said cargoes included sailings and foreign books and magazines.

Supreme Court Overturns Irving Newspaper Ruling

FREDERICTON (CP) — Deciding that newspapers owned by four Irving-controlled companies have "complete autonomy," the New Brunswick Supreme Court Wednesday overturned the monopoly convictions against the firms.

The court, in a 41-page judgment, found no evidence that detriment to the public resulted from Irving control of the newspapers.

The judgement said the late Mr. Justice Albany Robichaud erred in finding a presumption in the Combines Investigation Act that "detriment in law" automatically followed acquisition of the newspapers and that there was or would be a lessening of competition that would be detrimental.

The companies were charged in 1972 with operating a monopoly by controlling all five English-language daily newspapers in New Brunswick.

Mr. Justice Robichaud convicted the companies July 17, 1974, and fined them a total of $150,000. He also ordered the Irving interests to sell their two Moncton daily newspapers, The Times and The Transcript.

The judgement said expert witnesses called by the Crown testified it was possible for common-owned newspapers to function independently of the owner. Examples were the Southam and Thomson newspaper groups in Canada.

"The evidence disclosed a more competitive effort on the part of the acquired newspapers in the areas of competition after the acquisition and that each paper operated independently of each other."

"Other Crown witnesses established the publisher and editors of each paper had complete autonomy, was uninfluenced by the owner or parent company and the trial judge so found."

Strange Loans

QUEBEC (CP) — Federal Packing Inc., received two loans totalling $800,000 from a provincial Crown corporation although the company had been convicted for defrauding shareholders, Guy Saint Pierre, industry and commerce minister, said Wednesday. However, evidence at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime established that the company was convicted several times for mixing horseflesh with beef products.

NDP Would Insure

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Insurance companies will lose the right to issue auto insurance in Ontario if a NDP government is elected in the next provincial election, Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Wednesday. Speaking to a history class at Huron Park secondary school, Mr. Lewis said a NDP government will pass legislation to take over control of car insurance as it has in British Columbia.

Wildcat Strike Hits International Hardware

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

More than 200 International Hardware employees staged a wildcat strike at the Coleman St. plant this morning — a move strikers said was necessary to display solidarity behind the union's negotiating committee.

Plant manager and company vice-president Howard Hanton said during an interview today: "If a legal strike is called next week, it will be the first legal strike against the company in at least the last 42 years. We've never had a legal strike in my experience."

Contract negotiations between the 220-member local of the International Moulders and Allied Workers and International Hardware management broke down several days ago "with both sides far apart," said Ray Ryan, chairman of the union bargaining committee.

"Management started a rumor circulating that many of the workers are prepared to accept the company offer," said Mr. Ryan. "This wildcat is being held to show how the workers feel about the offer." Workers refused to listen to union leaders and remained on the street refusing to enter the building.

Union spokesmen could not say how long the wildcat will last. A legal strike can be called midnight, June 13.

The company's last offer before talks were halted gave hourly-paid workers a total of 55 cents an hour and incentive workers 29 cents an hour over a two-year contract. The offer also included a cost of living clause capped at eight cents in the first year and unlimited cost of living increases in the second year.

The union has stayed with its demand of a 75-per-cent pay hike. Average earnings at the plant are $3.50 an hour, said Mr. Ryan.

Plant general manager Howard Hanton said during an interview today: "I heard rumors about a wildcat and I know that they are out. But, that's about all I know." He denied management was responsible for circulating any rumors about the plant. "This strike came out of the blue."

Mr. Hanton said the company is still open to negotiate the contract. "It was the union which broke off the talks."

The last strike action to hit International Hardware took place in May, 1974 when production workers refused to cross office workers' picket lines.

Hitting the Sidewalk

A wildcat strike brought International Hardware operations in Belleville to a halt today as more than 200 employees remained off their jobs. Union spokesmen said wages are the central issue of the action and that talks between union and management ceased several days ago. A legal strike may be called June 13, a union spokesman said. It was not known how long the workers would stay off their jobs. The union is demanding a 75 per cent pay increase for its 226 members.

Speaker Overrules Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons Speaker James Jerome ruled Wednesday that Prime Minister Trudeau did not violate the parliamentary privileges of John Diefenbaker when he made allegations about Mr. Diefenbaker's expenditures while prime minister.

In a May 22 speech, Mr. Trudeau accused Mr. Diefenbaker of having Harrington Lake—the private country residence of prime ministers—stocked with fish. He later apologized for this, acknowledging that Lester Pearson, a Liberal, was prime minister when the stocking was done.

Mr. Trudeau did not withdraw two other statements, one concerning purchase of the Harrington Lake property—bought in 1951 under a Liberal government which Mr. Trudeau called a land grab made while Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister—and one saying Mr. Diefenbaker had a bomb shelter built at the prime minister's official residence at "substantial public expense. The former Conservative prime minister said the total cost of the shelter, an old fruit cellar, was $400.

Murray Offers $5,000 For Fire Protection

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

WOOLER — Murray Township refused Wednesday to buckle to a demand by Trenton for $15,000 as payment for fire protection in the first five months of 1975.

But it agreed to pay the town $5,000, a charge based upon a $15,000 a year contract signed by Trenton and the township in August, 1972.

The township's payment comes after a month-long dispute between the two municipalities over a $30,000 bill Trenton presented the township earlier this year.

Murray councillors balked at the 100-per-cent increase in their costs and began almost immediately to arrange fire protection with Ameliasburg, Frankford and Brighton.

In agreeing to the $5,000, council rejected an offer by Trenton for protection of roughly half the township for $15,000 a year. The offer stood Trenton said, provided the township pay the town the money it owed.

Resentment of Trenton's action was evident Wednesday, even in comments by councillor William Ellis, the only strong supporter for township payment of $15,500 to Trenton.

Mr. Ellis reasoned that Murray, if not legally, was morally bound to pay Trenton for protection at $2,500 a month since the township did not talk to the town to object to the increase in protection costs.

A resolution he proposed for payment of $15,500, plus $250 in interest, was defeated. (The sum was arrived at by calculating interest for five months under the 1972 contract and adding charges under terms of Trenton's $30,000 a year demand.)

"I'd had to be called a cheap so-and-so for a few dollars," said Mr. Ellis. In speaking to support his resolution, he said "They're damn poor neighbors (Trenton), but once that is passed, they won't get anything more without paying for it."

Councillor Angus McFee echoed Mr. Ellis's remarks saying, "It's time to close the gate before we lose the rest of the cows."

Legal opinion obtained by the township stated Murray was acting properly if it only paid the $1,000 a month charge. Any additional payment to make up the balance of the $12,500 would have to be made under other arrangements.

Council briefly considered explaining its position to Trenton but then agreed to send Trenton a $5,000 cheque and only an explanation of its payment. It was felt requests for more money should come from Trenton.

Council's action comes two days after Trenton cut off fire protection to the township for non-payment of the $15,000 bill.

Fire protection of the township now is shared by the departments of Ameliasburg, Frankford and Brighton.

Not Me, Officer

Picton may be going to the dogs on some streets this spring but Mrs. Samoyd owned by a Hill Street couple is one canine who won't be paw printed on suspicion of offences. Tied in his master's front yard his only comment on the issue of dogs at large was a howl of protest.

Gasoline Prices Concern Chamber

PICTON — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce is concerned by gasoline prices in the county and this week three Exso representatives, a Picton retailer and two area managers discussed the issue with chamber members.

It was noted that in the last 30 years gasoline prices in Prince Edward have ranged from eight to 10 cents higher than in other areas.

President of the Chamber of Commerce, Sheldon Whitteker, said members are concerned with the ration of gas prices between Prince Edward and the rest of the Quinte area.

Larry Todd, area manager for Imperial and district manager Donald Riddell told chamber members both owner-operated and company-operated stations get subsidies when there are price wars.

Mr. Todd remarked that the dealer, under normal conditions, sets the price. To maintain efficient sales an eight to 10 cent mark-up is necessary.

Mr. Riddell told the meeting that the oil company's business is "a lot more than gasoline." He indicated that there are business losses in subsidizing retailers. There are 1,100 Imperial dealers in Ontario and 400 of them are under subsidy.

Mr. Todd and Mr. Riddell explained company research shows a dealer requires eight to 10 cents profit a gallon to survive.

When dealers find price cutting competition affects their sales they can apply to the company for assistance.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson, who attended the meeting, said Prince Edward residents apparently are charged a higher rate for gasoline because they are "a captive market."

Picton businessman Gary Gardiner suggested tourists should be informed that it is not the service stations who are "ripping the people off."

He said many visitors get this impression when they buy gasoline here then buy at lower prices in Belleville.

Mr. Gardiner added all companies should establish standard prices across the area.

PICTON — Peter Thompson, son of Picton photographer Lloyd Thompson, has joined the staff of Radio CFTR in Toronto. He left London, Ont. for a music program in Toronto.

Benefits Outlined

Olga Wallace, director of nursing for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, says the unit's current fluoride treatment program in elementary schools, basically intended as a preventive measure, has sent about 500 referrals to unit nurses for follow-up action of children with tooth decay. She told the regular monthly meeting of the counties board of health held Wednesday in Belleville that the referrals are also leading to other health problems previously uncovered by the unit.

Model Wins Praise

PICTON A model of the old Prince Edward County Court House located near Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Grade 12 student Anne Hagerman, 18, high marks in her law class. On display in the PECI library, the model is as large as a kitchen table and its detail is faithful to the original historic building.

Program Prospering

There have been 1,200 elementary school students treated under the fluoridation program conducted by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit so far this year, Dr. Dennis Warrick, director of dental services for the unit, told the regular monthly meeting of the counties board of health held on Wednesday.

Waterfront Aid Study Under Way

TRENTON — A provincial study now is underway to find where Trenton will fit into an Ontario government $500,000 program aimed at increasing public access to Great Lakes waterfronts.

The program was announced by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier last week. In his announcement, Trenton was one of three municipalities specifically mentioned as a possible early recipient of provincial funds.

Frank Mahr, ministry supervisor of planning in the sport fisheries branch, said Wednesday Trenton's eligibility for provincial funds for waterfront development should be known by mid-July.

Head of a committee studying eligibility, Mr. Mahr said currently a team in the ministry is ranking Great Lakes Municipalities according to their need for support.

Where Trenton will fit in the "hierarchy" is still unknown. However, Mr. Mahr said, Trenton will be "a somewhat lower priority if no federal money is forthcoming."

He referred to a federal government program — Marina Policy-Assistance Program — in which Ontario pays for work on piers breakwaters, and covers costs of dredging in harbors used by recreational boat and owned by a municipality.

Picton's Canine Population Becoming Town Headache

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton reeve Larry Richardson says he is concerned with the problem of dogs running at large in town but observes it is difficult to reach a satisfactory solution.

Earlier this spring he referred to complaints of dogs at large during a town council meeting and councillors agreed to terminate the contract of Donald Tucker of Stirling hired three years ago as dog catcher.

Reeve Richardson said Wednesday the job will be open for tenders this summer with Mr. Tucker eligible to submit his application.

"I am not too thrilled about having an outsider involved," he added.

He explained when stray dogs or family pets are reported at large it is almost impossible for the dog catcher to arrive from Stirling in time to answer the complaint. A local animal control officer would be likely to provide faster service.

Det. George Wright of the Picton police department says there are fewer complaints of dogs at large now than in recent weeks but a number of strays are impounded regularly at the Picton Animal Hospital.

"We are not overly thrilled about picking up these dogs, but we do it," he remarked.

The detective ad 11 officers) arriving for duty in freshly pressed uniforms do not enjoy apprehending muddy-pawed canines for running at large.

The dogs picked up by town police are taken to the animal hospital while pets impounded by the animal control officer go to his kennels in Stirling.

Det. Wright said the police department annually impounds as many if not more dogs than the catcher.

When a Picton resident complains to police about dogs at large Det. Wright says one of several courses of action may be followed.

If the stray dog is caught and held by the complainant a police constable will pick up the animal and impound it.

If the complainant tells police of a dog at large and informs them of its owner's name a charge can be laid if the information is correct.

In such cases, persons identifying the owners of dogs at large must be prepared to serve as witnesses should the charges lead to court.

If a dog owner is charged with allowing his pet to run but still refuses to tie the animal little can be done until the matter goes to court. Once a fine is paid unless the owner decides to tie the dog it remains on the loose. A new charge may bring another fine but the animal will not necessarily remain tied.

Det. Wright says a local dog catcher probably could give quicker service to town residents.

He suggested "fresh pursuit" provisions should apply in the dogcatcher's job as well as in police work.

OFY Grants Announced

NAPANEE — Opportunities For Youth (OFY) grants in Lennox and Addington county will total $25,025 this year.

The largest grant of $8,295 will be provided to five participants, headed by Vicki Darling, for a project entitled Community Services Odessa.

It will enable the set up of an information referral service, educational seminars to do home maintenance service and a cultural and recreational program for children from nine to 16 years of age.

The second largest grant of $5,385 will provide for musical instruction in the Napanee district. The project, named Brass Quintet '75, has five members with Robert Bain as leader.

There are two grants of $2,115 apiece. One, called Project Creativity in Bath, has three people led by Tess Laraine.

The project will give creative recreational programs to children from six to 12 years of age. Activities will include hiking, sports, picnics, arts and crafts, farm visits, drama workshops, gardening and city tours.

Canadian Exports Falling and There is the Prospect of a 92-cent Dollar

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The current slump in our export trade will probably push the value of the Canadian dollar down to 92 cents U.S. this year, from the recent 98-cent level.

That's the warning of a top manufacturer—Walter M Lawson, who has just completed a year as president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

He told the CMA annual meeting in Toronto that Canada faces the unprecedented prospect of deficits this year not only in non-merchandise or "invisible" trade (as usual) but also in merchandise trade.

Last year, he noted, our merchandise exports exceeded our imports in the same category by about $1-billion. This year, exports are falling.

"Unquestionably, Canada's most grievous area of difficulty in all of our trading pattern is the trade in fully manufactured articles," Mr. Lawson said.

"We had a deficit in this area last year of $6-billion.

"Consumer markets of Canada have been quite open to the factories of the world, while in Canada have been increasing our own costs—particularly labor costs."

Last year, as Mr. Lawson noted, was the first time that average wages of workers in Canadian manufacturing industries equalled those paid in the United States—and they are rising faster.

In the CMA president's view, that fact—and the fall-off in exports of such natural resources as oil and gas—paint a gloomy picture of our near-term foreign trade.

Others might argue that the trend toward higher wages in Canada is a legitimate reflection of the greater true growth of our gross national product over the past five years or so.

In that view, it's a point of pride that Canadian pay scale parity has been reached at last. But let's look about, rather than backward: The U.S. economy seems to be coming out of recession, but ours is still declining.

Despite this, increases in Canadian wage settlements are running higher than US (although methods of reporting are not strictly comparable), and organized labor is setting its sights on much bigger settlements.

If the slump in Canadian exports (particularly of finished products) and the sharp rise in manufacturing costs threaten our economy, the CMA's Walter Lawson sees a "self-correcting mechanism" in the decline of the Canadian dollar.

"Too sudden a drop in the value of the Canadian dollar is highly inflationary," he concedes.

"Nevertheless we must face some of this type of medicine, to correct the disparities long have built up for ourselves with excessive wage settlements and other inflationary activities.

"The answer is not a fake foreign-exchange-value bullet, the better."

Mr. Lawson's point is that a sharply lower dollar would make our products cheaper on foreign markets, and we could therefore sell more of them.

Perhaps. That would depend, largely, on how quickly the United States and our other foreign customers recover from the current recession.

It would also make our imports more expensive. That's fine, to the extent that we could do without them.

But it would be decidedly inflationary for Canadian consumers in the case of those thousands of imports—from citrus fruits to specialized industrial equipment—that we cannot produce in this country.

A Helping Hand

The term "Big Brother" in one sense has a sinister connotation, meaning the control and supremacy of the State.

It is associated in that context with George Orwell's work, 1984, which portrays a society in the grip not only of the State but of a system whereby every move and thought are governed by "Big Brother."

In its other, more benign and humane sense, the term is associated with the Big Brothers movement that lends a helping hand to youngsters in need and seeks not to thwart but rather to assert their individuality, as well as to advance their emotional and educational progress. In short, the Big Brother movement tries to lend a helping hand and its goal is to turn into mature, responsible individuals youngsters who for a variety of reasons, and through no fault of their own, are faltering along life's journey.

Some of these reasons: death . . . divorce . . . desertion . . . imprisonment . . . insanity.

The Big Brothers movement operates in this area and the Rotary club heard of its work this week from the executive director here, Mrs. Leith DeTracey.

As of now, there are seven youngsters matched up with adults acting as big brothers. They include one boy who views the situation as "beautiful." Another gets up at 6 a.m. on the day his big brother is expected. Yet another is much calmer than he was before.

Of course there can be difficulties along the way, as a poignant U.S.-made film, A Pal for Joey, shown by Mrs. DeTracey illustrate. It may take time for a relationship to grow and show beneficial results. Adjustments must be made. Yet the advantages of such a movement are obvious, and they are borne out by the results.

It is good to know the movement exists here. Mrs. DeTracey is herself dedicated to the needs of young people and the organization is fortunate in this regard. In a world in which the needs of the individual all too often take a back seat, the Big Brothers are fulfilling an important supportive role.

A Committee on Spending But Its Powers Are Limited

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Premier Davis followed through on a good idea by establishing his committee on spending.

I couldn't say that it is anything else but a good idea.

How many times over the years I have complained that no one had for a hard, independent look at government spending.

But unhappily, while apparently accepting the principle the premier has booted it.

He did that in various ways, but to mention just a few three is the fact that first of all he appointed a committee.

Committees just don't have the hardness, toughness and firm decision that is needed for a good job in most fields, and particularly in a review of spending.

All we need to prove this, I believe, is the name Job Grant Glassco did on federal finances.

T. B. Macaulay, the 19th century Englishi statesman and author summed it up when he said "Many an army has prospered under a bad commander, but no army has ever prospered under a debating society."

Then the committee that has been set up is not really an independent one.

The three civilian appointments are Lyman Gilmour, former Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson.

But there are two cabinet ministers—and three deputies on the body, which means it is government dominated.

The ministers really aren't all that bad. Treasurer Larry McKeough can be tough and independent, and so can Management Board chairman Eric Winkler when he wants to be.

But of the deputies, cabinet secretary Jim Fleck was director of the famous (infamous?) multi-million dollar committee on government productivity and the findings of this committee certainly weren't keyed to economy. And W. A. R. Anderson, who is a member of management board, is a former general, one of the host of retired army officers who have invaded the government service, and though he has now been around here several years ne hasn't shown anything to inspire one to believe that he has a keen appetite to prune spending.

Then, again, the committee is going to report in three months which means it can only do a superficial job.

And the really sad aspect is that is governmental this type of thing tends to be a one-shot affair.

At seems almost certain if this committee doesn't do the thorough job that is needed demands in the future for further reviews will be met by the reply that we have already had one.

Doing Your Own Thing

Lucky are the young people who make their way in life with singleness of purpose and with hard work and use of that all important grey matter.

The 18-year-old, for one, mentioned in a recent Toronto Star article who attends school and then hurries home to look after the landscaping and related activities he has built up into quite a promising business.

He expects to hire a dozen or so youngsters this year and gross some $60,000. No hang-up here! The fellow knows what he is doing and gets on with it. And it all began with cutting grass and painting jobs when he was younger.

What about the great mass though who plod through high school, maybe get a degree in something or other, but then have difficulty finding a job?

We hear of the problems, that the jobs are not there in sufficient numbers and so on.

Yet in Belleville recently, Ontario Minister of Colleges and Universities James Auld said prospective employers are increasing their acceptance of graduates of the province's 22 community colleges. He pointed to figures showing 84 per cent of 1974 graduates from this source, and who were available for work, found jobs by last October.

That's a good percentage, especially in light of that rider about those who were "available for work," suggesting that only a few seeking work were unable to obtain employment.

It's encouraging enough. If there is a recession, it does not seem to be hitting job prospects too much. It's a trend we hope to see continuing.

Viewpoints

The Globe and Mail

It may be that Edward Havrot's problem is as he defines it — that his comments of suspension he cannot control his tongue. It may be that this is all there is to the problem and that essentially the Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Timiskaming is not in any sense intolerant of Indians.

But when we get to such excesses publicly spoken—first to a newspaper reporter, second in the Legislature—by persons who have taken on the responsibilities and burdens of public leadership, we get into an added dimension of Mr. Havrot's "problem": namely, that those who aspire to leadership should have the discipline of leaders.

LETTERS

Menace of the Drunk Driver

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I never expected it to happen and I doubt if it ever will again — for once I agree with Jack Ellis.

Mr. Ellis' private members bill is directed to the drunken savages that menace our highways deserves to be given every consideration by the House. Such new legislation is long overdue. Had this type of thing been on the books last Christmas many innocent victims might still be alive today.

Drunks will know full well they are going to lose their licence for life, plus a heavy fine, amount of time, are less likely to back off shows with such reckless abandon into any such revision of the law should not stiff penalties for those who knowingly watch or allow any person under the influence of liquor to attempt to drive a motor vehicle. The daft judges who back down taken punishment only to be served at weekends while allowing the drunk to drive during the week because its his livelihood should also have their licence to serve on the bench lifted.

In the course of some 22 years in the police business, both civil and military, I have had enough of the indulgent attitude of authority toward the drunken driver. It was most evident in the armed forces where, at least overseas, the officer type who was drunk while driving dual car apparently was not supposed to inflict, but of course, the lower ranks, they were a menace and needed accordingly.

I recall, while serving overseas in the RCAF, one Ian "Thank God It's Friday night" producing the highest deaths and injuries from home which was sold at a nearby pub, and for liquor and beer free for the first two hours. I scraped up the remains of a friend from my first six weeks or so.

I am not against alcohol — only against drinking and driving.

Fifty tons of carp from the Bay of Quinte have been shipped to markets in several of the largest American centres. The meat shortage in the U.S.A. has turned many Americans to fish diets, and Canadian varieties are in heavy demand after a long time. Lessons of the Brampton Tragedy

Kingston Whig-Standard

The tragedy at the Brampton high school has taught the reality of moral disintegration and violence uncomfortably close to home. Yet even the shock which all citizens must feel will not eliminate the torment which grows a 16-year-old to apparent insanity. That will take time, a vast and complex alteration of our society.

The best that can be done at this time, perhaps, is to dampen the ferocity of the symptoms of disorder — for, example, by reducing the availability of guns in a society which obviously nurtures people all too tempted to use them.

Ottawa Journal

The Brampton case will focus new attention on studies of the social climate as a cause of violence. Since violence committed by people with disturbed minds often has an imitative quality, the role of the communications media in spreading news of bizarre violence certainly must be studied as well as the violence content of commercial entertainment. But none of this does anything to build confidence that similar outbreaks could be prevented. In the end, it can only be hoped that more and more parents will see the value of reducing the pressures on modern tragedy by simply not keeping guns in the home.

The reciprocity treaty for Canadian-American trade was negotiated by British and U.S. officials 111 years ago in 1854. It lasted until 1866, when the U.S. terminated it because of prolonged settlement in Britain during the Civil War. Reciprocity, or free trade across the U.S. border, became the aim of the Liberal party after Confederation, but it was not until 1911 that a Liberal government considered such the views of the U.S. administration.

1863—French troops entered Mexico City.

The Sanctity of Life

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

According to the Bible, Sodom and Gomorrah were cities destroyed by God for their wickedness. To equate the actions of those who hold life sacred with the situation which existed in those two cities is an example of crass ignorance or gross stupidity.

It would have been more apropos if the editorial had compared Herod's massacre of the innocents of Bethlehem with the actions of Morgentaler in Montreal.

GERALD R. FRIEND

Editor's note: The editorial deplored the actions of those who DO NOT hold life sacred such as those who oppose the abortion laws, or advocate action on abortion as being wicked, or sinful, by whichever analogy is preferred.

You remember the movie "The Quiller Memorandum" with George Segal as the espionage agent and Max von Sydow as the cruel neo-Nazi leader?

Well now there is supposed to be a "Pitfield Memorandum" under way in Ottawa, just as mysterious as the movie version but less likely, much less likely to deal with the realities of the cold war.

Because you see this is, to a degree, what the Pitfield proposals, from a super-bright young man, (who once attended West Point they say), are all about.

Not about neo-Nazism, but Canada's on-going role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to stay or not to stay in it, to reduce our already reduced forces in it or not to do so.

Decisions, decisions and the bureaucrats of the Trudeau era are playing games again with our armed forces. Will they, or will they not be used as pawns in Canada's self-styled new role in Europe called by Mr. Trudeau our "contractual link."

My guess is they will, but not in any sense to detract from the Prime Minister's foreign policy statement of early 1969 which downgraded our NATO forces (army and air force units) by one-half.

Since 1970, they have been at that reduced level, 5,000 soldiers and men in reduced NATO air units and truncated military, a mobile force without any new tanks, and none coming.

Somehow or other, Mr. Pitfield, clerk of the Privy Council and very much a Trudeau favorite, will have to do just about the impossible where Canada, NATO and the contractual link are concerned.

This is to find some way of accommodating the same European member nations of the Common Market with whom Mr. Trudeau wants that closer economic relationship but who also want Canada to keep or preferably restore her previous NATO commitment.

Mr. Trudeau's dilemma, transmitted to wonder-worker Pitfield, is that he is not especially interested in armed forces per se, including ours, and yet must make some kind of concession to the NATO nations next door to the Soviet strength. They are very much interested in future military planning.

The other part of the Prime Minister's dilemma over Europe, is how to satisfy the same the EEC with whom he wants the new "Third Force" in Canadian public who like him by and large, don't want to spend more money on the armed forces.

It is a conundrum, isn't it, taken out of the hands, so it would seem, of Defence Minister James Richardson and his military generals and admirals, (about 100 I believe at last count).

Indeed the last part is sadly necessary, given the minister's great difficulties in grasping the concepts of defence and the propensity of the military brass, (many of them, Second World War veterans), for big things from big hooks.

But removing all decision-making from the armed forces and from the minister, is also part of the on-going tragedy of our armed forces, confusing as they will to be pawns for higher government strategists.

Why the whole problem is enough to bell the cat, and a Mackenzie King-style Prime Minister, "Ready to NATO if necessary, but not necessarily to NATO."

Marmora Votes to Repair Rather than Replace Arena

MARMORA — Marmora village and Deloro village councils voted Monday in favor of proceeding with repairs to the Marmora arena.

In making the motion to repair as previously decided, councillor Gordon Bender, chairman of the six-man investigating committee, said he appreciated that a lot of people would like a new community centre and wished it was possible.

No new information had been presented at the public meeting last Thursday, he said, which had been called for the purpose of acquainting people with details of the project.

It had been agreed between the three councils of Marmora and Deloro villages and Marmora and Lake Township after Thursday's meeting that they defer the matter until the monthly council meetings in case there were any further thoughts.

Mrs. Bennett said he could see no reason to change the decision and made the motion to proceed, a motion that received unanimous approval.

Clerk-treasurer Bernice Young of Marmora Village confirmed in a telephone conversation Tuesday that her village council had voted Monday in favor of proceeding with the original decision made by the joint three councils to repair the present arena.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake Townships was also contacted Tuesday and said that council would take the matter up at next Saturday's meeting.

"As far as I can see, there is no reason to change our minds about the repairs", Mr. Wells commented.

Petition Urges More Signs for Cameron St.

MARMORA — A petition signed by residents of Cameron St. was presented to Marmora Village Council at this week's meeting.

Members of the delegation were Edwin Tustin, John Atperly, Harold Rosh and Jack Pluke.

They asked that Cameron St. be re-designated as Cameron Dr.; that 30-mile-per-hour signs be placed at Highway 7, Cameron St., Lynn St. and Forsyth St.; and that no heavy truck signs placed at the same locations (except for local deliveries).

The fifth clause in the petition was optional for those people who did not wish to support a request for Cameron to become a one-way street. If the one-way street proposal received sufficient backing, the petition suggested that a sign denoting "no entrance" could be placed at Highway 7.

Council agreed to meet with members of the delegation Wednesday for a look at the street.

Sewage System Outlined

MARMORA — John Bishop of the provincial ministry of environment in Kingston discussed with Marmora Village Council this week some of the problems that could be encountered as the sewage system here goes into operation.

The Marmora operation will be under his control, Mr. Bishop said, and he said he was anxious to be of as much assistance as possible to council.

Advertisements are out now for a chief engineer and operator for the treatment plant. They might be hired by August so that the men could be in on some of the building stages, Mr. Bishop explained.

Council might care to have the men take over operation of the water treatment plant as well, if a satisfactory financial arrangement can be worked out, Mr. Bishop said. He is to obtain cost figures on such a proposal so that the figures can be compared with present operating costs.

Mr. Bishop pointed out that it will be council's responsibility to see that residents using sump pumps do not discharge their effluent into the sewage system as rain water does not need to be treated.

The village will be charged for every gallon of water that is processed, he pointed out.

Hastings Highlights

Educated Chickenfest

SHARBOT LAKE — About 70 members of the International Council of Adult Education (ICAE), representing 36 countries, stopped in this hamlet last Thursday for a chicken barbecue. The ICAE members had spent three days in Ottawa and were in route to Toronto when they visited here as dinner guests of the North Frontenac Community Services (NFCS).

Woman Evicted

MARMORA — Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc were called to evict Alma Osborne from the Marmora Village Council meeting this week. Mrs. Osborne arrived just as the meeting started and immediately accused Reeve Jack Reynolds and Clerk-treasurer William Shannon of trying to blackmail her. Mr. Reynolds asked Mr. Shannon to contact police and have her removed.

Ellis Waves Flag

MARMORA — A new Canadian flag has been received from Jack Ellis, Hastings MP, for use on the memorial building in this village. Mr. Ellis offered to donate the flag after he read in the Marmora Herald that a new one was needed. The one was larger than the old one. Clerk-treasurer William Shanon was directed by the village council to write a letter of appreciation to Mr. Ellis.

Ellenton to Quebec

Lloyd Ellenton, chief public health inspector for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, will attend the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Health Inspectors (CIHI) at Granby, Que. from July 6-10. Permission for the trip was granted by the counties board of health during its regular monthly meeting held Wednesday.

Swing Your Partner

The residents of the West Gate Lodge were entertained by the square-dancing club, "The Single Beaus Club". Most of the lodge occupants sat outside while more than 20 from the club demonstrated their modern square-dancing style.

Members of the Bancroft council toured the village on Tuesday to see properties which deserve special consideration in the residential charges for the connections to the new village sewage system. Certain properties are entitled to reductions because they are not totally suitable for building.

Hobby Show Success May Make It Annual Event

MARMORA — The number and variety of displays at the crafts and hobby show recently at the town hall is indicative of the great amount of talent there is in the Marmora area.

Sponsored by the Marmora Chapter of the International Order of the Daughters of the Empire (IODE), the show was a first of its kind here since 1967 but its success promises to make it an annual event.

One of the exhibitors, W. G. Hand to display their particular craft or hobby and in some cases to illustrate how they do it.

One of theexhibitors, W. G. Clayton, is a man of many talents. He does copper tooling, string art, wood-burning pictures, various novelties, writes verse and also repholsters furniture.

An Olympic runner, which he made from copper tubing and a picture of a rooster made from various kinds of nails and brass pins are only two pieces of work this man does. Mr. Clayton plans to enter seven of his items at the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE) this year. Last year, he took five prizes on six entries.

There was much to see and appreciate at the show: Tiny petit-point brooch and earring sets that are done with the aid of a magnifying glass; Jewelery made from leather purses and belts; Odd shaped wood roots finished to make interesting looking conversation pieces; Placemats being made on a loom; Delicate tatting; A doll with a dried apple face; Doll furniture made from tin; Brownstick lace; A child's cloth picture book; A coin collection and many more.

WELCOME THEM WARMLY
A friendly call is always welcomed by newcomers to your neighborhood. They'll be happy to meet you. Later, they'll want to know you better.
But right now, they need some basic information about the newest schools and shopping facilities and all the other information one needs on arriving in a strange city.
So make your welcome a little warmer with the help of a Welcome Wagon hostess. She'll provide all this and gifts as well.
When new neighbors move in, call Welcome Wagon. We'll be glad you did . . . and they will, too.

Board to Meet Only If Needed

It was decided during the regular monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health held on Wednesday in Belleville that board meetings during July and August will be scheduled only if there is sufficient business.

George Foster, board member from Prince Edward County, commented there is no sense in wasting the taxpayers' money by holding meetings merely for the sake of having them.

Old Film Sparks Interest in Area

MARMORA — The results of a history research project carried out by seven Grade 8 students at Marmora Senior School was shown to members of the Marmora chapter of the International Order of the Daughters of the Empire (IODE) at its May meeting.

The students undertook to identify many of the people and places in a film made in 1938 of activities in Marmora and then took new pictures of the same places and the people, where possible, to show the changes that have taken place in 37 years.

The 1938 film, which was also shown, has been preserved on video-tape by students at Loyalist College.

The students who worked on the project under the direction of teacher Alec Danford were Brian Wilkes, Anne McGibbon, Ed Caverly, Romana White, Alan Simper, Laura Welch and John Brass. The students were congratulated on their presentation.

A letter of resignation from Regent Alice Ayler was accepted with regret. Vice-regent Eleanor Bicknell agreed to take over as regent.

A letter of appreciation was received from K. D. Weir, principal of Marmora Senior School, on behalf of the Grade Six students who visited the Ontario Science Centre in April as guests of the chapter.

Hymn Sing Popular

MARMORA — St. Andrew's Church junior choir held its annual hymn sing recently at the church in this village with over 100 people in attendance.

The program featured highlights of the year's work and numbers by a double trio. The collection will go towards purchasing music stands and other items for the choir.

Director Bob Sanderson was presented with a plaque from members of the choir and a hymn book from the United Church Women (UCW), presented by the president, Marie Cook.

A cup and saucer was presented to Sandra Mitchell, who assisted Mrs. Sanderson and to Jennie Killian and Bernice Smith, who acted as accompanists during the year.

The program will be repeated today for the residents of the Deloro Nursing Home.

How to approach a loan these days.

For a loan, as with anything else, it pays to shop around.

Rates do vary from place to place.

At the Commerce, though our rates are already competitive, we can even go one better. If you have a Commerce Key Account you get preferred rates on most consumer loans.

The fact remains, however, a loan costs money. And you have to repay it.

That's why we'd like to sit down and talk about it with you.

It's part of making sure you don't get in over your head just because you need the money.

If you need the loan for a car, we want to make sure your repayment plan still leaves you money to run it.

Talk to one of our over 1600 Commerce managers about the facts behind a Commerce Bankplan loan.

The more you know about the in's and out's of money, the better you can make use of the money you have.

And that's certainly worth talking about.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Marpole Provides Housing For B.C. Part-time Prisoners

VANCOUVER (CP) — Marpole is a prison with a difference—you go home every 11 hours part-time prisoners.

As one of British Columbia's new community correctional centres, Marpole serves to keep petty criminals segregated from the hard-core elements in the prison system.

There are 30 prisoners at Marpole, three of them women. All of them, except a few waiting for work, hold jobs outside the prison.

Set up last October, Marpole has since been joined by similar institutions at Prince George, Quesnel and Chilliwack. The B.C. government eventually plans to have six correctional centres in the Greater Vancouver-Lower Fraser Valley region.

Stan Hofseth, Marpole's director, explains that the centre has three main goals:

"First to have inmates reenter the community in a slow process. Second to maintain close contact with their spouse and family, and third to have necessary finances—in most cases up to $600—to start up again.

All of Marpole's residents have in common the fact that their sentences are three months or less. Their offences include that under 204, breaking and entering, repeated impaired driving and soliciting charges.

Individually convicted of crimes involving violence are not eligible for the program and most living at Marpole served a living at a regular job prior to their conviction.

Marpole's population includes laborers, apprentices, a painter, a garage-collector, service station workers, a secretary, an upholsterer and a man with his own backhoe business.

While at the correctional centre they drive their own cars or take the bus to work and are expected back at the institution within a half-hour after their shift ends. If they are given a weekend pass for good behavior, part of their time might include some home life.

When they return from a day's work they join in a communal supper and then are expected to perform assigned chores.

Afterwards, there is time to socialize with the centre's staff and other prisoners or to work on hobbies.

The prisoners draw regular pay from their employers, who have co-operated with the program, and the money—less $4 a working day for room and board—is banked for them until their release.

Mr. Hofseth said the jobs are chosen by the prisoners themselves, because it helps get a job they like they are more likely to stick with the program.

Although it would be easy to walk away from the job and from Marpole, few do so.

Unauthorized leave is grounds for suspension from the program and once suspended the prisoners faces the bars and lockups of the larger institutions. Playing hooker or bringing alcohol or drugs into the centre are also grounds for suspension.

"We've probably had to send back about 10 per cent of the people who have come here," said Mr. Hofseth.

The director said the centre staff knows of no case in which a crime was committed while a person was involved in the program.

A report compiled recently said a total of 400 people had been discharged and of these, 25 still had the same job as when they were in the program.

The centre's three women became involved with the program this year and Mr. Hofseth said it is unlikely more will be introduced because it is more efficient operating the centre on a segregated basis.

He said the B.C. government intends to establish a women-only community correctional centre in the Lower Mainland.

Faulkner Facing Barrage

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Hugh Faulkner will face a barrage of amendments when his bill to end special tax breaks for advertisers in Time and Reader's Digest Canadian editions finally goes to committee for detailed study.

Debate in the Commons indicates amendments will come from a handful of Liberals, plus Progressive Conservatives and perhaps some Social Credit MPs, all of whom have expressed opposition to the bill.

The government hopes the proposed legislation will get approval in principle next week and be sent to committee.

But debate on the bill dragged again Wednesday, with two Liberals, two Conservatives and a Social Credit member opposing it. Thursday was adjourned but might be resumed Friday or next Tuesday.

Today in the Commons, Defence Minister James Richardson faces opposition questioning on the state of the armed forces and such things as Canada's position in NATO.

The magazine bill would remove tax write-off privileges for those who advertise in the two American-owned magazines and on American television stations broadcasting into Canada. Also affected are four small Western newspapers and some medical journals, all foreign owned.

The object is to get more advertising dollars flowing to Canadian magazines, but critics say the Canadian industry will benefit little and the chief beneficiary will be the Maclean-Hunter publications, which publishes many Canadian magazines.

CBC Employee Compiled Files on Press Gallery

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP said Wednesday that a senior Canadian Broadcasting Corp. employee earned hundreds of dollars compiling files on Parliamentary Press Gallery members and MPs.

Tom Cossitt (Leeds) said the files were made for Konstantin Gelvandov, a reporter for the Communist party newspaper Pravda. Mr. Gelvandov was reassigned re-entry into Canada earlier this year.

Mr. Cossitt declined to name the CBC employee.

Mr. Gelvandov, whom Mr. Cossitt said now is in the Middle East, was Pravda Ottawa correspondent for two years.

He went home on leave in September and the external affairs department said in January that he was not being allowed back because of activities unrelated to his work as a professional journalist. It gave no details.

Mr. Cossitt said the employee was not, and is not now, a press gallery member.

He was unsuccessful in getting the necessary unanimous consent from the Commons to move a motion on the allegations.

The motion would have asked Prime Minister Trudeau to make a statement giving full details "of any involvement with . . . Gelvandov by a senior CBC employee, including the name and position of that employee . . ."

Hamilton Harbor Scandal

Kickback Claimed 15 Cents a Yard

HAMILTON (CP) — Another tape recording is to be played today at the Hamilton Harbor dredging scandal inquiry. The fourth such recording offered as evidence by the Crown so far.

The tapes all were made after Herman (Joe) Rindress, former dredging company official, offered to co-operate with police in the spring of 1974, in return for a pledge that no charges would be laid against him.

Mr. Rindress was a long-time business associate of former harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott, who, with businessman Reginald. Fisher, is charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering in connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs on dredging and construction work in the harbor in 1970-72.

Mr. Rindress's testimony has said he and Elliott worked out a kickback deal on a dredging project in the harbor in 1971-72.

The witness has testified that Elliott asked for a kickback of 15 cents per cubic yard dredged. The contract eventually involved about 1.3 million cubic yards of material.

A tape played Wednesday indicated that the project may not have been necessary.

A voice, identified by Mr. Rindress as that of Elliott, said the project wasn't justified.

Mr. Rindress monitored the conversation during one of several meetings with Elliott in Charleston, S.C. in May, 1974.

He has testified that at the time Elliott urged him to take part in a scan to cover up the kickback.

The witness testified that Elliott told him to tell police investigators that money laundered through a Florida bank and used for kickbacks and payoffs actually went to directors of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., the Montreal dredging company Mr. Rindress had presided over.

Mr. Rindress said Elliott showed him an affidavit sworn by Elliott in Florida that said the Florida bank account, in the name of a fictitious company, International Marine, was opened as a conduit account on Mr. Rindress's behalf.

The witness said Elliott urged him to stick to the story.

Mr.Rindress said Elliott assured him there was no way police could crack the case as long as everyone involved kept silent and he stuck to the cover story.

The witness quoted Elliott as saying that the worst that might happen was that J. P. Porter would have to pay extra income tax on undeclared money.

On the tape the voice identified as Elliott's said police would be stymied and, on one part of the payoff scheme, "we're so covered . . . it's real funny."

The tape also contained references to an unidentified group, which Elliott said was involved in laundering money in Florida.

Elliott's voice described them as powerful people and he said he had to make a $15,000 under-the-table payment to help get "the heat" off in Florida.

Mr. Rindress also testified to a series of bid-rigging and price-fixing schemes among dredging companies.

He has testified that many companies work together to determine who should be successful bidder on various projects and kept track of these dealings on score sheets separate from their regular books.

Mr. Rindress also said Elliott asked for an extra 30-per-cent fee to launder money through International Marine.

In addition, Mr. Rindress has testified that Elliott told him in 1972 that George Kerr, then provincial environment minister, had asked for a $10,000 campaign contribution to help out sure directing against dredging operations in Hamilton Harbor.

Mr. Kerr, who later became Ontario solicitor-general but resigned when his name was linked to harbor allegations, has vowed to clear his name.

Mr. Rindress has also testified that Elliott told him in 1972 that Mr. Kerr pocketed $30,000 in campaign funds after the 1971 provincial general election.

The trial, now in its fifth week, continues.

To Expand Docks

NORTH SHIELDS, England (CP) — The Port of Tyne Authority and the Danish shipping line FDS will spend an estimated £10 (sic) (?)500,000) to expand docking facilities at this northeastern port. Trade with Denmark through North Shields increased 47 per cent over the previous year in 1974 and the increase is continuing.

Elusive Swan

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — A hunting party armed with bread crumbs and good intentions failed to capture a young white swan which has adopted the Goderich beach area of Lake Huron as home. Goderich Councillor Elza Hayden, chairman of the town's parks committee, has offered the bird to Stratford, Ont., but the problem is catching the swan.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors —and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. 6 good reasons why a grown woman needs milk every day.

The 6 good reasons are the six important nutrients contained in milk. You need them all for health. No other food provides them all...in such perfect proportion. Here they are:

1. Protein. The importance of protein in the diet is very well known. It is one of the body's basic "building blocks" at all ages. But perhaps you didn't know that milk is an excellent source of protein of high quality —the kind your body can use efficiently.

2. Calcium. You don't need calcium just during the years your bones and teeth are forming. You need it to keep those bones and teeth healthy throughout adult life. And milk is the best, and most widely available, source of calcium.

3. Phosphorus and calcium work together in the lifelong task of maintaining good bone and tooth condition. So it's nice to know that milk is also an excellent source of phosphorus.

4. Riboflavin, one of the B Vitamins, is a factor in the general health of adults as well as of children. An excellent source of it is found in milk.

5. Vitamin A is also required for your good health throughout adulthood. Whole milk is an excellent, and also an easily obtainable, source of Vitamin A.

6. Thiamine is another health factor which your body needs...just as it did when you were a child. Milk is classed as a "good" dietary source of thiamine.

There there are: six nutrients you, as an adult, must have to keep your health. And one easy place to find them all: in any, and every, glass of whole milk you drink.

Do you drink at least one every day? Probably not. And here's probably why not.

The perils of growing up.

What happened when you entered your teens? Just what happened to most other Canadian teen-agers: you stopped taking your cues in dress and behaviour from your parents, and began to take them from members of your own age group.

As they did, you did. As they dressed, you dressed (and when you think back on some of those outfits, you probably cringe!)

But it all had its meaning: you were putting away the habits of childhood, getting ready to grow up.

Unfortunately, one of the habits your group put away was a good one: the habit of drinking milk every day. (Remember? It was "kid stuff". Cola was the sophisticated drink.)

Even more unfortunately, if you are typical, you never did resume the daily milk habit.

You drink a couple of glasses every week—and tell yourself that that makes you a milk drinker.

But it doesn't. Milk is such an important food that nobody ever outgrows the need for it...every day.

That "nobody" includes you, you know.

You, who are so busy being concerned about your family's nutrition that you haven't stopped to think about your own.

Get back to basics.

No doubt about it, milk is one of the most fundamental foods. Nutritionally speaking, it is absolutely in a class by itself.

Milk provides more of the nutrients you need for health...and provides them in a more balanced way...than any other everyday food.

Adding a glass or two of milk to each day's food intake, therefore, is probably the biggest single nutritional favour you can do yourself.

And one of the easiest—you don't cook or mix, you just pour and drink.

And, still, one of the most economical. In spite of recent price increases, you get more all-round nutritional value per penny from milk than from any other basic food you buy.

One more tidbit: for all its high food value, milk has a surprisingly moderate calorie count.

In terms of the nutrition it delivers per calorie, in fact, milk simply can't be beaten!

Does that sound like a food that you can afford to go on ignoring?

You bet it doesn't.

"Today's the first day of the rest of your life."

So start today, maybe even right this minute, to make milk a regular part of your life. At least once a day. Every day.

Remember, there are six very good reasons for doing so.

Protein, calcium, phosphorus, riboflavin, Vitamin A, thiamine.

When Men Mutter 'Wimmin' What Do They Really Mean?

"Wimmin!!"

You've heard that special tone of voice men use when they've had just about all they can take from one specific female in their lives.

They generalize in that semi-humorous, semi-annoyed kind of way, they may even shrug their shoulders and raise their eyes skyward as if to say that the problem with women is . . . they're women.

Well, I'm not saying that their complaints aren't justified. Not at all. But I'm interested in just what there is about women that irritates men.

Here are the results of a small informal survey conducted this week in the Front Street area. Draw your own conclusions!

* * * *

One fellow finds himself especially annoyed by women who refuse to grow old gracefully or otherwise. "They're just pathetic," he says, speaking of those poor souls who resort to camouflage and girlish eye-lifting in their attempts to stall the aging process.

Two or three other men mentioned this tendency to "disguise themselves under layers of glop" as one habit they think of as being particularly female. However, these same men admitted that their sex is rapidly entering the same cosmetic whirlpool.

"Women are too dependent on style patterns," said one man. "Not only for themselves, but for their husbands. They wait us to look up to date and be style conscious too, and it's just a waste of money."

"I feel upset by women — and men — who feel compelled to follow styles at the expense of other things," said another. "It's a misdirection of energy into false areas."

"I see it as a kind of pretentiousness on the part of women," offered one male observer. "Women pick up trends and support them for the sake of supporting them. It's true in the fashion sense, and it's true of ideas too, like women's lib."

By far the most hostile feelings expressed had to do with the feminist movement, with one man summing it up best: "All that women's lib really annoys me because women are just getting trapped into asking for more than they ever wanted in the first place," he said.

Several other men commented upon the "more emotional nature" of women as "something disturbing." One fellow illustrated his complaint this way:"A woman will scream if a squirrel runs out on the road in front of you when you're driving. That really makes me mad!"

Another said that his annoyance stems from the fact that women tend to be emotional "at the wrong times for me. For instance, they'll cry when they're angry in a work situation. If a man did that, I'd throw him out!"

In spite of the complaints that were brought on by questioning, most men agreed with the fellow who said, "There's nothing that angers me more about women than about men. People are people, that's all.

"When we say "Oh, wimmin!" we're just joking. It has nothing to do with how we really feel."

Mental Rut Slows Growth

Staying in a mental rut means living in a present likely to be dull compared to the past. But growing mentally means always having a future.

It's more important to have mental interests in old age than at almost any other time of life. So much else is bound to be gone, like your job and many old friends and great physical energy.

And you keep your head in good order by making it think! The brain is a muscle and a remarkable one. When you present it with a thought or a question it has to come up with an answer. So the muscle goes to work and the flow of blood to that muscle increases.

If you slump and let the world go by the brain slumps too; and that is when senility may begin to creep in. Don't let it!

Dear Doris: I am worried about my son who is a bachelor and lives alone. He is slightly deaf and I believe it is getting worse.

Yesterday he was sleeping on his one good arm and failed to hear his alarm clock. As a result he woke up late, was one hour late for work and lost that hour's pay. Besides that, the foreman was very angry with him.

Worried Mother.

Dear Mother: A clock has been designed for just such people as your son — a clock with a silent alarm. Sound funny? It is quite effective, actually, because instead of a ringing alarm this clock turns on a flashing light.

Most hearing-impaired people are quite sensitive to light, so the flash usually awakes the sleeper. If it does not, this ingenious clock begins to vibrate — somehow or other — and the hearing person is even more sensitive to vibrations — even as you and I!

To learn more about this little gem of an alarm clock, write to the Canadian Hearing Society, at 839 Barton Street East, Hamilton, Ontario L8L 3A1, or 69 Bedford Road, Toronto, Ontario M5R 1K2.

All Politicians Are Not Corrupt

Dear Friend: I know several extremely fine people in politics in both parties — at every level — city, state and national. I too, resent the implication that all politicians are crooks. Furthermore, I seriously doubt that there are more rotten eggs in politics than in other fields — medicine, law, business, labor unions, farming, etc. Politicians receive more publicity because what they do makes news.

We mustn't lose sight of the fact that politicians are elected by US — the people. If we put crooks and liars in high places it's our fault when things get loused up. People get the kind of government they deserve.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure you'll think this is silly compared with the serious letters that cross your desk every day, but I need to know if blushug is a physical problem or an emotional problem.

Can you tell me if there is anything a person can do to overcome blushing? Thanks for your help. —

Little Pinky In Fort Wayne

Dear Pinky: Blushing is the physical manifestation of an emotional problem. When something occurs that causes discomfort (guilt or embarrassment — feelings of inadequacy or frustration), the blood supply mechanism goes into action and the result can be a red face.

You can do nothing about blushing because it's not in the realm of "controllable impulses."

Dear Ann Landers: My father is the person I love most in all the world. I respect him above all other men. I know he is honest and works long hours for a very unglamorous salary. He is a state senator.

Throughout my high school education (I'm a 15-year-old girl) I have had it drummed into my head that politics is a dirty business and people in government are all corrupt and dishonest. Every time I hear one of my friends, or worse yet, a teacher make this ignorant accusation, I cringe.

Most people don't have the faintest idea of the hard work people in politics do. Just because a few dozen characters in Washington went wrong it doesn't mean politics is dirty and all politicians are crooks. Please tell them there are still plenty of decent, respectable men in office. Open their eyes, Ann. Sign me — Of The Rose

Enid Neale learned auctioneering at school.

Tongue—Trippers Taught At Auctioneers' School

Enid Neale, of Sheba's Island—in the Lake area—recently traveled to Lacombe, Alberta to learn that bit of tongue twisting nonsense.

It's just one of the things students must learn when they attend the Western Canada School of Auctioneering.

Enid, who graduated from the school two years ago, can say it quickly — and without a slip.

"You've got to be able to think fast and think about what you're saying if you're going to be an auctioneer," she says.

Widely known in the area for her fashion designs and fashion show-coordinating Enid decided to attend the school so that she could learn about running an auction business.

"I asked to my friends that I'd come back an auctioneer, and I did quite literally."

The only auctioneer's training ground in the country, the school teaches students how to set up an auction area, how to participate and keep proper books, how to appraise and how to auction — from cattle to antiques.

"There's a lot more to it than meets the eye of the casual observer."

Field work is part of the curriculum at the auctioneer's school, so Enid had a chance to put herself to the test early in her career.

"I was so preoccupied with technical things the auctioneer must know that I didn't have time to be nervous."

Enid explains that the auctioneer is the legal agent between the seller and the buyer.

"You have to do well by both, or you won't be in business very long," she says.

"The auctioneer is a super-salesman."

She's putting her learning to work these days at irregularly scheduled consignment auctions at the Bloomfield Flea Market and Auction Arena, which she owns with Marcella Brodeur.

Open for more than a month, the arena offers booth-operated by more than 20 vendors who sell everything from home baking and farm produce to lawn ornaments, as well as the usual array of used furniture and antiques and collectables.

Located in the old cannery on the road to Sandbanks Park, the flea market, open from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on weekends, has already drawn lots of attention from passersby.

"It's an ideal location" — 650,000 tourists go by every summer," Enid points out. "It's gotten off the ground a lot faster than I expected."

She attributes part of its early success to the "Co-op Booth", where artists and craftsmen can leave their work for sale subject to a modest commission. The two women owners look after the booth.

"There were a lot of artists around doing good work who didn't want to or didn't have time to sit in a booth all day. This way they get exposure for their work."

The owners also offer one free table for non-profit groups to sell their wares.

Betty Bodder bought stuff better, but she and the buyer's bitter. If I put it in my bitter, I'll make my bitter bitter. He also bought a bit of better better put it in my bitter bitter—made her bitter bitter better — so it's better. Betty Bodder bought a bit of better better.

Exercise Keeps You Nimble

By Alison Goddard

Stockbridge, Mass. (MW) — If your longing for a flat tummy and svelte figure is at odds with the fact that you haven't touched your toes in years — here's good news. Physical Fitness expert Bonnie Prudden says mature women have a better chance of getting into shape than teenage girls.

"The 40, 50 or 60-year-old was used to exercising. She walked to school and enjoyed a good physical education program. Our studies show she can be put back into shape in six to eight weeks. It takes about ten weeks to accomplish that with a teenager."

No, there's no magic formula. Whether you join a gym, set up an exercise group with friends, or go it alone, the fact is you've got to do stretch, bend and work your way to fitness.

The 61-year-old health enthusiast at her institute here in Stockbridge, says that not only will workouts stimulate circulation, relaxe tension and firm muscles, "but you'll feel so much better for it. Your self-image will improve. Even your sex life could be revitalized."

Preparation is essential if you're out of condition. Prudden advises starting with limbering-up movements and graduating to bend backs and situps. "Music will make the time go much faster," says the former dancer, whose personal favorite is a thing by Leroy Anderson. "'Jazz Pizzicato, Jazz Legato' takes 2:55 minutes and believe me you can get a fine workout in that time."

Desk-bound? Don't let that stop you from exercising. A telephone ring can trigger you into action. Get in knee deep knee bends before answering on the fourth ring. Coffee breaks, lunch hours and visits to the ladies room are perfect opportunities for physical activity. Prudden herself takes a kitchen timer to work. Every half hour it goes off — and she does five minutes of exercise on the floor beside her desk!

Sports rate high with this 57 year dynamic grandmother. Skiing, mountain climbing, swimming — she does it all. But she cautions moderation for anyone newly taking up a sport. "You don't join a bike club and go on a 25-mile ride unless you want aching muscles and a sore behind. You ride one mile, slowly, every day. Pretty soon you're up to five, ten miles, and then you can pedal to the next town."

Bonnie Prudden has a missionary zeal about keeping fit and her enthusiasm is infectious. In 1964, her report to President Eisenhower on the comparative fitness of American and European children led to the formation of what is now the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. She now directs her own institute here, having taken time out over the years to write 11 books. Her latest is "How to Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy" (Reader's Digest Press $8.95).

Exercising is now becoming a family responsibility, she says, noting that the economy is forcing education program cuts across the country.

"The mother is the key", she says. She is the one who can get the whole family involved."

Prudden's own mother was not athletic, but she encouraged her two daughters to take lessons "in everything." In turn, Prudden's daughters and grandchildren are skillful in many sports.

"My youth is tied up to exercise," declares Bonnie Prudden. "If you give up — you quit on life. You've got to keep moving." (From the Information Centre on the Mature Woman.)

Family Planning Program Planned for Quinte Area

A family planning program is currently in the growth and development stage at the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

A health unit news release this week said, "Family planning means individuals planning voluntarily to have the number of children they want, when and if they want them. Family planning is often synonymous with conception control."

The release pointed out that at present, the program offers three services to counties residents — information about all eight contraceptive methods; individual counseling on family life, human sexuality and conception control; and dispensing of prescription contraceptives, in cases of financial difficulties, on a referral basis from local physicians.

Program co-ordinator is Gale DePauli, a public health nurse. Services here from and can be obtained through Mrs. DePauli by calling 968-5005, visiting her at her health unit office in the administration building at 208 East Bridge St., in Belleville or by request at individual home visit.

The release noted "Community response is welcome for the program's healthy development."

Books

By And About Women

By Mabel Goode Bowers

The author is a former Director of Home Economics, Textiles and Applied Art, Department of Home Economics, New York University. The book is directed to the serious buyer of furnishings for the home with some or no rudimentary knowledge of the basic rules of home decoration and furnishing. She seeks to establish enough ground rules for the average buyer to avoid the many pitfalls which can be encountered and which can be not only expensive but a source of frustration.

She points out that imagination is a necessary ingredient in home decoration as opposed to merely furnishings. But imagination must be accompanied by taste and tempered by good judgment. These attributes, not necessarily inherent in everyone approaching the subject, can none the less be developed by reading and observation.

Rules and suggestions are made in the areas of planning for room arrangement, colour schemes, fabric use and textures, pattern, and period furniture and appropriate woods. She is not suggesting that this "adherence to principle" should lead to static interior design, but rather as a base to build with one's own creativity and imagination.

Several colour and black and white photographs indicate various styles of period design, and sketches illustrate specific ideas throughout the book.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

Something New In Picton

The Inn on The Bay Tavern has great news for you! They are adding a new wing to their already popular Inn. In the basement of this historic old mansion, there is much sawing and hammering going on these days. And when it's all completed in a few weeks time, you'll be able to visit a quaint, rustic, "old world" pub. The opening date has not yet been announced but keep your eye on this column and we'll keep you posted. This new addition will be just one more excellent meeting place at the Inn on the Bay. The warmth and charm of the dining room and tavern let you relax and thoroughly enjoy yourself. Partake of the hospitality soon, at the Inn on the Bay Tavern, Picton.

Fashions For Everyone

Summer is a time to be happy and cheerful and it really does lift the spirits to buy a new outfit. Sometimes women with a fuller figure have a problem finding something they like. Studio 231, 231 Front St., Belleville has some lovely fashions in sizes 38-44. If you are looking for a long dress, they have quality fashions in a number of styles. Some dresses have shawls and some come with jackets. For less formal occasions you'll find lovely pantsuits with mix or match pants, skirts, shorts and delightful summer tops. All outfits can be bought in coordinating colors. While you're in looking over their latest fashions, be sure to try on one of the new curly wigs in the wig boutique. The wigs need little care and are handy to pop on anytime — an added plus to your summer fun. Check Studio 231 for all your fashion needs.

Happy Anniversary

Just ten years ago, Datsun came to Canada! It's hard to remember back to a time when we didn't see these sturdy little economical cars on the streets and highways. To celebrate this 10th Anniversary, Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. W., Belleville, have a once-in-a-lifetime for you. The momentous occasion will be marked with a dazzling new "Limited Edition" 710 2-door sedan. There will only be 500 of these cars produced. Anyone who wants to own in the market for a new car, you could own one that's truly outstanding. The "Limited Edition" 710 2-door sedan. This 10th Anniversary Medallion inside and out and is loaded with extra special features — radial tires, a super AM/FM radio to keep you enjoyable driving this dashing Datsun which has accenting body stripes and matching wheel cover accents. Make the dream come true. Visit the Datsun sales staff at Vader Car Sales today and make a deal. After all, "all your really need is a Datsun!"

Last Minute Garden Reminder

It still isn't too late to buy those last few bedding plants you've been meaning to get for the garden. Sidney Ian, 283 Dundas St. East, Belleville still has a good selection of plants and shrubs. But you had better hurry for their clearance sale is now on, of all but some plants and shrubs. You'll find lovely annuals to brighten your flower garden and many vegetable plants are still available. Take advantage of this sale while it is on and make the shrubs you've been planning to plant around your home. And for those hot summer days when you head indoors, stock up now on barbecue supplies which are also on sale. For all your shopping needs, seven days a week, don't forget to stop in and meet the friendly folk at Sidney Ian.

A Word To Bird Lovers

The Tropical Gardens Petshop, 201½ Front St., Belleville have a special on this week for the bird fanciers. They have a good selection of budgies, in a variety of lovely colors. With the purchase of a cage, the budgie of your choice will only cost you $2.99. Should you want to buy a budgie without a cage, they are sale priced at $5.50 each. And now a hint for the owners of all pet birds! It is a common practice, but a bad risk, to use newspaper in the bottom of your bird cage. The bird likes to peck at the paper and chew it up. Eventually the ink from newspaper will poison the bird. Use wax paper or commercially made gravel paper to line the bottom of the cage. For your pet supplies or for helpful advice on the care of your pet, stop in and talk to the experts at the Tropical Gardens Petshop.

Music As You Drive

This is the time of year when we often enjoy going for a drive and marvel at the splendor of nature. To add even more to our enjoyment, we often have the car radio tuned to our favorite station. How much greater our pleasure would be if we could tune in on FM stations that have less "chatter", or perhaps listen to the music of our own choice on an eight track tape. If you are considering the purchase of an AM/FM radio and/or a tape deck for your car, get in touch with Superior T.V., 183 Casualties Rd., Belleville. These experienced people will be able to advise you on the correct unit to buy. They carry a line of high quality car radios and tape decks made by Craig. Superior also carry Rodgers-Majestic home stations and stereos — a well known name in radios and televisions for many years. For all your viewing and listening needs, give Superior T.V. a visit today.

A Good Family Home

Roblin Real Estate, 117 N. Front St., Belleville have a good buy for a family looking for a large, older home. This frame house on Station St. is two storey and has four bedrooms upstairs. For the family that is handy with paint brush and hammer, this is a real buy at $22,000. The structure is sound, but the decorating has been neglected for some time. Minor renovations could make this older home the home you've dreamed of owning. The interior has natural wood trim and hardwood and pine floors. There is a large family kitchen. The house, which has a workshop addition on the back, is situated on a large irregular shaped lot. This large family home is liveable and could be worked on gradually as you enjoyed the freedom of owning your own home. Call Roblin Real Estate today, at 968-6475, for an appointment to see this home.

Choose a Short Shag

Buying new carpeting can be a big item on anyone's budget. If you are in the market for carpeting for your home or office, stop in at Wray's Home Furnishers, 206 Front St., Belleville. Right now they have some very good buys in many types of carpet. Shag carpeting is very popular and Wray's have a nylon shag with high density foam cushion backing, on special for $7.95 a sq. yard. The colors are gorgeous and range from tangerine, through red, gold, green, brown and orange. The carpeting is made by Doncrest, comes in 12 foot widths, and can be cut to any shape or size to fit your room. Wray's own experts will install it for you for under ten dollars a square yard. Be sure to visit Wray's for all your carpet needs.

A Timely Gift Suggestion

Mirror, mirror on the wall, will be the finest of them all if it comes from Belleville Glass and Mirror, 354 Pinnacle St., Belleville. This is the time of year when gifts are needed for many occasions. An associate is retiring or relocating at a distance, and you want to remember them with a lasting gift. A young couple is getting married and you'd like to buy them something for their new home. Visit Belleville Glass and Mirror and view their wide range of mirrors which come in many sizes and shapes. They have over seventy different styles of mirrors in various price ranges, consequently there should be a mirror to suit every taste and every budget. Give Belleville Glass and Mirror a visit. They will be most happy to help you choose an appropriate gift.

U.K. Rent Act Blamed For Housing Shortage

LONDON (Reuter) — A furnished apartment, "an old fairly well maintained property, being three bedrooms, kitchen, bathroom, lounge," was advertised for rent in one of London's evening newspapers.

Within a few days, its landlord had received 119 inquiries.

All were from people desperately seeking accommodation in a city with some 100,000 empty houses and flats.

The story is typical one in London—and much of the blame is being laid on government legislation intended to help those very same people.

The 1974 Rent Act prevents landlords from evicting tenants without a court order—which can only be given in restricted circumstances, such as bad behavior by the tenant or if the landlord needs the property to live in himself.

When the act was passed last year, it was hailed as the scourge of the bullying landlord who charged exorbitant rents and forced tenants out if they could not pay.

Since then, however, it has been widely criticized as frightening landlords into refusing to rent their property.

Among those hardest hit are youngsters who flock to London in search of fame and fortune. As landlords refuse to let property, these single people often find their only home is a park bench.

Criticism of the Rent Act has come not just from landlords, but from agencies which have to find the homeless somewhere to live. An official of one agency commented:

"The act was a noble effort to help thousands of families in rented accommodation. But in fact it is causing the supply of rented property to dry up."

Landlords put it more strongly.

One, an 81-year-old woman who owns 50 apartments in south London, said: "We want to stop the government crucifying landlords.

"We are going to march, march, march in protest because they aren't leave us alone. Although I am 81, I will march until I drop dead."

Some landlords prefer to let to tenants who may not want to remain long, which makes it easier for foreigners coming here on a non-permanent basis, to find somewhere to live.

Statistics on homelessness show the immensity of the problem.

Thousands of people move to the capital each year looking for better jobs and wages, and many Londoners already have nowhere to live. This has pushed the number of homeless in the city to an estimated 70,000 or 80,000.

Local authorities already have an almost unsupportable burden in the more than 200,000 people unsatisfactorily housed who are on waiting lists for homes the councils provide.

But not all are united in condemnation of the Rent Act. Some agencies helping the homeless are among its strongest defenders.

"The harrowing stories of those who can't find somewhere to live are stories that we would be hearing anyway because of Britain's housing problems," one official said.

"There has been a long-term decline in the number of private homes available for rent for economic reasons. Landlords can't get a reasonable rate of return on their properties without charging rents which no one can pay."

Shelter, the major housing charity which finds homes for thousands in Britain every year, also sees the benefits of the act.

"Families living in rented have been helped enormously," a Shelter spokesman said. "The number of evictions reported to us have decreased substantially.

"What is needed is a policy to provide the extra homes that London lacks. The Rent Act, giving security, should be just one part of a co-ordinated housing policy."

New Cookbook For Disabled

LONDON (CP) — Three women have produced a book which sets out to solve many of a disabled person's problems and is described by the Disabled Living Foundation as the first of its kind in Europe.

Entitled Kitchen Sense for Disabled and Elderly People, it is the result of wide inquiries at hospitals and centres for the disabled and elderly in which the three authors found how these people cope with the daily problems of living.

The editor is Sidney Foott, former education officer at the Design Council, who suffers from rheumatoid arthritis. Marian Lane, an occupational therapist, and Jill Mara, a home economist, helped write the book, published in Britain by William Heinemann Medical Books Ltd.

It covers such topics as the arrangement and equipping of a kitchen, diet and menus, short cuts in cooking and serving, recipes, shopping, and other means of getting food such as the "meals on wheels" service.

Prisoners Work Way To Release

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin prisoners are being given a "MAP" to guide them back to society—a legal contract with the state that can mean rehabilitation, training and an early release.

MAP stands for the Mutual Agreement Program and Wisconsin was the first state to obtain a federal grant to operate it experimentally. That was three years ago, and in the interim it has developed into standard operating procedure for the department of health and social services, which oversees the state's division of corrections.

Several other states are in the experimental stage of MAP, said project director Donald Clark, "but they all came here first to studyours."

Prisoners, prison officials and state corrections officers are enthusiastic about the program.

MAP permits prisoners at every major state penal institution to sit down with prison and corrections officials and prepare a personalized vocational-rehabilitation program that includes a target release date.

If they meet their program's goals, they are released, usually between two and four months earlier than they would get out on parole, Clark said.

"I think the idea is great," said Ramon Gray, warden at the state prison at Waupun. "It's innovative, and it should provide an extra spark of motivation for the men involved.

"A man can see the regular parole board, then, depending on what it says, he may not be back before it for a year. The men have often said they wish they knew where they were going and when, and this gives them a target date.

"Then they can't say, 'Well, I'd be out of here if it wasn't for the parole board.'"

Clark said the target dates "are pretty specific, and we have to stick to the schedule.

"We sit down and decide if we can deliver the services this guy asks for. The motivation to complete the program is greater than with parole because they were a part of planning it."

Clark said the state had written 251 contracts as of March 31, with 12 successfully completed and most of the remainder under way.

"There have been some failures but I believe at least 85 per cent of those that started are still working on completing their agreement, which takes up to two years."

He estimated that 70 per cent of Wisconsin's prison population is eligible for the program. It excludes prisoners in for life terms, murder or sex crimes. Also excluded are those with out-of-state warrants awaiting their release.

CP News Roundup

Rent Bill Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — A decision by a legislature committee on Toronto's controversial rent control bill was postponed Wednesday after Mayor David Crombie proposed amendments to the bill.

The amendments would allow a tenant to seek a hearing from a tribunal only if a rent increase has surpassed the consumer price index of the previous 12 months.

A tenant paying rent of $200 a month and faced with a 19-per-cent rise in the index during the last 12 months could only apply for a hearing if the rent were raised more than $30 a month.

The amendments also propose that rent increases are not to be paid until the tribunal makes a decision.

Morgentaler Not Sorry

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler said in court Wednesday he did not regret having performed an abortion on a 13-year-old girl.

"I hav'-seen her here in good health and happily married which is much better than seeing her on the dissecting table at the morgue," he said, in testifying in his defence.

Dr. Morgentaler is charged with performing an illegal abortion.

Malpractice Alternative

SASKATOON (CP) — A compensation scheme for persons who suffer injury or disability as a result of medical treatment could avoid malpractice court actions, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday.

He told the eighth annual convention of the Canadian Hospital Association that he is concerned about an increase in malpractice suits against doctors, particularly in the U.S., as it could affect the quality of service.

Balloon Crosses Lake

LONG POINT, Ont. (CP) — Bob Sparks of New Jersey set his hot-air balloon down safely Wednesday in Ripley, N.Y., two hours and forty minutes after taking off from here at 10:25 a.m.

Mr. Sparks travelled the 48 miles across Lake Erie at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

He intends to cross Lake Ontario in the balloon Friday, departing from Oshawa, Ont.

Mr. Sparks, part of a national tour of a woman and three men sponsored by a tobacco company to promote hot-air ballooning, is scheduled to embark on his second attempted crossing of the Atlantic Ocean by balloon on July 4. A previous attempt, in August, 1973, was unsuccessful.

Long Point is 30 miles northwest of Simcoe.

Information Frozen

PETERBOROUGH, ot. (CP) — The Workman's Compensation Board (WCB) Wednesday put a freeze on all further information about asbestosis claims at Raybestos-Manhattan of Canada Co. Ltd.

Jack Hollingsworth, board information officer, said it would not release any more information about the lung disease claims until a "clear and consistent report" could be made.

Mackasey Blamed

OTTAWA (CP) — The national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said Wednesday post office managers have engaged in a campaign of intimidation and coercion against members of his union.

Joe Davidson presented a news conference with a 10-point list of allegations which he said was proof of the intimidation campaign.

He also said he was misinterpreted in a May 29 statement to reporters in which he said: "If the public won't see the justice of our cause, then to hell with the public."

Mr. Davidson said Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey has been spreading lies about postal workers, saying some of the postal clerks and mail sorters in Montreal are "goons" who have been employing violence.

The union intended to lay charges against Montreal supervisor alleged to have threatened employees with a knife during recent disputes over the use of casual non-union labor, he said.

General Still Here

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has not decided whether to deport former South Vietnamese Gen. Dang Van Quang, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday.

The former general entered Canada in mid-May from a United States refugee camp on a one-year ministerial permit. Several sources have alleged he was linked with widespread corruption and narcotics trafficking in Vienan.

No Evidence of Tainted Meat in Quinte Area Says Inspector

By ROBIN CHASE

There is no reason to believe that tainted meat is being sold at the retail level in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, says Lloyd Ellenton, chief public health inspector for the counties health unit.

He told The Intelligencer in an interview this week, "no, we haven't found any sign of it."

Mr. Ellenton said he has received a memorandum from Dr. Frank Martin, provincial minister of health, advising Ontario's public health inspectors to take extra special care during inspections of establishments which sell meat.

Concern has mounted due to a recent allegation during a Quebec inquiry into organized crime in that province that meat from dead and diseased animals is being sold to consumers in the two provinces.

"I have no reason to believe there's any coming in," Mr. Ellenton emphasized, adding that the unit has not discovered uninspected meat (federally or provincially stamped) in four years.

He explained two problems facing the inspectors. One involves cured meats of the type used by delicatessens.

Mr. Ellenton noted this type of meat is packaged in boxes and upon receipt by retailers, is sliced and placed in trayed-eyes. He said the boxes, which carry the stamps of approval, are discarded for waste disposal and unless inspectors can find these boxes, there is no way to determine whether the meat was inspected by higher government authorities.

A switch by other retailers, including large grocery store chains, to ordering smaller sizes of beef, represents the other problem, Mr. Ellenton pointed out.

These establishments used to receive whole sides of beef which there were three stamps — one on the loin, another on the hip and the third on the fore-quarters, he said.

Now they receive the beef in a "knock-down condition," commented Mr. Ellenton. He said a 70-pound chunk might not show a stamp.

In outlining the situation during the regular monthly meeting of the counties board of health held on Wednesday in Belleville, Mr. Ellenton noted that under the meat inspection act of the federal department of agriculture and food, it is illegal to sell meat at the retail level which has not been supervised during slaughter by government inspectors.

Health Unit Nurses Accept New Contract

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health ratified Wednesday a new contract with its nurses, members of Local 31 of the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) — a pact which brings the counties health unit nurses almost in line with salaries of nurses at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

The one-year contract, settled last Thursday following the provincial appointment of a conciliator, is retroactive to March 3 of this year and will expire on March 1, 1976.

Registered nurses will receive $12,344 as of March 2 and $12,684 on Aug. 1 with five increments of $334 and two increments of $360. The previous range was $7,840-$9,520.

And registered nursing assistants will receive $7,500 as of March 2 and $7,840 on Aug. 1 with five increments of $200. The previous range was $5,992-$6,832.

The anniversary increments mean that all nurses who were hired prior to Oct. 1, 1974 will have incremental increases effective on Jan. 1 of each year, previous to one on or after Oct. 1, 1974 will have incremental increases on the first year period following their anniversary date.

Marsha Olinski, vice-president of the ONA local, said in an interview although the new contract approaches salaries at BGH, it will fall behind again after July when the present contract of hospital nurses on a province-wide basis terminates. "Really, we're a year behind in salaries," she commented.

Also in the new contract, the nurses' premium daily rate will be computed by dividing the old daily rate by the old full-time minimum rate and multiplying by the new full-time minimum rate.

Regarding placement on the new increment scale, nurses who have been at maximum for one or more years shall be placed in the appropriate level of the new scale retroactive to March 2.

Car allowance will be amended from eight cents to 11 cents per mile, effective the date of ratification.

The degree allowance will be increased to $100 retroactive to March 2.

In addition, the nurses will receive overtime and compensating time at the rate of time and one-half for "meetings related to community health, (including prenatal classes and emergency visits outside the work period."

New Levels Announced

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health approved on Wednesday new salary packages for its non-unionized personnel at the counties health unit.

The salary ranges with old figures in brackets are as follows:

Director of Nursing (retroactive to June 1, of this year) — $17,000-$19,625 ($12,320-$14,820).

Supervisor of Nursing (retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year) — $14,000-$16,000 ($11,025-$12,025).

Dental Hygienist (retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year) — $11,000 - $12,500 ($9,400-$9,900).

Dental Assistant (retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year) — $7,200-$8,800 ($5,700-$7,200).

Public Health Inspector (retroactive Jan. 1) —$11,000-$13,125 ($8,500-$10,625).

Senior Public Health Inspector (retro Jan. 1) — 12,325-$14,575 ($10,250-$12,500).

Chief Public Health Inspector (retro Jan 1) — $14,400-$17,025) ($11,950-$14,575).

Settlement Reached

Marsha Olinski (left), vice-president of Local 31 of the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) and Marmora Reve Jack Reynolds, chairman of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health, peruse wage settlement reached by the two groups here last Thursday. The board ratified the settlement on Wednesday.

Family Planning Draws Growing Support: Lenk

The new family planning program being administered by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit is attracting support from family physicians throughout the two counties, says Dr. C.R. Lenk, medical officer of health for the unit.

We have received a very favorable response from the family practitioners," he told the counties board of health during its regular monthly meeting held on Wednesday in Belleville.

Dr. Lenk has sent letters to physicians in the two counties regarding the program, a project he said he discussed with representatives of the medical profession several years ago.

His letter to the family doctors says there will be no family planning clinics and "necessary examinations and prescriptions" will be left to family physicians and appropriate specialists.

The letter adds the main thrust will be through "intensified propaganda" via the media, meetings "and if necessary, home visits and private interviews."

Dr. Lenk's letter announces the health unit's intention "to provide prescribed drugs and appliances free of charge" and he expands on this point in a second letter dated May 26.

"Should you feel that anticonceptive measures you prescribe constitute a financial burden to some of your patients, please send such patients to us and we shall provide the drugs for other devices free."

In his first letter, Dr. Lenk also points that in rare cases when the family physician's services are not feasible due to no family doctor, refusal, to see a doctor or the doctor "considers such activities to be against his religious convictions," the unit would "undertake direct referrals."

Dr. Lenk told the board that Gale DeDuil, the public health nurse in charge of the program, is "very busy in the initial stages" by meeting with school authorities in both counties and other officials. There have been several referrals already, he said.

He said meetings have been held with boards of education in both counties regarding a school program and described them as "interesting."

Reeve Barbara Allen, board member from Tweed, said Dr. Lenk should be congratulated "for dealing with a sensitive situation in a diplomatic and tactful manner."

Cost of Labor Course Draws Complaint

A Canadian Labor Congress area representative is questioning tuition fees at Loyalist College — fees he says are nearly twice as high as another area college.

Loyalist College administrators recently announced a labor course will be offered at the college beginning this September and will give students a complete history of Canadian labor.

Henry Nolan, of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the course is a "valuable one" and that all labor council members would benefit from it.

But, he adds "the course should be as cheap as reasonably possible."

A written release from the college states the credit course will run for 10 nights will cost $27.50.

Mr. Nolan said a similar course offered at Peterborough's Sir Sandford Fleming costs students $20.

"The course should pay for itself but it shouldn't make money," said Mr. Nolan.

The release mentioned said Wednesday she had no information about the course but that courses cost about 40 cents an hour to the student.

Parents View OSD In Full Operation

Belleville residents had opportunity Wednesday to see the Sir James Whitney School (OSD) in operation.

The annual open house attracted local residents as well as out-of-town parents of OSD students to view the junior school, the senior school, the vocational school and the sports centre in operation.

Visitors to the school could see the students during their class periods. Since 1973 the school, along with other provincial schools for the deaf, has adopted the communication method known as the Rochester Method or "visible English."

This method is basically a combination of fingerspelling and lipreading. Visitors got to see this method learning Wednesday. People also viewed the new infirmary which was opened in February of 1972.

Teaching Art to Deaf Requires Special Skills

Art instructor Ken Graham has an added problem in teaching his subject — his students are deaf or hearing impaired.

The 41-year-old native of Ottawa has been teaching at James Whitney School (OSD) for the past 23 years and for the last seven he has specialized in art at the senior level.

He teaches art, which requires an understanding of concepts," said Mr. Graham, who specializes in design. He was instrumental in setting up the senior art course for student between the age of 14 to 18 at the school.

He said the lack of comprehensive vocabulary makes his job more difficult but through the use of finger spelling and demonstration Mr. Graham believes he is having some success.

One of his graduate, Joyce Rogers, a deaf student from Trenton, now is in her second year at a design course at George Brown Applied College of Arts and Technology at Toronto. Mr. Graham said school officials recognized her talent and she now is learning to cope with a hearing environment.

Mr. Graham teaches small classes due to this communication problem and finds it quite satisfactory. His classes have between five and 10 students.

"Art can be particularly important to the deaf because it is a means of expressing themselves," said Mr. Graham. "It can teach deaf students to express their feelings."

Sir James Whitney School has three art department levels, junior, elementary and senior. It is possible for a deaf student to take art right through his or her education.

Teaching Design

Art instructor Ken Graham, at the Sir James Whitney School (OSD), uses fingerspelling to discuss a recent design by OSD student Wayne Zito, from Ottawa. Belleville residents had an opportunity Wednesday to view the art school at OSD as well as other parts of the school during the annual open house.

Martin Tops At Shorthand

A Grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary School took top honors in the National Pitman Shorthand competition held recently at this school.

Lois Martin, 18, of 191 Palmer Rd., had a perfect score in the 100-words-per minute category. She will receive a cup and the school will get a plaque in honor of her achievement.

Another Quinte student Debbie Woods, a grade 11 students, placed runner-up in the 60-words-per minute category. Each school across Canada administered the tests on an individual basis.

Quinte teacher July Hull taught both of these students.

Court Costs Discussed

Chief Douglas Crosbie of Belleville city police and provincial Judge J.L. Clendenning have agreed on a means by which to reduce the amount of court time in a recent study of traffic court here.

Chief Crosbie told the police commission meeting on Wednesday that liquor court and highway traffic court are currently held first, followed up with bylaw court which is prosecuted by a member of the city hall staff.

He said he, Judge Clendenning and Wilbur Purcell, city manager, believe the courts could be more sufficiently handled by one person — the current court officer.

"Then cases would be called in by classification, but by each officer," he commented. "In other words, all his court appearances, provincial statutes and bylaw cases would be heard together and his court appearance would be compiled and it would usually then not be necessary for an afternoon appearance."

Chief Crosbie noted that an afternoon court appearance for a first-class constable is $28.46.

He said, "however, to place this extra work and responsibility on the court officer is in my opinion worthy of an additional annual allowance, while holding the position of court officer."

Chief Crosbie also said the province will be asked to appoint a civilian prosecutor as is in use in Ottawa and Toronto. He said this would replace the police prosecutor and Crown attorneys and relieve them of the heavy court burden.

Car Rolls, Driver Hurt

BRIGHTON — A Brighton man was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital with lacerations after his car rolled over about 10 miles east of here.

In a satisfactory condition in hospital is Gary Kalvin Pulford, 19, of RR 4, Brighton.

Brighton OPP said today the Pulford vehicle was westbound on the Stockdale Crossing a transport truck and veered into the median and rolled over. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

Smith in Resolutions

Ald. Jean Smith of Belleville City Council, president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health, will assume the responsibility of chairman of resolutions for the Association of Boards of Health of Ontario (ABHO). Her announcement was made during the regular monthly meeting of the counties board of health held on Wednesday in Belleville.

White to Speak

William B. White, a professional engineer and president of Bel-Ora Engineering Ltd., a design-build contracting firm located at the Belleville Plaza, will be the guest speaker at next Tuesday's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at 12.15 p.m. in the Kiwanis Centre at 118 East Dundas St.

Appeal Tops Mark

Capt Robert Sloos of the Salvation Army corps in Belleville announced this week during a Kiwanis Club of Belleville meeting that the month-long Red Shield campaign during May "went over the top." He said detailed results, will be publicized in the near future.

Inspections Increase

There were 168 inspections of food premises during May in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, says Lloyd Ellenton, chief public health inspector for the counties health unit. He told the regular monthly meeting of the counties board of health held on Wednesday in Belleville that there were only 14 inspections during May, 1971.

Sale Postponed

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville has postponed its garage sale at the Belleville Plaza, originally scheduled for this month, until sometime in autumn. It was explained this week that club member are engaged in so many activities that the sale might suffer. The money-making scheme provides funds for Kiwanis community work.

Ex Nears

With only one exhibition this year, instead of the two last year, Lyle Vanclief, president of the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway, believes "a good variation" of entertainment will be offered to the public. With the majority of the plans arranged, only the finer details are left, he said.

The fair opens June 11 at 5 p.m. with the official opening at 9 a.m. at the grandstand show.

Vanclief said the grandstand will present a Heavy and Light Horse Draw which Mr. Vanclief said he expects to be "an excellent match." Along with this, an aerial trapeze act, the Three Albanis, will perform nightly.

Other highlights at the grandstand will be a demolition derby, open to the first 40 cars arriving before 7 p.m. Thursday night; The Carlings-O'Keefe Invitational harness race on Friday; a horse show on Saturday; and a rodeo Sunday.

A Conklin midway will be in operation for the entire fair, offering some new rides.

Live entertainment will be presented at both the curling rink and Ben Bleecker building at special times during the day. They will range from musical groups to exhibitions of horsemanship.

Another special attraction for the younger set, is the Kenden Petting Zoo.

This year as last, Tiny Tots (Baby Show) will be held in the lounge of the curling club.

Prices for each day which includes return privileges at the Bridge-Yeoman gate, free admission to the Grandstand show, and general entertainment other than the midway, are adults — $1.50; students, (other than elementary), $1; and juniors (up until 4 p.m.), free. The charge for vehicles will be 50 cents. A special reduced fare will be in effect Sunday for a family and car, with lower fares on the rides for the children.

Intelligencer Team Having its Problems

It doesn't appear as though The Intelligencer can buy a win in the Belleville Industrial Softball League. In action Wednesday night The Intell dropped its fourth straight, this one by a 7-6 score to UIC.

In the other contest played Wednesday night, Post Office bounced back from a 3-6 defeat to nip the Independents 4-3. The Intell racked up a 3-5 record in their first five games this season, but haven't won one since.

It was a one-hitter battle Wednesday night with UIC tallying the winner in the bottom of the seventh.

Rick Sullivan and Joe Scanlon threw the win. They combined to fan four, while walking a pair and giving up six distance on The Intell's mound. He was touched for 11 safeties.

Ron Jury led eight winners at the plate with a pair of doubles and collected three RBI's, and scored the winning run.

Bill Healy added a double, Bob Robb a triple and Dave Halladay and Peter Lloyd a pair of single each.

For The Intelligencer, Eric Williams cranked a triple and Maurice Switzer and Bill Cooney singled twice each.

The Independents counted three runs in the first two innings, but were shut out the rest of the way by Post Office hurler, Norm Lockhart.

The Posties ripped away at the 3-0 lead, retaliating with one in the second, two in the third and the winner in the fifth.

Lockhart fanned nine and walked one while giving up six hits. Paul Trumpour took the loss. He struck out five, walked three and allowed eight hits.

Jim Marriott had a double and a single for the winners and Lockhart helped himself to the win with a double.

For the Independents, Doug McKay pounded a home run and singled and Ron Fuller doubled.

Goalie Pots Winner

TRENTON — A goaltender turned centre forward pulled out a win for Chisena Finance in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play at Centennial Park here, Wednesday night.

Terry Hore, regular goalie with the Trenton club, switched places with centre forward Henry Somerveld during the second half and the move paid off when Hore clicked for the winner in a narrow 5-1 win over Brighton.

Both the winners' goals were set up by perfectly placed throw-ins by Len Taft.

On the game winner, Taft hit Sandy Duchart who headed the ball to Hore and it was in the net.

Earlier, Taft propelled the ball between two Brighton defenders where Dave Webster took control and found the mark to make it a 1-1 score.

Brighton started with a rush and was rewarded with the first goal of the match when Den Armstrong cashed a well-placed centre.

Shawn Hamilton, in goal for Brighton, was left on his own for much of the second half. He had little help as Chisena' forwards broke in alone in twos and threes. But the goalkeeper managed to keep his club in the game.

At Warkworth, it was John O'Neil night.

The clever Belleville Olympics' centre forward connected for all his team's goals in a 5-1 win, the club's second victory in as many starts.

Warkworth made it interesting for half the match, closing the gap to 3-1 on a goal by Comanche after Olympics had struck twice early. But after the interval, O'Neil and his mates took command.

Secondary-striker Bruce Mohr played another strong game for Olympics at his halfback position. He had a hand in four of the winners' goals.

Young Athletes Show Their Stuff

BANCROFT: — More than 150 North Hastings elementary school students participated in an area associated school group track and field day here on Wednesday.

The youngsters between 10 and 12 years of age participated in the various events on the grounds of North Hastings High School.

Included in the events were 100, 400 and 80 metre races, hurdles, high jump, long jump and discus.

The winners for the day were Geraldine Vader of Paudash in the atom girls division with 13 points; Eddie Reinhardt and Rolan Kahler of Bancroft tied in atom boys; Lorraine Godrey of Bancroft and Edith Bancroft of Maynooth tied as peewee girls' champs with 13 points and Jackie Dwan of Hermon as Peewee boys' champs with 13 points.

The atom boys champs, Eddie Reinhardt and Roland Kahler each had 15 points which was a perfect score for the day.

One-hitter for Fleming In Ladies' Softball

Sandra Fleming fired a one-hitter at Lakeside Oxygen as Purinettes scored a 20-1 Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League win, Wednesday, at Alemite Park.

In the other half of the twin bill, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Bank of Montreal 6-0 defeat of Mobil Chemical.

In her winning mint, Fleming cut third strikes past nine batters and did not issue a walk. She lost her bid for a shutout in the bottom of the fifth and final inning. Norma McGuarrie took the loss.

Jane Bailey belted a home run, triple and single for the winners. Carol Bedore checked in with a homer and two doubles. Carol Holland had two doubles and a single.

Following the pattern of their earlier victories, the BYBF girls jumped in front early to take charge in the win over Mobil. The winners led 3-1 after two innings but then, there was little to choose between the two clubs.

Shirley Gulliver got the win, scattering 10 hits while striking out four and walking two. Losing pitcher Alleen Barr surrendered 14 hits, three one and walked two.

Helen DeMille had three BYBF safeties. Supplying two each were Sheila Smith, Sharon Alexander, Carole McFarlane and Nacy Bjich. Mary Reid connected for a double.

Lynn Wood hammered a triple and single in defeat. Barr doubled and singled Heather Sinclair and Ginny Irwin each poked two singles. Bonnie McEwen stroked a double.

Tennis Instruction Available in City

The Belleville Recreation Department will again be running a tennis program during this summer. The courts at Dick Ellis Rink will be the site. The course runs for three weeks.

Jack Frame will handle the instruction. The course is strictly for advanced players and those with a background in the sport — preferably those who have already taken the Recreation Department's beginner's course.

Enrolment, for the five-lesson course is $12. Each session is two hours long and classes are Saturday, Tuesday and Wednesdays.

For further information, or enrolment in the program contact the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. Phone 968-6481 and request Recreation.

Lucky Says Messersmith

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Messersmith was lucky in the Montreal Expos game except with the hitting he got wed the war of the starters, but

ANDY MESSERSMITH

Dennis Blair of the Expos pro- tings except with the hitting he got Los Angeles downed Montreal 3-9 in a National League baseball game Wednesday night.

Blair, 3-7, left with five hitless innings after giving up the game's only runs as he walked pitches and a sacrifice fly. Messersmith, 8-2, went the distance and considered himself fortunate.

"I was lucky to get the shutout," the Dodgers ace said. "I was in trouble every inning. My control was bad. You have to take them as they come."

Blair, on the other hand, concentrated his troubles in the fifth inning. He hit leadoff batter Ron Cey with a pitch before striking out Steve Yeager. Rick Auerbach then hit into what should have been a fielder's choice, but second baseman Larry Lintz dropped third baseman Pat Scanlon's throw trying for a double play.

Messersmith drew a walk to race load the bases and Blair wildpitched home a run before walking Dave Lopes to load the bases again. Blair then threw another wild pitch for the second run and Bill Buckner followed with a sacrifice fly.

Lopes was caught stealing to end the inning.

Don Carrithers, re-acquired from the International League Memphis Blues on Tuesday, took over in the sixth when Blair left the game with a bloser on his pitching hand. Carrithers, who threw another two hitless innings, said he not aware of the no-hit pitching by Blair.

CONNORS WINS

CHICHESTER, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors quickly disposed of New Zealand's Nick Boyse in second-round action at a lawn tennis tournament Wednesday. The 22-year-old America, who has already won more than $760,000 this year, thrashed Boyse, 6-1 6-1.

Dodge the Ball Name of Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Diego's Bill Greif played his-and-run against Philadelphia Phillies but slugger Greg Luzinski wasn't playing.

The Padres and the Phils co-formed their games with an exchange of baseball Wednesday night. First Greif hit Philadelphia's Dave Cash in the sixth. Then Tug McGraw threw close to San Diego's John Grubb in the seventh. When Greif fired one over Luzinski's head in the bottom of the seventh, the big outfielder charged the mound.

"I hit him a few times," said Luzinski. "He was looking for help. What I said to him isn't printable."

Both teams emptied their benches, there was a lot of milling around and shoving, but the only casualty was Padre third baseman Ted Kubiak who caught an elbow on the head.

The umpires, surprisingly, decided not to kick anyone out of the game.

"They were two people wanting to start," explained plate umpire Doug Harvey. "Just let 'em go at each other. We surrounded the group looking for cheap shots. A cheap shot and the man goes."

No one went. Philadelphia won the baseball game 7-2.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Cincinnati Reds 5-1, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Montreal Expos 3-0, New York Mets defeated Houston Astros 1-0, St. Louis Cardinals beat Atlanta Braves 5-3 and San Francisco Giants outslugged Chicago Cubs 10-8.

Mike Schmidt and Ollie Brown homered for the Phils and Wayne Twitchell, 4-6, was the winner. Schmidt's homer was his 10th of the season and fourth in the last three games.

Pittsburgh's Jerry Reuss hurled an-hit ball until Dave Concepcion smashed a single off his right shin with one out in the seventh. Reuss had to leave the game but Steve Guetti and Ramon Hernandez held the Reds in check. Al Oliver's sacrifice fly in the first and Richie Zisk's home run in the fifth accounted for the Pirates' scoring.

New York's Jerry Koosman allowed Houston only five hits and Ed Kranepool singled in the game's only run in the first inning. Koosman raised his record to 5-3 with his 20th career win. Kranepool had three hits to raise his batting average to .412.

Reggie Smith broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run triple in the eighth and then scored on Ken Reitz' single for St. Louis. Lou Brock reached all the way home from first on a single by Luis Melendez for another Cardinal run. John Curtis, 3-3, won it with relief help from Al Hrabosky.

Bucs Like Yogi's Son

NEW YORK (AP) — If manager Yogi Berra of New York Mets wants to congratulate his son, Dale, on being chosen in the first round of baseball's free agent draft Wednesday, he has commissioner Bowie Kuhn's permission to write him a letter.

"I would emphasize that your representatives are not to discuss negotiations by a player with another club," the baseball commissioner warned the 24 major league clubs before Wednesday's draft got started. "If you want to congratulate a player, write him a letter. Any personal contact will be viewed with suspicion."

Yogi's 18-year-old son was picked in the first round of the draft, but not by the Mets. Instead, the Montclair, N.J., high school shortstop was grabbed by Pittsburgh Pirates after the Mets had decided instead to choose a high school catcher Alfred Benton of Tallahassee, Fla.

Young Berra batted .320 this season with 28 hits in 100 at bats, including 10 home runs. But he may not be ready to turn pro. He's had baseball scholarship offers from Arizona State, Miami and Seton Hall among others and football offers from Ohio State and Notre Dame. His older brother, Tim, was a rookie second baseman for the National Football League Baltimore Colts last season.

Blue Moon Odom Making His Point

John (Blue Moon) Odom made a strong pitch for more money Wednesday night. In fact, he made several strong pitches.

Odom, fighting with Cleveland Indians for a higher salary, added weight to his argument with a 4-0 shutout over Kansas City Royals.

"I had to prove something out there tonight," said Odom after his sparkling two-hitter. "I had to show them I could go out and pitch. I think other ballclubs are looking at me."

Odom, traded May 22 to the Indians from Oakland A's, was immediately unhappy with the salary paid him at Cleveland. He claimed that the Indians have to make up for playoff and World Series money he might get with baseball's defending champion A's, which amounts to about $8,000. Odom had been with the A's in their last three championship years.

Odom said that if the Indians don't cough up the money he wants, he'd like to leave Cleveland and would prefer to either be traded to Texas Rangers, or go back to Oakland.

In other American League games, Boston Red Sox edged Chicago White Sox 7-5, Texas beat Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 12 innings, New York Yankees defeated Minnesota Twins 6-3, California Angels edged Detroit Tigers 3-1 and Oakland beat Milwaukee Brewers 11-3.

Home runs by Bong Powell, John Lowenstein and Alan Ashby backed Odom's pitching. The right-handed held the Royals hitless until the sixth inning, although men reached base on walks in the second, third and fifth.

In the sixth, Jim Wohlford walked and with one out, singles by Hal McRae and John Mayberry loaded the bases. However, Odom, 7-2, got Harmon Killebrew on a called third strike and George Brett grounded out to end the inning.

Powell's home run came in the first inning with Rick Manning on base. Lowenstein hacked at Powell's homer with his own into the same spot in the right-field stands, giving the Indians a 3-0 first-inning lead.

Davis Packs His Bags

BALTIMORE (AP) — Texas Rangers traded outfielder Willie Davis to St. Louis Cardinals on Wednesday in exchange for shortstop Ed Brinkman and right-handed pitcher Tommy Moore.

Davis failed to accompany the Rangers to Baltimore when they opened a road trip Tuesday, and officials of the American League baseball club had said he would be traded rather than be suspended.

Texas manager Billy Martin acknowledged that the Rangers were overloaded with infielders but added:

"I got him because he's a proven player—his record speaks for itself. He's a great job for me in Detroit."

Moore will be assigned to the Rangers' Spokane farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Davis was hitting .300 in 42 games for Texas. A veteran of 15 major league seasons, he was traded during the off-season to Texas from Montreal Expos following 14 seasons with Los Angeles Dodgers.

SOMETHING GREAT IS COMING...

LABATT'S BLUE 500 WEEKEND

MOSPORT JUNE 13-14-15 1975

IT'S ON AGAIN!

This weekend gets this summer off to a flying start. And lets you be part of a combined road race and happening that's become a Mosport tradition.

You'll see some of the world's greatest drivers in two spectacular main events. At the same time you'll be soaking up a little country sunshine, and if you bring your tent, some fire-light and starshine as well. And a free film festival thrown in.

FRIDAY

Thursday's full day of qualifying. You'll see all of the cars in action, and get to see the drivers up close. You'll also have time to pick out a campsite, and unwind.

SATURDAY

Saturday's the new this year... the I.M.S.A. G.T. event.

You'll see top drivers in Porsches, Corvettes, BMW's, Ferraris, Camaros, Capris and Monzas — high-performance versions of the cars you see on the road, pushed to their limits. It's a very special kind of excitement.

At night, you can relax at the free film festival, a traditional highlight of the Labatt's Blue weekend.

It's a great way to make new friends.

SUNDAY

Sunday's the big one!

The Formula 5000 — the major road-racing series in North America, attracting the biggest names in racing. Indy winners; Andretti, Rutherford and the Unser brothers. Can-Am champion Jackie Oliver. Last year's 5000 champion Brian Redman. Canadians Eppie Wetzer and Horst Kroll. This is motor racing at its fiercest.

COMPLETE SATURDAY AFTERNOON the three-day Superticket. That way you see everything, and enjoy the camping, free firewood and water, free movies and fun to the full.

Individual day tickets for each of the three days are also available.

THE LABATT'S BLUE 500 WEEKEND

Tell everyone you know you are going to be there.

You should be one of them.

Thunder Bay Golf Leader

ASHBURN, Ont. (CP) — Mark Shenback of Thunder Bay, Ont., was round in 67 and 74 Wednesday and combined to lead a group of 16 golfers claiming 10 qualifying cards on the Canadian professional tour.

Shenback, 24, a graduate of Arizona State University, ran his four-round total to 267 on the par-72 Thunderbird Golf and Country Club course.

That put him five strokes ahead of the next nearest contender, Tim McCutcheon of Toronto, who shot 72 and 70 for 272.

The 16 pros prospects go through another two rounds today and must emerge with an average of 78 strokes for each round played. The leading qualifier will win a $1,000 bursary to help pay his tour expenses.

CFL All-stars Face Montreal Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Full-back George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, Wednesday announced members of the team that will face defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes in the sixth annual all-star game here June 24.

Ray Jasch, whose Edmonton Eskimos lost last season's Grey Cup game to the Alouettes, will coach the 22-man all-star roster. Marv Levy will be back at the helm for the Montreal club. The Alouettes are allowed to carry 36 players for the game.

The following lineup was announced:

Offense: Centre—Bob Swift, Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Guards—Curtis Wester, B.C. Lions; Ed Chalupka, Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Tackles—Bill Martin, Edmonton Eskimos. Tight end—Tony Bell, end—Tom Forzani, Calgary Stampeders; Flanker—John Young, B.C. Lions. Running backs—George Reed, Saskatchewan Roughriders; Leo Harris, B.C. Lions; Andy Hopkins, Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Edmonton Eskimos.

Also selected were:

Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan as backup to Wilkinson at quarterback; Rudy Linterman of the Stampeders as a receiver and running back; Jim Hughes of the Stampeders as a spare defensive lineman; Tuufuli Uperesa of Winnipeg as a spare offensive lineman; Calgary's Basil Bark as backup centre, Sam Cvijanovich of Argos as fourth linebacker, and George Campbell of Hamilton as an additional defensive halfback.

Zenon Andrusyshyn of the Argos will handle the punting and place-kicking chores for the all-star squad.

NORM ULLMAN

Ullman, Shack Clear Waivers

TORONTO (CP) — Veterans Norm Ullman and Eddie Shack have been given unconditional release by Toronto Maple Leafs and are free to negotiate with any team, a spokesman for the National Hockey League team said Wednesday.

The two players were placed on waivers last week and were able to any NHL team for the $100 claiming price.

"The fact they cleared waivers through the other 17 teams doesn't mean nobody wants them," the spokesman said. "All it means is that they now have the opportunity to working out their own deals."

Ullman, 39, a 20-year NHL veteran, had just completed a three-year contract with the Leafs that called for an estimated $100,000 a year. Shack, 38, had been working on a one-year pact.

Both were used sparingly last season and were rumored to be headed to the World Hockey Association. Ullman to Edmonton Oilers—where it all started with the junior Oil Kings—and Shack to Toronto Toros.

EDDIE SHACK

Derby To Grundy

EPSOM, England (AP) — Italian-owned Grundy, the 5-to-1 second choice, won the $222,000 Epsom Derby by three lengths Wednesday, defeating 17 rivals.

Hobliliary, the only filly in the field, finished second and Hanna Dancer was third.

The victory was worth $244,847 to owner Dr. Carlo Vittadini.

Jockey Pat Eddery took Grundy to the front after one-eighth of a mile and stayed

Social Insurance Numbers

CAHA Irons Out Problems

CALGARY (CP) — Minor league hockey players over the age of 15 will have to get a social insurance number before they hit the ice this season.

Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Wednesday the association has decided to adopt social insurance numbers for players to reduce complications in its record-keeping practices.

Juckes said the present number system used is inadequate "because we found so many duplications."

He said the possibility of having players with similar names on file forced a lot of research, especially in digging out the names of players eligible for the pro hockey draft.

But social insurance numbers are unique to the individual to whom they are issued and stay with a person for life, Juckes said.

At Midas Muffler it takes a little longer.

While we fill out your guarantee.

Some muffler shops keep harping on how speedily they can install a muffler. Which is a good thing to talk about. Especially if you don't have the Midas guarantee to talk about.

At Midas we're just as fast at installing mufflers as anyone else around. But we also offer our famous guarantee.

Every Midas muffler is guaranteed for as long as you own your car. If anything goes wrong with the muffler a new guaranteed Midas muffler will be installed on your car by any Midas muffler shop for only a service charge upon presentation of the certificate.

At Midas it might take a little longer. But what difference do a few seconds make in the life of our guarantee?

Midas guarantees it.

Syncrude President Hopeful Sands Will Yield Oil by '78

EDMONTON (CP) — It's going to be a close race, but Frank Spragins thinks he'll be actuate when the first commercial production flows from the giant Syncrude Canada Ltd. oil sands development in 1978.

Mr. Spragins has been involved in the Athabasca oil sands in northeastern Alberta since 1959 and has been president of the Syncrude consortium since it was set up in 1965.

"The problems and frustrations are great but the accomplishments will more than offset all the earlier frustrations," the 61-year-old veteran oilman said in an interview.

"My normal retirement date is 1979 and my ambition is to see the first commercial oil flowing from the plant.

"This has been an ambition of others before me, people who have been closely involved in the development, but each one has reached the retirement age and didn't see the completion of the project.

"It's nip and tuck, but I think I'll make it."

There is always the possibility that a major delay against an equipment supplier or delay in delivery of a vital piece of machinery may postpone the plant opening scheduled for the spring of 1978 but Mr. Spragins said the odds are against it.

Oil-sands development has been a full-time job for Mr. Spragins since 1959 when he was appointed head of Imperial Oil's Athabasca oil-sands department. He averages about 16 hours a day, with his crude's a 14th-floor office in the downtown Petroleum Plaza building and usually takes work home at night.

When there is a major crisis, such as Atlantic Richfield's withdrawal of its 30-per-cent share from the consortium late last year, the hours are even longer.

Mr. Spragins, who retains a touch of a southern drawl from his native Mississippi, nervously chuckled when he recalled the day Atlantic Richfield withdrew from the $2 billion venture. "I must have spent 16 hours on the phone that day."

The withdrawal almost ended the project.

The move left the three remaining Syncrude partners—Imperial Oil, Gulf Canada and Canada-Cities Service—scrambling for funds to meet mounting costs.

A hurried round of meetings was held and eventually the governments of Alberta, Ontario and Canada invested $600 million to save Syncrude.

Although the Syncrude plant is expected to produce 125,000 barrels of oil daily, Mr. Spragins said it won't be enough to avert a serious energy shortage in the 1980s.

"Canada by 1985 is going to be in an extremely difficult energy position (with) the conventional production declining very rapidly. There's no way that Athabasca can make up the difference.

"We are going to have to really tighten our belts to survive.

"We will not be able to generate enough foreign exchange to buy the oil to maintain the economy at its present rate of growth. Oil is very likely to be rationed.

"Oil-sands development has a long-term potential to correct the problems, but it's impossible to do it before the gap appears."

Mr. Spragins has heard the arguments against foreign control of the Canadian economy by the multinational companies and says to critics:

"The investment required in Canada is basically more than Canada can afford.

"We can either slow down development or take advantage of other people's dollars. When a company comes in and develops, it's no different to me than going to the bank if you don't have enough money."

Mr. Spragins, who came to Canada in 1942 and later became a Canadian citizen, had a hand in another milestone in petroleum development—the discovery of oil at Leduc, Alta., in 1947. He was on a reconnaissance program that resulted in the discovery of oil at both Leduc and Redwater, Alta.

The Leduc find shifted attention away from the oil sands, which Imperial and other oil companies had been studying, to central Alberta.

Frank Spragins of Edmonton thinks he'll be around when the first commercial production flows from the giant Syncrude Canada Ltd. oil sands development in 1978. Mr. Spragins, 61, has been involved in the Athabasca oil sands since 1959 and has been president of the Syncrude consortium since it was set up in 1965. His retirement date is 1979 and his ambition is to see the first commercial oil flowing from the plant. (CP Photo)

Attention finally turned back to the sands and the four firms that eventually formed the original Syncrude consortium operated a major research and testing program in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

The companies applied in 1962 to the Alberta oil and gas conservation board for a permit to build a 100,000-barrel-a-day plant but the board ruled that Canada didn't need this oil at the time.

"On the other hand, they were interested in seeing the oil sands developed and they elected to delay giving a final decision for five years. They said if we were still interested at that time to reapply."

When the application was made again in 1968, the board expressed concern that the discovery of major oil reserves in Alaska "would fill the markets that we had planned to supply" and again postponed its decision. But the provincial cabinet allowed the firm to make another application and "that's when we began to make a little headway."

After lengthy negotiations, the project was approved and preliminary site-clearing work began in November, 1972.

Mr. Spragins noted that if approval for Syncrude had been granted earlier, the impact of his predicted energy shortage would have been lessened. Other prospective oil-sands operators would have been able to learn from Syncrude's experience.

"The oil sands have a great potential, but there is no way you can bring these potential plants on stream fast enough without more basic knowledge."

SEAMS PROMISING

LONDON (CP) — A British Coal Board spokesman says seams being worked by colliers in north Nottinghamshire extend across Lincolnshire and 20 miles into the North Sea. However, the depth of the seams would prevent them from being worked to their full extent.

OUTPUT IMPROVES

LONDON (CP) — British merchant shipbuilders achieved their highest production in three years in 1974, producing some 116 vessels totalling 1,198,255 tons, says Lloyd's Register of Shipping. They included 20 general-cargo vessels of 2,000 tons or more, 10 oil tankers and eight ore and bulk carriers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former actor Bob Cummings, 64, has failed in a bid to reduce alimony and child-support payments to his first wife and two children.

Superior Court Judge Harold Ackerman ruled against him Tuesday continuing the $800-a-month alimony to Mary (Ellen) Cummings, 57, and $40 a month for two children. The Judge said Cummings, now a cosmetics company executive, earned $92,510 in 1974 and will probably do as well this year.

Cummings remarried in 1971, a year after his divorce. His comedy series, The Bob Cummings Show, ran six years on television during the 1950s.

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — Actor John Wayne has found himself caught up in a dispute involving Indians and Vietnamese refugees.

Wayne had written a letter to former South Vietnamese president Nguyen Cao Ky, who has expressed a desire to set up a kibbutz-type farm for refugees, and mentioned the Papago Indian land holdings in Arizona.

Wayne said he suggested relocating 40 or 50 refugees on potential farm land, but when he disclosed the letter May 23, he said the actor offered to help him acquire 17,000 acres in Arizona.

Navajo tribal chairman Peter MacDonald called the proposal an insult to the American Indian. Wayne on Tuesday met with MacDonald to clarify the situation.

Wayne said the 17,000 acres mentioned in the letter referred to his own ranch near Stanfield, Ariz., as an example of the potential for agriculture in the area.

The letter contained only a suggestion about the Papago land, mostly unused by the tribe, which could be improved by good farmers, Wayne said, adding that he has received no reply from Ky.

BRUSSELS (AP) — The Soviets as usual swept the top places in the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium international music competition but pianist Larry Graham of Sioux City, Iowa, was the people's choice.

Graham, a 31-year-old assistant professor at Morningside College, won the Prize of the Public, given for the first time this year to the contestant best liked by Belgians who followed the event over television, and radio.

About 2,700 viewers and listeners telephoned Belgian Radio-TV to vote for Graham, making him th> most popular. He also got a silver medal for fourth place, $7,860 and premier of international concert bookings in the results announced early Sunday after the finals in Brussels' Fine Arts palace.

The main reason for Graham's popularity seemed to be the warm image he projected on stage and at the keyboard while competing as the lone representative of the United States, surrounded by Soviets of obvious excellence.

The jury of music professors and international concert artists awarded first place, worth $5,700, a metal and a worldwide concert tour to 20-year-old Mikhail Faerman of the Soviet Union.

Soviets Stanislav Ioginsky, Yuri Egorov and Sergei Dorenkevitch took second, third and fifth, respectively.

The pianists were judged on various compulsory works as well as those they choose themselves.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music has become "slut and slanderous," Grand Ole Opry star Billy Grammer says.

"In order for a country song to be popular—these days, Grammer complained on the stage of the Opry, "it has to have lyrics about lying in bed with someone and getting them pregnant before they get married."

Grammer, a lay minister, has been appearing regularly on the Opry for the last 16 years.

His remarks were made just before he was scheduled to perform on the Opry Friday night.

"Country music is becoming a smutty world. It's a shame to think the pornographic business has hit country music and infiltrated the ranks."

He received a large applause from the audience when he said: "We don't need it. We are above it."

Jazz Developer Helped Give Dignity to Artists in Trade

LONDON (REUTER)—One of the most important recent developments in jazz has been the return to active recording of a man who never plays a note.

Norman Granz, whose name almost was synonymous with jazz in the 1950s, began his active participation in the music in the mid-1940s with two main aims in mind: to make money and to fight racial segregation which had hounded the music for decades.

Within a decade, he had achieved both to a remarkable degree. His Jazz at the Philharmonic (JATP) concerts toured the world to wild acclaim and his massive recording efforts—spanning artists as diverse as the legendary Charlie Parker, he doomed but magnificent singer Billie Holiday and the New Orleans primitive Kid Ory—had sales in a million-sire several times over.

His fight to bring dignity to the artists he represented also had been successful. He was the first to make it a standard clause in his contracts that none of his audiences, even in the American south, could be segregated. He has been known to charter a plane rather than allow his musicians to spend a night in a segregated town.

In the late 50s, Granz felt worn-out and was becoming increasingly impatient with the hectic pace of the United States.

He sold his record company, which had undoubtedly the largest jazz catalogue in the world, and moved to Europe, determined to work only as a promoter. His only links with the past were his partnership management of singer Ella Fitzgerald and pianist Oscar Peterson, whom he personally had discovered in a small Montreal nightclub and built into one of the biggest acts of the jazz world.

"Since I came to Europe, I've presented all kinds of artists, but only in the capacity of an impresario," he says. "I've presented the Osmonds, Santana, the Supremes, and Leonard Cohen.

For many years, Franz worked at his own pace and devoted himself as much to acquiring a magnificent art collection—now estimated at several million dollars—as to the promotion of music.

In 1974, however, Granz leaped back into recording with a vengeance. A new label—named Pablo after his close friend Picasso—suddenly appeared with a massive rush of some of the best "I got back into recording primarily because I felt that I had a certain responsibility to a lot of jazz artists who were contemporaries of mine and who, unfortunately, time has passed by because the emphasis today seems to be on recording younger musicians.

"Also, I felt that even those who were being recorded needed a fresh approach that is, because of my friendship with the artists, am in a unique position to accomplish," he says.

The records, more than 20 of which have been released so far, bear out the truth of Granz' observation.

Although the artists—primarily Peterson, Ella Fitzgerald, Count Basie and Duke Ellington are familiar, the approach is unique.

With Peterson, for example, who has recorded probably more than any jazz artist, Granz produced a two-LP set entitled History of an Artist, in which he interviewed, with the same personnel, virtually every group Peterson ever has led and recorded them in sequence.

All of these records underline one basic point about Grant' approach to the music—that each album must have a basic concept.

"In these days of recording, when so many things have been done, I don't think it's sufficient just to go into a studio and record," he says. "I think you really have to have an idea, a basis for an album, a point of view. Otherwise it's just another collection."

One concept that Granz pioneered, and is continuing through the release of old unissued JATP material, was the jam session—the pitting of musicians against one another in an atmosphere on conflict that brings out the best in them.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, June 6

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions grow much more stable for you over the next few days. It's a good time to build, but your sights accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Resist as much time as you can on self-interest today. Things you're interested in can be accomplished now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can accomplish more to-day by working in solitude than where other people can't break up your concentration.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Look beyond today and to the future. Lay a few bricks now to build a better foundation for your life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take things a step at a time the next few days. Goals important to you can be realized during this period.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're in a good creative cycle. Be firm in your ideas. Don't let others dissuade you before you've had a chance to try them out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Gains are likely where you share an interest. Nothing will happen, however, if you don't rield hard on things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One you're closely associated with has your best interests at heart. Listen to this person's suggestions, heed her advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pay close attention to your work through tomorrow. There's a hidden, unexpected reward if you perform to the best of your ability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Make a concerted effort for good rapport with someone you'll meet socially. This person could be a valuable, lasting contact.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Now is the time to finalize a materially-based project. If you don't diligently, it will be settled to your advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your mental aptitude is particularly sharp today. Tackle tasks that require the exercise of your mind, rather than muscle.

Car for the Birds

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Ruth Kelly left her car parked at her home after finding that a pair of house finches had built a nest under the hood and hatched two baby eggs. The little finches finally flew away through openings in the car's grillwork. "It's kind of hard to be without a car," says Mrs. Kelly.

Calcium Lactate No Arthritis Aid

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68-years-old and have just been told that I have a mild rheumatoid arthritis. The X-rays show a thinning of the bones due to loss of calcium.

I am wondering whether taking calcium tablets would help. My doctor said it would not. Is this true in general of arthritis, or is it just peculiar to those who have rheumatoid arthritis? Is there some difference of opinion? I am taking calcium lactate daily just in case.—L.W.

Arthritis is a disease of the joints, the rheumatoid type an acute inflammation of the joint tissues. Calcium supplements are not going to help this. You are wasting your money if you think it is.

Besides, any balanced diet is sufficient in calcium. Now, it is important for you to be getting a sufficient amount of vitamin D in your diet, because without that your body will not be utilizing whatever calcium you are getting in your food. Now, why vitamin D is added to most of our milk supply.

The milk contains the calcium and the vitamin D fortifical ' ormsts the body to utilize. So unless your diet is devoid of any calcium-containing foods, there is no need for supplements. A combination of calcium and phosphorus is important to maintain general bone health. Foods such as fish provide good phosphorus supply. It is also present, though in smaller amounts, in other foods.

At 68, you can expect some deterioration of bone structure. This can appear as compression roots, which is prevalent among women after menopause. This is not technically an arthritis. It can be helped with adequate calcium in the diet, and this may be what you are referring to.

There are dozens of different conditions that are often lumped into the general category of arthritis. A recent study indicates that of every 100 persons in America who complained "rheumatism," 40 have rheumatoid arthritis, 30 osteoarthritis, 15 rheumatic disease of the muscles. The other 15 have related conditions such as gout.

So careful diagnosis is important. And, a. I have warned readers beware of any simplistic answers to problems of joint disorders such as arthritis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a bezoar? What causes it? I am a diabetic and have been told that diabetics get these. The term is new to me.—M.N.

A' bezoar is a compacted mass formed in the stomach and that wou'l pass into the intestines. A common form is the "hair ball" found in the stomachs of people who have the habit of pulling out their hair and chewing it. It can be disintegrated by use of an enzyme (papaine) from the papaya fruit seeds. Your physician can advise you on this.

Otherwise, it is necessary to remove it. Bezoars don't have nothing to do with diabetes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 55-years-old and have high blood pressure. I try to cut down on coffee for a number of reasons. So I drink decaffeinated coffee. Can I drink as much of this coffee as I want?—E.S.

Regular bran coffee contains from 1.5 to 1.9 per cent caffeine. In the process of decaffeination, about 97 per cent of this can be removed. So you would have to drink an monumental amounts of it to get the same amount of caffeine as in regular coffee.

Paging To Link Londoners

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of people roaming round the bustling city of London on business will soon have a new electronic way to reach the office or home: a Post Office radio-paging system that may be the forerunner of a national service.

The decision to introduce public radio-paging in London next year follows the success of a trial service just outside the city which attracted doctors, nurses, sales representatives and service engineers. The London service will cover 900 square miles and cater for 250,000 people. Eventually up to 100,000 are expected to be linked to the service.

Each subscriber will carry a small "bleeper" which can be activated by a call from a telephone, anywhere in Britain. When the bleeper sounds, the subscriber knows that someone at his office or home is awaiting a telephone call from him.

A Post Office spokesman said: "Market research has shown a tremendous demand for this communications system in the Greater London area. There are many people in different jobs, from doctors to plumbers, who need to be easily contactable while on the move. This new project could prove to be the first stage of a radio paging system eventually extending to most parts of Britain." He said they now are thinking about a national radio paging service.

Delectable Attack

RENO, Nev. (AP) — When Karen Kinz, 19, paid $5 for gasoline at a service station she discovered on her way home the gas gauge was empty. She returned to the station and demanded her money back, and when service attendant Fermin Trujillo, 34, refused, she doused him with whipped cream. "He ripped my off for gas. I squirted him," said the indignant young woman. Police said neither side had filed a criminal complaint.

Start Minifarms

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — The Eastern Washington Bank has started a minifarm program by renting out 1,000-square-foot garden plots for city dwellers to grow their own food. Some 200 families have rented $25-a-piece plots. "We thought it would be a good idea to give the people in Moses Lake who live in apartments or trailer courts or other places where they can't grow their own gardens, a place to raise their own food," said Don Beckley, project co-ordinator.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The grand slam force was invented by Ely Culbertson about 60 years ago. The bid, designed to find out how good partner's trump suit was, was advantageous for that day. But it has been revived and put in every expert's bidding kit since.

South intends to bid six if North shows no ace, but North shows one ace and South is interested in seven.

He doesn't want to bid it. North might well have jumped without the king of clubs. How can he ask North to bid seven? He starts pretending he has nothing five spades. This bid says "Ace, king, queen of spades is short for six. But five notrump states the bidding has been 5 ♠ North bids five notrump and now South goes to six clubs. He has delivered a second message which is, 'We have enough aces for seven. Bid seven if you think your trumps are good enough.'"

North's trumps are good enough and he bids seven. There is a little play to the hand, but with trumps breaking 2-1 and spades 4-2 South is able to draw trumps, ruff out one spade, discard two diamonds from dummy and finally ruff his small diamond.

Meat Salvager Admits Sales for 16 Years

MONTREAL (CP) — As tougher meat inspection regulations were announced in the Quebec national assembly Thursday, a meat salvager told a inquiry into organized crime he sold carrion for human consumption for 16 years.

Ange-Albert Baril told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry he sold meat from dead or diseased animals to retail outlets for resale to the public in the Trois-Rivieres area from 1958 to 1974.

Mr. Baril said he had little trouble from government inspectors and that during the early 1960s, the fathers of two unidentified businessmen used his facilities to cut up their own cows.

He said one of the inspectors told him during a tour of his facilities that if the plant "was good enough for him (the inspector's father), it's good enough for me."

Meanwhile, in Quebec City Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin announced regulations to make provincial government inspection of all slaughterhouses and processing plants compulsory.

Mr. Toupin told a news conference about 400 slaughterhouses operating in the province without "Canada Approved" or "Quebec Approved" inspection will be given 30 days to apply for service. Thereafter from the time the new regulations become effective next week.

In addition, meat salvaging firms will have to obtain government operating permits and supply the agriculture department with up-to-date lists of buyers and truckers. Violations could result in fines up to $5,000 for individuals and $20,000 for corporations, he said.

He said the new guidelines are intended to eliminate organized groups selling meat unfit for human consumption and to ensure all meat is inspected before and after slaughter.

Maurice Bellemare, Union Nationale leader, said application of the proposed regulations "will not resolve the problem in a definite or permanent manner."

The member from Johnson riding proposed the establishment of a livestock insurance program. It would create a compensation fund for producers who sell animals whose meat is later judged unfit for human consumption.

The inquiry will move to Hull today to hear from an unidentified witness who could not attend the Montreal hearings for health reasons.

Chopper Escape

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A hijacked helicopter swooped into the prison yard at Southern Michigan prison here and plucked one or two convicts to freedom today, authorities said.

State police said the hijacker and the escapee or escapees flew to the Ionia area, about 15 miles northeast of the prison, where they switched from the copter to a getaway car.

Galbraith Gives Up Teaching

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (Reuter) — Economist John Kenneth Galbraith has retired from Harvard University after 41 years as a professor there, a university spokesman announced Thursday.

Galbraith, a former presidential adviser and United States ambassador to India, is in Britain taping a BBC television series on history of social studies.

Friends here said the Canadian-born economist will no longer teach and, after finishing the BBC series, he plans to write a book about the rise and problems of industrial civilization.

They said the TV series will probably keep him in Britain for another two years.

Four at Large

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canada-wide search was underway today for four of seven men who escaped Thursday evening from a nearby regional detention centre after shooting two guards.

One guard, Daniel Lennon, 43, is in intensive care at Ottawa's Riverside Hospital after his spleen was removed as a result of the shooting. The hospital said today he is in critical condition.

Mediator Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — A request by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) for a special mediator to deal with a dispute over the suspension and firing of hundreds of Montreal union members met Thursday with a negative response from the government.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said in an interview there is no need for appointment of a special mediator to deal with the Montreal situation.

Employees there have been suspended and dismissed for evicting non-union casual workers who were called in by postal authorities to deal with mail backlogs.

Union president Joe Davidson said his membership might take some action to try to force the government to agree to a mediator. He added any action taken will not be illegal.

Union spokesmen say CUPW members may set up informational picket lines perhaps beginning today, as part of a campaign to convince the post office a mediator is necessary.

The informational picket lines would not prevent postal workers from reporting to work.

The union already has requested—and been granted—the appointment of a conciliator to bring the parties back to the bargaining table. Both sides have submitted names of possible conciliators to the Federal Public Service Staff Relations Board, but as yet no selection has been made.

Mr. Davidson said Thursday night the union had not heard officially from the government on the question of a mediator. The union asked for a mediator last Monday.

Wildcat All Over

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A wildcat strike at International Harvester was over today — 24 hours after it began as a show of workers' solidarity for their union's negotiating committee.

Howard Hanton, plant manager and company vice-president reported workers back on the job this morning at the Coleman St. plant.

Ray Ryan, chairman of the bargaining committee, confirmed the workers had returned but said so far, it looked as though "it's going to be a job to keep them in".

He said committee members were "trying to talk" with the workers — more than 200 of whom stayed off the job and demonstrated outside the plant Thursday, refusing to listen to union leaders.

The wildcat followed a breakdown in negotiations with the International Moulders and Allied Workers some days ago.

A union spokesman said the walkout was staged by "the workers because of a rumor that many were prepared to accept a management offer.

Mr. Hanton denied the rumor was started by management and said the union broke off contract talks.

The union is seeking a 75-per-cent pay increase. Average earnings are about $3.50 an hour, Mr. Ryan estimated.

A legal strike can be called at midnight June 13.

Mail Eight Years Old

LONDON (AFP) — Some people in Britain should receive news from Pakistan soon, but the letters will be eight years late. The post office here said Thursday the letters and parcels were on a West German ship caught in the Suez canal during the 1967 October war. Some perishable goods may not have withstood the long wait in the blistering heat, but the rest of the packets will be delivered as soon as possible.

Northern Deal Signed

MONTREAL (CP) Northern Electric Co. Ltd. announced Thursday the signing of a series of agreements with Thomson CSF, France, for the manufacture of electronic equipment in France. The agreements will licence Thomson CSF to manufacture Northern's SP 1 electronic switching equipment. Northern will market some of Thomson CSF's telecommunications products.

Suharto to Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — President Suharto of Indonesia and his wife will pay a state visit to Canada on 2-5, Prime Minister Trudeau's office said Thursday. The two will discuss bilateral issues and world affairs, a statement said. While in Ottawa, the president and his wife will stay at Government House.

Photos on Display

OTTAWA (CP) — Photographs 75, an exhibit of photographs by women assembled by the National Film Board to mark International Women's Year, went on display here Thursday for a summer long showing. The collection will be hung in the film board's photo gallery until late September, after which it will go on tour across Canada.

Canada First for Hydro

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Hydro will intervene in national energy board hearings to ensure that Canada has first call on electricity produced by the James Bay hydroelectric project in Quebec, an Ontario Hydro planner says. "Personally, I believe that Quebec and Manitoba exports of power to the United States must be conditional on there being no demand in Canada," said Lavrett Higgins, economist in charge of load forecasts for Ontario Hydro.

Drought Toll Heavy

NAIROBI (AP) — Months of drought in eastern Ethiopia and Somalia have killed tens of thousands of nomads and millions of their cattle and goats, say reports reaching this capital of Kenya. Rain broke the drought in many areas recently, producing "reasonably promising" prospects for crops and grazing, officials say. But aid experts say it will take years and millions of dollars for the Ogaden desert, shared by the two East African countries, to recover from overgrazing and lack of rain.

Heavy Vote Backs EEC

LONDON (CP) — The first results of a referendum held Thursday on membership on the European Economic Community (EEC) gave a resounding majority for continued British membership.

Those supporting the European community were further heartened by reports of exceptionally high voter turnout in the first national referendum in British history. Predictions had been that strong voter participation would make the "yes" vote a certainty. Surveys indicate a turnout close to 70 per cent—about the level in recent general elections.

Jets Grounded

OTAWA (CP) — More than one-third of Canada's Defence Services Command interceptors are grounded awaiting investigations to see if they are air worthy.

Eighteen of the 36 operational and eight training aircraft are back on routine duties following studies that resulted from a crash May 14 in Bagotville, Que.

Defence officials say all planes could operate if an emergency was called by North American Air Defence (NORAD) observers.

he Bagotville crash resulted from faults in combustion and exhaust casing and diffuser ducts that caused engine failure, officials said.

All CF-101s are being checked to find out if the fault exists in them and spare parts are being ordered.

College Administrators Told Not to Interfere

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College Board of Governors was warned by one of its members Thursday not to interfere in current negotiations between the provincial government and the colleges of applied arts and technology (CAAT) academic division of Ontario Colleges Association of Ontario (CSAO).

Reg Leader of Belleville, advised the board not to follow the lead of Sheridan College board of Governors which, has urged the management bargaining team to hang tough with the CSAO and hold current salary levels (and workload) at the present level.

"I want to personally go on record as opposed to interfering in the negotiations," he commented. "I think we're stepping on altogether foreign soil."

The CAAT academic division and the government are in the middle of talks on job security and workload provisions in a contract that should have gone into effect Sept. 1, 1973. The salary provisions have already been handed down in a March decision by Justice Willard Estey of the Ontario Court of Appeals and head of the arbitration board.

The Sheridan action marks the first time an individual board has become involved in the contract dispute. The Sheridan board has apparently sent letters to other college boards soliciting support, one of which was received by the Loyalist board Thursday.

Gerry Wishart, board vice-chairman, remarked, "I would hate to see the board take a hasty action." He was successful with his recommendation that the matter be handed to the board's management committee for study at its meeting the last Thursday of this month, followed by a report to the board in July.

During that time, Herb Young, college president, will secure other college board opinions and compile data on the current workload structure — the management-proposed structure and the CSAO proposal for comparison.

Mr. Leader said he disagreed with an internal study and recommendation at Loyalist. "We cannot only rubber-stamp a recommendation from the administration and the president," he stated.

He suggested Mr. Young should go before the provincial committee of college presidents with involvement from the Association of Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario (ACAATO) before returning to the board with a recommendation for approval.

Mr. Leader emphasized he does not necessarily agree with either the CSAO position or the management stand but pointed out the CSAO must have a good reason for its position.

He said college boards should not become involved in areas in which they are not totally familiar.

Mr. Young commented if input was to come from College boards, it should have happened several months prior to the Sheridan issue. And he added ACAATO, which represents the colleges, should have taken the stand — not single boards.

Paul Kiar, dean of faculty and academic services, informed the board that senior academic officers of the colleges have already sent an evaluation of the CSAO centrewide workload proposal through the committee of presidents to the provincial ministry of colleges and universities.

Seven Die In Train Crash

NUNEATON, England (AP) — A night express train travelling between 70 and 80 miles an hour jumped the tracks and crashed into a station platform today, killing seven persons and injuring 36 others said.

The accident occurred as the Caledonian Express approached the Trent Valley Station here, 97 miles northwest of London.

British Rail officials said it was not immediately known how many passengers were on board the 12-car train, travelling between London and Glasgow. Reports ranged from 94 to 140.

Agriculture Minister Fred Peart, 61, was among the passengers who stumbled from the wreckage with their nightclothes. A police spokesman said he was treated at a hospital for shock but was not injured.

The cause of the derailment was not immediately determined.

Railroad officials said the electric locomotive jumped the rails at 80 miles an hour as it entered the station, and all but one of the 15 cars left the rails. Most of them were sleepers.

It was the second major accident for the Londonbound sleeper express in six months. The engineer of the train was killed and 13 persons were injured Jan. 23 when the train left the track on the northern outskirts of London and was hit by a southbound express.

Job Hunting Difficult For University Student

At York University Keitha Davis, an employment coordinator, said the number of vacancies is slightly lower than last year but the situation has been worse in Quebec.

QUEBEC

Patrick Gerrard, Canada Manpower information director for the province, said there has been no indication that 1975 will be worse than 1974. The economic downturn is expected to have less effect in the service industries than early relied upon by students.

Chances of a student trained toulec Quebec construction industry are good, however students must have a skill card but the industry and farming industries may provide jobs.

The Quebec government has an incentive program that officials hope will provide jobs for about 25,000 students in municipalities and private industry and another 8,000 in government. Under the program the student placement service gives an employer a weekly subsidy of $30 a student for the first eight weeks of employment up to a total of $12,000.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

The B.C. government has a $20 million program this year to provide summer work for students. Last year the program got $30 million.

The government's Careers Year program is concentrating on finding jobs for handicapped, native, potential dropout and other disadvantaged students. said Wendy Bethehem, a Vancouver field representative.

ALBERTA

The provincial government has $2 million budgeted this year for summer job programs and gives maximum grants of $300 a month to employers to pay students.

Job placement in Edmonton is centralized under a program called Operation Placement, run by Canada Manpower with co-operation from the Chamber of Commerce and the provincial government.

SASKATCHEWAN

The provincial department of youth and culture has budgeted $1 million this summer and hopes to place about 1,500 students in the profit or ganinzations subsidized from the fund. A youth employment service operates as a placement service for students and makes referrals to private companies on request.

A spokesman for the service said the over all job out look is better in Saskatchewan this year than last.

MANITOBA

The summer job situation appears on the whole to be healthy although the general economic climate is expected to affect opportunities with fewer available jobs Most jobs are in the service field but some are available in manufacturing and construction. About 35,000 students are expected to look for jobs in the province

The provincial government is spending between $3 million and $4 million to provide as many as 3,000 jobs in various department under a Student Temporary Employment Program.

NOVA SCOTIA

The provincial government has 22 million budgeted this year for summer job programs and gives maximum grants of $300 a month to employers to pay students.

Job placement in Edmonton is centralized under a program called Operation Placement, run by Canada Manpower.

Officials are hoping a construction and investment boom in the province will keep job opening level with 1974.

"We are not expecting a vast increase this year but no decrease either" said Carol Graham, a manpower official at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton.

Most jobs are available in the service industries although the provincial parks department and federal agencies also hire students regularly. Engineering students are in demand. Univarsity are given the first chance at the jobs because of a system in which they spend part of the year in classes and the rest working in the engineering jobs.

Trenton Firm Gets Contract

From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — A Trenton firm, Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd., has been given a $20,215 contract to manufacture power transmission equipment for the ministry of transport, the department of supply and services announced this week.

The department also, gave a $16,000 contract to a Toronto firm, Readwin Contracting Ltd., to repair pavement at the Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

The two were among 230 unclassified federal contracts, each worth $10,000 or more, awarded to Canadian firms in the week ended May 23. Total value of these contracts was $13,357,623.

HOW MANY PRESCRIPTIONS IN YOUR HOME?
If you are an average family, recent studies have shown that the number of prescriptions containers in your home will range from five to ten.
WHERE DO PEOPLE KEEP THEIR MEDICINES?
In the great majority of homes, over 80% of medicines are kept in most than a single place. But when a single storage place was used the kitchen cabinet was as popular as the bathroom medicine cabinet.
ARE LABELING AND STORAGE CORRECT?
Usually not. Unlabeled medication of one sort or another can be found in good every home. And in the majority of homes good storage methods to prevent product deterioration, are not followed.
HOW LONG ARE PRESCRIPTIONS KEPT?
Most of them are kept much too long. This is dangerous because many medicines can be right for one ailment but wrong for another. And, an old medicine when used for "similar" symptoms at a past illness may in many cases cause great harm.
WHAT SHOULD YOU DO?
The best advice we can give you is to exercise good common sense. Keep all medicines in a single place and at reach of children immediately discard any medication if the label is lost and/or you are not sure of proper storage requirements. Don't use an old medicine to treat various ailments without first checking with your physician. Sometimes only a phone call will be necessary.

Trenton Firemen Still Without New Contract

TRENTON — Trenton firemen have yet to receive any news on results of the mid-February arbitration board hearing over a dispute with the town over the 1974 contract.

The 11-man local of the International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) officials have been waiting since Feb. 19 for an announcement from board chairman E. J. Carter of Ottawa.

A union spokesman in Ottawa said today no word has yet come from the chairman's office.

He said one clause in the contract now is being discussed by lawyers. It is believed to be the one belonging to the award settlement.

Firemen and the town went into arbitration proceedings when they failed to reach agreement over wages.

At the mid-February hearing, the town offered a 13½ per cent salary hike and fire, non contract with a demand for an across-the-board increase of 24 per cent.

Now working on the 1973 contract, a first-class fireman earns $10,085 a year. The union demand, if met, would boost the bench-mark salary to $13,001.

Lack of a settlement is holding up talks on the 1975 contract. Both sides in the dispute have indicated that meaningful negotiations cannot begin until the 1974 contract is settled.

Firemen have gone to arbitration previously and according to town treasurer Brian Fagan, have been "lucky" in awards they have received.

On the last occasion, the town local was awarded a 10-per-cent increase in salaries, plus improvements in fringe benefits.

In 1970, a first-class fireman earned $7,223 and the arbitration board awarded an increase to $8,865 for 1971.

Fewer Than 20 Per Cent Use Car Seat Belts

A province-wide roadside survey of 8,000 Ontario drivers indicates 14.4 per cent of those who co-operated were seat belt users, according to the systems research branch of the provincial ministry of transportation and communications.

Only 305 motorists declined to answer the one-minute type of seat belts installed, if at all; belt usage; what is being worn and how; silhoe; vehicle data; and wanting system, year of car; trip data, such as distance from home and trip length; and passenger belt use.

The survey covered Ontario by regions, including northwestern, northeastern (other than Toronto) and metropolitan Toronto.

It was found that people who wore seat belts were often driving later model cars, on long trips or away from home of an expressway.

Automatically — adjusted three-point belt systems were worn more frequently than manual lap-and-shoulder belts.

Cars in which a belt is automatically - adjusted belt systems totalled 34 per cent. And in this group of cars, 27 per cent of the drivers were wearing their belts.

Vehicles outfitted with older-type manual lap-and-shoulder belts comprised 38 percent but only two per cent of the drivers of these cars were wearing both belts.

In Toronto, 20.6 per cent of those questioned used their seat belts regularly. In Sault Ste Marie, 7.9 per cent were seat belt wearers; London, 23.1 per cent; Brockville, 14.9 per cent; Mississauga, 22.4 per cent; District of Algoma, 18.5 per cent; Regional Municipality of Waterloo, 15.5 per cent; Ottawa, 23 per cent; Kingston 2.9 per cent; and Haldimand-Norfolk Counties, 13.6 per cent.

On expressways which represented 3.6 per cent of the sampling, 23.9 per cent of drivers were seat belt users.

A more detailed report is being compiled, looking at such areas as drivers' opinions on the ease of use of seat belt systems, their actual use of belts and the usage rate in 1974-75 cars.

Bennett New MHO President

Dr. Ed Bennett, associate professor of psychology at Wilfred Laurier University in Waterloo, was named president of Mental Health Ontario (MHO) at its 23rd annual meeting held recently in this city.

MHO, one of 11 provincial and territorial divisions of the Canadian Mental Health Associates (CMHA), co-ordinates the activities of 31 branches across Ontario providing community action for troubled people.

Mr. Bennett, a 36-year-old psychologist from Newton, Ont., was down-to-earth and organizational development with transfer collegiate, hospital, school systems, industrial firms and others, commented on his opportunity to work with the new board of directors as supporting the very real challenge which the group faces in the coming years.

He said he sees the three roles of MHO as providing direct service to troubled people, helping people become more aware of mental health issues and the advocacy of programs, government and health-related agencies have the responsibility to provide.

Car, Train Collide

BLOOMFIELD — A Belleville man escaped injury Thursday morning when his pick-up truck collided with a CN ore train at the railway track in Bloomfield Village.

Police say James Ellinton, 22, of 36 Stanley St. Belleville, was east bound on County Rd. 22 when his truck collided with the engine of the train operated by conductor John Moore of 39 Grove St. Belleville.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $2,000. The incident investigated by Constable Ed Rae of the Picton Detachment of the OPP occurred at 11.50 a.m.

Aquarium On View

GLENORA — The aquarium gallery of the Glenora Fisheries Research Station will remain open this summer on Wednesday and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

The aquarium, a highlight of the annual spring open house at the research station can be viewed on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons beginning June 4.

A wide variety of fresh water fish is on display in the tank.

Quinte-area Principals Want Right to Strike

Quinte area secondary school principals are going to oppose a portion of the new legislation which is effect prohibits them and their vice-principals from taking strike action.

William MacKay, an executive member of the Bay of Quinte Region of the Headmasters' Council, said Thursday the area association has drafted a letter of protest to the ministry of education. The region covers principals in both Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

"We congratulate the government on proposing progressive legislation on teacher negotiations. The proposal, however, goes astray in one area — the proposal to separate the principal and vice-principal group from the teachers," reads the letter.

"This fails to recognize the collegial atmosphere in which schools operate today and which so well serves the students, teachers, and the public, of this province," continues the letter.

Mr. MacKay, a principal at Centennial Secondary School, said the principals believe the mutual trust now exists because they are regarded and the principal teacher at the school rather than a principal administrator.

"We see this part of the legislation as damaging to human relations in our schools and we hope it will be amended," concludes the letter.

Nurses Lacking?

Loyalist College should investigate the introduction of an industrial nursing course, says a member of the college board of governors.

Fried Ballstedt of Belleville made the comment during a board meeting Thursday during which he queried William F. Buckley, director of the college school of health sciences and community studies, on the subject.

"We haven't investigated that area," Mr. Buckley answered. He said he could not immediately determine the manpower requirement for the occupation.

Mr. Ballstedt remarked, "If nobody else is doing it, perhaps we should look into it."

Newsmaker

Atrocious Cyclist

"The bicycle habits of some of our youngsters are atrocious," says Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, adding it is almost useless to clamp down on the problem. "If we charged them, our juvenile court would be bursting at the seams," he comments. His remarks were made during his meeting of the Belleville Police Commission this week after a letter was received from a city resident complaining about lack of rear reflectors on some bicycles.

Pipes Go In

Workers near completion of installation of underground plumbing in the Ontario Housing Corp. eight-storey senior citizens apartment building on Crewell Dr. The 88-unit building will have foundations finished by mid-June when bricklayers will be called in to start work on upper floors. Work is expected to be complete by early 1976.

Workers Walk Out Over Hiring Of Outside Painters at Plant

TRENTON — Almost all 150 members of Local 2099 of the United Steel Workers (USW) of America staged a walkout Thursday to protest the action of Central Bridge Co. in contracting a paint job to outside, non-union workers.

The protest action began Thursday at 2.p.m. with men huddling in the rain and sitting in cars in front of the company's West St. gates.

Carl Gareau, USW representative, said Thursday the action was sparked when the company again brought in the subcontractor. A grievance procedure had been successful previously in removing the outside workers from the plant, he said.

"The guys were upset," said Mr. Gareau.

Local members had earlier been upset because the outside workers, painters with a Trenton subcontractor, were getting paid more than union workers doing the same job, he said.

"To add insult to injury," said Mr. Gareau, "our guys are mixing paint for these guys."

Central Bridge Co. manager Richard Burnet declined comment on Thursday as to the reason behind the walkout but denied the company was employing non-union workers.

"Passengers Angeslo Dedomitio, 17, and Brian Cotterill both of R#4, Coburg were both admitted to hospital and are in satisfactory condition. Dedomitio sustained bruises. Cotterill is under observation for a possible back injury, according to the spokesman.

Brighton provincial police say the Heenan vehicle failed to negotiate a sharp turn, entered a roadside ditch, then rolled and came to rest on its roof. Damage is estimated at $1,000 and police describe the car as a write-off.

Police say one of the car's occupants were thrown 60 feet from the vehicle.

Culmer Gets Post

PICTON — Chairman of the board of the Prince Edward County Fruit Growers' Ltd. Edward (Ted) Rutter this week announced the appointment of Charles Culmer of Picton as manager.

Mr. Culmer has had many years experience in the fruit and vegetable business and was the owner of Culmer's wholesale.

He is a past-president of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society and remains active in its directorate.

Mr. Culmer is a breeder of American Saddlebred horses and is well-known throughout the Quinte area for his stables.

Three Hurt In Crash

CASTLETON — Three Cobourg youths were admitted to Cobourg hospital Thursday after their car missed a sharp turn on a concession road north of here and rolled into a roadside ditch.

A Cobourg General Hospital spokesman said driver Terry Heenan, 17, of 19 Coronation Cres. is in satisfactory condition with a dislocated shoulder.

Roller Skating Finding Lots of County Support

PICTON — Hockey sticks and goal nets are stored for the season at the Prince Edward County Centre but skating continues several nights each week.

With the ice removed the smooth concrete surface of the rink is ideal for roller skating and arena manager James Latchford says this new country sport is drawing dozens of fans.

Sponsored by the Community Centre Commission, the roller rink has been open four nights this week and will be open Saturday night for all skating enthusiasts. It will remain open several nights weekly throughout the summer.

Mr. Latchford observes that originally fewer nights of skating were scheduled but public response to this new sport at the County Centre has created a demand for extended hours.

The arena opens at 6.30 p.m. and a three-hour skating period begins at 7 p.m. Skates have been leased from a Toronto firm and are rented for 50 cents a night. Admission to the rink is also 50 cents.

Mr. Latchford says roller skating has proved popular among persons of all ages and often is enjoyed as a family activity.

Skaters enjoy a program of recorded skating tunes that features calls for "ladies' choice" numbers as well as "couples" and "men only."

District at a Glance

Picton Now Brighter

PICTON — Everything's coming up petunias in Picton thanks to the Prince Edward Horticultural Society.

Beds of these colorful annuals interspersed with geraniums have been planted at the Cenotaph and window boxes at the Picton library filled with geraniums. Large planters on Main Street West also were planted recently.

Special Service Sunday

PICTON — A decoration day service will be held Sunday, June 8, at Cressy United Church at 9:45 a.m. All persons are welcome.

PICTON — The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Commission will be held Tuesday, June 10 at the County centre auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

Oldtimers Meet

DESERONTO — Mrs. Nancy Reynolds reported at the regular business meeting of the Old Timers of Deseronto held recently at the Lions Hall that the club has 90 active members which include 40 female and 50 male members. It was decided at their recent meeting that a bus be chartered for a trip to Ontario Place on June 22.

To start off Senior Citizens Week it was decided to attend the service at the Peninsula Hall, on June 15th.

Officer Named

MIDDLETON PARK — Middleton Park council recently appointed Cpl. Darrell Nurse as the armed forces community's animal control officer. Cpl. Nurse, who can be reached at 393-0201, has registration tags for dogs and cats. He will soon have a community pound to which stray animals will be taken.

Bloomfield Church Marks Birthday

BLOOMFIELD — A special community service of re-dedication will include regular services of worship this Sunday at Bloomfield United Church.

The communion is being held in conjunction with the nation-wide celebration of the 50th anniversary of the United Church in Canada.

After the evening services in Bloomfield United Church on Sunday an anniversary cake will be cut and a special program of music has been planned.

The service itself will stress the role of the church in the community and its history will be recalled by the UCW of the Bloomfield congregation. The AOTS (As One That Serves) men's club of the church will emphasize the numerous activities where the church provides leadership to community.

Sister churches in the community have been invited to join in the anniversary celebration and a special program of music has been planned.

Best Foot Forward

Roller skaters, Carol and Bob Tolley of Picton prepare to push a best foot forward at the County Centre Thursday night where skating was held. This young couple is one of many to re-discover fun on wheels at the rink.

Canada Could be Catalyst for Nuclear Holocaust in Korean Confrontation

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The morality of doing business with tyrants, of whom South Korea's President Park is one, the top leaders of the Soviet Union are others, has become a major public issue in Canada.

So soon after moralizing about the American disaster in South Vietnam and about others doing business with corrupt rulers like former President Nguyen Van Thieu, we are selling a $700 million nuclear reactor to South Korea's even more brutal president.

At almost the same time, Ottawa is announcing a half billion dollar line of government credit to assist Canadian exporters in selling their capital goods to Soviet state purchasing agencies.

The announcement of the South Korean nuclear plant sale is more critical in the context of public morality, because of the potential for making a nuclear weapon from reactor export and the anticipated eagerness of the South Koreans to try one out.

In North Korea, committed openly to the unification of the Korean Peninsula, as Communist North Vietnam has done, it about is Indo China, sits Kim Il Sung, a complete Asian tyrant and avowed enemy of South Korea's President Park.

No where else in Asia is the possibility of all-out war so acute as it is in Korea. Yet a country and government, nearly our own, which so recently figuratively washed their hands of a Vietnam-type mess, might be having a hand starting one off in Korea.

Who in Ottawa, in spite of the promise of safeguards and even of South Korea's signature to a nuclear weapons inspection treaty, can really trust General Park with the menace facing him from the north?

In Latin America, Canadian multi-national corporations are under fire for doing business in Brazil because it is ruled by right-wing and "fascist-minded" army generals.

The same Canadian multi-national doing business in socialist countries, including the military regime in Peru, are not attacked in the same way.

In fact on the young moralists involved in the campaign of the Canadian Council of Churches against multi-national company operation, openly solicited to an ideological base for his bias.

"When Massey Ferguson continues to function inside fascist Brazil, that's bad," he told me. "When they sign a joint venture with the humanist colonels ruling in Peru with the state having the controlling interest, that's good."

"Humanist" is an academic euphemism for a neo-Marxist social order, even though the Peruvian left-wing generals like their right-wing counterparts in Brazil are just as capable of repeating personal kidnapping, closing down opposition newspapers and functioning like dictatorships anywhere.

A crisis of credibility affects governments as well as industries at this time. Gulf Oil Company for example, admits it has paid off previous governments in Bolivia and is thereafter called an evil entity.

But the necessity of foreign companies paying off or giving "gifts" to cabinet ministers and interested parties to do business or else, is a major and continuing source of economic waste in Third World nations.

They are attacked by the same groups which charge international corporations with corruption, even though many new African states have picked up the style with a vengeance from older Asian and Latin ones.

If Gulf is corrupt for paying off to do business, surely the receiving states or officials are just as corrupt for insisting on payments and pay-offs from them?

Governments and corporations must change their techniques about considerably. Global multi-national corporations to pay bribes. The Canadian government should not do business with countries where Canadian technical assistance could only add to local instability.

The Canada reactor sale to South Korea definitely comes under that category.

Archery Hunt Issue

Who needs an archery hunting season for deer in Prince Edward County or anywhere else, as proposed by the Ministry of Natural Resources for this fall?

There are any number of reasons why such an idea should be discouraged and the ministry discouraged from sanctioning it.

It's cruel of course. And sport it isn't. Archers can enjoy that without hurting anyone in a controlled situation as at target practice at Zwick's Island.

Of course there is the matter of the natural order of things, survival of the fittest and all that. Well, why not leave that to the game wardens, permitting them to kill the older animals should the deer population increase too much. One county resident put it succinctly when he observed: "We have got to get beyond this idea of shooting animals because of possible harm they are doing, and learn to live with our wildlife."

But there is one overriding consideration here. And that is, the public safety. It's bad enough there are so many trigger-happy hunters around with guns, as American satirist Tom Lehrer put it, in one of his witty little ballads: ". . . when something moves you shoot." And his bag: "two hunters, three game wardens, and a purebred Guernsey cow."

We may laugh, but underlying this is the seriousness of a potentially hazardous situation. Who wants to have something akin to the Wild West, with hunters and maybe innocent farmers being taken to hospital with an arrow in their gut?

There are enough problems with weapons of every kind in our society, without adding to them this new dimension.

Unions Play Militant Game

Joe Davidson, the president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, doubtless is a Canadian citizen, but his accent is revealed by the fact that he is Scotsborn.

Mr. Davidson is the man who said in effect if the public does not appreciate the just claims of the postal workers then "to hell with the public."

The statement tells us a lot about Mr. Davidson and about attitudes in some union circles. Attitudes too which also let down those of the union rank and file who may not necessarily go along with the constant interruptions of postal service that has been our experience in recent years.

Coming from Britain, Mr. Davidson is carrying on the tradition of a unionized society which if anything is more militant than it is here, a militancy that has spilled over into the union scene in Canada and is contributing in no small measure to our economic problems today.

Tennis Boom Continues

The tennis boom that has come with the burgeoning professional game and been brought to mass appeal by television means a squeeze on facilities everywhere.

Well almost everywhere, for the game has long had a greater degree of mass appeal in other parts of the Commonwealth, probably even more so than in the United States. And facilities have not been lacking in such countries.

From Belleville to Dade County (which includes Miami) however courts are in full use. The Miami Herald, noting an overall population of more than a million, notes that Dade county has not kept up with the demand for tennis courts. It says there are waiting lists for the 90 courts in county parks and suggests one of the problems is "the unrealistically low fees."

Says The Herald: "We would like to see the number of courts in the county doubled and fees set high enough so that the facilities are self-sustaining."

Belleville likely could do with more public courts such as those at Zwick's Island, these being free. Probably the new park complex across the road will have them in time.

It is interesting to reflect, in these days of welfarism and with government or local authority providing money and advice, that many of the Commonwealth clubs mentioned above have been private initiatives, maintained by membership fees. This was the case at the Dufferin Avenue courts in Belleville which have now been taken over by the Recreation committee and are run on a fee-paying basis.

Another Look at Ed Havrot Issue

TORONTO — A few final comments respectfully on the Havrot affair.

One, Premier Davis is apt to emerge with most marks out of the affair.

The opposition parties are doing their best to make political hay out of it. And it seems they likely will continue right through the election campaign.

But the premier will probably be the real winner.

He acted quickly and decisively and this will greatly enhance him as a man of decision and "Mr. Clean."

David Finally seems to be catching on to the lesson of Leslie Frost.

Frost made big headway through scandals. He always acted apparently without mercy and built up public trust.

The second point, in his account since the incident broke Ed Havrot certainly hasn't improved his position or public faith.

In the first stages there was quite a lot of sympathy for him, and quite reasonable so.

But then he went into a burn and started counter - assaults against the press and his petuous statements about his leader.

This culminated in his nomination convention where reports were made to stand and there was general yahoolam and tall tale of "plots."

Both Havrot and his supporters had some reason to be disgruntled. As one instance of the attack against him, Norman Webster, Globe and Mail columnist, had categorized, without any given reason, his appointment as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission as "the most outrageous" David has ever made.

But Havrot showed he didn't have any appreciation at all of the fact that there is nothing to win in attacking the press. Also, of course, he came across as a person of continuing bitterness and this won't do his party any good.

Three, insofar as racism is concerned the continuing debate and the demands of the zealots probably have been far more harmful than anything the Temiskaming member said.

There can be a bigotry in reverse. And the actions of the accusers can have been just as bigoted as anything of which Havrot, has been accused.

Militants from Caribbean Including Troublemakers Brand Canadians 'Racists'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Special Joint Commons-Senate Committee touring the country to take soundings on the Green Paper on Immigration Policy is getting an enlightening earful "racism".

To hear the protest groups that have picketed Manpower Minister Andras' Parliament Hill office from time to time, Canadians are "racist" because their government, widely supported by public opinion, wants to control immigration.

The operative word in the Green Paper is "control," not binder or stop — but to control the flow to the needs and requirements of the country.

For several years there was not even semblance of control. Immigrants flooded in by the hundreds of thousands — even the Manpower Department isn't sure whether it was two, three or four hundred of thousands — as "visitors," vanished into the ever-increasing mass of newcomers, and emerged again as residents.

Now the Parliamentary Committee holding public hearings on the proposal to exert some measure of control, is getting the same hassle Mr. Andras has been experiencing for months.

To hear the militants — to see their picket signs — is one of their demonstrations — is to realize, as Mr. Andras discovered, and the Committee is learning, that the "racist" in Canada is the ordinary, resident Canadian.

So the picket signs read "racism is as Canadian as maple sugar."

Black leader Roosevelt Douglas who still is fighting deportation after serving a prison term for his involvement in the $1 million destruction of the computer centre at Montreal's Sir George Williams University six years ago, was making impassioned speeches against the "racist" immigration racism."

But other Caribbean militants have been up in public places in immigration offices yelling shouting such slogans as "Canada doesn't belong to Whites".

The "Canadian racism" scene is not confined to what heard on Parliament Hill and the Joint Senate-Commons Committee, but in the house itself.

Former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has accused the Jamaican High Commissioner to Canada, in Ottawa, of a racist attack on Canadians.

But Dief has been outraged by the Jamaican High Commissioner's public condemnation of Canadian police as being "extremely racist, uncultured and inhumane" in their investigation of the fatal shooting of a coloured youth.

There were 339 killings in Canada last year, and as Prime Minister Trudeau was informed, a murder a day in Montreal so far this year — but suddenly, because the youth was a black immigrant, this one shooting becomes a racial cause celebre.

Dief has demanded that the Jamaican High Commissioner be reprimanded by Prime Minister Trudeau and condemned for his racial abuse "unworthy of a diplomat."

But the Jamaican Minister pleaded ignorance of the insult and struggled off the responsibility on External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen.

No, Mr. MacEachen, while speaking to the Jamaican High Commissioner on "the general subject," had said nothing about the "racism" uttered by Canadians.

But "in respect of this particular incident," as he phrased it, he warned it, "my officials have spoken to His Excellency."

What, stormed Dief, was the use of Mr. MacEachen "laying some underlink whispering" concerning the High Commissioner?

Let the Prime Minister speak in condemnation or Mr. MacEachen himself come out with a public reprimand.

But no, the External Affairs Minister not only seems to become "inflammatory," like Diefenbaker, but was "reserving the right to use my discretion."

It was the language, scorned Dief, "of those nice, soft words" External Affairs — customarily uses in speaking to North Vietnam, Cuba, Vietnam, The Soviet, and other Communist countries.

And in sharp contrast to the soft words Ottawa uses in its anti-American references to the United States.

Grape Talk 'Propaganda'

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I listened to the Mill Johnson program recently and heard a caller trying to convince people to boycott California grapes. I could sense Communist propaganda.

Now if he was really interested in the welfare of the Mexican workers he would not be using the boycott approach, as this is not helping the worker. And if they are forced to join a union they will be dictated to by the union, and not a free country one should be able to obtain work whether he joins a union or not.

Another topic of their propaganda is hate (American campaign). I feel they get mostly the ignorant people to go along with this they have gained another victory.

One woman caller called in to the show didn't seem to understand why there was such a celebration in Toronto after the fall of Vietnam. Well, it was the Communists celebrating as they did all over the world, and I wish people would use more discern what is going on.

America has long been the protector of the free world but they have had little or no cooperation from other so-called free nations where Communism has gradually crept in.

From 'Hewers of Wood' to Post-Industrialized Economy and Falling Birthrate

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It was only yesterday that Canadians were concerned that our apparent destiny was to be hewers of wood and drawers of water.

Forget it. Now it's time to worry about fitting ourselves into a post-industrial economy — a highly specialized economy that leaves the production of standard processed goods to less developed countries.

The reason: Our birth rate has suddenly fallen off, just when some populous Third World countries are achieving their goal of industrialization.

The cut-out decline in Canada's birth rate could be leading us to one of two fates.

—If we are lucky, a smaller work force could specialize in jobs requiring advanced skills and training.

—On the other hand, potential supply and domestic demand for less sophisticated goods could be significantly slower.

That's the thesis of Gerry Post, vice-chat man of the Economic Council of Canada, based on a study of Canada's fast-changing demographic pattern.

The most dramatic new development, Dr. Post told the recent annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers Association in Toronto, is the pronounced drop in birth rates.

The Paris-based Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development compiles birth-rate data for its 23 member-countries annually.

Its latest survey, for 1972, showed that Canada had 15.6 live births per thousand people. That's a sharp decline from 18.4 per thousand as recently as 1961.

Canada's birth rate was 13th among 23 countries in 1972, vs. second to New Zealand in 1961.

The effect will probably be to reduce the annual growth of our labor force to less than two percent by 1981-85. Dr. Post predicts, from an average of 3.3 per cent in the decade 1964-73.

The causes and effects of these declines are complex, and perhaps only an economist could fully savor them.

But past experience suggests that a population slowdown results in a climate of uncertainty which contributes to a slowdown in job-creating capital expenditures by business, which in turn leads to a deteriorating economic performance.

This slowdown seems likely to give rise to destabilizing forces as governments try to restimulate demand in order to avoid unemployment," says the ECC vice-chairman.

Their efforts will, however, bring to light, an increasing shortage of labor capacity constraints and rising wages. In a nutshell, that means more service industries jobs.

Birth rates remain high in many of the rapidly developing countries—and this spells sharper competition for mature economies such as Canada's.

This offers Canada the opportunity to concentrate on skill and training rather than on sheer manpower, Dr. Post believes.

Canadians will be able to select economic pursuits requiring valuable through education and capital growth, leaving other economic tasks to count.ies that are far less delicately balanced "at a different stage of development."

If that trend materializes, then a substantial part of today's manufacturing activities will move out of Canada during the next decade.

"Much of the standard output of things like automobiles, trucks, standard electrical and electronic apparatus, textiles, basic clothing items, footwear, office and home equipment, will be made in developing countries," predicts the ECC official.

Another aspect of this trend may be seen in the refusal of more and more young people to work on assembly lines, and the growing incidence of walk-outs, absenteeism and even sabotage among those who do.

As time goes on, new entrants to the Canadian labor force will have to bring a higher and higher level of education and training to their chosen work.

But they will be rewarded with more varied, interesting and profitable careers.

Glass Works Newest Tweed Craft Industry

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Because two young men opted for rustic living the Quinte district now has an original craft industry in operation.

Sunrise Glass Works was the inspiration of David Tabbott and Bill Lindsay and is one of the few craft operations of its kind in Ontario, they say.

The Sunrise concept calls for designing and producing original works in stained glass.

At present its two partners are working from the old farmhouse rented by David on County Road 9, less than a mile west of here.

Since launching their project earlier this year, much of their work to date has been involved with intricate repairs — of windows and such works.

But so certain are they of their venture's future they already talk of expanding — to a studio in downtown Tweed when the time is right.

Their optimism stems from a belief that there is a demand for glass products of color and quality.

Lampshades are a current example and a market they hope to meet.

What they're aiming for is to produce works of original or custom design — at moderate prices.

Because they are unburdened with the higher overhead of standard commercial operations, they believe they can satisfay customers esthetically at lower cost.

They work with imported European glass, which, say both men, has brighter, more enduring hues.

Sunrise blossomed from the friendship both men struck up in Peterborough, some years ago.

Bill, 28, and his wife, Stephanie LeMan, a former Trenton girl, are both artists. They moved into the Quinte area when they bought a farmhouse on the Flinton Rd., north of Highway 7, a year ago.

David, 25, originally from the United States, has been live years in Canada. He first became interested in glasswork while employed in a New Brunswick hardware store. Among his assignments was glass cutting. His interest heightened when he met an artisan working with stained glass and learned the techniques.

Both partners decided on a Tweed location for their project because of its central location to markets.

David describes himself as the craftsman of the operation for which Bill produces the original designs.

Their work blends in with their chosen, county lifestyles.

For instance, for David work mingles with carrying wood and water and keeping a vegetable garden.

News of Sunrise has spread by word-of-mouth, bringing in a mounting number of orders, say both partners.

It may be slower but they feel a satisfied customer is the best advertising.

"We don't want to go out and drum up business," says David. "We like people to come to us. We're not out to make a million overnight. We enjoy doing this."

Chamber Wants Faster Handling of Local Mail

BANCROFT — The Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce has decided to request some changes in the postal service for the North Hastings area.

According to Chamber president Doug Meeks, another member of the chamber has expressed dissatisfaction with changes in the time for mail to leave the village for other destinations.

Until recently, letters mailed in Bancroft prior to 4.45 p.m. were included in mail being sent out.

This time has now been moved forward to 4.00 p.m.

"This is simply too early for many businessmen and other people who have to do mailing out of the area," said Mr. Meeks.

Mail is also taken out of the village after an 8.45 a.m. limit, however, according to Mr. Meeks. "This service will only get mail to a city destination that day."

In the letter to the postmaster general, the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce will also be asking to have outside mail directed toward Belleville and not Peterborough.

At one time, the mail from Bancroft was handled through the Belleville facilities.

"I can't understand why it was changed," said Mr. Meeks, "before that the mail moved very well but now there are two and three day delays."

Driver Charged

MADOC — The driver of a car faced five charges Thursday after his vehicle collided with a school bus here.

Police said the car, driven by Howard Edrick Clark, 68, of Bobcaygeon, collided with the bus — driven by Mary Dianne Willock and carrying elementary school students — on Russell St. North.

Total damage was $650.

Police said Mr. Clark was charged with impaired driving, careless driving, having no driver's licence, having liquor in a place other than his residence and showing .08 alcohol after a breathalyzer test.

One child reported a sore neck following the collision.

Meters Arrive

Bancroft's bylaw enforcement officer, Dave Talbot examines the new parking meters slated to be installed on the Bancroft downtown streets within the next week.

Faraday Township Ready To Build New Bridge

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Cottagers and permanent residents of the Bay Lake area who have been using alternate routes to get home because of a collapsed bridge will have to wait a little longer for a new road.

Although a major repair and revision program for the road has been approved by Faraday Township, the financing for the $150,000 project hasn't been arranged yet.

According to Faraday Reeve Jack MacKenzie, the funds will be available through provincial sources but the details have not been finalized yet.

"If we can get the money from the province it means that the township taxpayers won't have the whole amount," said Mr. MacKenzie.

The Bay Lake project will not only include an improved crossing but also a major revision of the road approaching the bridge.

At the moment, a sharp curve and hill lead to the crossing.

"The road will go straight from the end of the bridge," said Mr. MacKenzie." This means that there will have to be a 20-foot rockcut to level the road."

The council has arranged the purchase of the necessary property for the road revision.

A new design for the crossing had been accepted by the council in April, however, it still needs approval from the provincial government.

Instead of replacing the bridge with a similar structure, the new design calls for a 10-foot culvert and rock fill to cover the area.

The crossing is over a narrow portion of Bay Lake and cuts a small eddy off from the rest of the lake.

"There haven't been any boats use that portion of the lake for 25 years because of the bridge," said Mr. MacKenzie," but now, with the culvert, small boats will be able to get through so we have to get approval from the navigatable water department of the province. This is going to delay things again."

The Faraday council is prepared to go ahead with the project as soon as the approval for the project is given.

A survey of the properties involved has already been commissioned to land surveyor M. J. McAlpine.

At the moment, the road can be used from either end, up to the bridge, however this could increase a cottager's trip up to an additional five miles.

New Crossing

Faraday Reeve Jack MacKenzie checked the Bay Lake site of a collapsed bridge which will be replaced by a 10-foot culvert and redesigned road.

New Board Will Advise on Liquor

TORONTO (CP) — John Fisher, formerly a centennial commissioner, Thursday was named chairman of a permanent advisory board to advise the Ontario government on its liquor policies.

Announcement of the formation of the Ontario Liquor Advisory Board and appointment of its first chairman was made in the legislature by Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations.

The council will be composed of a chairman, a vice-chairman and about 30 members drawn from all walks of life, Mr. Handleman said.

Godfrey Elected

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Chairman Paul Godfrey of Metropolitan Toronto was elected president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at its annual meeting Thursday. He defeated Mayor Herbert Taylor of Saint John, Sask. Mr. Godfrey has been chairman of Metro Toronto since July, 1973.

Pickering Hurt

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A June 13 speaking engagement featuring Judy LaMarsh, former federal cabinet minister, as the main attraction of International Women's Year activities here was cancelled Thursday because of poor ticket sales. One of the organizers said that only about 100 of the available 800 tickets had been sold. To break even, 750 had to be sold.

LaMarsh No Draw

WHITBY, Ont. (PC) — Pickering suffered a loss of about $4 million in farm assessment in 1974 due to the federal government expropriation of land for the Pickering airport, Counillor George Sale said Thursday. Referring to assessment figures released Wednesday with Durham region's 1975 current budget, he said the loss to the southern part of the municipality was virtually offset by a gain of the same amount in the residential section to the south.

Great Lake Levels Up

DETROIT (CP) — The U.S. Lake Survey at Detroit reported Thursday the following levels in the Great Lakes:

Superior—14 inches above Canadian and U.S. chart datum.

Michigan and Huron—42 inches above.

St. Clair—48 inches above.

Erie—48 inches above.

Ontario—36 inches above.

Gunrunners Convicted

TORONTO (CP) — Four men who pleaded guilty earlier this week of conspiracy to import arms will begin serving reformatory terms June 17.

Judge Janet Boland postponed formal sentencing until June 17 to allow the men time to settle their affairs.

Joseph Myles, 52, of Garden City, Mich., and William Gilroy, 20, of Toronto, will serve two years less a day in reformatory, while Robert Gray, 22, of Toronto and Philip Anthony Kent, 22, of Tavistock, Ont., each received 17 months in reformatory.

Sergeant Stewart Shearer said that in 1973 and early 1974 RCMP received word arms were being shipped and ending up in the hands of "certain factions in Ireland."

He testified that a Toronto warehouse in which Gray worked was watched last June 17 and Gray and Gilroy were photographed receiving 13 semi-automatic rifles which used 7.62-calibre ammunition.

The sergeant said the shipment found its way to Kent's garage in Tavistock, and late June 30, Kent and Myles put it in a car headed for Detroit. He said the rifles, packed in boxes, were seized in Myles' possession between Windsor, Ont., and Detroit.

Sgt. Shearer said the destination of the weapons was Ireland.

Myles is an executive officer of Irish Northern Aid, a U.S.-or State organization, and treasurer of the Detroit chapter of the Irish Northern Aid Committee.

Sgt. Shearer said Myles' name, address and telephone number were found in the possession of a member of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) arrested by Irish police.

He said there was also a connection between Kent and the Irish Northern Aid group. Books concerning the situation in Ireland were seized in Kent's home, along with an IRA roll of honor and IRA hat badges.

Crown counsel Patrick Duffy said the Export and Import Permits Act, under which the charge was laid, covers "everything from sea beans to submarines."

"The accused are not what I would call criminals in the ordinary sense," he said. "In their own minds they indulged in this conspiracy in good faith to help people in Ireland."

Defence lawyer Arthur Maloney said all four accused were born in Ireland. He said they decided to plead guilty to avoid the expense of a long trial. He said the thrust of the defence would have been that it is not a crime to export arms to the U.S.

Judge Boland said exporting guns must be strictly regulated and it is a serious matter to spread violence to other countries.

Word Resurrected

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Many words have just happened and have become a part of the vernacular. "Snafu" probably is the best known. "Reverse" is gaining in popular usage. Today, retrofit means installing one's home to make it energy-efficient, to conform with new government standards. During the Second World War, it meant constantly refitting military aircraft, tanks and naval vessels which become obsolete even before they were completed.

HEAVY USER

Within the last three decades of this century the United States is expected to use more words than in its entire previous history.

Sugar Price Down But Saving Offset

TORONTO (CP) — A drop in sugar refining and other commodity markets has pushed up Canadian consumption to the levels of a year ago but does not signal lower prices for such sugar-based products as soft drinks and chocolate bars, sugar refining officials says.

Sugar sells in stores at about twice its world equivalent, with 75 cents at the peak increase last November. Raw sugar, used in Canada for refined product, costs about 15 cents a pound, less than one-fourth the record 65.5 cents of last November.

M. W. Davidson, president of the Canadian Sugar Institute, said April shipments were more than 7% of million pounds, compared with 145.6 million a year ago. In April, 1972, about 180 million pounds were shipped at prices about half the 1975 level.

Officials of some industries said use large sweeteners they do not see the price declines reflected in their products.

The soft drink industry has found the lower price only offset increases in labor costs and other components.

One exception is Pop Shoppes International, Inc., of Toronto, which retails directly from bottling facilities. It finds that lower sugar prices allow it to offer more "specials" promotions which otherwise would have been impossible, says president Bruce Westwood.

The chocolate bar industry anticipates no price cuts although sugar and cocoa costs are well below 1975 peaks.

Marvin Fishman, executive vice-president of Rowntree Mackintosh Canada Ltd. of Toronto, said the chocolate bar prices last year hurt sales. He said there will not be any price cuts but chocolate bars will be larger.

Don McCarthy, president of Cadbury Schweppes Ltd. of Toronto, said the major effect of lower commodity prices is that prices of chocolate bars have not risen to 25 cents. Most now cost 20 cents.

Jack Herrick, chairman of General Mills Canada Ltd. of Toronto, said chocolate cake mixes went to 89 cents from 59 cents last year, but the company did not cover increased costs.

Gerda to Appear On TV Saturday

TORONTO (CP) — Gerda Munsinger, central figure in a sex-and-politics scandal in Canada in the 1960s, will tell CBC-TV viewers Saturday night that "it wasn't scandal, it was just life."

Her comments were made to interviewer Barbara Frum in a taped interview scheduled to run on some CBC outlets at 9 p.m. EDT Saturday.

Miss Munsinger's association with two members of John Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative cabinet in the late 1960s—Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny and Trade Minister George Hees—was revealed in 1966 and became the subject of a judicial inquiry.

The inquiry reported that Mr. Diefenbaker should have removed Mr. Sevigny from his defence post because his connection with Miss Munsinger, a native of East Germany, left him open to blackmail and thereby endangered national security.

"It was never a scandal," says Miss Munsinger, now living in Munich, West Germany.

"I was a young girl when I was living here, had a lot of friends," she said. "I was invited to a lot of parties. Should that be a scandal?"

As for Mr. Hees being named as a friend of hers, she says: "As far as I'm concerned that's all he is, an ex-football star, and that's all."

Mr. Hees played for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. He now sits for Prince Edward—Hastings in the Commons. Mr. Sevigny, a Montreuler, is out of politics.

Just Swept Away

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Barbara Fisher started sweeping bottles and rubbish from the sidewalk in front of her home in the street and left seven blocks of clean sidewalks behind her. A policeman asked her to stop sweeping, and she refused she was charged with disorderly conduct and was jailed in lieu of $100 bond.

NO JOY RIDE

TORONTO (CP)—A two-year-old girl left unattended in the front seat of a car with its motor running led to one injury and damage to a store amounting to $1,000 Brandy Wanford, left alone for less than five minutes while her mother went to her cigarettes, did the car into gear and struck a pedestrian who suffered minor injuries.

$1.25 Million in Seven Years

PM's Housekeeping Expensive

OTTAWA (CP) — While that sets issues from the procedural battle between Pierre Trudeau and John Diefenbaker over prime ministerial spending, the Commons seems to have lost sight of one of the prime issues that provoked the wrangling.

That issue focused on the rising scale of spending on the prime minister's two official residences—at least $1,252,118 during his seven years in office—and Parliament's right to find out how and why public money is being spent.

Nobody questions the legality of spending public funds on the repairs and decoration, furnishings and servants' salaries at 24 Sussex Drive and the Harrington Lake summer estate outside of Ottawa. But opposition MPs wanted official explanations of why the spending has almost tripled from the $474,662 in the previous seven years under prime ministers Pearson and Diefenbaker.

"Never has there been such extravagance," thundered former president Diefenbaker. His charge was buried under counter-charges and questions of privilege that finally were dismissed in a Common ruling Wednesday by Speaker James Jerome.

The government released some totals and details during the prime minister's inquiry. Spending in the residences normally is impossible to justify from the budgets of three main offices involved—the prime ministers, public works and the National Capital Commission.

But explanations of what spending items have not been forthcoming. And officials have unable to say, for example, just where the dividing line lies between those living costs financed from public funds and those the prime minister must pay from his salary of $52,500 and tax-free expense allowance of $10,600 a year.

Meanwhile, dogged from Cabinet, the persistent digger from the Ontario riding of Leeds, still is collecting shreds of detail about public spending in the residences.

Information accumulated by the Conservative MP from a long series of parliamentary questions, along with data provided by the government at a recent committee, show that three-quarters of the spending on the residences during Mr. Trudeau's occupancy — $928,428, or an average of more than $230,000 a year—came in the four years since the prime minister's 1971 marriage.

They also show the staff of servants rising to 10 data provided by the government at a recent committee, show that three-quarters of the spending on the residences during Mr. Trudeau's occupancy — $928,428, or an average of more than $230,000 a year—came in the four years since the prime minister's 1971 marriage.

They also show the staff of servants rising to 10 data from the seven mentioned by Mrs. Trudeau in an interview early this month. That increase includes transferring the cost of the chauffeur to the residential budget from the prime minister's office.

The information built up by MP's Council indicates that both residences should be in pretty good shape now.

Like everyone else, the government has obviously felt the effects of inflation in the price of keeping the places looking good.

For instance, in 1971, the cost of putting up the Christmas tree and lights was $1,187. A year later the cost was $2,161.

Back in the bachelor years, a food mixer was repaired in 1968 for $6.75. In 1973, a new one had to be bought.

The only expense that appeared to decline in the seven-year period was for pest control services—$360 in 1968 but only $240 five years later. The pests are not identified.

It is difficult to tell from the bare details whether the government is getting good value for its money. The 1973-74 expenditure of $25,792 on renovations to the 24 Sussex kitchen and pantry might mean heavy for the ordinary home-owner but few numbers of the public have seen the new one.

There is no sign whether the $180.66 worth of clothes hangers are wooden or wire.

On the otherhand, it would be difficult to knock the $7 spent on new pepper mills.

One item is $1,810 to "remove cupboard and sink to opposite wall, chauffeur's residence," but there is no information on the size of the seemingly simple job.

There has been $3,160 for exterior painting to the stone house on Sussex Drive.

A 1973 "cedar-lined storage room for fur storage," is listed and another contractor repaired an awning for $10.

Despite the fact that $1,840 was spent on fuel oil in 1971-72, there were still three annual frozen water pipes to deal with. They cost $48 to have that year.

By 1973-74, with inflation in high swing, the thawing job cost $240.

Most of the work is done under contract by outside firms. Tenders are usually called on jobs estimated to be over $1,000. But not always.

For instance, no contracts were called on a $6,000 alteration to the boathouse at Harrington Lake because "the scope of the work could not be easily predetermined," says the public works department. The same applied to a $14,000 installation of underground water and electrical services.

Incidentally, cost of consultants, which presumably includes architects, adds up when it comes to expenses. In 1973-74 when improvements to Sussex Drive totalled $47,630, "professional and other services" took up $9,827.

Buttons Spot Crimes

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 residents of the Lower East side are being armed with "panic buttons" to set off burglary alarms and summon neighbors to the rescue in case of a crime. The devices are tiny transistor radios that, upon being pressed, send signals to receivers in nearby apartments which in turn touch off the alarms.

MUSICAL MOSIACS OF MAJORCA AND SPAIN

"A folk song touches my heart far more deeply than a poem of genius." — George Sand, writer, Angelo Ganivet.

I have missed you.

By way of explanation, may I say my husband and I slipped away for a few week of travel and spent an enjoyable pro-longed holiday in Palma, Majorca and Spain.

Though our holiday is over, a haunting memory lingers. It is woven of little musical sequences. Mementos of a warm, friendly people who express their joy in song and the dance, Sardana: "the dance of a people marching forward holding one another's hands."

Musical overtones began at Derval Airport when a musical trio boarded our plane. The trio had just finished a winter engagement in Montreal in a fine city-but cecedi!"), and were flying to Majorca.

"We are joining four other members of our group in play at Night Club in Palma," said one member of their trio. "In a way, you might say we are a musical United Nations. This fellow," he said pointing to a second member, "is from Uruguay. While that one," pointing to the third member, "is from Yugoslavia. I am Spanish, born in Majorca.

"Each of the others," he went on, "are respectively, from France, Germany, Italy and Holland . . ."

Somehow it seemed most appropos to arrive in the ancient city of Palma along with a singing troubadour — however modern.

Sadness tinged some overtones. One day as we took a familiar favorite stroll along the Paseo Maritime which is lined with numerous hotels, we passed by an internationally famous one much patronized by the aristocracy of Europe.

We were stunned to note its doors were closed. It was empty. A mute monument of an era forever vanished. For only in memory now does a small stringed orchestra play at the foot of a carved, spiral, charming stairway, as beautifully attired guests descend to a crimson-and-gold lounge, which glimmerly leads to a fine dining-room overlooking the sea.

But time and change move relentlessly. Just a short distance away, on a hillside stands a brand-new, ultra-modern, luxurious hotel midst spacious grounds, flower-gardens, multiple pools, fountains, statuary, sculpture, its own night club, along with a superb panorama of the blue Mediterranean.

Though modern, tradition is preserved — we and old custom meet. Each afternoon, tea is served in the Spanish mahogany-panelled drawing-room while a young pianist plays Chopin on the baby grand. Music which Chopin composed back in 1838-9, just a few miles away at Valldecmos, on a piano which he imported from France.

"And," wrote George Sands, who travelled with him, "they demanded 700 francs import duty; about the value of the instrument."

My husband made arrangements for a delightful week's visit in Barcelona which allowed us to fly over (25 minutes) and return to Palma by ship (10 hours).

Our hotel on the famed street named Ramblas in las Flores was near the Opera House, considered one of the world's finest.

We not at the Opera Season, but we dined on Opera fare! Next door to the Opera House was a cafe. Its menu, in part, read in three languages:

1. AIDA: fried eggs, rice, hamburg and tomato sauce.

2. La Boheme: roast chicken, Russian salad, buttered peas and asparagus.

3. Madam BUTTERFLY: Fried hake, croquettes, buttered mushrooms, and so on for ten such meals. Other included operas were: MANON, LA TRAVIATA, LOHENGRIN, MARIAN, TOSCA, OTHELLO, BARBER DE SEVILLE.

One of the highlights of our visit was a 60 mile bus-tour to Montserrat; a 4000 foot, rather solitary, jagged-topped, mountain. It has a sanctuary as well as a meeting-place and a monastery at the very summit! This has been true for centuries, as you, perhaps, may well know.

Leaving at 10:00 in the morning, we arrived in time to hear the splendid boys' choir in the chapel. A memorable experience.

One writer has written: "One feels removed from the world . . . and feels more at peace, more confident, surer, stronger and better."

For this reason, everything on Montserrat weaves the same song . . . "Ascend! Ascend! Ascend! Montserrat is heavenly peace!"

Wrote the German writer Goethe:

"Nowhere but in his own Montserrat will man find happiness and peace."

In closing, the thought occurs to me that has been said before; how music so transcends time introduces us to other cultures and thereby the joys of other civilizations.

Thus the time has come to speak of many things, as the Walrus said.

Now that I have returned, I find I wish to be as well.

Yes, I say, however inadequately, it has been a great privilege and a pleasure to write for an excellent newspaper as The Intelligencer; to work with such fine ever understanding, kind and helpful staff, and to have, despite my endless mistakes and errors, so faithful a reader as YOU.

To all who made Second Glance possible, I thank you with all my heart. Farewell and may God Bless You.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Koopmans

Kooiman — De Jong

Dorothy DeJong and Simon Koopmans were married at a afternoon ceremony at Maranatha Christian Reformed Church, conducted by Rev. Henry Katerberg.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John DeJong of RR 1, Belleville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eling Koopmans of Edmonton, Alberta.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin. From the empire waist fell an A-line skirt with flowered appliques and seed pearls, also trimming the bodice's stand-up collar. The chapel length train extended from the waist. She wore a matching hat and piece with a shoulder-length veil, and carried a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses.

Lisa DeJong, sister of the bride, serving as maid of honour, wore an empire styled gown with a floral bodice, mutton sleeves and a rose-colored skirt. Her bouquet was of pink and green carnations.

The bride's attendants were Jane Stegeman, Winnie Pypker, and Ann-Marie Bloemendal, who wore similar gowns of sea green and carried identical bouquets.

The flower girl was the bride's cousin, Susanne Koomans, who wore a floral gown matching the maid of honor and carried a basket of pink and green carnations.

John Stegeman, the bride's nephew, was the ringbearer. Serving as best man was Sidney Koopmans, the groom's brother.

Ushers for the ceremony were Ray Koopmans, Barrie and Henry Kooistra and Barrie Kooiman.

A dinner was held at Gilead Hall-Plainfield.

The couple will tour the United States and reside in Stouffville on their return.

STANLEY JOSEPH MULDOON graduated from McMaster University with the degree of Honours Bachelor of Arts (Psychology) Stanley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Muldoon, Willow Drive, Belleville

JANICE ETHIER MULDOON daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ethier MacDonald received her Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Social Work Degrees from McMaster University.

People and Events

The annual meeting of the Belleville - Trenton Women's Christian Temperance Union was held May 29 at the home of Edit Fife. In the absence of the secretary, the treasurer Margaret Marlyn read both the Secretary's and Treasurer's reports.

The membership showed a substantial increase and reports were expended to buy bulletins for local churches and to send youth to a Youth-Rama weekend in Guelph.

The June meeting is to be held in Belleville on the 25th at 8 p.m. at Bertha Coulter's.

* * *

Centennial Spring Rally of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was held May 20 in St. Peter's Church, Moira with the theme "Remembrance, Renewal and Response".

After conclusion of business, Margaret Kennedy, Special Centennial Missioner from India, showed slides of her work.

In the evening a Fun Rally was held followed by a Worship Service conducted by CGIT of St. Andrew's of Belleville.

Burnette — Fraser

In a morning ceremony in Ottawa on May 17, Catherine Anne Elizabeth and Harry Gordon Burnette were united in marriage. Anne is the youngest daughter of Jean Fraser and the late Delmar Fraser and Harry is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burnette, Belleville.

The service was performed by the Reverend A. Lemaire.

The attendants were Sue Rattan and Steve Ogden of Ottawa.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors—and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. Have A Carefree Summer

Ruddy Electric Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St., can help you rid yourself of many of your summer complaints. For those hot, humid summer days, they have a good stock of Westinghouse air conditioners ranging in size from 6000 to 12,000 BTUs. And to rid your home of the horrible "mugginess" that often accompanies hot weather, you'll be able to buy a Westinghouse dehumidifier with a 20 pint capacity. Now your home is beautifully cool and comfortable. However, should you want to sit outside, but the pesky bugs are devouring you, Ruddy Electric has a solution to the problem too. The Floventron electronic bug killer will rid your yard of the pests. Visit Ruddy Electric today and they'll help you rid yourself of all your summer complaints.

Summer Art Classes

Mrs. Cameron of the Cameron Art Gallery, Sidney on the Roberseville Rd., 1½ mi west of Rednerville, will be teaching summer school art classes again this summer. There will be eight classes, one per week, starting July and August. You may choose classes in water color, oil painting or drawing. Should you have to miss a lesson on account of holidays, you would be able to make up the time at a later date. Call Mrs. Cameron at 962-1836 and she will be pleased to answer your queries. Don't forget the Cameron Art Gallery has new paintings available weekly that would be suitable for presentations, retirement gifts or wedding gifts. Your friends would be proud to own a piece of local Canadianna.

Reserve For Your Party Now

This is the time of year when many special functions are being planned. There are club wind-ups, bridal teas, wedding receptions, retirement dinner parties to name a few, any number of reasons why you may need the use of a banquet room. The Four Seasons Hotel is able to accommodate small groups or up to 200 people. With five banquet rooms of varied sizes, they have the facilities to make your particular party, perfect. You may choose from a wide selection of menus. On the day of your party, you'll find the tables decorated with flowers and candles. The two large banquet rooms, the Park and the Sagonaska have a dance floor. Call Kathy Kenwell at the Four Seasons, 968-3411, and she will be pleased to help you with all your arrangements.

Big New In Fashions

The big news in ladies fashions this year is the use of accessories. You will find just the right scarf, belt or gaunt-jewellery, to add to your ensemble, at the West Wind Boutique. They have a wonderful selection of all the very latest in summer accessories. And for you other summer needs, choose from their wide range of shorts, tops and cotton dresses. You are able to shop, for the latest in fashions at the West Wind Boutique, seven days a week. Tea is served in the afternoon from 1 o'clock to 4:30. The boutique and store hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Take that evening drive or weekend drive to Actinolite and visit the West Wind Boutique soon.

Own A Custom Kitchen

Here is news for you if you are building a home or planning to renovate a older kitchen. Cabinetmaster Canada, 257 N. Front St., will build custom cupboards for your kitchen to the measurements and in the exact manner your tradesmen you want for your dream kitchen. Lazy susans are available, top and bottom. You may need a beautiful wine dividers, roll out shelves, an integral broom closet or an island cupboard between your kitchen and dining area. It's all available and they have arborite tops and tops of different price ranges in cabinets from plain to decorative in your choice of wood finishes. Plan to visit the Ontario Construction display at the Quinte Exhibition and talk over your needs with their knowledgeable personnel.

Still Spring Cleaning?

I expect most of us have our spring cleaning done, but if you've been putting off that tedious task, it's time to dig your heels in and get it done. Why not do a particular job yourself by visiting ServiceMaster at the rear of 178 Pinnacle St. They have a complete line of cleaning supplies in their shop. If you still aren't convinced to go through the tortures of spring cleaning, ServiceMaster will do it and arrange for a woman to come and clean for you. She will clean floors, walls, cupboards, or just vacuum and dust if you wish. You can arrange for your cleaning lady to come regularly once a the hour, by the day, or once a week, once a month or twice a year for your spring — and oh no! — fall cleaning. Call today, 967-1672.

Stylish Glass Frames

Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E., Belleville, have the very latest in fashion eyewear for you to be displayed throughout the store. Their wide selection is incomparable, and their prices are the most reasonable in the area for the frames and prescription lenses. If you feel your eyes need a check-up, Trenton Optical will be pleased to arrange an appointment for you. Should you need glasses, you may select opyal, plastic or metal frames. You may find examples of all major trends, from thin lines in the plastic or opyl range, to the sculptured look. If they don't have the style you want, they'll order it for you. Check Trenton Optical today for all your needs in eyeglass fashion.

Car Owner Blues

On occasion you probably find yourself needing the use of a truck. Holiday Car and Truck Rentals, 11 W. Moira St., have trucks, ranging from a half-ton pick-up to a trailer trailer, available for your particular needs. Perhaps you've been to an auction and bought a gorgeous old wardrobe or flat-to-the sub which will never fit in your car or station wagon. Or you see a dining room suite or refrigerator advertised in the paper and it looks just what you want. Save on your own business and could use an extra truck because of a delivery overload. Perhaps you need a truck to help you move. When that occasion arises when you certainly could use a truck, let Holiday Car and Truck Rentals solve your problem.

Be Conscious Of Our Resources

Aqualine and Moira-Schuster Fuel, 17 S.,Pinnacle St., are naturally aware of Canada's vast importance of resources — water and oil. They have some good advice for you. A very old furnace in poor repair, and one that needs cleaning, are burning too much oil. It would be a good idea to let Moira-Schuster check into your furnace problems. By the way, did you know that if you own a warm air furnace, you own half of an air conditioner? Why not let Moira-Schuster install the other half and have your whole home completely air conditioned. To purify your water and remove the high chlorofrom content that is present in Belleville's water, check with the staff at Aqualine about a water conditioner. With pure water and a more economical furnace, you too will be doing your bit for our natural resources.

German Measles Victims Need Help from Society

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Specialists say a generation of children without sight or hearing is quickly outgrowing society's ability to help them. They are the 5,000 or more whose mothers were struck by the 1964 German measles epidemic.

Before that outbreak, there were only about 140 deaf-blind children born each year. A small number of special schools were adequate to give them support and training.

Now 11 years old, the German measles children will far outnumber the facilities and therapists needed to rescue them from mind-dulling mental hospital wards, rehabilitation specialists say. Many of them are seriously retarded.

The alarm has been sounded chiefly by Dr. Edgar L. Lowell, director of the John Tracy Clinic here which has been teaching communication with deaf children for 31 years.

"It is an overwhelming catastrophe," said Lowell, for 21 years head of the clinic which was founded by the wife of actor Spencer Tracy after the couple had a deaf son.

"Now many of these children are in mental institutions or in homes where their parents are trying to take care of them. By 1980, they will be too big to treat as children. They will have to be taught to deal with sexuality, with how they're going to get around and how they will make their lives. Their parents will be getting older."

By conducting conferences of educational, legal, social, vocational and medical specialists, Lowell is encouraging the planning of strategy well in advance of when the increased services will be needed.

Then it is up to the federal government, he said, which through the department of health, education and welfare (HEW) provides funds and programs to help the handicapped.

Robert B. Herman of HEW's Bureau of Education for the Handicapped said that in 1974 some 2,800 deaf-blind children benefitted from federal services. Federal appropriations for the deaf-blind had risen from $1 million in 1969 to $7 million for 1974.

"The bureau has embarked on an ambitious [illegible] project to improve and refine our deaf-blind strategy on a national basis," Herman said.

If they are to be salvaged, said Lowell, the children must be kept out of traditional mental institutions as much as possible. He envisioned colonies of perhaps 100 deaf-blind persons. They would have supervision, but in a family-type setting, as well as vocational and recreational facilities.

There is also a major need for the training of more teachers and therapists, Lowell said.

A wide range exists in the severity of the damaged children's troubles. Some specialists have divided them into three groups. The largest, comprising some 60 per cent to 75 per cent, is labelled "middle trainable and below."

Able to communicate only through grunts and basic gestures, these children are completely dependent on others. They are also restless and hyperactive and can drive even the strongest of parents to emotional collapse. A few of them might be able to learn simple repetitive tasks under supervision.

About 15 per cent to 25 per cent are classed as "upper trainable though lower educable." Among them, the least limited might learn communication through sign language or, if any sight remained, through simple reading and writing.

If they are not badly handicapped in other ways, many of these victims can be taught to take care of themselves and become somewhat independent, say some educationists. A limited number of this group should be able to take on some kind of work in competitive industry or business.

The top group is capable of learning somewhat even academic work, but it is a small group, about five or 10 per cent of total. With proper help, they can take a successful spot in society.

Ann Landers

Mad Dad Nails Down Phone

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our daughter took the kitchen telephone down the hall and into the clothes closet so she could speak to her boyfriend privately. This made her father very angry. He never liked the boy and resented our daughter doing this.

That same evening my husband took a hammer and some long nails and fastened the phone cord to the floor, leaving a very short cord.

I have never enjoyed visiting on the phone while seated at the breakfast table, especially while I'm cooking or baking or just having a cup of coffee. Now I'm reduced to sitting on the kitchen floor whenever I want to use the phone for any length of time. I'm 35-years-old. It's downright degrading.

I've tried to reason with my husband but he turns a deaf ear. He's a good man in many ways and I need his financial support. Besides, you just don't divorce a man over a thing like this. What shall I do?

—Humiliated

Dear Hum: Get that hammer and remove those nails. You aren't a child who should be punished. Surely because your husband is trying to get even with his daughter, it's time you put his foot down.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is paying alimony to two women. Nobody shelled out little money for months of protest—he finally gave in and bought them a little lady's bicycle. They are now 10 years old and have scribed her 23-year-old mother as a bleached blonde, so he's swinger who made her cry even at every male on the block. Grandma was pleasant, but never a smile or a kind word for anybody.

My parents are dead, rest their souls, but my husband's folks are a couple of kooks who haven't drawn a sober breath in 20 years. They have ruined every holiday and family reunion as far back as I can remember. Please say a few words about alcoholism disguised as "social drinking." Thanks. — Also Fed.

Dear Fed: — repeatedly — BUT I'll do it again. Alcoholism, which often masquerades a social drinking, has ruined more marriages, careers, healthy bodies and fine minds than any single element

Planning Prevents Loose Ends

"When you fail to plan, you could be planning to fail." — Think about it, says Alan Lindsay.

I think he has something there. Many problems are avoided in an evening course on Planning For Retirement. We talk about health, things to do, finances, wills, leisure, in general, ask and try to answer the questions: "Where do we go from here?"

Far too many retiring men find retirement frustrating, at loose ends upon walking out on the job and have trouble at over the years! Far too many develop surprisingly quickly, because they did not see this grand and God-given free time as an opportunity to be planned for.

Dear Doris: In all my experiences of nursing homes and hospitals, I am happier, more contented and better taken care of right here.

There are all of us in this nursing home, all over 70, and we are like one big contented family. We amuse ourselves with contests and checker playing, etc. Right now the women are trying their hand at rug making.

We find our hostess very agreeable and obliging, always willing to do all she can for our comfort, night or day. To me it seems a great pity that these small, home-like rest homes do not receive more encouragement.

Government grants are available for bird sanctuaries, recreation centres and other facilities for the use of the young. But few, it seems, remember the elderly. — Lucky Break.

Dear Lucky: It seems the smaller the home, the more chance of loving and individual care. No rest home should ever be over 100 patients, I was told by an experienced and successful home hostess.

I am glad that you have found one of the happy, and happily run, rest homes, in the heart of Nova Scotia. Thank you for telling us about it.

'Women's Lib Misunderstood'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Women's liberation is one of the most misunderstood and misjudged democratic movements in existence, says the wife of a university staff member with a bachelor of science degree (1957) from the University of Toronto.

Elizabeth MacGill, now a Toronto personnel engineering consultant, told graduating students at St. Lawrence College Saturday that "it is my experience that people who are down on a subject are usually not up on it.

"Women's Lib suffers from a studied ignorance of its aims, because it frequently adopts the contemporary modes of protest—street marches, rallies, noisy confrontations, blunt earthy slogans.

"It is maligned, viewed with hostility, ridiculed as a fad and made the butt of locker room jokes. Yet most people agree with its aims—that women and men should be on a more equal footing in family and public affairs and that power should be shared between them.

"I believe that sharing power will develop tolerance between men and women, that the frustrations, prejudices and animosities between them will give place to understanding and greater harmony."

PANTHER MARTIN*

SONIC LURES

We've got something fish have never seen, or felled before. The Panther Martin* Sonic lure. It's revolutionized fishing because it works on a totally new principle. Continuous hydrosonic waves originate from its concave, convex curved blade that fish find too much to resist. Never has there been a lure that has worked this dependably.

There's a Panther Martin Sonic lure for every fish and fisherman. They attach directly to shaft without swivel, and are always at a 40° angle for super action, easier casting. Try one out on your next fishing trip.

CUPE Endorses Convention Centre

Support for a convention-hall project proposed by the Quinte District Labor Council has come from district members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Delegates to CUPE's Hastings District Council have endorsed a resolution to encourage their respective union locals to buy into the labor council project.

The CUPE organization represents nine different groups of municipal employees in the immediate Belleville area.

Angus MacDonald, CUPE council president, recommended individual locals pledge financial support through share purchases, donations or payroll deductions.

This would create a building for labor "as every major city in the province enjoys," he said.

Earlier this week the labor council announced a 1,200-seat convention project and administration building for labor projects and community use.

County Workers Press For Right to Picket

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A union official claims that the protest taken by Hastings County road workers from picketing a contracted construction site has interfered with individual rights.

Phil Gauthier, area officer for Local 783 International Union of Operating Engineers, said Thursday a protest will be made to the Ontario labor ministry over the situation.

His complaint comes from an injunction granted earlier this month by Hastings County Judge Russell Honey prohibiting strikers from picketing work sites on County Road 18 — Thurlow Township's second concession.

The injunction, handed down May 8, — two days after the strike began — was sought by Tatham Construction, which has the contract for reconstruction work on the road.

The order was appealed by the union and a week ago the protest was heard by Ontario Supreme Court Justice Madame Hélène VanCamp, who reserved her decision.

Mr. Gauthier said Thursday no ruling had yet been received.

But, claimed Mr. Gauthier, the issue should first have been placed before the Ontario Labor Relations Board which "would have dealt with it immediately".

Placing it before the courts has caused needless delay and "interfered with the rights of the individual".

"We're going to take a complaint to the minister of labor," said Mr. Gauthier. "We believe these people's legal, lawful rights are being interfered with by the courts."

Meanime, there have been no indications of any new moves in the strike which sees about 25 road workers locked in dispute with the county over higher pay and working conditions.

The workers are seeking a cents-per-hour hour in wages to bring their pay packets in line with similar work groups in other district municipalities.

The parity bid — estimated at $1.21 an hour — has boosted a wage demand that amounts to $1.75 an hour.

The union also is seeking a lower minimum on hours worked before overtime is paid.

The workers now are paid time - and - a - half overtime after 45 hours, says the union, which wants the minimum lowered to 40 hours.

Mr. Gauthier indicated the union is prepared for a lengthy strike if necessary.

"We're going to stick it out forever," he said.

He said, where needed, he would find relievers other jobs during the dispute.

He said he is prepared to seek extra cash necessary from the union's special strike defence fund.

Course Demand High

The registered nursing program at Loyalist College in the school of health sciences and community studies is drastically oversubscribed, says William P. Buckley, school director.

He told the college board of governors Thursday the school could fill both this and next year's programs from this year's waiting list "and that would be unfair to next year's group."

Mr. Buckley commented unless the "carryover" problem is alleviated, "we could be in trouble."

Students Show Little Interest in Course

An effort to fill undersubscribed programs in the Loyalist College school of technology has fallen through, says Herb Young, college president.

Mr. Young told the college board of governors Thursday he had been considering an approach to Algonquin College in Ottawa "to steer some of their first-year technology students to us — to fill our holes".

However, it was discovered Algonquin has those vacancies in the same areas and when the Ottawa college has surpluses, Loyalist has identical ones, he said.

The Loyalist board has been wrestling with the problem of attracting secondary school graduates to its technology courses.

Keep Property in Natural State Directors Advise

Development of the Potter property by the Moira River Conservation Authority at its northern end should either be restricted to a wildlife conservation area or not occur at all, says Friedl Bellstedt, of Loyalist College Board of Governors.

Mr. Bellstedt was commenting Thursday on the authority's invitation to area individuals, organization and institutions for submissions on property development.

He and the northern part near Loyalist "should be maintained in its natural form as much as possible," to blend with the college's natural surroundings.

Final Day

A special party was held Thursday for Harry Ridley of 282 Ann Street who retired from the express department of the Canadian National Railway after 35 years of service. Mr. Ridley, an avid bowler and sportsman, was presented with a pen set from Leslie A. Taylor (on the right) express manager.

Drivers Honored

The Direct Winters Transport Safety Award banquet for the Belleville area was held recently at Club Cedars featuring awards of safe driving pins to many drivers.

The awards were presented by Bill Cookman, company terminal manager.

Belleville drivers have accumulated an accident-free total of about 400,000 miles on the highway and over 100,000 miles in city operation with only three minor accidents.

Newsmakers

Land Farmed

Part of the 25.5 acres of land purchased recently by Loyalist Board of Governors to the northeast of the college has been rented to an area farmer, Friedl Bellstedt, board building and finance committee chairman told a board meeting Thursday. He said the farmer has assured he will take extra cultivation care so that if the board decides to rent any of the land to Belleville for the city's garden plot program, there will be no problems with the soil.

Budget Cut

Loyalist College Board of Governors learned Thursday its capital equipment replacement budget has been slashed by the provincial ministry of colleges and universities. Friedl Bellstedt, board building and finance committee chairman, said the ministry approved the budget in the amount of $22,825 but represented "quite a shortfall". The budget cut amounts were not stated.

Kells to Speak

Lawrence Kells, chairman of Belleville's Centennial Committee and the city's official host for the birthday celebration, will be the guest speaker at the June 20 meeting of the Life Underwriters Association meeting. This will mark Mr. Kells' first public speaking engagement in connection with the centennial project.

Nursing on View

Audrey Williams (left) of Stirling dropped by the display booth filled with public health nursing facts at the Quinte Mall in Belleville Thursday. To run through Saturday, the booth was set up by Local 31 of the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) and the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit to mark International Nurses' Week this week. Giving Mrs. Williams some nursing information are Penny Koch (centre) of the unit's Trenton office and Annette Rupert of the Belleville office.

Working on the Railroad

Maintenance crews are working on a major overhaul project for Canadian Pacific Rail in the Belleville area these days. Workers and machines are in action as CP replaces 28 miles of track on a stretch of rail from east of Marysville to Trenton.

Right to Strike Places Onus On Teachers Says Runacres

Director of education Eric Runacres says the western right for teachers to negotiate their own working conditions may be a "double-edged sword" for them.

Commenting on proposed legislation to govern teacher-board negotiations in this province Mr. Runacres said Thursday most teachers are not yet aware of the responsibilities inherent in this concession.

The legislation, called Bill 100, will allow teachers to negotiate working conditions, such as class size, hours and professional development.

"If this bill is passed it will place more onus on the teachers to back up their demands — no longer will they be able to ask for special working conditions without being able to prove them," said Mr. Runacres, who also said he generally considers the legislation to be a "realistic and skillful" document.

He said trustees now will have the right to ask why teachers want a certain concession in working conditions, Mr. Runacres also said further defining must be done on the legislation because some of the wording contradicts the Education Act.

Mr. Runacres added "it will provide trustees with a greater responsibility to look more closely at improving working conditions."

In general Mr. Runacres said the legislation is a "good alternative to the present haphazard and random type of withdrawal of services" currently in Ontario.

He said the legislation outlines a definite and logical process of action to be taken by both sides before a strike can take place. The legislation also gives boards of education the right to lock out teachers.

Mr. Runacres also approved the establishment of a five-member Educational Relations Commission to watch over negotiations between boards and teachers across the province. It will select and train mediators as well as fact-finders who can be used by either side during negotiations.

Four members of the Hastings County Board of Education went to Kingston Wednesday for a briefing on the new bill. Mr. Runacres said copies of the proposed legislation will be sent to all teachers, trustees and administrators.

"If these groups have feedback on the bill they will be channelled through the respective federations," explained Mr. Runacres. The bill dictates that no strike can be called while a collective is in effect.

Trustee Wants More Public Input in Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the tenth in a series featuring candid sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville trustee Eleise Burr believes a public awareness of a public school system is essential for maintaining a progressive atmosphere.

"If that means taking constant criticism from the public it's the price we pay," explained Mrs. Burr, who was elected to the Hastings County Board of Education for the first time last December.

Born at London, Ont., Mrs. Burr graduated from University of Western Ontario with a bachelor of Arts Degree. A mother of three-grown children, Mrs. Burr has been past-president of the University's Women's Club, one of whose aims is the education of women. She is also a past-president of the Belleville Community Concert Association, which has attempted to expose children to the world's finest music.

Mrs. Burr, who is one of three women on the county board, said "the public school systems are coming under scrutiny all over the western world now and I want to play a small part in that re-assessment." She said this was one of her main reasons for seeking office last December, when 11 candidates fought for five positions.

Mrs. Burr currently serves on the policy and bylaw committee and now is involved with salary negotiations with secondary and elementary school teachers in Hastings. Mrs. Burr is active in attending educational functions and takes a part in several task forces.

She said she is particularly interested in health as it applies to the ability of children to learn. Mrs. Burr was a strong supporter of establishing an educational task force looking into nutrition in the schools.

Having been a one - time supply teacher Mrs. Burr taught a communications English course at Loyalist College several years ago. "Facility with language is the base of all learning ... the modern child is more aware, knowledgeable than his parents in many ways, but we must help him or her use that knowledge by giving them that early and continual practice in composition," she explained.

Another matter that worries Mrs. Burr is one that concerns most trustees. "The issue has transferred many of its responsibilities to the school — the teaching of moral values," she said.

In her role as a trustee, Mrs. Burr sees her main responsibility as a constant striving to improve the system in Ontario so that "our graduates can fit easily into today's complex society".

Seminar To Draw Students

Paul King, Loyalist College dean of faculty and academic services, has proposed a possible solution to the college's problem of undersubscribed programs in the school of technology.

He told the college board of governors Thursday it would involve secondary school, industrial and Canada Manpower Centre officials with Loyalist in a seminar next spring to devise a method to attract high school graduates to technology courses.

Mr. King's proposed seminar theme recieved support from board member Reg Leader of Belleville who noted the failure of an industrial seminar which was to have been held in May at the college.

Mr. Leader explained the seminar had to be cancelled due to apathy on the part of industry in the Bay of Quinte area. He said Mr. King's proposal might solicit greater industrial interest.

Loyalist May Train Miners

Loyalist College should extend feelers to Madawaska Mines in Bancroft to offer training of students for the uranium industry there, says Rev. H. J. Maloney, college board of governors representative from that village.

"I think that we should take the initiative," he told the board Thursday.

Herb Young, college president, said the proposal will be investigated with the mining company (formerly Faraday Mines) commenting, "we should look into this".

Participation Debate

Loyalist College Board of Governors should begin planning in the near future its participation in Belleville's centennial celebrations in 1976 says Gerry Wishart, board vice-chairman. He said the board Thursday it should start thinking about the issues now so it will have something to offer some time in 1976.

Ellis Heads Meeting

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, is co-chairman for a Progressive Conservative caucus for the Atlantic provinces being held in Halifax this weekend.

The three-day event opens today and is expected to draw 65 Conservative MPs and 35 other members of Atlantic ridings.

The meeting is being held to discuss national issues and improve communications between caucus members and its riding associations in the four eastern provinces.

Along with the caucus, a $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner will be held Sunday night with Alberta's Premier Peter Lougheed as key speaker.

Shotgun Confiscated

City police have charged a 19-year-old Catharine St. man with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public.

A police spokesman said a sawed-off shot-gun was confiscated Wednesday night from David A. Marchwald at his 16½ Catharine St. home.

Public Apathy

Belleville trustee Eloise Burr says education's biggest enemy is public apathy. The new trustee says public input is an important part of the changing education system.

Success of Seminar Prompts Officials to Consider Second

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The success of an April seminar at Loyalist College, conducted by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) has prompted an OISE official to indicate similar seminars will be held by Loyalist the college board of governors learned Thursday.

Dr. Doris Ryan, an OISE associate professor, made the remark in a letter of evaluation on the seminar which dealt with board-administration interrelationships. She was a keynote speaker at the two-day seminar.

The event attracted about 70 members of various boards, civic and their administrations from an area roughly Oshawa to Ottawa.

Herb Young, college president, commenting on the possibility of a similar seminar next year, said, "We could count on a greater turnout than we had for the last one".

However, he noted that to ensure adequate response from possible participants, it would be wise for Dr. Ryan and her cohorts to change the seminar content to a form in which it would not appear to be a repeat.

Board member Friedl Bellstedt of Belleville concurred, saying "I don't think we should have a second-edition." He suggested another topic should be chosen which would appeal to the same group.

Gerry Wishart, board vice-chairman, said the next seminar perhaps not be in the form of an OISE seminar conducted entirely by OISE people. He said other institutions should be involved.

Slump Appears To Be All Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Dave Kingman stepped into big bat arrived in New York at the start of the season, the Mets figured they'd found their latest saviour.

And, for a while, it looked like it, too. In the first 12 games he hit four home runs. Then, as it almost always seems to happen to Kingman, the pitchers caught up with him and his batting average steadily dipped.

Now, it appears, he's found himself again. He played in three of the Mets' four games against Houston and, in each case, delivered the game-winning hit as the Mets took all of them from the Astros.

It was the first time they've swept a series from Houston since 1969.

On Monday night, Kingman hit a run-scoring triple in a 2-0 victory. On Tuesday night, he had a 450-foot three-run homer in a 4-3 triumph and, after taking Wednesday night off, he had a tie-breaking single in Thursday's 2-1 squeaker that pushed the Mets into a second-place tie with Pittsburgh, a game back of Chicago Cubs in the National League East Division.

The Cubs beat San Francisco Giants 8-4 in Thursday's only other National League game.

"It was a long drought after that early part of the year," said Kingman. "I hope I'm finally coming around."

He came around on a 2-0 fastball by Tom Griffin to deliver Felix Millan with the tie-breaker against the Astros.

Millan opened the eighth with a single and moved up on Joe Torre's sacrifice. Then Griffin 3-6, intentionally walked Rusty Staub to set up a possible force or double play. The first pitch to Ed Kranepool, though, was wild and advanced the runners. So Kranepool was intentionally walked, too, loading the bases. That's when Kingman delivered.

Tom Seaver pitched a six-hitter and struck out eight Astros en route to raising his record to 6-4.

Houston nicked Seaver for a fifth-inning run on a walk to Tommy Helms, Griffin's sacrifice and Greg Gross' run-scoring single.

New York tied it in the sixth when Staub lined his sixth home run of the year into the Mets' bullpen in right.

Bill Madlock's single in the eighth inning, his third hit of the game, scored the tie-breaking run for Chicago against the Giants.

Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal hit successive singles before Madlock, who had singled and stolen second, hit another single to score Kessinger and put the Cubs in front 5-4.

Pinch hitter George Mitterwald and Manny Trillo also singled home Chicago runs and Steve Stoneman delivered a sacrifice fly in the decisive inning.

Diabolo the Horse To Beat - Turcotte

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Turcotte, who has ridden two Belmont Stakes winners, thinks he knows what has to be done to win Saturday's 107th running of the Triple Crown finale.

"Anybody who beats Diabolo will get the money," said Turcotte, who has been on Diabolo for a workout but who will ride Just The Time, an outsider, in Saturday's $150,000-added test.

Turcotte, the jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., won the 1971 and 1973 Belmonts on Riva Ridge and Secretariat, respectively.

Diabolo, the California Derby winner owned by Frank McMahon of Vancouver, was third in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and is the third early choice for the Belmont, a role he shares with Slight at 5 to 1.

The early 2-to-1 favorite in a field of nine three-year-olds is John L. Greer's Foolish Pleasure, the Kentucky Derby winner and Preakness runner-up. Mrs. Robert Lehmann's Bold Reason, fourth in the Derby but winner of the Preakness, is the second pick at 3 to 1.

Foolish Pleasure put in a fast final prep Thursday, going five-eighths of a mile under regular rider Jacinto Vasquez in 59 1-5 seconds and galloping out three-quarters in 1:12. Vasquez will ride the 1974 two-year-old champion and winner of 11 of 13 career starts from the No. 2 post, just outside Master Derby, who will have Darrel McHargue up.

The Preakness winner will be gunning for the seventh victory in his last eight starts and a first prize of $116,910 from a purse of $194,850, if all nine start. He was not nominated for the Belmont and [illegible] supplemented for $15,000—$2,500 to enter and $10 [illegible] $10,000 supplemental fee for the Preakness paid off in a return of $158,100 for Mrs. Lehmann.

Post time is about 5:35 p.m., EDT, with television coverage by CBS in the United States and CBC in Canada.

Diabolo worked five-eighths of a mile in 59 seconds and went out three quarters in 1:11 Thursday. "And I didn't ask him for a thing," said Turcotte. Laffit Pincay Jr. will be aboard Diabolo day when Diabolo starts from the No. 4 stall.

Other horses entered, and their jockeys, are: Sig, owned by Cynthia Phipps and trained by Frank Headley Jr., ridden by Angel Cordero Jr.; Arthur Seelighon Jr.'s Avatar, Bill Shoemaker; John Gaffrath's Prince Thou Art, Braulio Baeza; Thomas Mellon Evans' Big Spur, Jean Cruguet; Max Gluck's Syllabus, Jean Cruguet; and Mrs. George Humphrey's Nalees Blain, Daryl Montoya.

Hunter Proving His Worth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Catfish is no longer floundering, and as a result, New York Yankees are surfacing.

"I'm in the groove now and know what I'm doing," said pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter after beating Minnesota Twins 7-4 Thursday.

Hunter, the Yankees' expensive right-hander, finally appears to be worth his weight in the gold they're paying him. The Yankees' $2.75-million man, who couldn't win a baseball game in April, now has won eight of his last 10 decisions.

And the Yankees have sailed over the .500 level for the first time this season and moved into second place, three games behind first-place Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

In Thursday's other American League games, Cleveland Indians beat Kansas City Royals 8-7 in 11 innings and California Angels defeated Detroit Tigers 8-3. The Texas-Baltimore game was rained out.

"I've always been a poor April pitcher," said Hunter, 8-3, explaining his revitalization. He pitched a one-hitter last time out against Texas, but was a little less artistic this time—giving up eight hits, two of them home runs to the red-hot Rod Carew.

"There's no way to pitch to Carew," said Hunter. "He gives me trouble. He's been giving me problems. He has the quickest wrists I've ever seen."

Craig Nettles slammed a two-run homer in the seventh inning to unlock a 4-4 tie created in the fifth by Carew's run-scoring single. Nettles added an RBI single in the ninth for the Yankees' final run.

Nettles' timely hitting overcame another brilliant performance by Carew, who raised his batting average to .425.

"I can't remember ever having a better stretch," said Carew, who has an amazing 15 hits in his last 18 at-bats. "But it starts getting frustrating when we keep losing. I don't really have any personal goals left. The big apple, the World Series, is the only way to make money in this game."

Bobby Bell's fourth home run of the year, with one out in the 11th inning, carried Cleveland over Kansas City. The Indians, losing by four runs after seven innings, scored three times in the eighth and tied the game 7-7 Fred Kaat managed a little life in the ninth.

Billy Smith's two-run single capped a four-run rally in the fourth inning that enabled California from a three-run deficit to victory over the Tigers. Bill Singer scattered eight hits to improve his record to 5-7 overall and 5-0 in his career against Detroit.

Rookie pitcher Vern Ruhle, 3-2, was the victim of the Angels' rally which ended his four-game winning streak.

Umps Tangled In Red Tape

TORONTO (CP) — Two Canadian born baseball umpires are waiting for immigration officials in two countries to sort red tape that is preventing them from plying their trade in the United States.

The U. S. immigration department has refused to issue work permits to Jim Cressman of London, Ont., and Abe Shapiro of Windsor, Ont., saying there is no shortage of minor league officials in the U.S.

Both men were assigned to the Double AA Eastern League in which has three franchise cities in Quebec—Thetford Mines, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City.

"I've appealed to the immigration department in Washington and Washington," said Pat McMorrow of Pittsfield, Mass., president of the Eastern League. "It's still under appeal."

He rated both umpires as major league prospects where no such restrictions would limit them.

Two Canadian-born officials are umpiring in the major leagues—in the National League is Paul Runge, a native of St. Catharines, Ont., who moved to the U. S. as a youngster and is a U. S. citizen, and in the American League, Jim McKean of Montreal.

McKernan said that after the labor department turned down the applications, he appealed to the immigration department and was told they were also cutting down on the number of minor league players allowed into the country.

He said he considered using the two umpires at Eastern League games played in Canada, but rejected the idea.

"Technically, they were umpiring illegally in the league last year but I kept filing forms on them all season. We tried to have them classified under entertainment permits. But I'm afraid this may turn out to be international harassment. Right now and I hate to think I've wasted all that."

Nine Qualifiers For the Pro Tour

ASHBURN, Ont. (CP) — Mark Shushack of Thunder Bay, Ont., shot a four-round 67 Thursday to lead a group of nine golfers that qualified for playing cards on the Canadian professional tour.

Shushack entered the first two rounds with a five-stroke lead over Tim McCutheon of Toronto, then shot a par-72 on his first round over the Thousand Islands golf and Country club.

The 24-year-old golfer finished the four day, six-round tourney with scores of 74, 72, 67, 74, 72 and 67 for a 436 total, and picked up a $1,000 bursary to help pay his tour expenses.

McCutcheon finished second, nine strokes back at 445. Doug Warner of Toronto finished in third place at 44, shooting his final-round 68 Thursday.

Scott Knapp of Hamilton was fourth with a 452 total, followed by Jim Sturm of Thunder Bay, Mississauga at 454.

Other golfers who qualified—with six-round totals of 458 or better—were Steve Knox, Hamilton, Jim Carter, Corbrant, Toronto, 455; Michael Morris, Toronto, 456, and Greg Currie, Vancouver, 458.

McCutcheon had the best round of the tournament with his final-round 64 Thursday.

Robinson Levels on Delivery During OFL Game in Toronto

Young Veteran's Experience Paying Dividends for Macs

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

He may not be cranking home runs for the Cleveland Indians, but he is playing a major league ball. And Belleville McDonald's first baseman, Frank Robinson, is having little problem lifting up to his heralded handle.

At 23-years-old, Robinson has found himself in rather a unique position. He's the only veteran on a Senior A team.

"I feel it's almost my duty to direct the team," said Robinson. "Everyone else on the club is new to this league and they really don't know what to expect."

While Robinson is a veteran with the Macs, he is still wet behind the ears by most standards. This is only his second year in the Ontario Football League (OFL). He went right from an Ontario Junior A championship team in Beamsville (his home town) to the OFL's St. Catharines entry.

Yet his calm, collected approach to each game and his serious and conscientious attitude about his role on the squad has given him the appearance of a seasoned veteran.

"Last year in St. Kitts I had a 35-year-old, third-sacker who had been in the league for years," said the six-foot, blue-eyed right hiter, "he knew everybody who came to the plate; whether they were going to bunt or hit away and to what spot they hit in the infield."

"When you play with a guy like that you aren't long learning," he added.

Because of his natural ball sense, Robinson fit right in with the vets in St. Kitts. Though he only batted .268 he saw action in 51 of the club's 54 games. His fielding average was .996 — near the top for OFL first sackers.

In 119 appearances at the plate he collected 29 hits. This year, in 33 times up, he has 11 hits for a .333 average. Included in his hits are a home run, a triple and a pair of doubles. He also has three RBI and four runs scored in 11 games.

"I've always been a streak hitter," said Robinson, "I batted around .300 for the first couple of weeks last year, too, then I hit a slump.

"It's different here, though. In St. Catharines if I didn't do it I knew someone else would. With this being a new club I feel I can get the hits or I'm letting the team down," he explained.

St. Catharines finished third in the league's West Division last year — just two games out of first. Robinson, however, isn't discouraged by Belleville's poor start.

"I'll swear this is the youngest team in the league. Right now inexperience is hurting us, but that'll come," he said.

"We've got a lot of talented guys on this club," he added. "They're capable of playing much better ball than they have in the first 10 games."

FRANK ROBINSON

Though he played with a contender last season, losing streaks aren't something new to him. At the end of June of '74, St. Catharines was seven games in first place. Then they nose dived.

"There's a lot of pressure on you when you're losing," said the Kingston resident. "And when you're under it—a kind of pressure you can make a lot of mistakes. You just have to keep plugging away, knowing that you're better than what you're showing."

Eventually St. Kitts came out of their slump and won 11 straight. Robinson has the same attitude about the Macs as he had with St. Catharines. "You just have to believe you're better," he said. "Nobody can convince me that Woodstock is 3-0 better than us or that Kitchener is 2-0 better. There's no way."

Robinson thinks the Macs will have trouble playing .500 ball, but he still thinks they should make the playoffs.

"Those games we lost to Kitchener and Woodstock we'll have to make up against the good teams and that'll be tough," he said, "but we are capable of doing it."

The Macs will be looking to gain a little ground this weekend when they take on Robinson's old teammates in a doubleheader at the Alemite Saturday night and meet Burlington in a single contest Sunday.

"We should be able to take one from St. Catharines," he said, "and maybe two of them on the weekend."

Robinson can sure call 'em on the field. Hopefully he can call 'em in the dressing room as accurately. Two for three would really help the Macs' position.

Melrose, Plane's Are Co-leaders

Melrose gained a share of first place in the South Hastings Baseball League standings Wednesday with a 12-4 win over last place Shannonville. Plane's Concrete of Camlachie is the co-leader. Each of the top teams has a 3-2-1 record for seven points.

In other Wednesday action, Foxboro Merchants had to settle for a 5-5 tie when Read broke through for a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth inning.

At Melrose, Midge McTaggart got the win, allowing seven hits, fanning seven and walking one. Loser Jason Morris was knocked for 19 hits. He struck out three and walked four.

Hugh Brennan slammed a home run and two singles for checked in with two singles.

Morris was his own best friend for Shannonville, whacking a pair of singles in defeat.

Hits were few and far between at Read. Each side managed only four safeties in the deadlock.

Greg Empey and Rod McTaggart split the pitching choire for the visitors, fanning 13 and walking five.

Larry Coffee went the distance for Read, retiring six on third strikes and issuing two free passes in first base.

Ron McTaggart paced Foxboro with two singles. Carm Milligan, Phil Badgley, Ken Abrams and Peter Walsh had a single each for Read.

Junior Bowlers Make Their Mark

Local juniors made their mark on the bowling interprovincial scene recently at Brunswick Belleville Bowl.

The centre, located at the Belleville Plaza, had over 200 participants from London, Toronto, Mississauga, Sault Ste. Marie, Kitchener-Waterloo, La Salle Quebec and Ste. Fay Quebec competing in five and 10 pin categories.

Nine teams from Belleville took part in the event. The city had three firsts, three seconds, a third and a fourth.

In tyke five pin, Samantha Wilkinson, Judy O'Brien, Tony McGarvey, Barry Smith, John McGillivray and Jeff Warren won the championship for Belleville. Second place also went to a local team.

In bantam and junior Belleville took two seconds and in senior a local team came third.

In bantam 10 pin the local squad finished fourth. Just 30 pins out of first. Belleville junior second — Randy Hutchinson, Carol Shandraw, Alex Macarrie, Kathy Daloe and Teresa Cornwall — took top honors. In senior, Bobbie Fargey, Paul Warthington, Billy Dreath, Kevin Ward and Tom Crudden combined to keep the title here in town.

The kids were presented to all first place finishers, while those who came second and third were given ribbons.

Rain Soaks Playing Fields But Soccer Games Go On

TRENTON — The heavy rain which forced cancellation of many sports events in the area Thursday failed to put a damper on Bay of Quinte Soccer Association matches here.

Although the going was heavy, the two regular scheduled games were run off with Cobourg toppling Quinte Hellenic 3-0 at Centennial Park and Quinte Italo-Canadians taking their unbeaten record intact by whipping winless CFB Trenton 6-1 at William Smith Memorial Park.

Cobourg Tony's, leader in the BQSA's Quinte division, made it three wins in four tries. Last year's pennant winners also have a tie to their credit.

Hellenic was never out of contention, however, until the dying minutes that Alex Ezerst potted the Cobourg squad's second goal after teaming up with Ben Veenhof.

203 Players Drafted by WHA

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — The World Hockey Association selected 203 amateur players from Canada, the United States and Europe in a second draft, But Pulie, WHA vice-president and director of hockey, announced Thursday.

The WHA conducted the first three rounds of the 12-round draft on May 22 and completed the selections Tuesday, the same day as the National Hockey League's amateur draft.

Although the WHA draft was blind as secret, two teams disclosed their selections. Quebec Nordiques and Toronto Toros. Names of some other players picked also were disclosed placemeal.

Among them was Claude Larose of Sherbrook Beavers in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League. He was picked first in the WHA draft and was No. 129 in the NHL draft, going to New York Rangers in the seventh round.

"Naturally it is the WHA's intention to sign as many players as possible," Pulie said. "We intend to be competitive with the NHL. However, we also must utilize a realistic approach to the financial aspects of signing untried talent."

Pulie, in Lake Geneva for a seminar, said that no one under 18 years of age was drafted by any of the WHA's 12 teams. He said Edmonton Oilers drafted the most players, 21, with Calgary Cowboys, formerly Vancouver Blazers, next at 20.

Pulie said the WHA would formally recognize the new Denver franchise at its annual meeting starting Monday in Carlsbad, Calif. He said they also would discuss a league television plan for an intra-league draft.

Braves Scalped

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Brian Robinson's four goals led Brampton Excelsiors' assault as they defeated Six Nations Braves 23-6 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior series game Thursday.

The victory boosted the Excelsiors to six wins and two losses for the season.

Steve Maetine, Chuck Willfatts and Joe Modrzejewski supported Robinson with three goals each. Barry Richardson and Tom Phair added a pair of goals each.

Bob Haw, John Gowland, Rich Bennet, John Chandler and Art Webster all added singles for the Excelsiors.

Larry Green tapped Six Nations with two goals and Bob Squire, Doug Wilsey, Frank Davis and Gill Bomberry scored singles for the Braves.

Gaels Nip Realtors

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Stan Cockerton's goal at 11:38 of the third period enabled Oshawa Green Gaels to nip front-running Peterborough Realtors 13-12 Thursday in the only Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game scheduled.

Play resumes Saturday with Whitby at Brumalea, while Oshawa plays host to St. Catharines in Sunday's lone contest.

Although the Realtors held a 5-4 first-period lead, the Gaels rallied to hold an 11-9 margin going into the final 20 minutes.

Cockerton, Mark Kashul and Rich Barrowclough each scored two Oshawa goals as Paul Langley, Tom Wreggitt, Dean Spence, Bill Vann, Kevin Laing, Jeff Mason and Ralph Murphy added singles.

Dan Green, with three goals, and Bob Wasson, Steve Plunkett, and Paul Evans, each with two, paced the Realtors. Mark Vitarelli, Ken Byers and John Martin rounded out the scoring.

Ottawa Star Says Farewell to CFL

OTTAWA (CP) — It was 17 seasons ago that Ottawa Rough Riders invited a 20-year-old Frenchi-Canadian from Corner Brook, Nfld., to its high school training camp.

"Whenever I got belted, I belted right back," recalled Moe Racine, who retired from the Canadian Football League this month.

"I got into a couple of fights," he recalled Thursday. "I didn't know what I was doing but I guess I was doing it right."

Riders farmed him out to a junior club for part of the 1958 season. He was back before the season ended but not as a regular.

It wasn't until the early 1960s that he staked out a place on the offensive line for himself. As he grew long in the tooth, there were annual predictions that some rookie would bump him off the route.

But when the end came in June, it was Racine's decision.

"I was thinking about it over the winter," he said. "But then I wrote a letter to Frank (general manager Clair) and told him I was retiring June 1."

About 10 years ago he was invited to join the staff of an insurance company administering company plans. He now is the manager and the business keeps him occupied full-time.

Now 37, he insists football didn't help him get that job "and I don't talk football with the clients unless they want to."

In 1962, Racine became Ottawa's place kicker "but don't ask me how many points I scored. I never kept track of that."

But the question made him recall one of his big moments—a 43-yard field goal that beat Montreal Alouettes in 1962.

From 1962 until a shoulder injury in 1968 forced him to give up kicking, he kicked 67 field goals.

Boston Bolts Blasted

UNINDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Doug Hayes scored four goals and assisted on six others Thursday night as Long Island Tomahawks smashed Boston Bolts 19-12 in a National Lacrosse League game.

Paul Warden had three goals and a pair of assists for Long Island. Bill Squire, Guy Legault, Ivan Thompson and Stan Ignatzyk each scored twice for the Bolts.

The Tomahawks, now 8-7 this year, outshot Boston 51-43.

League play resumes Sunday night with the Bolts, 6-11-1, at home to Philadelphia Wings and Maryland Arrows at home to Montreal Quebecois.

"World's Baddest Man"

Beautiful Women Problem for Ali

DETROIT (AP) — Muhammad Ali said Thursday his big great challenge in fight preparation isn't training—it's beautiful women.

"The worst thing that could happen before a fight is ladies," the world heavyweight champion said at a news conference.

"I'm not worried about things like somebody hitting me! And if all these models and foxes are at ringside. . . ."

Claiming to be the "world's baddest man," Ali said he considers himself a businessman, not just a boxer. "A wise businessman," he added.

"I am a showman—that's how I staff for time and go longer," he said, adding that he has been fighting every six weeks and needs to conserve energy.

Ali said he might do more televised fights as he did last month but "that was a cheap fight; I only got $1 million."

Then he added, "I have to keep fighting to beat the taxes."

He predicted he would fight Joe Frazier and George Foreman before the year is over "as soon as they can put up the money."

"And they'll get beat by the greatest and greatest of all time," he added with a grin.

Canadian Equestrian Team First

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian equestrian team of four riders placed first in the combined event at the 10th annual Student Games last weekend at Kell, Germany, the Canadian Combined Training Association, Inc. announced Thursday.

The team was composed of Sloane Hammond of Langley, B.C., Mark Isboy of Toronto, Nick Holmes-Smith of Oliver, B.C., and Barbara Wiershicki of Wyoming, Ont.

In addition, Miss Wierzbicki placed fi st in the individual event. Holmes-Smith was third and Isboy 11th.

In the dressage competition, Miss Wierzbicki was fourth and Holmes-Smith was fifth.

Holmes-Smith placed third in the jumping competition and Isboy was fourth.

Toros Have Had It

Gratton Not Upset By News of A Split

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey's threat of free spirits and Toronto Toros have come to a parting of the ways as Cliff Gratton, who still has four years remaining of his five-year contract couldn't care less.

"Who cares," the goaltender said from his Montreal home when told he had breached his contract calling for $145,00 a year and was no longer included in the World Hockey Association team's plans.

Gratton disappeared after the Toros quarter-final loss to San Diego Mariners and missed the team picture.

"He has broken his contract," Toros' president John F. Bassett claims. "He has made disparaging remarks about the club, he has failed to show up for team functions at hell, we couldn't find him once during the playoffs when our team had a goalie injury in the warmup."

Negotiations are under way between Toros and the player's agent, Dave Schatz of Montreal, to settle the dispute out of court.

"I'm not upset," says Gratton. "I'm 23 so I have another 20 years to go and I'm not going to worry about anything.

Gratton won 30 of 50 games he completed for Toros during the regular season and posted a 3.85 goal-against average.

In the playoffs, however, he lasted less than two periods in the opening game of the San Diego series and gave up five goals. Veteran Les Binkley and rookie Dave Dryden played all the Toros bowed in six games.

Rautins Is Back With Nationals

TORONTO (CP) — George Rautins of Toronto, a ninth-round draft choice of Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association, is back with Canada's national team after withdrawing in disappointment over lack of financial assistance from the federal government.

The 23-year-old Rautins, who has played for Niagara University in New York state the last four years and was with the Canadian national team in 1973 and 1974, will be part of the 12-member squad which leaves for Cuba Sunday for the six-nation Havana Games.

Unable to obtain an $1,800 government grant because Ottawa said his college scholarship amounted to more than that, Rautins decided not to play for the national team in 1974.

But after a talk with national coach Jack Donohue this week, he reconsidered.

Rautins was picked by the Braves in the annual college draft and is supposed to be at their preliminary camp June 23.

Comeback For Foster

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former light-heavyweight boxing champion Bob Foster says he's returning to the ring after less than a year's retirement because "I just got tired of laying around."

Foster, 36, will meet Will Bill Hardney of Baltimore in a 10-round event June 28 in Santa Fe, N.M.

Foster retired unbeaten last September, holding the World Boxing Association's light heavyweight crown.

BIRTHS

BURNHAM — Brian and Mona (nee Politis), Stirling, Ont., thank God for the safe arrival of their daughter Lana Katherine, on Tuesday, July 3, 1973 at Belleville General Hospital. Weight 8 lbs. Sister Lynn and brother Jeffrey thank God for Richard and Dr. Parsons and nurses on 11th level.

IN MEMORIAM

FIELD — In loving memory of a dear sister, mother and daughter, Mildred Field, who passed away June 6, 1971.
We do not need a special day,
To bring us to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If we could return to give,
We would give to you, and more,
To see your face,
Come smiling through the door.
—Lovingly missed by mother, father, brothers, sister, daughters and grandfather.

WALKER — In loving memory of a dear husband, Percy Walker, who passed away June 6, 1971.
Five years have passed since that sad day,
When one I loved was called away,
God took him home — it was his wish,
But in my heart I thought he was selfish.
The flowers I lay upon his grave,
Will wither and decay,
But the love I have for my husband,
Will never fade away.
—Always loved and remembered by wife Joyce.

WALKER — In loving memory of a dear father, Percy Walker, who passed away June 6, 1971.
What we would give to touch and see,
Our dear dad once more and say,
We hear and see you very often,
To sit with you and chat awhile,
So you can talk to a father,
Charlie him with care.
Time can't erase from the heartache,
Till you see his vacant chair.
—Always loved and remembered by daughters Brenda, Lorna, Susan and son Roger.

CARDS OF THANKS

MAY I express my sincere thanks and gratitude to friends, neighbors, relatives, in family, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and Father Sirit for visits, cards and prayers during my stay in Trenton and my recent mass on Tuesday. Mackinnon, Dr. Crispin, nurses in hospital care and all those for their attentive care for me while a patient in hospital. Carman McGillen.

The family of the late Mrs. Ida Hilbert would like to thank their many friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness and messages of sympathy during the illness and loss of a beloved wife. Special thanks to Hillie nurses on sixth floor, Drs. MacLean and Ellsworth, the Rev. Fenwick Williams and Funeral Director Leslie Frost for all their help and kindness. Mr. Charles Hilbert, daughter and families.

Many thanks to the nurses and staff of the 5th floor, Dr. Murray and Dr. Maxland for the care and consideration given me while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Also to Chaplain Gerald Hogan, individual visits. Chapter 14 Order of the Eastern Star for cards, cards and get well wishes. Thank you all.
—Blanche Parks,
Carrollton, Ont.

Old-time Truckers

Could this be Robert Redford and Paul Newman taking a break while filming The Sting, Part II? In fact, the picture was taken in Vancouver in 1916. The man in the derby hat used the truck, an Albion, to transport bath tubs imported from England. Trucks such as this one will bring nostalgic memories to visitors to Toronto's Harborfront where both antique and unusual present-day trucks will be on display. The exhibition, sponsored by the Ontario Trucking Association to commemorate National Transportation Week will run from Thursday, June 12 to Sunday June 15.

Craftsman Makes Rare Violas

OEASIFZ (CP) — Rivka Erdess was making a guest appearance as first viola player for the New Chamber Orchestra.

After the audience had demonstrated its approval of her performance, some people went up to comment on the instrument.

"Where did you get your viola?" she was asked. "Such superb tone — it must be extremely valuable."

"My husband made it for me," Rivka Erdess replied. "He is the very best."

Otto Erdess is a viola maker who married a viola player after he had followed her half way around the world.

How they share an apartment-studio-workshop in Toronto.

While Rivka practises for concert appearances, Otto creates violas in the classical manner of the old Italian masters.

Even the stairway from their front door is crammed with planks of what he calls "Canadian gold, great trees that will make great music one day."

He says Canadian maple and spruce are superior for his craft to any wood found in Europe.

Many of the 800 violas he has made are found in the great symphony orchestras of the world.

The price range is $2,000 to $5,000, but he said he drives toward perfection rather than a large bank balance.

He began as a boy in Hungary. He was 12 when he took his first violin lesson and at age 28 he made his first viola.

After graduating from the academy of fine art in Budapest, he worked as a commercial designer, concentrating on illustrations and posters.

"Making violins was a hobby that caused me a lot of friction," he said. "There were complaints from the trade and from my superiors, who claimed I was neglecting my own work, putting my hobby first.

"By this time I was making between 10 and 15 violins a year and they were in demand by some of the top musicians."

Mr. Erdess fled Hungary in 1956 and settled in New York, setting up a successful textile design studio.

"It was in New York that I realized there was a great shortage of violas. I knew I could create them as a business instead of a pastime. But when I suggested this to the dealers they told me it would take at least 10 years to break into the business."

He said he fooled even the experts with his violas, who thought they were made by an Italian master. He also enjoyed returning to the world of music.

The new venture introduced him to Ivka when she came to Manhattan with the Israeli Philharmonic.

She visited his studio with a friend, buying a viola. Correspondence followed the meeting and, six months later, Mr. Erdess followed her to Tel Aviv. He opened a studio there and they married at the end of 1973.

They came to Canada to settle because they both felt Canada had much to offer.

"I had Canadian customers in New York and was most impressed by them," said Mr. Erdess. "There is a demand here for my work.

"Above all, I have Canadian maple and spruce to work with. That is perfection. If there is another viola of any age in the world that can produce a better sound, I will give a $5,000 cheque to charity."

Need Accommodation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — About 9.5 million persons will visit Philadelphia for bicentennial celebrations next year, and about two-thirds of them will need commercial housing, the city's travel development chief says. He predicts there will be a lot of day-trippers, since 27 million people live within a 2½-hour drive of the city.

NEW YORK (AP) — The divorced wife of Chet Huntley, the television commentator who died last year, filed suit Thursday against his estate, saying she is owed $300,000 under a separation agreement.

Ingrid Huntley said that under the agreement of Jan. 5, 1959, Huntley agreed to pay her a portion of his income in accordance with a stipulated formula.

She charged in federal court papers that Huntley breached the agreement when he failed to inform her he had an arrangement with the National Broadcasting Corp., for whom he had worked, to defer compensation.

A source in the office of the lawyer representing the former Mrs. Huntley said the deferred payments amounted to slightly more than $1 million. The couple was married in 1936 and had two daughters before their divorce in 1959.

The suit names Huntley's widow, Tipton, as the defendant.

LONDON (AP) — Stuntman Evel Knievel had a visit in hospital Friday from film actress Ann-Margret who told him America wants him to carry on jumping.

The actress paid the get-well visit in return for a special trip Knievel made to Las Vegas for a comeback show after her recovery from serious injuries suffered in a 23-foot fall on stage.

Knievel has been flat on his back since Monday when he fell at the end of a successful motorcycle leap over 13 London buses before 70,000 people at Wembley Stadium.

Knievel struggled to his feet till his fans he was retiring, but the next day changed his mind and said he'd continue his jeers.

PARIS (AP) — Michel Simon, who appeared in 83 theatrical productions and 145 films, died Friday. He was 80.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing called his death "very sad news."

"He was a very great actor and at the same time a man who had suffered from many things in his life and who lived in an almost constant state of anguish and personal uneasiness."

Simon, a Swiss, was a boxer, acrobatic dancer and photographer before he turned to acting in 1920.

LONDON (Reuter) — An old ballet shoe was sold for $300 at an auction here Thursday.

Britain's National Theatre Museum paid the sum for a pink satin shoe which once belonged to Tamara Karsavina, one of the stars of the Ballet Russe Company in the 1920s.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, June 7

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) The bargains you're looking for are out there today. With wise shopping, you'll be able to stretch your household budget.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take a no-nonsense positive in your dealings today. Once others see you mean business, they'll fall in line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't you think it's about time to remind someone of an old obligation to you? You may be able to collect a piece of it today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have a chance to do a favor for an old friend who has done much for you. If it involves sacrifice, remember he past unselfishness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're at your best in competitive situations today. Recall: You have reserves to draw upon that others lack.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a good day to talk directly to persons who can help you reach your goals or enhance your status. Don't deal with go-betweens.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't be discouraged if the profits from a venture are lean at this time. They will become more ample later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will have a hard decision to make today. Once you make up your mind, stick to it. It will be best for all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's harvest time for pickings are a little slim, it should be a bonanza. Try harder next time.

Night Light Not Really Necessary

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your opinion of putting an 18-month-old baby to bed in a dark room with the door closed all night?

The parents don't use a night light in his room. They say a baby his age is not afraid of the dark, and also that he would get out of bed and run around. He cries some before going to sleep. He doesn't sleep in a crib. — Mrs. A. R.

You make that little tyke's bedroom sound like the black hole of Calcutta.

The whole night light question is, in most cases, one of practicality. The average parent should decide the matter based on common sense observation of the individual children.

Looking at the practical side of it, it is sometimes convenient to have a small light in the child's room, especially if he is not sleeping through the night, or if some special attention is required. At 18 months, the baby should be sleeping through the night. It is usually wise to leave the door ajar so it is not unusual activity can be heard.

Often, a little gate can be installed across the doorway. If he is scared this wandering might take him to far corners of the house.

Crying at bedtime is another matter. It is not abnormal for a child to put up a fuss at bedtime. After all, he is being removed from the mainstream of things he's begun to enjoy during the day, not the least of all the mother, a symbol to him of continued protection. But un-less the fussing develops into a marathon session of wailing more than 10 or 15 minutes, this will do the child no harm.

But if he seems genuinely afraid of the darkness, a tiny light will do any harm either. The light can be removed later as he grows older, or it can be switched off when he falls asleep. As the summer days become longer, this problem will often disappear, and the night light question takes care of itself.

The point to remember is that you shouldn't be any battle of wills between parents and the infant over anything as insignificant as a tiny light in a corner. This could inflict some psychological damage on the child if carried to extremes.

Weekend Dentist Has Heavy Load

TAHSIS, B.C. (CP) — When Robert Patton, a dentist f om Vancouver, flies to this small community on Vancouver Island to visit his patients, he knows the casebaal may be as high as 60 a day.

On these weekend visits, "getting away from it all" means drilling patients who rarely see a dentist and require serious dental care.

Dr. Patton is one of nine dentists from the Greater Vancouve area who do volunteer work at a monthly clinic operated by the Nootka mission seven miles north of here at Esperanza.

When he touches down on Tahsis Inlet he brings with him June Boie, his assistant, who helps him with the patients and instructs the children in proper care of the teeth. Often they work 14 hours a day to see patients who have t evolved from settlements along 50 miles of the rugged west coast area of the island.

This is bush country, where settlements are isolated and few have their own dentist. Dr. Patton's patients are from Indian villages, logging camps and mills.

The only dentist's office many of the patients have ever visited is the tiny room set up in the mission's basement. Many have serious dental problems because they see dentists so irregularly.

"Like this little girl I just finished," said Dr. Patton. "She's probably never been to the dentist. She had rampant decay in every quarter of her mouth. We did a crown, seven fillings and three root canals on her."

Joe Hall, a dentist from Burnaby who also works at the mission, said such intensive work sessions can be a strain on the best of a doctor's patients.

"But the rural people are easier. Maybe they don't have the fixations and anxieties of city people. They're very willing to accept stress, especially the children."

Dr. Patton and Dr. James Reid, 34, said children here would probably observe better dental care rules if parents had started them when they were younger.

"Until last year I didn't brush my teeth and had a lot of decay," he said. "So I (martened up and I'm brushing now."

D. Dr. Patton said the volunteer doctors are asking the provincial government for funds to buy two or three operating chairs so the work can be done more efficiently. One of the chairs now in use is an antique.

"We could do th ee or four times as much work and we still wouldn't be satisfying the needs of the area," he said.

Several dentists have volunteered to join the program so that no dentist will have to visit the mission more than twice a year. Dr. Patton has been visiting the mission since 1967 when the program began.

"Finesses, finesses, finesses! Why don't they ever work for me," groaned Hard Luck Joe.

West had opened the bidding clubs and shifted to the ace and four of diamonds. East had taken his king and led back a club which Joe ruffed. Eventually Joe had ruffed another club to see if the ace would drop. When that didn't happen Joe had lost the heart finesse, game and rubber.

If Joe had taken the trouble to review the bidding he would have come to the conclusion that West held the queen of hearts. The best step would have been to see if he could do anything about it. The answer would be that he certainly could.

If Joe had ruffed his last diamond and then run all his trumps he would have come down to a three-card ending. North would be holding king small heart and the queen of clubs and he the three hearts he had been dealt.

West would have had to hang on to the ace of clubs and hearts could only have two hearts left. The queen would have dropped and Joe would have had nothing to complain about.

Trudeau Defends Helicopter Use

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau stood his ground Thursday amid a Commons outcry over plans to use armed forces helicopters for a weekend tour which includes some campaigning for Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

"I make no apologies for this," Mr. Trudeau said over protests from several Conservative MPs including former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Trudeau, whose party will fly in three $1-million Huey helicopters during the two-day tour, said the use of public aircraft to attend political and non-political events was established long before he became prime minister in 1968.

The remark was challenged by Mr. Diefenbaker who said to cheers from Conservative MPs that no partisan political use was made of public aircraft by himself or the previous two Liberal prime ministers—Lester Pearson or Louis St. Laurent.

"The expense (for the weekend tour) should be by the Liberal party of Canada, not the people of Canada," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Armed forces officials say the helicopters cost more than $500 an hour to operate. The cost for the weekend has been estimated at $20,000.

Mr. Trudeau said the tour through five southern Ontario communities is largely non-partisan.

His itinerary, released by his office, indicates that two of six public appearances will be political.

An Ontario election is expected to be announced soon.

He is to visit a Collingwood shipyard, answer questions from high school students in Barrie, attend a Liberal reception in Hamilton, visit a Waterloo recreation centre, attend a public gathering in Port Dover and stop at a political picnic at Mr. Nixon's farm near St. George.

Five private hatches, receptions and dinners also are planned. Most are expected to be with Liberal officials.

A May 28 memorandum, sent to Ontario Liberal MPs and signed by a Trudeau aide, says the picnic will be the highlight of the tour.

"... The prime minister will be demonstrating his support for Bob Nixon," it says.

Arrangements for the tour were made when Ontario Liberals were preparing for a possible spring election. The Ontario vote now is expected in the fall.

There were jeers and shouts when Mr. Trudeau characterized the tour as largely non-political.

"What about the picnic?" demanded Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Trudeau said it is "open to all the citizens of Ontario."

He invited Mr. Diefenbaker to accompany him but told the 79-year-old former prime minister he could not use the same helicopter. He would have to travel with reporters and other members of the Trudeau party, Mr. Diefenbaker declined.

Mr. Trudeau said helicopters are the only practical aircraft for the tour. Most communities did not have airports capable of handling the transport department Jetstar he uses frequently when travelling to larger centres.

The helicopters carry 15 persons each, including a crew of three, and travel up to 120 miles an hour.

Victim Puts Bite On

PHILADELPHIA (Reuter) — A woman raped in her apartment building here Thursday retaliated by biting off her assailant's tongue, police said.

They said the 25-year-old woman was first attacked in her apartment, but fled into a hall where the attacker knocked her down and raped her.

Apparently in a fit of passion, the man stuck his tongue into the woman's mouth and she bit it off.

The man ran to a nearby hospital but a doctor who returned to the scene said the piece of tongue—one inch by 2½ inches—could not be sewn back on.

Police said the assailant was admitted to the hospital and charged with rape, burglary, indecent assault and weapons offences.

Saskatchewan Politicking Tough

SASKATOON (CP) — The revitalization of the provincial Progressive Conservative part could be the key to the result of the Saskatchewan general election Wednesday.

In 1971, when the New Democratic Party won handily and knocked the Liberals out of office, the Conservatives ran only 16 candidates and won no seats. This time, they've got a full slate of 61 candidates and are seeing their first full-scale campaign in more than 30 years.

Although few people outside the Conservative party expect it to win many seats, a good number of Liberal and NDP officials concede that the Conservatives will increase their 1971 vote. Their candidate roster alone points to that.

What intrigues NDP and Liberal observers, and concerns some in certain constituencies, is where the Conservative votes will come from.

Despite the lopsided 1971 result in terms of seats—45 NDP, 15 Liberal—the margins of many winners were small.

Of the 23 seats that can be compared with 1971 results, 11 were decided by fewer than 500 votes and eight by 200 to 300 votes.

Such narrow margins have prompted NDP Leader Allan Blakeney and Liberal Leader Dave Steuart to start their troops to work harder than ever during the final days of the campaign.

Both the NDPs and the Liberals are concentrating on large urban rallies in an attempt to fire up party activists to go out and meet those undecided voters.

The governing New Democrats, who for several weeks have been hammering home the theme of their commitment to defending Saskatchewan resources and the Crown-sent Pass grain rates against what they see as federal Liberal threats, now are emphasizing the issue of leadership in ads and speeches.

At the Saskatoon rally Wednesday night, Deputy Premier Roy Romanow told 1,500 cheering supporters that since 1971, "Premier Blakeney has become official spokesman for Western Canadians.

"Saskatchewan cannot afford to lose the leadership of a man like Allan Blakeney."

The major Liberal change has been to play down criticism of the government and begin concentrating on positive Liberal proposals of alternative policies.

Political opponents say that move was prompted by hostile public reaction to the heavy volume of critical Liberal television ads. But Mr. Steuart said the party spent the first part of the campaign informing the public of the deficiencies of government policies so it could then propose alternatives.

The Conservatives, meanwhile, have had no need to tone down their criticism.

As part of Leader Dick Collver's strategy, the party has been offering a government of moderation, saying it will bring together all the groups polarized by decades of Liberal-NDP strife.

He predicts that Saskatchewan voters will respond overwhelmingly to a chance to end traditional party bickering and what he calls government on behalf of special-interest groups.

Canada Discourages Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken a very strong attitude of opposition to the use of Canadian waters by oil tankers expected to stop at a proposed oil refinery in Maine, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said Thursday.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) raised the issue in the Commons, noting that Pitts and Co. of New York has received approval to build an oil refinery at Eastport, Me.

Tankers travelling to the refinery would have to pass through Head Harbor Passage, which involves Canadian territorial waters.

Mr. MacEachen said the application still must be approved by the Maine environmental board. The government wanted to see the decision, expected by mid-June, before taking further action.

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said the Canadian position is that tankers using the passage should weigh less than 25,000 tons. He understood the application before the Maine board involved tankers up to 130,000 tons.

MANAGED FOREST TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

The Ontario Government has set up a program of tax reductions on forest land. The purpose is to encourage proper management of such land, and to ensure its fullest productivity.

Qualifying forest land owners will receive grants equal to 50% of the 1973-74-75 municipal and school taxes levied on their forest property.

This program will be of interest to anyone owning forest land that is not assessed as part of a farm. It is for the relief of landowners who manage their forests for the production of wood and wood products, and for the provision of wildlife habitat, water conservation, and prevention of erosion.

Carrion On Sale

HULL, Que. (CP) — Tainted meat, was shipped to Quebec from Ontario for nine years and reached a rate of 10 to 20 tons a week in 1971-72, the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into contaminated crime was told Friday.

Gerard Mallette, a thrift meat distributor, told the inquiry he was involved in two networks that included seven Ontario meat salvagers reaching as far west as Orillia, Ont.

He said that during 1971 and 1972, he was shipping between 10 and 20 tons to three Quebec plants. It was processed there and some returned to Ontario.

Inquiry chairman Judge Jacques Dutil said later he now have conclusive proof that this has been going on from 1966 to May, 1975, on a continuing basis, although not always the same people were involved.

Mr. Mallette, 57, said he received carrion from Guy Machabee of St. Albert, Ont., and sold it to Ernest Lacroix of Orleans, Ont., and Ernest Lafortune of Pointe Gatineau, Que., between 1966 and 1970.

In 1971, he organized with six other Ontario meat salvagers to transport carrion to three Quebec customers.

He identified the Ontario salvagers as Ross Copeland of Colden, Gordon Elliott of Smiths Falls, Dick Collins and Arthur Burrett of Peterborough, Nick Montague of Orillia and Marc Lorent of Durham.

The meat was shipped to Gustave Paquin of St. Jerome, Que., and Daniel and Roger Rivard of Rouyn, Que. He said Mr. Paquin was described as the main financial backer for the group of six.

The meat shipped back to Ontario was treated at a plant in Lachute, Que., owned by Roger Dupont. Mr. Mallette said.

Réjean Paul, Crown prosecutor, said the only meat recipient identified was Kingston Creamery in Kingston where a shipment was seized in 1972 raid.

Mr. Mallette told the inquiry he and his family were threatened several times in attempts to get him to "take the rap" if any charges were laid in the Kingston meat seizure.

The threats were not successful, but he took $20,000 from people he did not identify, after agreeing to accept all blame. He said Mr. Paquin was paid almost $2,000 by Kingston Creamery for the shipment.

The inquiry is to continue Monday in Montreal.

U.K. Vote Landslide

LONDON (CP) — By a thumping majority, Britons have voted to retain their membership in the nine-member European Economic Community (EEC).

With all 68 districts in, the official count showed 67.2 per cent of the ballots cast Thursday in the referendum were for continued EEC membership. The count was 17,378,581 for and 8,470,073, or 32.8 per cent against.

A jubilant Prime Minister Harold Wilson said the British "in clear and unmistakable terms, have made their historic decision that Britain shall remain a member of the European community", a decision he had urged since March.

Conservative Leader Margaret Thatcher also had campaigned with Wilson and a makeshift coalition of moderates of both parties to keep Britain in the EEC. She said the result "will give a tremendous boost to the morale of the whole community."

HALIFAX (CP) — "The moment of truth has come," Robert Stanfield told a national caucus here Friday night and offered some advice on the next federal election.

"I'm not going to be running another election."

His remarks came after an explanation by party director John Leschkies of the election expenses legislation and how it affects constituencies. It means, basically, that they'll have to raise and account for their own money to a greater extent.

"Just get at it," Mr. Stanfield, who probably will step-down as party leader next winter, told party workers.

Women Biggest Challenge

Muhammad Ali, right, pulls Beverly Leonard of Southfield in front of microphone as he remarked during a press conference in Detroit that his biggest challenge in fight preparation isn't training — it's beautiful women. Ms. Leonard was one of several negro "beauties" he picked from audience and had them brought in front of the gathering. Prostitutes On Strike

PARIS (Reuter) — Prostitutes in Lyons, Marseilles, and Montpellier are occupying churches to back demands ranging from a halt to police action against them to the right to social security benefits.

In Nice, 200 girls voted to strike during the weekend and prostitutes in Cannes and Grenoble said they will also strike.

There has yet to have been any threat of a strike in Paris, although a delegation representing 1,000 prostitutes presented a petition to the mass circulation newspaper, France-Soir "calling for an end to police interference.

Prostitution is not illegal in France but a law passed in 1946 outlawed brothels and soliciting.

In Marseilles, a group of prostitutes occupying the Church of St. Vincent de Paul has demanded that certain hotels be reopened.

A local hotel has provided the women with bedding while a nearby restaurant is supplying food.

The unrest among France's estimated 20,000 prostitutes came to a head Monday when 60 girls occupied a Lyons church and summonses were issued to some of them.

Some prostitutes say they are given up to six summonses a night by policemen who do not always bother to get out of their cars. Each summons can bring a fine of up to 100 Francs ($27).

Taken Over

OTTAWA CP — The controversial Rochdale College building in Toronto was officially Friday to become the vacant possession of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said the Government will now make arrangements with other government and private groups to see the building "gets the best social use."

City Ambassadors Arrive in Lahr

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Scores of Bellevillians are being fêted in their twin city this weekend — thousands of miles from home.

The exchange of greetings — both official and informal — have one word written large: Friendship.

That's the objective as the Belleville travellers are entertained by leaders and citizens of the West German town of Lahr.

Headed by Mayor Robin Jeffrey and other city hall officials, the 100 Bellevillians were among 200 who flew out of CFB Trenton Friday night on a 3,900-miles charter trip dubbed the Belleville-Lahr Friendship Flight.

It's the most ambitious exchange tour since both communities were twinned three years ago.

To now, such visits have been confined to student, official and professional exchanges with Lahr — also headquarters for Canada's NATO contingent.

The actual Lahr visit lasts three days — the start of a two-week charter vacation — and brings the citizens of both communities into intimate contact.

The Bellevillians will be entertained in the homes of Lahr's citizens and taken on tours of the surrounding Black Forest countryside before going their separate holiday ways.

But there will be mutual official gestures to highlight the stay.

Saturday and Sunday, Lahr's municipal officials will stage receptions and entertainments for the visitors.

Monday, Belleville reciprocates with a formal reception of its own.

It will be at one of the ceremonies that Mayor Jeffrey will present one of the heavier items she's carrying in her luggage — a plaque from the city, inscribed in both German and English — and bearing Belleville's crest — it marks the first such "friendship flight" exchange.

With the city hall continingent are city councillors George Zegouras, Stu Meeks and Paul Russell and city manager William Purcell.

The flight, organized by the city's three travel agencies, was originally suggested by Frank Murray, Radio Station CJBQ station manager.

Toll Confirmed At Five

TUNNEATON, England (Reuter) — Police confirmed today that five people were killed when an overnight express train was derailed and crashed as it approached the railway station here early Friday.

Earlier reports from the scene said seven bodies had been found in the wreckage of the London-to-Glasgow express. But a police spokesman said today authorities did not expect to find any more than the five bodies already discovered.

The state-owned railway says it will open a private inquiry into the crash on Monday, and a spokesman for the department of the environment has said there also will be a public inquiry.

The train was carrying 191 passengers when it crashed on a stretch of track where a 70-mile-an-hour speed limit was in force. Several reports said the train was travelling much faster than the limit, when it left the tracks.

Bus Holdup

Bus riders on their way to work in Ottawa, Friday, were surprised to be stopped by Ontario Provincial Police armed with rifles. The police were continuing their search for four remaining escapees from a regional detentioni centre in nearby, Gloucester township. The armed escapees are said to be extremely dangerous. 9,000 Laid Off

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 9,000 city workers have been ordered off the payroll by the end of the month as part of New York's effort to reach fiscal solvency, Mayor Abraham Beame made the announcement Friday as legislation designed to ease the city's debt remained tied up in Albany by disagreements among bankers, Republican state legislators and Beame.

Condition Serious

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Shadrack, 16, one of 13 students injured in a shooting at Centennial high school in Brampton, Ont., last week, was listed in serious condition Friday after an operation to drain a lung abscess. The operation was his second since he was shot in the chest by Michael Slobodian, a Grade 11 student at the school. His condition had been improving, a hospital spokesman said.

Back to Normal

OTTAWA (CP) — All departments of the Ottawa General Hospital were opened Friday after a Wednesday night fire which forced evacuation of 175 patients from one wing of the institution. A spokesman said all patients moved to other institutions or sent home temporarily had returned to the hospital. The fire, which started in a basement x-ray storage room, forced the evacuation of maternity and general medical wards.

Cheese Quota Set

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department announced Friday a global import quota on all types of cheese, effective Saturday. The quota for 1975 will be 50 million pounds of cheese, about 5 million more than imported in 1974. The move was made to simplify existing import controls — which distinguish between variety and end use — and to protect domestic industry, said trade minister Alastair Gillespie.

Tolls to Be Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will review canal tolls to see whether residents along canals should get special privileges. Judd Buchanan, minister responsible for canal operations said Friday he was "prepared to consider" arguments that persons living along canals should receive special consideration. Walter Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton) said those who live on and use canals regularly should be allowed free passage

Terrorists Land

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — A terrorist group landed in the Dominican Republic early today, police and military officials said. They reported the group was composed of an undetermined number of Dominicans whose mission was launched from Cuba. Troops armed with automatic weapons were sent into the mountains about 85 miles northwest of Santa Domingo, where the invaders were believed to have holed up, officials said. Before announcing the landing, police distributed about 200 leftist and opposition political leaders, a spokesman said. Labor leaders also were included in the roundup.

Chopper Escaper Remains at Large

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Dale Otto Remling, plucked from a southern Michigan prison by a helicopter that swooped in and out unnoticed by guards, remains at large. Police also are seeking Gertrude Woodbury, an alleged accomplice.

But Don Hill, 23, who authorities say hijacked the helicopter, is in custody, charged with kidnapping; and Jolyne Lou Conn, 22, has been arrested and charged with aiding and abetting the escape.

The FBI says all four will be charged with conspiracy to commit air piracy.

"The escape was like one in the movie Breakout. And the movie was based on an actual prison escape by helicopter in Mexico.

The movie stars Charles Bronson, who was a willing pilot. Richard Jackson, the pilot in Friday's escape, was pressed into service with a knife at his throat.

Remling, 46, was serving six to 10 years for a 1972 conviction for check fraud. He also is under a seven-year sentence in Nebraska for the theft of 300 pigs.

Jackson, who was laid off from his job as a pilot, was called back to work because of a heavy passenger schedule. He took off with a passenger from Metcalf Airport, Jackson, Mich., about 11 a.m. Friday.

Some time later, the passenger pulled a knife and ordered him to fly to the world's largest walled prison, at Jackson.

"The guy was a little nervous," Jackson said. "I didn't want to push it. I tried to make a Mayday call when he pulled the knife, but he pulled the (microphone) jacks out."

Jackson, 29, landed the three-passenger helicopter near the prison library gate and on grass Remling had marked with a red handkerchief. The plant is not guarded but is patrolled by television cameras.

Remling, on a lunch break from his job as a shoeshine boy at the plant, leaped aboard.

The helicopter took off and headed for Canada where it landed at out of rifle range. The nearest watch tower was 300 yards away.

"The place is so damned big, something could happen at one end and you wouldn't know about it until you read it in the newspaper," said Capt. Lee McCoy of the prison staff.

"The institution is not equipped with anti-aircraft devices," said George Weeks, executive secretary to Gov. William Milliken.

Jackson let the pair off near Munith, six miles away, where the skyjacker sprayed his face with Mace, a disabling chemical. They tried to pay Jackson with a $100 bill, but he refused the money, and they left in two cars.

Police said Jackson was blinded briefly by the chemical but took off again to search for the men. He tracked a car, and led police to Mason, where, he apparently led officers to Hill.

There are 37 acres inside walls at Jackson prison. The pickup occurred in what is called "the back 40," where electronic devices maintain security. There are 3,245 convicts in the prison.

$2 Billion Deal Reported Signed

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium today sealed the aviation "deal of the century" for the United States by deciding to buy the YF-16 lightweight fighter plane built by General Dynamics Corp., a government official said.

The decision was reported by a cabinet minister who left a meeting on the purchase before it ended. He asked that his name not be used.

Contracts worth $2 billion were at stake at the cabinet meet to decide between the U.S. YF-16 and the French Mirage F-1 as a replacement for Belgium's U.S.-built F-104 Starfighters.

Denmark, Norway and the Netherlands have agreed to buy the General Dynamics aircraft to replace their F-104s, but only if Belgium agreed to do the same.

Button Business Always Booming

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — "But buttons," said Richard Trimble. I've got degrees in chemical engineering but I've been in the button business for more than 30 years.

"Campaign buttons as we know them go back to 1896, but brass buttons for George Washington still are in existence today." Calvin Coolidge and Warren Harding were running for president in 1920 when Lee, already a button maker, got into the political side of the business.

"Dad made buttons in that campaign — and we've made buttons for every campaign since," Trimble said.

The elder Trimble is credited with the "I Like Ike" slogan for the Eisenhower campaign.

He already has designed Ford-Rockefeller buttons for 1976.

"I've got buttons for Kennedy, Wallace, Jackson, Welcker and Mondale already made up," Richard said. "We make them up and send them to committees that might want to promote a candidate. I don't even wait for them to admit they're running."

"The button business started to rebound in 1969 with the protest movements. And Watergate produced hundreds of buttons, some really clever."

Political buttons, it seems, are hoisted on the collector's circuit.

"A 1920 James Cox-Franklin Roosevelt campaign button is worth about $2,000 today," Trimble said. "And $300 to $500 for a rare political button is not really uncommon."

Non-political buttons?

Montreal Paper Wins Award

OTTAWA CP — Gov. Gen. Jules Leger presented the Montreal Gazette on Friday with the Roland Michener award for meritorious public service in journalism.

The Gazette was the fifth annual Michener award, launched by the former governor general, for a 13 article, "thorough, detailed account of the problems leading to downtown development" in Montreal.

The year's runners up, as announced earlier, were the Cape Breton Post, Sydney, N.S., for a campaign to force an environmental assessment of a power project and the London Free Press, for a story on conditions at a London detention centre that led to a province wide investigation of such homes.

Education Beat

Right to Strike Only Beginning

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Now that he has proposed giving teachers the right to strike Ontario's education minister Thomas Wells has also promised that if a strike threatens to cause a major disruption the government will act by legislation, if necessary, to end it.

That seems a vague promise from a government that did little to bring an end to the Ottawa strike which disrupted several thousand students in that system. Few could argue the Ottawa strike was not a "major disruption" to that education system.

Ontario's five federations, representing about 104,000 teachers in the province, have indeed gained a new stature and in the history of employee power. They have succeeded producing a year-and-a-half political struggle that not only has angulized the Conservative cabinet but has literally turned the public against the profession thus weakening the entire teaching fraternity.

The proposed legislation, once approved, will have an even greater polarizing effect on teachers-pupils and teacher-parent relationships. There is no doubt something was needed to diffuse the current struggle between teachers and boards — but the answer was not bending to the threats of the teacher federations.

Because every child in Ontario is entitled to an education, as defined by the ministry of education and attendance, the teaching of youth does become an essential service. The government could have used the problem to explore and seek alternative methods for settlements — other than the strike.

The Conservative cabinet did the expedient thing for the moment but at the same time they have set a bad precedent for the province's 70,000 civil servants, who feel just as important as teachers. The government has no alternative but to grant them the right to strike now.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature about the new legislation is that Mr. Wells has no faith in ministers to protect the Ontario taxpayer.

If the Conservative government is not preventing major disruptions in the educational system could be the public who will stop in during the next election and put an end to a major source of the disruption — the government itself.

Fly-tying Expert Teaches Others Fishing Art

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — The birth of a bit sharper when a fighting Atlantic salmon hits a fly an angler has just tied himself.

Many of western Newfoundland's salmon anglers learned the art of working with moose hair and feathers from Merle Yarn of Corner Brook.

Merle's prowess as an outdoorsman and the high quality of his flies have been discussed up and down western salmon rivers for years.

For the last two years Merle has been teaching fly-tying at adult education night classes. Thirty anglers graduate from his three weekly classes this spring.

Most of the students didn't know a hackle from a wing when they started, but now all can tie a variety of flies, including wets and drys.

Among them are Mounties, electricians, mechanics, postmen, mill workers, teachers, an engineer and a newspaper editor. All are hooked on salmon fishing.

The registration fee of $10 covers the October-May course but each student also needed about $30 worth of equipment, including a fly-tyer's vice and bobbin and $20 worth of material, such as feathers, hair, silk and tinsel.

"Everybody here will tie a fly before they go home tonight," Merle told his first class. Each student took home with a Blue Charm, a relatively simple fly, that first night.

Soon students were tying six or seven flies of various patterns during each class.

Middle tonight more than just how to arrange silk hair and feathers on a forged hook. With each new pattern came tips on where the fly could be expected to do well, the results and there was always a fish story for good measure.

Merle's knowledge of the Atlantic salmon and the flies they take has been gained first-hand from some 25 years of tying and fishing a local period of fishing Newfoundland's western rivers.

Merle was born in Corner Brook, at the mouth of the Humber, one of the world's great salmon rivers.

He recalls he caught his first salmon on the Lomond River and hasn't stopped fishing since. Shortly after they were married, his wife, Shirley, gave Merle a fly-tying kit for Christmas. After attempting to learn on his own, Merle decided he should learn it properly, so he joined the local rod and gun club, chaired by the late Max Rabbits, a noted tyer was teaching any member interested.

Owners, Not Pets Real Problem

PICTON — Is a dog's world in Picton this summer where every Spot, Pal and Rover is on the roam.

By day the pedigreed pooches and the feisty variety roam fraternally in the streets, in parks, in back yards and at time legendary fire hydrants on the corner.

Nocturnal yap sessions punctuated with frequent toasts to all things green and growing continue through the wee hours.

When the canine carousers run out of the usual party place there is always the old favorite about he dog catcher and animal control bylaws. Unfortunately, it's no longer a laughing matter.

Picton town council may pull its chest with pride over a new budget pared to the core or development of a new parking lot on Mary Street but in the area of animal control councillors cannot accomplish a dogassed thing.

When a dog catcher, euphemistically titled "the animal control officer" was hired, council employed a Sirling resident.

His sketchy patrols of town streets have done little in recent years to eliminate the problems of dogs at large.

When several members of council recently received complaints from Picton residents regarding dogs on the loose it was decided to re-tender the dog catcher's job.

The animal control officer now employed was given the required three months notice and in August his contract will expire. He is eligible to tender for the job again.

In the meantime, Picton residents who have planted flowers and shrubs this spring can only holler "whoo" as canine comfort stops to destroy their efforts at property improvement. It doesn't seem to matter much to town council that nursery trees are costly.

On several town streets home owners yards are littered with piles of filth. Many of the Picton residents do not even own a dog but town council is not too concerned with these neatniks who strive for tidy lawns.

One Picton man recently told The Intelligencer he installed indoor-outdoor carpeting on an open porch. The neighbors' dogs arrived for a christening ceremony that is repeated daily.

Another town resident who enjoys a stroll in Queen Elizabeth Park on Hill Street says he is infuriated by a dog owner who walks there with his pet. The gentleman carries paper in anticipation of litering but it's used to pretty up the pup, not the landscape.

Town council is sitting on its hands until August when another animal control officer undoubtedly will be hired to clean up on canine delinquents. By this time there will be little hope for the shrubs of "T".

For several years Picton ratepayers have paid a fancy fee for a dog catcher who has not made an appreciable dint in the problem of animals running at large.

Is it his fault or are by-laws so ineffective that the job is impossible?

It's time town council reviewed the stringency of regulations concerning dogs at large and dropped its role as the benign, finger-wagging parent to offenders.

Enough of the taxpayers' money has been wasted in council's comedy production of The Animal Control Officer and the Pooches of Picton. It's time for a serious look at dog owners who flaunt their defiance of rules in the faces of town residents who do respect authority.

Park Almost Ready

Ferris, one of Ontario's newest provincial parks located south of Campbellford on County Rd. 31, will be officially opened June 24 at 3 p.m. by Leo Bernier, provincial minister of natural resources. It will offer 85 campsites, a 30-acre picnic area, parking and panoramic views of the area's drumlins — distinctive oval-shaped hills formed by glaciers thousands of years ago.

IBR Fatal to Calves

Cattle can become infected by the virus of IBR (infectious bovine rhinotracheitis) at anytime, but they are more likely to get it in the winter. "The IBR (virus is usually spread by direct contact between animals," explains Dr. W. S. Bulmer of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food's veterinary services branch at Guelph. "Therefore, cattle confined in stables and feedlots get the disease more frequently."

Although no existing antibiotics kill IBR virus and cattle have to overcome this disease themselves, the farmer should call a veterinarian as soon as he notices symptoms. By administering intravenous fluids or antibiotics, the veterinarian can ward off the bronchopneumonia that sometimes accompanies IBR and is often fatal.

A cow with IBR frequently develops an upper respiratory infection that causes discharges from the eyes, and nose, runs a temperature of 105 to 106 and suffers weight loss. In some cases, inflammation of the windpipe may occur causing laboured breathing with a "roaring" sound.

In addition, IBR sometimes causes abortion in cattle five to eight months pregnant. Although the membranes are often retained following an IBR-caused abortion, laboratory examination of the fetus or mother's blood is usually required to identify IBR positively as the cause. Laboratory examination is also required to diagnose IBR encephalitis, an infrequently-occurring infection of the brain, and to confirm a diagnoses of IBR as the cause of death in calves.

Livestock owners should contact a veterinarian immediately when symptoms are observed and the veterinarian may require laboratory examination of dead animals or tissue by one of the Ministry's veterinary services laboratories. These are located in Brighton, Guelph, Huron Park, Kemptville, New Liskeard and Ridgetown.

Bylaw Battle Poor Fight

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Battle lines, dug deep over past months, were at long last put to the test this week with what proved to be the final fight over the town's noisy bylaw for a possible two years.

As in all fights, there was a winner and a loser. In this case, the winner won the defeat of the noisy bylaw and quite possibly unleashed an uncontrolled fury of spot development in Trenton. So, at least, say the losing councillors.

Looking back on the battle, several weapons the warriors used become apparent. Others recede in the ruins of memory, made impotent by poor use and poor ammunition.

Clearly, it seems, the bylaw opponents have listened long to the words of developers in Trenton and have learned their lessons well. Opposition from councillors was quick, ready, and vocal — filled with arguments claiming poor residential land use, inadequate realistic parking requirements, and other restrictive provisions.

Clearly again, the major battle was over those very same developers as far as the supporters were concerned.

But sadly, the tactics employed by bylaw supporters weren't up to the mark. They had no axes to grind and therefore were robbed of the opportunity for violent, outrageous words, fine sounding phrases, and most essentially, the first that comes from criticism.

Their praise did not resound in council chambers. They attacked the opposition on its own ground, i.e. developers, without bringing forth details to encourage support of the opponent.

Be it true or not, it seemly is not enough to say, as one councillor did, that the dollar breeds the dollar, and the dollar daddies are no kin to procreation.

That same councillor, George Greer, suggests that the "rank and file" citizens needs some protection. Of course he does. One need only take a quick glance across to Belleville to see the number of multi-unit buildings sprouting among older homes on the city's east hill.

So the battle was lost, and to was the war. It now leaved Trenton council with no strict controls over land development in Trenton.

Looking back at the tactic-poor battle waged by bylaw supporters, one must wonder whether there might not be a reason for the poor showing.

Opponents had the apparent backing of the developers. Who did bylaw supporters have to wage the behind-the-lines skirmishes? No-one from what I could tell.

The battle seemed one-sided because it was. Trenton's civic-minded citizens appeared the impact of the bylaw. It raised little objection to opposition generated bylaw foes.

Ocean Scientists Productive

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia Research Foundation's Centre of Ocean Technology is less than a year old, but already its scientists are turning out a melange of exotic scientific devices for relaying information about the ocean.

There's the slick follower, for instance. It looks like a 10-inch flying saucer complete with whip antenna but serves a mundane function. Designed to be disposable and inexpensive, it has the floating characteristics as bomber oil.

When a number of slick followers are dropped by airplane or ship into an oil spill they stay with the slick transmitting bleeping signals which monitor exactly where the oil is drifting.

President Ford Has No Choice but to Try and Keep Spain in Western Camp

By JOHN D. HARKRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

President Ford's controversial trip to declining but still-ruling Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain, is a classic case of the American dilemma with dictatorial allies.

Harsh critics of the President chiefly The New York Times, have attacked him for including a visit to a chief of state representing the last vestige of fascism of the 1930s, with that it supposed to imply.

First, Spain of 1975 is no longer a "fascist state" and has not been one for a long time, authoritarian, yes.

Second, President Ford went to Spain primarily to meet with and discuss the future of American military bases in Spain with Prince Juan Carlos, Franco's chosen heir and successor and the most likely Spanish leader who presumably will have to cope with a post-Franco Spain.

Critics of the Spanish system may not like Franco's choice as little as they like Franco himself. And the same critics are usually very strong in their views of any strategic military bases in Spain at all.

But the American, especially after their election from Vietnam by Asian Communist systems, are especially sensitive to the slow but growing power of Portugal's Communist Party in an Iberian nation which is still a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Portugal's quick change from right-wing totalitarian rule to apparently strong left-wing government, is taking place in a NATO member-nation committed to the defense of Western Europe against Communist infiltration.

Spain without the now very old and declining General Franco could go any way politically, if the Portuguese experience since April, 1974 turned out to be any kind of model.

The American bases in Spain, especially the nuclear submarine base at Rota near Cadiz, guarding the Mediterranean, are important in the NATO context of European defence, even if Spain while under Franco never becomes a member of that organization.

The Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean is now as large and as integrated as the long resident U.S. Sixth Fleet has been for a decade, and includes both nuclear armed and long-range, missile carrying cruisers.

President Ford knows this. So do the NATO Scandinavian and Benelux members who have abhor Franco and turned down Mr. Ford on any proposal to see Spain in NATO while Franco lives.

Therefore Mr. Ford had to do several things as President, make the token suggestion to NATO's third general meeting in its 26 year history that Spain, if invited, make the inkey visit to General Franco still in power in Spain, and be attacked.

He was doing what any American president in his position would, have to do, covering his options. I would, if I were one he went to Madrid was to get the protocol rules with Prince Carlos, the most likely Spaniard to run his country when Franco dies.

The fact is, he may not be. He could be a keep-Spain-from-in the post-dictatorial era, like well-meaning and now exiled General Antonio de Spinola of Portugal who set the wheels moving for political and social change few specialists saw coming so fast.

But President Ford cannot read the future and should not do so. Jimmy Carter is empowered to keep quiet on policy while Prince lives.

His critics say that's just as well because he will only try and preserve Franconism after Franco. But who knows? His closest advisers are realists and players of the game in an old tradition.

The name of that game right now is to keep Spain from sliding into chaos again, not necessarily like Portugal but like Spain herself in the summer of 1936.

Strikes and Work Ethic

Wasn't it something to do with the liquor laws that inspired Samuel Butler to exclaim, "Oh God Oh Montreal!"

Whatever it was, the expression is singularly relevant to events in the city today.

There was the long delay at the Olympic site while workers and unions haggled with the Government. Then it was the longshoremen, now back at work.

The life of a longshoreman is probably no better or no worse than that of a lot of working people in Canada today. We do not have precise statistics in the case of the men in Montreal, but certainly they should have a living wage and then some.

It is what wage demands become inflationary, and assume the dominant position in the strikers' minds while neglecting to do a day's work that everybody suffers. The one single factor in most strikes in Canada today is an absence of any willingness to work. No signs proclaiming, "Let's get these ships unloaded," or "let's get this job done" — before talking about more money, security and all. They could still work, while making known their dissatisfaction, or their demands. Instead, in virtually every case, it's down tools, book off sick, study sessions and all the other spacious jargon of the modern strike psychology.

The result is that Canada is near the top in terms of lost production days of all the industrialized nations of the West. Union solidarity too often means, "Let's see what we can get" rather than "Let's see what we can do" by way of increased production and therefore a better economic climate for all.

Budgets and Priorities

As education boards wrestle with inflation and priorities, it is a time to reflect on just what should come first in these vital years of individual and community growth.

Inevitably, some programs must be sacrificed including provision of additional resource staff: librarians, counsellors, psychologists and the like. It varies from area to area, but it is seldom possible to provide every facility and teacher skill that may be deemed necessary.

Aside from the outward trappings — the schools and facilities — there are other things: Intangibles, beyond the realm of the academic. Human relations, teacher-student empathy or lack of it, even hostility and instability — as recent tragic events have shown. These cannot be ignored. They indicate too a need of something that costs nothing, in the home and in the schools — call it, common humanity.

A sense of humor helps. Canadians tend to take themselves too seriously; there is not much good-natured humor around the schools or in our national life, and not too many comedians to help us see the lighter side, and point to our national foibles.

The art of good conversation, and of being a good listener as well as a debater, is another area parents and schools might work at. Some means also of developing that common humanity mentioned above, as between parents and children and throughout society, instead of separating everyone into don't-touch-me' categories.

Manners? This is not an era in which they flourish to any degree, yet together with concern for the wellbeing of others they are a vital adjunct of growing up and of maturity.

"The first quality of a good education is good manners. Some people flunk the course."

Former U.S. vice-president Hubert Humphrey said that. It's worth remembering.

Turning Over A New Leaf

Life's tragedies provide a hard lesson. Peel regional police say that six guns have been turned over by city parents in Brampton following last week's shooting at a school.

According to the police statement, the parents "don't want guns around their homes any longer."

It is after the event . . . but then, better late than never. Other lives may well be saved as a result of such action.

Quebec Doctors' Stand on Abortion

Montreal Gazette

It took gall for more than 100 Quebec doctors to sign a document opening themselves to criminal prosecution by admitting they either performed illegal abortions or helped women obtain them. In addition, the doctors are putting their professional careers on the line.

In spite of this, the organizers of the protest say they expect more signatures.

The protest is a brave response to the hypocritical and immoral abortion situation in this country, and the even worse situation in Quebec. Those from the class of people who make the laws have no trouble procuring abortions. The medical profession has stood against this hypocrisy for years, maintaining that abortion should be decided by a woman and her doctor. Perhaps this latest illustration of the wrongness of the law will bring that day closer.

A Woman Now Heads 'Y' Nationally

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

In London, England, 131 years ago, George Williams organized a group of young men into a club which had as its purpose "The improvement of the spiritual condition of young men in the drapery and other trades." They decided to call it the Young Men's Christian Association.

The YMCA spread around the world. It has been in Canada since 1851, when the first YMCA in North America was organized in Montreal.

While spreading it has also changed. The second word in the title got an extended meaning this past weekend when Raynell Andrychuk, 30, a whole law, Sask., lawyer, was elected national president of the Canadian YMCA.

The election of a woman to top office reflects the swing from having been male-only to being a family-oriented organization.

The second word in the title has lost its accuracy. What will they do about the first and third words? No matter, we have no doubt Miss Andrychuk will be a good president.

Merchandizing Adapts to Growing Computerization

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The Computer Age has been with us for one generation, at the most. Yet it has already brought bigger changes to our daily lives than most Canadians realize—even though Canada has been one of the leading innovators.

Take something as routine as the supermarket check-out. It's estimated that 70 per cent of sales volume can be coded and computerized, to speed chest line-ups and provide you with a tape free of errors in price.

Already, half of the merchandise items in that 70 per cent are being coded. Before long, the remainder will be coded as well—and most supermarkets will have the code-reading scanners that will ring up your bill in seat to no time.

(A note for journalists: Look for two five-digit figures under a series of bars printed on the package. If the first digit on the left is 5 or 6, the product was made in Canada.)

The computerized check-out alone won't cut your supermarket bill. But it could help to keep the lid on rising costs, by giving the merchant instant and accurate data about changes in the store's inventory.

And that, in turn, could be a solution to the annoying problem of the missing item—the advertised items that you can never find on the shelves.

A big supermarket in the Montreal suburbs of Dorval installed the first optical scanners 11 months ago in this country. Computer specialists say that the Canadian food-retailing industry has advanced much further in this direction than the U.S. merchandisers.

Richard Mason of IBM Canada Ltd. cites two major factors for Canada's leadership in the application of new computer techniques, not only in supermarkets but in throughout industry:

—Canada has a "very alert and alive" telephone network that has kept in the forefront of computer technology.

—Canada's major population centres are separated by hundreds or thousands of miles. This has created an obvious need for better and better contrast with a smaller country such as France, where there is little incentive to innovate because business life is concentrated around Paris.

Another striking result of the rapid technological progress toward mislaunization and vastly expanded computer power has been the relative decline in costs. Dr. Mason cites these two examples:

—In 1960, it cost $5,000 to store the contents of a page of a typical book in a computer's "memory." By 1980, the cost will be down to 50 cents. That means that businesses can clear out tons of documents from dusty files.

—Petroleum firms generally use computers to regulate the refining of crude oil into gasoline and other products. A dozen years ago, that system cost $250,000. Today, a similar installation would cost $12,000.

Cost reductions are not the only benefit. The process-control system that has been proven through 12 years' experience in the oil industry is now being applied in a totally different way—to monitor the condition of hospital patients under intensive care.

One negative aspect of the proliferation of computers, of course, is their use—or misuse—for fraud and embezzlement.

A California-based finance firm auto $2-million from insurance companies by creating 60,000 non-existent insurance policies. A New York bank teller took $1-million out of inactive savings accounts before he was caught.

Computers were the tool used in both cases. But systems engineer Irene Frass of IBM Canada points out that thefts and embezzlements—or other criminal crimes could have been pulled off without a data-processing machine.

"If a bank robber makes a stick-up in a car," she asks, "is it an automobile crime?"

Nixon Family's Farm Home Is the Scenario Today For Old-time Politics

TORONTO — The Liberals are going in for the old - time politics.

This Saturday leader Bob Nixon is having a great big picnic at his farm in Brant County.

Groups are to be bussed and driven in from all over southern Ontario and it is expected that at least a couple of thousand people will be on hand.

Corny?

No.

The political picnic was the big campaigning style of the 1880s and the early days of the century, both federally and provincially.

They were great affairs, the highlights of the times for local areas, and historically they not have had a lot to do with swaying votes they certainly built up enthusiasm.

They may have been attended mainly by the faithful of the party but they went away happy and ready to go.

While they may be old-fashioned there is evidence that they still work, at least with certain sectors of the province.

The Conservatives, for example, found this out very much to their cost on June 12.

There was a by-election that year in Huron-Bruce, the first election the party fought under the leadership of John Robarts.

The party under Robarts, was to be very "modern" and very efficient.

So a crew of Toronto advertising and publicity people were taken aboard to run the by-election.

The first thing they did was to get the local Tories mad. The locals wanted to hold a picnic. But the Torontonians would have none of this. They would "merchandise" the candidate.

The Liberals knew better.

They held a big turkey barbecue. Some 4,000 people attended. The election pulled the biggest vote there had ever been in the riding. The Liberals won. And Murray Gaunt still represents the riding for them in the Legislature.

A significant feature of the Nixon picnic is that Prime Minister Trudeau is going to attend.

This is the biggest kiss of endorsement that the federal Liberals have given the provincial in years.

Does it mean that the feds will go all out for the provincials in the election, when it comes?

If so it greatly boosts the Nixon chances.

North Bay Hydro Chairman's Stand Against Rate Boost

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The North Bay Hydro Electric Commission is making representations to the Ontario Energy Board to oppose the proposed January 1, 1976, 29.7 per cent rate increase. North Bay Hydro feels that this rate increase can be moderated.

Public opinion may prove to be the most powerful force in reaching this goal. It may encourage the Ontario Energy Board and the Provincial Ministry of Energy to consider, among other items, proposed expansions planned on a 9 per cent growth rate. With the size of Ontario Hydro, any reduction in energy demand growth to a 4 per cent annual level would have tremendous beneficial effects in moderating the rate increase required. For example, in order to meet possible growth in energy demands until 1993 in Southern and Northeastern Ontario, Ontario Hydro has prepared alternative generating programs. Various numbers of new sites will be required ranging from two new sites for 4 per cent annual growth to nine or possibly eleven new sites for 7 per cent annual growth. The savings would be in terms of billions of dollars.

If consumers in Ontario are prepared to make a commitment to use electricity wisely — not wastefully! If so, write to Dennis R. Timbrell, Minister of Energy, Queen's Park Toronto, Ontario.

REV. PAUL SOLOMON

Former Baptist Minister Teaching 'Inner Light'

NEW YORK (AP) — As Rev. Paul Solomon sees it, each person is a double—one self and a greater self—and the need is to integrate the higher potentialities with the ordinary, physical senses.

"We all have a greater consciousness than self," he says. "We're much too bound to our limited intellects than is generally recognized. We have far more creativity than is ever put to use."

A psychic practitioner and teacher with a widening following across the country, Solomon says people need to learn to "break the limitations" of body reactions and thought to "tap the super" conscious mind."

"Everyone has it," he says. He offers "readings" from it, gained in what he terms a trance in which he says his sensibilities roam time and space.

"I think anyone could develop this ability," he said in an interview. "It's much like the dream state in which we travel to some pretty exotic places."

However, his followers regard him as a special seer—a "modern prophet."

As founder and leader of the Fellowship of the Inner Light, with its headquarters congregation in Virginia Beach, Va., and centres in a half-dozen cities, he travels about, teaching techniques to contact the "inner light."

"It's a sixth sense, a spiritual sense, beyond the physical senses," he said. Noting that his approach involves telepathy, clairvoyance and other extrasensory psychic phenomena, he added:

"In the church, it's anathema. Pastors recoil from it if you use these terms, even though they affirm the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The churches ought to be offering qualified guidance to it. We've got to get psychic phenomena back into the up the ball, they abandon it to the cults."

Solomon, a seminary trained, onetime Baptist minister, said he bases his special teachings after a 1972 experience in which a voice spoke through him while he was hypnotized. Since then, he and regularly gone into such states, led by an aide, and his spoken messages were recorded on tapes.

He said that afterward he can recall little of what he engaged or dictated. "I listen to the tapes to find out," he said. Published excerpts tell of various "planes" of existence from prehistoric times into the future.

His work has teaching courses, which cost $125 a student, consist mainly of instruction on methods to muffle the five physical senses and tap a further source, which he equates with the Holy Spirit.

The voice of the senses is a "screaming thing" which must be turned off, he has said, in order to hear the "still, small voice" of God. He said the technique involves an initial period of successively relaxing each part of the body, then focusing the mind on God through meditation and reciting a Hebrew word for divinity, Elohim.

Describing the exercise, Dr. William Beidler, philosophy professor at Guilford College, Greensboro, N.C., says it brought a "sparkling, cleansing, warming, healing protective white light that warbed through the body, leaving it aglow."

Solomon said many great creative minds, such as Edison and Einstein, used similar methods to relax the senses before seeking their answers.

His teachings also include prayer techniques and healing. While his methods differ from those customary in churches, "the heart of the message is the same." He said he steers clear of involvement with the occult and witchcraft.

"People nowadays are hungry for methods that can observably change and mould their lives. The churches inherently have something deeper and attractive in mystical experience. But the handwriting is on the wall that unless they make effective use of it, they relegate it to the psychic groups and the occult."

Churches On Canvas

EDMONTON (CP) — Parasta Dvasoc has been collecting Ukrainian churches in Alberta for five years now and she's still not finished.

She collects them on canvas, her own way of preserving some of the province's Ukrainian heritage.

Mrs. Ivanoc has painted some 100 Ukrainian churches in Alberta, ranging from simple, time-worn log buildings to elaborate city cathedrals. She has about a score to do before her project is complete.

Whatever the church and whether it is rural or urban, Catholic or Orthodox, the dome is the common feature of the architecture. It represents heaven, said Mrs. Iwanoc.

Another similarity among the churches is that the main door always faces west—a reminder, she said, that the Ukrainian accepted Christianity from the West.

Nuns's Actual Role Is Misunderstood

NEW YOK (AP) — Although nuns have moved into the front lines of Christian ministry in the world, the impression persists that they're still mere institutional functionaries, says Sister Elizabeth Thomas.

"The gap between what nuns are and what others think we are still is to be bridged," she said in an interview. "We're striving into a new definition of our life and it needs to be recognized by the public, by the faith community and by the hierarchy itself.

"Sisters have become serious ministers dealing with issues of social justice and with the gospel in terms of the world today."

Sister Elizabeth, the first American nun to found her own public relations agency, is chairman of a communications group set up by several organizations of Roman Catholic nuns to make their new ways better known.

"We've been under a bushel basket," she said. "It's time to get our work out and put it on the lampstand so people will know what's going on."

A forthright 5-inche of 31, she said the impression hangs on that nuns are "quiet, docile creatures, like robots, that the hierarchy tells them what to do and the Pope pays their salaries."

It is a myth that has to be dispelled before women can realistically be considered for the Roman Catholic priesthood, she said. "They first must be taken seriously as legitimate ministers of the church."

"Once they're accepted as ministers in the church, then in the future they can be considered for ordination."

At present, she said, the widespread, lingering attitude is that nuns are either teachers or nurses, although actually they are increasingly getting out of schools and hospitals.

"When there are good public hospitals and schools, why compete? Why keep the institutional church's time not filling the community purpose? Traditional institutional work, in many cases, is not needed, so sisters now are free."

She said a majority of the sisters' communities, totalling 140,000 American nuns, are at low some degree of clinic in pursuits of individual members.

"Sisters are involved in most every field of work now, ranging from drug rehabilitation health clinics in ghetto areas and social welfare work to politics, reform, politics, studying law and becoming advocates of the poor."

Guiding Uniforms Through 65 Years

Stacey Drake in original hiking uniform.

A fashion show of uniforms dating back to 1910 highlighted the banquet Thursday evening for the Moira Division Girl Guides meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Troops from Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Roslin, Stirling, Foxboro and Belleville joined for a celebration of the 65th anniversary of the Guiding movement in Canada. A cake, decorated with orange candles and blue trim, set the stage for the "birthday party" atmosphere.

The display of uniforms took a light-hearted look at the ways in which Girl Guides' appearances have changed, from the serious, long-skirted, staff-in-hand outfit dating from 1910, to the homey, gathered-skirt and matching blouse of 1930, the uniforms all had a sensible, no-nonsense look about them except for one early costume with bustle-type back and a pheasant-feathered hat.

Giving a commentary on the outfits, Leila Twigg of Belleville asked the audience of more than 100 women and girls to look at how varied their uniforms have now become, and suggested that it might be time to consider complete uniformity again.

Following the fashion show, several Rangers presented a skit about Guiding in the future, dressed in futuristic "uniforms" that included helmets and transistors.

Also taking part in the evening's events was Area Commissioner Helen Webster of Perth, who spoke to the Guides about the importance of International Women's Year.

Certificates were given to 27 Girl Guides who achieved their Canada Cord or their All-Round Cord during the last year.

The evening closed with a showing of slides taken in Mexico by local Girl Guides on a recent trip.

Scott — Dunbar

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the marriage of Beverley Jane Dunbar and Joseph H. Scott, May 24. It was conducted by Reverend J. Kellogg.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. (Art) unbar of RR2, Belleville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott of RR 2, Ameliasburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of paloma silk trimmed with imported Belgian lace. It had long sleeves with cuffs and a lace trimmed detachable train with hood.

She carried a bouquet of red roses and white daisies.

The matron of honor, Peg Federson of Toronto, wore a floor length gown of polyester crepe in a spring mint. She carried a bouquet of baby yellow mums and white daisies.

The best man was Don Carson of Bowmanville.

A dinner party was held at the Maple Inn in Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott travelled to Pennsylvania on their honeymoon and now reside in Belleville.

MARY AGNES FITZGERALD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fitzgerald of Belleville, received her Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Sociology at the convocation of Wilfrid Laurier University, Waterloo, on May 24. She will be continuing her studies in Psychology at Wilfrid Laurier University in the fall. Mary is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School.

SHARON WILSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Shreve recently graduated with honors at graduation exercises at St. Lawrence College, Kingston in business administration, with a major in finance. Sharon, who attended Quinte Secondary School, has accepted a position with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Kingston.

How Many Weiners Can a Person Eat?

How many weiners can one person eat?

According to Canada Packers, quite a few. One Toronto meat processing plant turns out 3,200 pounds of weiners an hour, 18 hours a day. And that's just one — though merely the largest — of many manufacturers of weiners in Canada.

Are weiners good for you? Long a target of criticism by some nutritionists, weiners have come to be viewed with suspicion by educated consumers. But Canada Packers Ltd. argues that they're good sound, nutritious food has even published a paper on the subject.

What are weiners made of? Well, not stalls and puppy dog tails, as alarmists have warned. Ingredients are commonly meat — beef, pork, mutton — from old tough animals, heart, liver and tripe of beef cattle, some cereal, milk powder, spices and salt. And, caudium nitrite. A weiner is about 13 per cent protein and 60 per cent moisture. You'll get about 4.8 grams of protein with each weiner.

Leon Rubin, director of research for Canada Packers, says that misdirected fears — produced by reports of the contents of weiners in the United States — may force Canadians to rule out a useful, low-cost source of high quality meat protein. Those are his words.

He does point out that animals parts like snouts and lips are not allowed in Canadian weiners under any circumstances.

What about the nitrites? Here are Canada Packer's statements about that.

"It is a most controversial ingredient in weiners is sodium nitrite, the essential agent for curing meats that has been used for that purpose for hundreds of years. It can be derived from sodium nitrate, a naturally occurring substance in beetroot and artichokes.

"Sodium nitrite gives cured meat its distinctive flavour (the difference between fresh pork and cured ham), a pleasing appetite and inhibits the growth of bacteria. Most notably the bacteria that cause botulism poisoning.

"Without sodium nitrite, cured meats, as they are now known, would not be available.

"Research has shown that nitrites can combine, under certain conditions, with substances called secondary amines to produce nitrosamines, which under some circumstances can be a health hazard. However recent experiments conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture have shown that none of these nitrosamines are produced in weiners when nitrite levels of 200 parts per million or less are adhered to during processing. This research conflicts with earlier experiments in which extremely small quantities (11.4 parts per billion) of nitrosamines were found in a very few weiner samples.

"Dr. Rubin stated that 150 parts per million of sodium nitrite are initially added to his company's weiners and the nitrite levels are reduced to 40 parts per million in the finished product."

Some nutrition experts disagree and everyone is willing to admit that there is no knowledge about combinations of preservatives and long term effects of these combinations.

And no one, it seems to me, can argue that the most wholesome food is the least processed.

As for the traditional use of nitrates in meat products, there is a commonly held belief that stomach cancer has decreased as our intake of cured and smoked meat dropped with modern refrigeration and transportation.

I do think that pointing out that nitrite occurs "naturally" is specious: poison ivy occurs "naturally" too, but I don't go out of my way to come in contract with it.

Personally, I'm culturally hooked on the hot dog and will probably continue to gulp the usual number every summer. But I wouldn't eat them every day or even every week. And I wouldn't make them a steady item in my child's diet either. (To be absolutely frank, she won't eat them and neither will my cat.)

You'll have to decide for yourself and your family.

Antebellum Mansions Survive in U.S. South

ROSEDOWN HOUSE, La. (CP) — More than half of America's millionaires before the Civil War lived along the Mississippi River from New Orleans up to St. Francisville. The war swept away their fortunes and many of their homes, but a few survive and they have been restored and are open to the public.

Visitors can start out from New Orleans via the River Road to visit the homes of the cotton and sugar planters of the mid-1800s who used the profits made from means of transportation.

An overnight stay is possible at The Cottage, a misleading name because it is a large rambling building built in 1775 by a Judge who owned 12 sugar plantations.

The property has 10 of the original outbuildings, including the old kitchen house that was used until 1861. The movie, The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman, was shot on the premises making use of the old slave quarters and the t.ee to which actress Cicely Tyson talked. A tour of the house costs $1.50 but for overnight guests it is included in the charge of $22.50 for a double room and buffet breakfast.

The River Road will prove disappointing. You can't see the rivers due to the high levees built to prevent flooding. But there are numerous places where one can see the view by climbing up the grassy slopes.

The Houmas House was named after the Houmas Indians who originally lived here. The first four-room house was built at the end of the 18th century and has been restored, enhanced by wings. The present Greek Revival mansion was built in 1840. An Irishman, John Burnside, bought the house and estate a few years later for some $2 million. It escaped destruction during the Civil War as Burnside was a British subject.

Several rooms in the house fell into disrepair. Then a New Orleans doctor bought it and restored the place to its former grandeur. The movie Flash, Flash, Sweet Charlotte with Bette Davis was shot here and when you walk out on the long second-floor verandah you can see the long view down the approach road that she saw. The furnishings were chosen by the doctor to reflect the period prior to 1840.

It contains the first music box manufactured in the United States, the canopied pineapple high posted bed in the master bedroom, the 1850 wedding dress of a 14-year-old bride, and a fine collection of armoires, those decorative wooden wardrobes used to hold clothes.

Outside is a garconniere. Colonial homes built a separate small house for their sons after they were around 15, so they could live apart from the family or where the young men could be accommodated.

Rosedown House and Gardens is one of the colonial gems. It's often referred to as one of the most well and distinguished showpieces. There's a magnificent drive and lawns under an arch of overhanging 150-year-old oak trees. The home was built in 1835 but fell into decay after the Civil War.

It was bought in 1956 and faithfully restored. It actually has about 85 per cent of the original furniture. There's a scenic wall paper in the entrance hall with an 1850 handwoven carpet.

The dining-room has a shoofly fan, a large fan-like shroud on a sort of swing. A small slave boy would sit and pull the cord thus spinning the fan to keep the flies away. The idea originated in India. The parlor has a black-and-gold Carrara marble mantel with a Louis XVI mirror and in front is a needle-point fire-screen made by Martha Washington.

Rosedown has some 50 acres of gardens. The wife of the original owner fell in love with the gardens of Europe. So she created formal French patterns and fountains and the less formal English gardens. She imported rare flowers and trees. These gardens have been also restored.

Pink brick Shadows-on-the-Teche in New Iberia is not an estate mansion as such. It was built by a wealthy planter, David Weeks, in the then small town. The furnishings are original and belonged to the five generations who lived there. David's great-grandson Benjamin the house and lands in 1958 to the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Many of the trees are 300 to 500 years old.

Restoration

Houmas House, a Greek Revival mansion bought by John Burnside for $2 million in 1857, has been restored by a New Orleans doctor and open to the public. Inside are furnishings and antiques of exceptional craftmanship. The house is located on the River Road, upriver from urnside. (CP Photo)

Ann Landers

Worst Mistake He Made Was to Take First Joint

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 13. I started to smoke pot about two-years ago. It was fun and I didn't see that it was doing me any harm. About 11 months ago I got into pot real heavy and couldn't seem to stop even though a lot of the so-called experts said it wasn't addictive.

I began to get scared when I couldn't remember where I put things and blacked out on afternoons and telephone numbers that used to come easy. The very touchy about things that didn't used to bother me. And I still have some very crazy dreams.

I hope you will print my letter so those cats who haven't tried pot will leave it alone. The worst mistake I ever made in my life was experimenting with that lousy stuff. It messed me up plenty. I just hope to God I get back to normal soon. Wised Up Too Late

Dear Friend: Thanks for a letter that might prove very helpful to those "cats" who haven't tried it. According to everything I've read, the chances for getting back to normal are good. I suggest counseling in the meantime. It might help hasten the process. Good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: A reader wrote in and said she knew for a fact that if you talk nicely to plants and play pretty music they will flourish. Another reader wrote and asked if the opposite was true — if a person yelled at weeds would it stunt their growth?

Your answer was, "There is no evidence that yelling at weeds will do them any harm."

You ought to read up on the subject, Ann. I have and it is fascinating. Thousands of people swear they have had a lot of success talking to plants. They also claim music can make a big difference. Harsh rock and roll can wither a plant in a few days flat and put it in intensive care. On the other hand, when Liszt and Mozart are played the plants grow very nicely, even after they had been given up for dead.

So please check your facts before you hand out advice. Plant Lover In Miami

Dear Lover: Thanks for an interesting letter but you didn't deal with the central issue. The question was, "Will yelling at weeds stunt their growth?" I said, "No" — and I STILL say no.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers that when they have a family problem the best thing to do is sit down with a pencil and paper and write it all down. Tell it to the stationery. Stay away from the telephone and don't unload on friends.

I made the mistake of confiding in a person I would have bet my life on. She told HER best friend and now I'm in real trouble. I'm a 16-year-old girl, and boy, am I sorry I didn't learn that lesson long ago. Sign me — Big Mouth

Dear Mouth: Take your lumps and chalk it up to experience. Some people NEVER learn. They make the same mistakes over and over.

Dear Ann Landers: I almost broke out in hives when I read that letter from the 19-year-old babe who loved herself so much she couldn't say no to a guy.

She claimed her contribution to a world full of misery was "love" and that she felt great joy whenever she accommodated a homeboy and inept jerk because they get turned down so much and are so grateful.

I happen to be a homely, inept jerk who has been turned down so many times I feel like an army blanket. Will you please send me the name and address of that beautiful person so I can avail myself of her humanitarian services? I want to help her feel better—It's Been A Long, Long, Long Time.

Dear Jerk: You wouldn't believe the number of generous men in this world who are eager to be of service to a woman with such a pitiful record as yours. Pains me deeply that I must decline your request.

Dear Ann Landers: I have long, beautiful fingernails. They are my best feature. Now you can call them that. What I mean is, I get pains and ailments on my nails than on anything else.

My boyfriend loves to bowl. Every time I have gone bowling with him, I've broken at least two nails." I refuse to bowl anymore and he is very upset with me. Is he being fair? What do I do?—Nailed In N. J.

Dear N.J.: Go with him—as a spectator. Be his cheering section. Applaud every time. Build up his ego. That should satisfy him. If it doesn't—too bad.

Doris Clark

Grandpop Advises 'No Spanking'

Dear Doris: Can "Inadequate" find no other way of expression than the threatlul "I could strangle them — those two loving grandmothers?" — and to express her inability to rationalize her own lack of self-control by the slang use of "blowing my top"? It's her top — better she should hold onto it than scuttle it.

Young and and two-year-olds, normal, inquisitive, beginning the get-acquainted-with-things-in-the-world phase go through it.

She apparently is not exhibiting normal common horse sense in facing up to this fact — blaming Grandma's wide tolerance for her inability to cope with the cute and curious antics of a two-year-old! In this case, actually, who is the baby?

As for her claiming to "feel sorry for the child because she gets so many spankings", the statement is self-contradictory. Who is brutalizing the child physically? Not the grandmas. Better she should feel sorry for her own petulance and immaturity, and realize that what she calls spankings is a form of abuse that passed on with the cat-o-nine-tails and taking a human life by means of th hangman's rope. Each was a form of sadism that has no place in today's field of civilization's behavior.

We've come a long way, Ruby Mother! A child is not simply a miniature edition of an adult. It is manifestly unfair to try to compare the reflexes of either. The mature adult has recognized this fact, and makes just allowance for the difference.

Tiny childhood is so precious; this phase is normal, and so soon (too soon) irrevocably but to be forever as the dea: ones grow and develop sense and balance. Don't thwart joy.

As a grandparent of 15 years, please bear with me while I quote my observation:

Daughter has now raised three tots. It was not always just perfect or as desired, but the children are now entering schools, are normally mannered, and never once has one had to endure the pain, degradation or searing experience of a "spanking". We feel proud that her maturity increased along with her growth. She's a "mod".

Hope my views haven't settled you. But, please, advise those types of the futility of spanking. — Grandpop.

Dear Grandpop: Amen to that!

Most child experts urge that spanking or any physical punishment is second class discipline. In many cases the parent is more punishing his or her rage. But there are parents who simply do not have the capacity to communicate with their children. Spanking is the easy way out.

'Everest Difficult Climb for Women'

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The first woman to scale Mount Everest, the world's highest peak, says the climb is too difficult for women and she would not have completed it without male Sherpa guides.

Junko Tabei, a 35-year-old Japanese woman who reached the 29,028-foot summit May 16, was commenting Saturday on a statement by Sir Edmund Hillary that the climb is too difficult for women. Hillary climbed with the mountain in 1953, the first man to do so.

"I agree with Sir Edmund," she said. "Although we could scale it, I think it is a difficult peak for women. We were lucky that we succeeded in climbing it."

"Without Ang Tsering (the guide who accompanied her to the top) and others Sherpas we could have never scaled it..."

Just 11 days after the Japanese women's expedition reached the top, China reputed an expedition of eight persons including a Tibetan woman, had also scaled Everest.

Answering questions through an interpreter, Mrs. Tabei said she had little interest in women's liberation and tackled Everest not as a woman but as a mountaineer.

Discussing the difference between men and women mountaineers, she said the latter are more powerful and speedier than women. They are stronger and powerful in the climbing. There is no difference in the body structure of a man and a woman."

Officials Can't Predict Next Indian Uprising

By STUART LAKE
The Canadian Press

"Indians don't like the phrase," says one official in the Indian affairs department in Ottawa, "it could break out anywhere in the country."

But nobody in the department official and Indian Affairs questioned by The Canadian Press in every province, is ready to point at any one area where unrest might lead to militant Indian demonstrations.

Events so far this year point to British Columbia as a hot spot, however, as Kenora was last year.

There are hints that Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan has yet to win the confidence of the 290,000 registered Indians. He and his department, in the opinion of some Indians, are trying to reduce the traditional federal responsibility for Indians, steer them into provincial plans such as housing and welfare.

Land claims are a continuing problem, both in areas where treaties were signed and where they were not.

Recent grouse rules put out by the department, dealing with local authority on reserves and accounting methods to be used when money spent by Indians, also have put some backs up.

Another old complaint is that there is too many employees in the Indian affairs department who want to keep control over programs. Some Indians feel that the idea of the department's multi-million dollar budget goes into administration and only a small portion for the benefit of Indians.

Frustration over aboriginal rights has led some Indians in British Columbia to refuse to accept all government funding for welfare and funding for their organizations, PLANA says.

Mr. Buchanan may have defused that situation a week ago when he expressed sympathy for the B.C. Indians' desire to take over more programming and become more self-governing.

The minister says he will visit B.C. before the end of June to see what other programs might be transferred.

But meanwhile, the non-status and Metis in B.C. are backing the stand of the registered groups. So far they have refused to accept government aid to attend the annual meeting next Monday in Charlottetown of the Native Council of Canada.

Mr. Buchanan's hands seemed tied on the B.C. land claims. Lands Minister Jean Chretien, he says he is ready to negotiate these claims. But since the Crown lands belong to the province, it is believed imperative that the B.C. government become a party to the negotiations. Up to now there are few encouraging signs this will happen.

Saskatchewan Indians express concern over the new grouse rules for local authority on reserves. They believe Indians might be able to wrest control from band councils.

Harold Cardinal, leader of the Alberta Indian Association, sees big problems in unsettled land claims, unfulfilled treaty promises and land alienation.

The treat promises and land alienation questions are mostly handled by a special office in Ottawa.

At last count there were about 100 claims under these two headings.

The backlog will be among the topics to be discussed by Indian leaders at a cabinet committee sometime in September.

Several claims have been thrown out by the headquarters staff and Indian bands who have been rejected complain that the department acts as judge and jury.

Mr. Chretien is one leader who blames Indian affairs staff and not Mr. Buchanan.

"The problem lies with the bureaucrats and their continual attempt to limit Indian affairs and issues into provincial departments," he says.

Unrest last year was centred in Kenora where Indians blockaded a provincial park there for 38 days. Observers from the American Indian Movement, a militant U.S. group, were on hand.

Ottawa got its taste when Indian demonstrators clashed with the RCMP riot squad as Parliament resumed last September.

The Indians moved into a vacant building near Parliament Hill for a stay that was strung out by a hospital in Ottawa until early 1975. Some still were in residence when the building burned down in late March.

The discussion paper tabled office in Ottawa said Indians had no claim on the Kenora Penitentiary, which Peter Kelly of Grand Council of Treaty 3 calls a "completely unacceptable" facility.

The Indians will pursue their claim through other channels, said Mr. Kelly, chief of Ontario. Kenora's member in the Ontario legislature, natural resources minister, said resources would stand for a repeat of last year's disturbance.

In the Maritimes and Newfoundland, the issue again is family land, mostly that taken from reserves a long time ago and under circumstances that are questionable.

Concern also is expressed by Roy Good, executive director of the Union of Nova Scotia Indians, that the 1969 federal policy paper recommending making Indians more dependant on provincial programs is "being implemented under another cover."

Darrell Pau, director of aboriginal rights for the Union of New Brunswick Indians, says about 24,000 acres in the province are claimed by Indians. Ottawa rules against their claims "as fast as they come up."

Worst Deficit on Record

Canadians spent $1.9 billion more in foreign countries than foreigners spent here in 1974. The deficit — the worst on record — was caused by a large bill for services, which includes such things as interest and dividends from foreign investments in Canada, a variety of consulting services and freight and shipping costs. Balance of payments covers trade in goods, service transactions and a variety of transfers of money, including foreign aid and funds brought in by immigrants. There was a surplus of slightly more than $1 billion in merchandise trade in 1974. Ct Newsmap

Gun Control Laws By Fall: Clement

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government is embarking on a "crash study" to have new gun control legislation ready by fall, Ontario Attorney General John Clement said today.

He told the legislature that advisers informed him following a federal provincial meeting in Ottawa that week that the federal government plans to have "something in the form of legislation" by the end of the year.

He was commenting on the incident Thursday in the legislature in which Dr. Morton Shulman NDP — High Park polled a .22 caliber rifle from under his desk to prove his point that guns are too easily available.

Dr. Shulman said he purchased the weapon with no questions asked at a Queen Street pawn store in west end Toronto.

Mr. Clement said adverse to license or ban their sale mig'ht drive the distribution at weapons underground.

He said Ontario has requested the federal government to take action against the availability of weapons although the province likely has authority to license their sale.

House Speaker Russel Rowe criticized the action taken by Dr. Shulman and said the action "constituted a flagrant misuse of privileges" as a member and that he would ask for a motion to expel a member guilty of such conduct in the LEADING PORT

In volume of tonnage handled, Vancouver is Canada's leading port.

Pension Law Said To Encourage Sin

OTTAWA (CP) — Sindul living arrangements among the over-60 set are encouraged by a government pension bill, opposition critics said Friday.

The bill, which received Commons approval in principle despite stiffer opposition eyebrows, would give monthly payments to many pensioners' spouses between the ages of 60 and 65. Old age security payments now are available only to persons 65 and older.

At issue was the bill's definition of spouse, which includes a person of the opposite sex who has lived with a pensioner for three or more years where there is a bar to their marriage or at least one year where there is no such bar and the pensioner and that person have publicly represented themselves as man and wife.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West and Stanley North Centre) said the bill encriminates against single elderly persons but condones common-law relationships.

A spouse without marriage is a serious mistake," Mr. Lambert said. "It is a poor example to our youth."

Mr. Knowles, a 66-year-old United Church minister, said he is not shocked by provisions for spouses' pensions in the case of common-law relationships.

"But I do think it is hard to take for a single woman between the ages of 60 that she cannot have a pension, whereas some other woman who is living common-law can have the pension.

"The government should make up its mind what it wants to encourage in terms of marital relations."

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, who introduced the bill, said he "had difficulty taking seriously" some of the complaints about the bill's common-law provision.

"I would like to remind honorable members that there is no intention on the part of this government to pass normal judgments about this or that particular situation in life."

He said that unmarried persons living together are considered married for the purpose of many federal and provincial laws.

"We must look at this question in a rather less partisan and less phoney way."

Mr. Lalonde told the Commons that up to 30,000 persons will become eligible for the spouse' pension under the bill.

"The pensions would be paid only if the couples underwent an incomes test. The bill basically was designed to help couples living on one pension.

Amounts paid to the spouses would vary according to need. The minister said earlier this week there would be payments as low as $5.

The basic pension for a single pensioner now is $123.42 a month. The Guaranteed Income Supplement adds as much as $93.42 if the pensioner has no extra income, for a maximum total of $216.84 a month.

Pension and supplement payments are adjusted four times a year—the next time will be in July—according to the rate of increase in the consumer price index.

A spouse would be entitled to the full pension and supplement if the couple had no additional available income.

Mr. Lalonde rejected suggestions that basic old age security pensions should be paid to all persons of age 65.

The needs of other groups of people, a single elderly person under 65, are being examined "under the income tested arm" and supplementation proposals of the federal-provincial security review."

CBC Staff Back on Job

TORONTO (CP) — More than 300 members of the news staff of CBC radio and television walked off the job at noon Friday in protest over the use of a television newscaster and on a reporting job.

A spokesman for the Canadian Wire Service Guild, which represents the 315 workers, said the guild will meet with management today to discuss the matter.

What the guild called a "study session" and management called an "illegal strike" began Friday morning.

Mr. Robertson did a newscast from London Thursday night reporting on the vote in Britain on the question of continuing membership in the European Economic Community.

CBC's news service in Quebec was not affected, because staff there are not guild members but members of a union affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

CIA Probe Results Stifled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate intelligence committee says Congress intends to avoid the controversial issue of assassination, while a White House official says President Ford is not prepared to second-guess the Kennedy administration.

"Those were difficult times," the White House official said in reference to alleged Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) efforts to kill Premier Fidel Castro during the early 1960s.

"Nobody here is going to second-guess an administration of 15 years ago."

The official's comments were offered in explanation of the decision to delete any discussion of CIA involvement in assassinations or plots from the report prepared by a commission under Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller and delivered Friday to Ford.

Ford said the report, which deals with alleged domestic spying by the CIA, would be used to make sure U.S. intelligence agencies obey the law in the future. But there was no promise that the report would be made public.

However, a White House official, who declined use of his name, said he would be "terribly surprised" if the report is not released early next week.

The official said evidence dealing with assassinations will be turned over to the Senate intelligence committee, whose chairman promised a full disclosure of U.S. assassination plots.

Chairman Frank Church said evidence he already has seen indicates "the CIA was involved not only in planning but in certain cases of attempted assassination."

The Idaho Democrat also said the agency may have been indirectly involved in some assassinations that were carried out.

Church spoke with reporters after a three-hour closed session with former CIA director John McCone.

McCone told reporters that during the last days of the Eisenhower administration and the first days of the Kennedy administration there were "certain actions which were either planned or some actually undertaken" to kill Castro.

McCone said he had no knowledge of these events at the time. "I don't really know the source" of the orders to kill Castro.

Church said he doesn't "quite understand the footwork that seems to be taking place right now" over release of the Rockefeller commission findings.

"It could deal with the assassination problem or it could duck it," he said. "Evidently it has decided to duck it."

The discoveries of gold, silver, copper, nickel and uranium opened up Ontario's northland. Come visit the mines and see a bit of history and the awesome technology of some of the greatest mining centres in the world.

If you're looking for gold, silver, or copper, head up to Cobalt, Kirkland Lake and Timmins. Dropp into the Cobalt Mining Museum, and have a rare old time at the annual Miner's Festival, August 1 to 10. At Kirkland Lake take in the Beaverlodge mine, one of the area's main tourist attractions. In the Timmins area you can tour mines working the largest gold deposits in North America.
At Sudbury, known for its huge nickel, copper and platinum deposits, see the famous Numismatic Park and Model Mine. Or visit Elliot Lake, "Uranium Capital of the World".
Most mines welcome tours but require advance notice. Come north and learn first hand how Ontario's vast mineral resources are transformed from ore to ingot. For tours to the mining areas contact your local travel agent or auto club.

OUR OUR WAY by Hoy Cochran

Careless Smoking Still Major Cause of Household Fires

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Substandard building materials, heating equipment and electrical work are a leading cause of Canada's mounting fire losses, of over $250 million a year — and the death toll among children is rising.

These are just some of the facts contained in the third edition of Facts of the Canadian Insurance Industry in Canada. The 40-page fact book is published by the Insurance Bureau of Canada (IBC) in co-operation with the Toronto chapter of the Society of Fellows and is intended as a ready reference guide of insurance facts, statistics and information.

The fact book points out that most fire insurance losses occur in homes (46 per cent) and that careless smoking still leads as the single most frequent cause of fire, accounting for 28 per cent of all reported fires across the country.

The deliberate setting of fires also shows an alarming increase and has become a major source of concern to authorities.

The new edition shows that Canadian general insurance companies write about $2.5 billion worth of insurance each year, about half of this being automobile insurance. Canadian automobile insurance companies pay out more than $120,000 in claims every hour of every day throughout the year; the fact book shows.

And young drivers between 16 and 18 years of age have a claim frequency of 37.4 per cent compared to 12.8 per cent for over-25 motorists. Moreover, one-third of all drivers involved in fatal car crashes are under 24 years old.

The fact book notes that in the last 30 years, motor vehicle crashes have killed 78,218 Canadians and have injured another 2,621,427 — roughly equal to the present population of Toronto or Montreal.

Each class of insurance is covered in the fact book which also contains information on Canadian and United States financial responsibility laws, describes how insurance rates are made and incorporates an up-to-date glossary of insurance terms.

Single copies of the fact book are available free on request from the IBC at 170 University Ave., Suite 200, Toronto, Ont.

Toys and Creativity

LEAP — a lending project which has widened choice of creative toys for city preschoolers — is facing a problem: It's Local Initiative Programs grant ends in July and organizers are anxious to keep the enterprise going. Project worker Jo Boardman helps six-year-olds Danny Button and Josephine Campbell with choices at toy library in basement of Queen Mary public school.

Recycling Household Trash Leaves Little for Garbagemen

There's no need to stray far from home to become a conservationist.

In fact, the home is the place to become involved — if you follow the example of Gay Roulston.

There's little domestic waste to plug the municipal rubbish site by the time Gay — young Lambert Dr. housewife and mother of two — gets her household leftovers sorted.

In fact, what could be termed garbage only fills about a single brown-paper shopping bag each week, she says.

The rest — in one way or another — is recycled.

Organic waste goes into a garden compost heap. Bottles and jars are saved for further use or distribution to neighbors and friends when needed — and the annual Boy Scout collection.

Wrappers are taken from metal containers and boxed with the rest of the household's wastepaper. The tins are cleaned and crushed.

The metal is later handed over to a scrap merchant — along with the wastepaper when the city's paper recycling project fell victim several months ago to a market slump.

In fact, it was the cancellation of that project that first made Gay's personal conservation efforts public. She wrote to city hall about the recycling fall-through.

The scheme she wrote, was a "good start to help people realize our waste and do something about it."

Gay finds the sorting and separating processes basic to recycling "almost as easy" as filling "two or three garbage bags," but admits that "maybe it's just the habit I'm in."

However, she believes householders, industry and institutions should also become more involved with recycling.

Car Rolls, Woman Hurt

TWEED — Damage was estimated at $1,000 after a car went out of control and rolled in the ditch at the intersection of Highway 37 and the Stoco Rd. just after midnight today.

Police say the 1967 vehicle was driven by Peter Whalen, 18, R.R. 1 Marysville.

A passenger, Margie Rashotte, 18, Metcalfe St., Tweed, complained of a fractured contusion in the mishap, said police.

Major Gets New Post

A Salvation Army couple assigned to the Belleville area is being posted to Germany where they will work with Canada's armed services NATO contingent.

Major and Mrs. Bill Davies, for the last year responsible for Salvationist youth work in the Army's mid-Ontario Division headquartered at Belleville, expect to leave the city about June 25.

At the end of July they are expected to take up their posts as Salvation Army Red Shield Service workers with the armed services at Baden-Baden and Lahr in West Germany.

Major Davies says he expects the posting to last five years.

He later served in youth work in Newfoundland and Hamilton, before being transferred to Nigeria in 1963.

Posted to Europe

Involved in youth work for the Salvation Army in the Belleville area, Maj. and Mrs. William Davies will soon be leaving the city. They've been assigned to work with the Canadian services NATO contingent and will be stationed at Baden-Baden in West Germany.

It Starts At Home

For Gay Roulston conservation starts in the home. The Lambert Dr. housewife regularly separates for recycling many domestic items that in other households would end up as garbage.

Future Unclear for Toy-lending Project as Grant Runs Out

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There are positive days for the organizers of LEAP.

They're pondering the possibilities of perpetuating a project that has broadened creative playtime for lots and lots.

Part of the problem stems from success.

LEAP — Lending Education Aids to Preschoolers — was launched as a Local Initiatives Program project that saw $10,000 in federal funds for its idea last winter. Its novel proposition was to launch a lending service for toys.

It's aim, as explained by Sue McDonnell, project supervisor: To make more toys available to preschool youngsters, giving them a wider choice, thus increasing their creativity.

Housed in a basement room in Queen Mary public school on Isabel St., the project started in January.

It built up its stocks with toys donated, purchased and others patched up or created by Moira Secondary School students.

It also rapidly created a demand for itself — the popularity including kindergarten students at the school.

Now, estimates Sue, it has served 100 youngsters registered.

They can borrow toys for two weeks at a time. But some young borrowers hustle in every day. Toys are taken to the homes of families without transportation.

The idea of expanding childhood creativity "has worked yet really well," says Sue. "A lot of parents have told us there's no way they could go out and buy such a choice of stuff."

Now the problem: LEAP's days are numbered. LIP grants run out the first week in July.

But such has been its success the LEAP team — which also includes Jonn Dixon and Jo Boardman — are reluctant to see it fold.

Hence they now are seeking a substitute method to keep it going, and they've been busy drafting letters.

Further requests for public funding are no answer, Sue firmly believes.

The ideal solution she thinks would be for a senior citizen's group to take it over. The work is undemanding and older people relate well with youngsters in the age group involved.

With the stock of playthings — everything from puzzles to paint brushes — on hand the project could be run for about $50 a month, which could be subscribed by a community group, she suggests.

The project project co-ordinator is optimistic.

"I think we should be able to get something going," she says. "I'm fairly hopeful somewhere.

If so she believes the project should stay at Queen Mary, not only because the school with its kindergarten is a good site, but it also is generally a good geographic location to serve the community.

Ron Caswell, school principal, said the project has produced benefits in various ways.

He and Sue have discussed various alternatives for its future.

He believes ways could be be found to continue housing the project at Queen Mary — if a solution is found to handling its ---nsiration.

Stephens-Adamson Gets Tar Sands Contract

A Belleville heavy-machine industry has been awarded a major contract for equipment to be used in an oil sands extraction project in western Canada.

The project — ordered by Syncrude Canada Ltd. of Edmonton — calls for Stephens - Adamson to construct a conveyor system for use in extracting oil from tar sands at Mildred Lake, about 275 miles north of Edmonton.

A company official today confirmed the order as a — an order which the company was "quite pleased" to receive.

Construction of the system — to be completed next year — at the Belleville plant is expected to start later this year or early in 1976.

Stephens - Adamson, a division of Allis Chalmers Canada Ltd., already has supplied two conveyor systems for oil extraction work in the region in the last two years, the official said.

Police Seek Motorist

TWEED — Provincial police today are seeking the driver of a car left abandoned at the scene of an accident near here Friday.

The car was heavily damaged on the Sulphide Rd. northeast of here after it had struck a tree stump and rocks.

County Levy Brings Sharp Jump in Taxes

MELROSE — Municipal taxes in Tyendinaga Township are up nearly $28 on a $1,000 assessment for public school farm and residential ratepayers this year.

The new rates total 97.4 mills for public school supporters and 97.3 mills for separate school supporters.

This means increases of 19.9 mills on public school farm and residential assessment and 22.4 mills for separate school taxpayers.

Biggest single increase in the tax table is caused by the levy raised for Hastings County government — up 11 mills to 27.3 mills on residential assessment.

A mill raises $2,469 in the township.

Due dates for payments are June 30 and Sept. 30. One-half the taxes are due June 30, the balance Sept. 30. Theses deadlines coincide with the dates tax payments are due school boards.

Reaction Mixed on Use of Pocket Calculators in School

Should students be allowed to use calculators in the classroom?—

After asking downtown dealers who begin the majority of portable calculators, it was discovered students have the lead on inquiries and purchases. With the latest popularity of portable pocket calculators, an important question comes to the foreground as to their use by students in the classroom and during examinations. In a recent survey taken in the downtown area, people were fairly divided on the issue. Here is a sample of their opinions:

DIANNE O'BRIEN

Dianne O'Brien, a 20-year-old housewife, says she feels with the limited time and the pressures of the classies calculators should be allowed.

"It would probably be better for the student, even in an examination," says Mrs. O'Brien.

She says she has reservations about the continued use and the effects they could lead up to but in moderation Mrs. O'Brien had no qualms.

"They shouldn't be allowed to be used all the time but in special cases, they're alright."

SHANNON MEAGHER

Shannon Meagher 20, a sales-clerk at a department store downtown and a student, last year, in Smiths Falls, says he thinks the students should be able to use calculators.

"They save time and they don't interfere with the basic mathematics," says Mr. Meagher.

He adds "the math we had last year was just formulas, and the use of a calculator was just to make the work easier. The formulas were a lot harder. There was no real application of them."

NANCY CAÑ

An office clerk at a downtown store, Nancy Cann 18, says students should be able to use calculators, but adds they should know how to work with the basic mathematics.

"We used them last year at Loyalist during some of our tests. They are a good thing and they save a lot of time," so.

Miss Cann warns, however, "even though they are a great convenience, they could lead someone to be dependant on one."

JOYCE McGIVERN

Joyce McGivern, a 50-year-old housewife, says she does not like the idea of students using a calculator during a class or an examination.

An owner of a calculator, Mrs. McGivern says she feels it would be "too easy" for the students. "They should use their heads," she adds.

A mother of a student who will be entering high school this fall, she says "I'm undecided on one yet but I don't know if he'll ask for it later."

TONY SPRACKETT

Tony Sprackett, 22, says he is not completely against the use of calculators in the school system.

"They (calculators) serve a purpose but they should not be used in a classroom, where the students are there to learn," said Mr. Sprackett.

"The long hand method should be used as much as possible and then the use of a calculator should be shown," he continued.

BOB ROLLAND

A CN employee, Bob Rolland says he feels relations about the use of calculators in school.

Mr. Rolland says he feels when a student has a calculator they are "not expanding minds."

Even though Mr. Rolland bought a calculator for his daughter last fall, he is against its use.

"If they use a calculator they won't keep their minds active. They'll be too dependant on it," Mr. Rolland concludes.

Dodgers Shade Phillies

Healthy Marshall Is Sharp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Marshall, Los Angeles Dodgers' fireball relief pitcher, came back after a month's layoff Friday night and showed that he was as effective as ever with a three-inning appearance that helped the Dodgers beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-2.

"I felt as good as before," said Marshall after allowing just one hit in relief of starter Burt Hooton. "I'll be ready to pitch Saturday night."

Marshall, who pitched in 106 games last season to establish a major league record, has been troubled with an injured rib through most of this year. He underwent surgery last fall to repair a rib on his left side on April 19. He returned on May 3 and pitched three scoreless innings. Then on May 9, he pulled the rib again and sat on the sideline until Friday night.

"It didn't hurt," said Marshall. "I believe it will hold this time, but you never know."

In other National League games, Atlanta Braves beat New York Mets 4-1, Cincinnati Reds defeated Chicago Cubs 5-1, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Francisco Giants 7-2 and St. Louis Cardinals blanked Houston Astros 6-0. The San Diego-Montreal game was rained out.

Jimmy Wynn doubled and Ron Cey singled to give Los Angeles its winning run in the sixth inning. Hooton earned his fourth victory against five losses although he had to leave after six innings. He was facing Dick Allen when rain delayed the game for 50 minutes.

Marshall protected Hooton's lead and his second save of the season. He finished the game with a fourth, striking out the last two batters in the ninth with a runner on first. Tom Underwood, 6-4, took the loss.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Jay Johnstone singled, tripled and scored on Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly.

Los Angeles came back in the fifth to go ahead 3-1. Joe Ferguson opened with a single, then Steve Yeager singled and when Luzinski bobbled the ball in left, Ferguson scored all the way from first, with Yeager winding up at second. Rick Auerbach then doubled him home.

The Phillies cut it to 3-2 in the sixth when Mike Schmidt, his 11th home run of the season and his fifth in the last four games.

Phil Niekro fired a six-hitter and singled home a run to lead Atlanta over New York. The Braves' knuckleball pitcher got out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth to preserve the victory.

Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter and George Foster hit a two-run homer to lead Cincinnati past Chicago.

Pittsburgh's Dave Parker and Richie Zisk hit home runs in a five-run sixth inning to help beat San Francisco.

Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter, leading St. Louis over Houston.

Series for Two-hitter

Nolan Ryan's Bid Falls Short

NOLAN RYAN

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Nolan Ryan was philosophical about losing his chance Friday night at a second consecutive no-hit game.

"If I'm going to give up a hit, I might as well give it up to one of the greatest hitters in the game," said Ryan, referring to Milwaukee slugger Hank Aaron. "I can't think of anyone more appropriate."

Ryan was trying to surpass Sandy Koufax' mark of five no-hitters in a career and equal Jim Bunning's record of two perfect games. Ryan had walked Aaron in the sixth inning, Hooton earned his fourth victory against five losses although he had to leave after six innings. He was facing Dick Allen when rain delayed the game for 50 minutes.

Marshall protected Hooton's lead and his second save of the season. He finished the game with a fourth, striking out the last two batters in the ninth with a runner on first. Tom Underwood, 6-4, took the loss.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Jay Johnstone singled, tripled and scored on Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly.

Los Angeles came back in the fifth to go ahead 3-1. Joe Ferguson opened with a single, then Steve Yeager singled and when Luzinski bobbled the ball in left, Ferguson scored all the way from first, with Yeager winding up at second. Rick Auerbach then doubled him home.

The Phillies cut it to 3-2 in the sixth when Mike Schmidt, his 11th home run of the season and his fifth in the last four games.

Phil Niekro fired a six-hitter and singled home a run to lead Atlanta over New York. The Braves' knuckleball pitcher got out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth to preserve the victory.

Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter and George Foster hit a two-run homer to lead Cincinnati past Chicago.

Pittsburgh's Dave Parker and Richie Zisk hit home runs in a five-run sixth inning to help beat San Francisco.

Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter, leading St. Louis over Houston.

Jimmy Connors

MICKEY LOLICH

ton then hit his fourth home run of the season off Slaton in the sixth.

Detroit's Mickey Lolich became baseball's all-time left-handed strikeout artist with 2,395, surpassing Warren Spahn's 2,583, while Willie Horton drove in four runs—three with a home-run and Mickey Stanley hit a two-run shot in the Tigers' rout of Oakland.

Dwight Evans drove in six runs with two homers, one of them his first career grand slam, to help the Red Sox outslug Minnesota. He hit the big one off Joe Decker in the first inning. Then he connected with a two-run shot, his seventh homer of the season, off reliever Mike Pazik in a five-run third.

Bobby Bonds' 13th homer of the season—a two-run shot in the second inning—boosted the Yanks to their sixth straight victory and left Chicago's Wilbur Wood, a 20-game winner the last four years, as the majors' first 10-game loser this season.

Frank Robinson hit a pair of three-run homers, the latter in the eighth being to lead Cleveland past Ferguson Jenkins and the Rangers.

Paul Blair's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning carried Baltimore past the Royals. Jim Northrup singled and scored third on a sacrifice bunt and an error before Blair came through.

WILLIE HORTON

Bernie Mitton Defeats Connors

CHICHESTER, England (AP) — Bernie Connors of the United States, the world's top tennis star, was defeated by South Africa's Bernie Mitton 7-6, 6-1 in an international grass court tennis tournament Friday.

Connors, who coasted to four victories in three days at this tenuep for the Wimbledon championships, reached the semi-finals earlier Friday by eliminating John Bartlett of Australia, 6-2, 6-4.

But against Mitton, Connors lost the first set on a tie-breaker and then dropped the second by a wide margin.

The 23-year-old American star took his philosophically.

"I came here for match practice and I've had five matches so it served my purpose," he said. "I have two more weeks to go before beginning defence of my Wimbledon title and at 4 o'clock two weeks from Monday, I'll be ready. Watch me go then."

The victory moved Mitton into today's final against Syd Ball, a 35-year-old Australian.

In the women's final, Terry Holladay of the U.S. will meet Greer Stevens of South Africa. Miss Holladay ousted American Patti Hogan 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Move to Resolve Three-way Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — The dispute between Al Eagleson, executive director of the National Hockey League Players' Association (NHLPA), and hockey writer Stan Fischler has been at least partially resolved.

In a statement introduced by Fischler and modified by Eagleson before a meeting Friday of the Ontario Press Council, the two agreed that it is in "the best interests of the game of hockey and the hockey players to co-operate with Stan Fischler and all members of the press."

The dispute centres on a letter Eagleson wrote to player representatives last January saying he believed it would be in the best interest of the association and players "not to cooperate" with Fischler, a broadcaster Ted Lindsay.

After hearing arguments from both men, the Ontario Press Council released a statement acknowledging Eagleson's right to give advice to members. The NHLPA but said they would be "concerned if such advice resulted in unfair discrimination against any other reporter."

Fischler is the author of about 40 hockey books, a broadcaster and syndicated columnist.

Lindsay is a commentator with NBC sport's televised hockey Game of the Week.

His attorney, Fischler insisted the Ontario Press Council and the Canadian Civil Liberties Association and called for an investigation.

Eagleson's letter drew attention to remarks Fischler made in Sporting News saying, in effect, it was possible for players to price owners out of business, because of the eventual death of hockey.

At Friday's meeting, Fischler said he thought it was "unfair" for the players' association to try to boycott him, said it was "unfair to suggest that I (Fischler) exploited hockey players."

800 Fans at Exhibition Raceway

Pat Hunt Three-time Winner

The weatherman didn't dampen the spirits of racing enthusiasts, as close to 800 showed up to bet more than $40,000 at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway on Friday evening.

The track was in good condition, although the heavy rain slowed down many of the horses and the times of winners were not impressive.

The fastest time was recorded by Mabelle Amit driven by Brian Bellamy in the night's ninth and feature race. He finished in 2:11.1 recieving the $400 purse.

Pat Hunt led all drivers as he posted three victories. He guided Waco Joe in his fourth attempt but the horse couldn't do any better than seventh place in the feature.

Hunt drove Our Flicka in 2:16, Lady Moet finishing 2:14 and drove Bas Stalin Marty to the line in 2:14.4.

Jack Harry from Carrying Place drove 2 winners to the unofficial finish with Single Impression in 2:16.4, and Fancy Clay in the sixth in 2:18 the first win of the year for the horse.

In that race Bankers Chip making his first appearance of the year held the lead over the field coming home to the wire. With only yards to go, Fancy Clay and Georgie Just completed completed the one-two finish leaving the Bernard Hunts Banker Chip in third place.

Guy LaBush drove home two winners as he was the driver for Locust Don finishing in 2:18 for the horses second consecutive victory. He drove Paddy O'Hara in the eighth race crossing the line in 2:14.4.

Correcting the report on last week's feature, Western's Dr. Wann was the winner of the Bud Zebedee and R. Yorkes Wann Memorial Pace and Trophy.

The horse was driven by Rejean Bolly, and the owners were Campbell Mamaroneck and Bolly.

The horse finished in 2:07 two seconds short of the Quinte track record of 2:05.

Kinsmen Win 8-4

Belleville Ontario Amateur Softball Association Kinsmen Spirits doubled the score on Springbrook recently in an exhibition contest highlighted by a total of 28 strikeouts.

Losing pitcher Bryce Rowe looked after 18 of the strikeouts himself and helped pace his team at the plate with a pair of singles.

Belleville countered with Bobby Smith and Allan Thompson who combined pitching talents for an strikeouts. They walked three and allowed only six hits.

Stephen Smith collected three singles for the winners. David Phillips and Bobby Turner each had a pair.

Independents, Brooke Bond Get Industrial Victories

The Intelligencer made it five in a row Friday night in the Industrial Softball League. That's five losses in a row.

The Intell after winning three early season ball games, have dropped their fifth in a row, including last nights 10-7 defeat at the hands of the Independents in the second game of a twin-bill played at the Alemite.

Greg. Bellis and Earl Colton combined efforts in scattering seven hits for the victory. Jim McCoy gave up seven hits in taking the loss.

The Independents scored four big runs in the sixth inning to go ahead to stay.

Keith Bertrand led the winners with a double and a single. George Foote camp up with a big triple.

Fred Sickle had three hits for the losers with two singles and a two-bagger. Mike Bradshaw helped in a losing cause with a double and a single.

In the first game of the night Brooke Bond upset Norm Lockhart and the Post Office 7-0.

Tom St. Jules was the winning pitcher allowing only six hits, the same number as did Lockhart.

The key to the Brooke Bond win was the fact that the Pastles left 13 men on the bassbaths.

Ron Stratton collected a triple and a single fen the winners win Lou Rivers pounding out two singles.

Lockhart, Ron Marriot and George Johnston smashed two singles each in the Post Office lost, only their second of the season.

Argos Sign Trio

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Thursday the signing of three import linebackers to Canadian Football League contracts. They are former CFL star John Hurd, Ed Witherspoon and Salvatore (Sam) Pecoraro. Hurd, six feet and 218 pounds, played in the National Football League for six years before joining Montreal Alouettes in 1973-75. He retired last year to coach at the University of Maine.

BCI Girls Champs

In the Championship game of the Bay of Quinte Girls High School Soccer played Thursday, BCI defeated Centennial 1-0. The game was played in a torrential downpour on the Centennial field.

Both teams played exceptionally well considering the weather and the sloppy field.

Centennial had the advantage of the wind in the first half but the Chargers were unable to capitalize. They had one breakaway but Goalie Janice Empey was able to race back and clear the ball for a corner kick.

There was no score at half-time, but the eight minutes of the second half, Rita Karver had a clear shot at the goal but was brought down from behind giving the visitors a free kick.

Centre half Wendy Donovan floated the ball high into the Centennial net.

The home girls tried to come back, but the goal had taken alot out of them and some excellent defensive play by the BCI fullbacks kept the Chargers at bay. Shirley Gulliver in the BCI net, recorded the shutout.

Decision Making Over, Ethier Ready

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sports Writer

The "Bear" is back. And the Ontario Football League (OFL) had better sit up and take notice.

"I plan on being one of the best in this league," said Bob Ethier, "I'm not being cocky about it, I just know how good I am and I haven't seen any pitchers yet in this league who are as good as I am."

Bear, Big Bear, Cubby, Fat Cat or Shad fall are nicknames accumulated over his years in Quinte Fastball League's informed powers at Howard and Robert Printing last Thursday that he was leaving the OFL to play with the Belleville McDonald's.

"I really felt bad about leaving," said the 6-3, 240 pound left hander, "I've been with them the last few years and they've been good sponsors. They've always been good to me."

Three years ago, Ethier carried H and H to the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate AA championship. Last season he pitched them to Quinte Fastball League championship.

"I just want to play the best ball I can while I still can," he said. "I'm working on 30 years of age and if I ever want to play major league ball this is the time to do it."

Ethier had until June 1 to make his decision about playing in the OFL. He threw a couple of games for the Mars and had them. He threw four in Quinte Fastball Tourney and won all of the, but his heart wasn't really in any of those games.

"I couldn't really get into either situation," said Ethier. "I just wasn't sure where I wanted to be. I was sitting on the fence and that wasn't helping my mental outlook when I pitched in either league."

Ethier mulled over the idea of going or staying for a number of weeks. Originally he had signed with the Mars. Then in late March he changed his mind.

"That's when I started to have my doubts," he said. "I had to find out if I was good enough for this league and the idea of all the travelling wasn't helping me make up my mind."

When he finally did decide he wanted to play in the OFL they take on St. Catharines on Saturday in London he had arrangements with the Dukes before it started to rain. Tuesday he fired the first game of the doubleheader against the Toronto Waxman Globals and earned the Macs' first victory.

"I would have won the game in London," he said, "if it hadn't started raining and that game in Toronto, that was probably the worst game I've thrown in my whole life and I still won."

Though the Macs are 1-9, Ethier is confident they are going to start putting things together and will take a run at one of the three East Division playoff spots.

"We can win in this league," he said. "We're just starting to move right now."

Ethier and the Macs will have their chance to show Belleville how fast they're moving this weekend when they take on St. Catharines in a doubleheader Saturday night and Burlington in a single contest Sunday.

SIGN DRAFT CHOICE
ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames signed their first-round National Hockey League draft trade with Detroit Red Wings. The club said Richard Mulhern, a 20-year-old defenceman last season with Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, signed a multi-year contract. Veteran centre Bryan Hextall went to Detroit for left winger Dave Kryskow.

Economy Run Planned By Auto Sport Club

The Quinte Auto Sport Club is holding an economy run Sunday. The start and finish are at the corner of Dundas and Foster Sts. in Belleville.

Registration is from 11.15 a.m. to 12.15 p.m. Entrance fee $4 per car.

The route is approximately 70 miles long, all on paved roads.

The winner will be decided by the miles per gallon multiplied by the weight factor of the car.

For example, if a car weighs 3,000 lbs. and gets 21 miles per gallon, the driver would have 21.5 ion miles per gallon. A car weighing 2,500 lbs and getting 28 miles per gallon, would have 30.2 ion miles per gallon.

The event is open to all four-wheeled vehicles that use gasoline only as a fuel.

Lead free, Regular and High test fuel will be available at the start.

It's a good opportunity to find out for sure how far your car will go on a gallon of gas.

Shack—Considers Retirement

Entertain? Maybe No Says Shack

TORONTO (CP) — There won't be any tag day for Eddie Shack should he decide to retire.

The Entertainer was given his unconditional release by Toronto Maple Leafs this week. He and team-mate Norm Ullman were available to any other National Hockey League team for the $100 waiver price last week. There were no takers.

The 38-year-old winger may have a few rounds left in his aging legs, but it's apparent that most teams that passed him over realized his widespread business ventures require him to remain in Toronto.

His one remaining chance to continue in professional hockey, therefore, is Toronto Toros of the rival World Hockey Association.

"I've just about decided to retire although I might be interested in playing for the Toros," says Shack. "But I'm not going to approach them. If they called, I'd listen."

Toros aren't likely to call, although they have indicated if the veteran winger showed up at training camp they would be obliged to watch. Shack always a favorite with the fans, could be a big drawer for the WHA team at the Gardens.

But the Toros have been stung too often by big-name players and not getting the expected mileage for their dollar.

Bjorn Borg

Young Swedish Star Celebrates in Style

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg celebrated his 19th birthday in style Friday by overpowering Peter Szoke of Hungary 6-1, 6-1 in the French open tennis championships.

The young Swede's powerful forehand carried him into the third round of the tournament.

Although Borg lived up to his top seeding as defending champion, Alex Metreveli became the second of the 16 seeds to fall. Carlos Kirmayr, a 24-year-old Brazilian, ousted the Soviet ace 8-6, 7-5, 6-4.

American still in contention were Harold Solomon, Brian Gottfried, Stan Smith, Eric van Dillen, Roscoe Tanner, John Andrews and Eddie Dibbs, who advanced to round three on Thursday.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico, last week's winner of the Italian Open crown; Guillermo Vilas and Ricardo Cano, both of Argentina; and two Chileans, Belus Prajoux and Jaime Fillol, make up the Latin American threat in the round of 32. Ilie Nastase of Romania, who won this title in 1973, also advanced.

LYNCH TRADED

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Lynch, rookie of the year last season in the National Lacrosse League, was traded Thursday to Philadelphia Wings by Montreal Quebecois in exchange for Ross Jones. Lynch, who had 17 goals and 23 assists in 16 games for Montreal this season and was the club's fourth leading scorer. Jones, 26, had 17 goals and 18 assists in 13 games with Philadelphia this season.

Mel Bridgman Signs Multi-year Contract

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mel Bridgman, the No. 1 choice in this year's National Hockey League amateur draft, signed a multi-year contract with the Stanley Cup Champion Philadelphia Flyers Friday.

Bridgman, 20, was drafted Tuesday by the Flyers after Philadelphia traded centre Bill Clement, Richmond defenceman Don McLean, and their top draft choice to Washington Capitals. The Flyers received the Capitals' No. 1 pick, which was first in the draft.

Flyers' general manager Keith Allen said: "Our scouts were unanimous. When I asked them which player they would choose if they could pick one, they all said Bridgman. The computer also ranked Mel No. 1."

Flyers' coach Fred Shero, admitting, "I know nothing about him," still expressed confidence Bridgman would be able to adapt himself to the Flyers disciplined style of hockey.

Bridgman, a six-foot, 185-pound centre from Victoria, B.C., who led the Western Canada Hockey League in scoring with 66 goals and 91 assists in 68 games, had said after the Tuesday's draft that he had not reached an agreement with the Flyers.

At the time, Bridgman said his agent, Frank Miles of St. Catherines, Ont., hadn't informed him of any deal with the Flyers.

Bridgman played the last three years with Victoria in the WCHL, leading the league in scoring this year with 157 points.

Shero—Confidence in Rookie

Bengtsson Gets Argument

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuter) — Stefan Bengtsson, Sweden's 1971 world champion, was forced to five sets in the quarter finales of an international table tennis tournament Thursday night.

The left-handed Bengtsson, fresh from his Canadian Open championship victory, edged out Canada's Yugoslav national coach, Zlatko Cordas, 19-21, 21-18, 21-17, 19-21, 21-12.

Bengtsson's countryman, Kjell Johansson, also secured a semi-final berth, defeating Canada's Guyanese-born No. 1, Ernol Castano of Toronto, 21-12, 21-19, 21-14.

Defending champion Danny Seemiller of the United States was no match for fourth-seeded Dragutin Surbek of Yugoslavia, going down in straight sets, 14-21, 18-21, 16-21.

In the women's semi-finals, England's Jill Hammersley moved a step closer to the title when she swept aside the defending champion Irene Cordas of Toronto, 21-9, 21-17, 21-12.

Also through to the final is living in the U.S. She defeated former Korean women's cap- Sweden's Ann-Christine Bjelfan, in Sonk Na, who is now liman, 22-20, 21-16, 21-13.

Minor Softball Results

AOCO Scores Tyke Win

One tyke division game in Belleville Minor Softball Association boys' section was reported this week. In it, AOCO turned the tables on Town and Country Restaurant by a 29-17 count.

David Rigg was the big gun for the winners with a triple, double and two singles. Brian Clarey banged four singles for the losers.

In the squirt division, the top games of the week had to be a 5-4 Belleville Plans squeaker over O'Neil Stationery and Complete Rentals' 17-15 defeat of Ernie Tuck Appliances. In the other match, Sidney Inn toppled Colonial Real Estate 24-15.

John Ramsay sipped Joey Parker and Mike Thompson in the pitching department in Plans's close win. Ramsay went all the way, striking out 12 and walking only one.

Tim Cassidy got the win for Complete Rentals, getting the nod over Steve Moore. Leading the hit parade for the winners were Steve Gough with a triple and two singles and Dave Hodge with three singles. Joey Teather, Tim Tuck and Scott Miller each belted three safeties for Ernie Tuck.

Two home runs, a pair of the best of David Wright led the hat of David Wright led the Sidney Inn attack. Bruce Wright was the winning pitcher. Kevin Dever took the loss. Gordon Storey whacked a pair of homers for Colonial and Dever had one.

At the peewee level, there were a pair of close fits. Kitmee Squirts shaded Malcolm Brothers 10-9 and Richard Ellis Squirts Dixie 14-13.

Kitmeers were led at the plate by David Phillips who put the work in the hat for three singles. Doug Bennett doubled for the losers. Sparing the pitching for the winners were Bobby Turner and Allan Thompson. Michael Miller was the hard luck loser.

Stephen Burley walloped a pair of triples to spark the Ellis attack. Although on the short end of the score, Dixie Lee got a pair of homers from Hughie Brennan and one by Ray Lucas.

Rounding out the peewee action, Stephen Licence whipped Westgate Carpet 22-5.

Steve Murray slugged a two homer and two doubles for the winners. Jim Noble collected a single and a double for Westgate. Stephen Bennett and Murray shared the Stephen Licence pitching. Kevin Lucas toed the rubber for the Carpetmen.

There was little to choose between Red Shark and Shell in a bantam section contest. Red Shark won by a nose, 19-18.

The winners got homers from Rick Turner and Randy Smith and a triple off the bat of Darren Savage. Colin Adams clouted a circuit smash for Shell.

Randy Smith, Ray Ellis and Andy Plane gave the winners solid pitching effort. Wayne Eros looked after the pitching for the losers.

No CHL Team For the Flames

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League have announced they will not operate a Central Hockey League franchise in Omaha, Neb., next season.

Flames general manager Cliff Fletcher said Friday the club will continue a working agreement with Des Moines Capitols of the International Hockey League.

Fletcher said high operating costs and substantial losses over the last three years prompted the action.

IN MEMORIAM

MCDONELL — In loving memory of a dear mother, Irene, who passed away June 8th, 1973.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were open to you,
We'd give it, yes, and more.
For the best of mothers we hear,
Upon smiling through the door.
—Sadly missed by Monica and Carmen, grandchildren Donna and Allen.

MCDONELL — In loving memory of a dear mother, Irene McDonell who passed away 2 years ago today, June 8th, 1973.

The gates of memory will never close,
No miles you more than anyone known,
With broken hearts and sore regret,
We who loved you will never forget.
—Deeply missed by Jim, Mary, daughters Doreen and Irene, grandsons-in-law Francis and Terry, grandchildren Gail and Barbara.

MCDONELL — In loving memory of a dear Mother, McDonell, who passed away 2 years ago, June 8, 1973.

Many a tear has flowed since then,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
—Sadly missed by Ann.

A link in our family chain is broken,
She has gone from our home but not from our hearts.
—Always remembered by Eugene, Margaret and family.

MCDONELL — In loving memory of a dear mother, Irene McDonell, who passed away 2 years ago, June 8, 1973.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of our hearts,
We miss them more in the heart's
They may leave behind.
—Always remembered by Mike, George and family.

JONES — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Violet who passed away June 7, 1971.

Sweetly she rests in Heavenly peace,
Only those who have lost can tell,
How the pain of parting can last in peace,
For the one we loved so well.
—Sadly missed by her husband Thomas, daughters Ethel, Doreen, Marjorie, son Peter and David and families.

JONES — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, who passed away June 7, 1971.

We cannot, dear Mother, forget you,
No matter how we try.
You were so good to us all,
We miss us sadly why.
The reason's hidden somewhere,
In the pattern of life and death,
We must journey on and hope that,
Someday we'll understand.
—Always missed and always remembered by daughter Olwen, son-in-law Tom, and grandchildren Ronnie, Gordy and Jeffrey.

Increase Predicted In Demand for Meat

EDMONTON (CP) — A possible change in the attitude of people toward feeding grain to animals rather than to humans is one factor that Dr. Surendra Kulshreshtha says might make his predictions on future food consumption by Canadians worthless.

Dr. Kulshreshtha, an agricultural economist at the University of Saskatchewan, has released a major study on how much Canadians can be expected to consume by 1980 and the amount of feed grains necessary to provide it.

He acknowledges that his conclusions might be drastically altered by developments.

"Forecasting future events is a risky business," he said in the report, adding that there are factors which might result in a "completely different" livestock and grain economy from the one he forecasts.

He anticipates that total demand for beef, pork and poultry meats will increase at a relatively faster rate than for veal, eggs and dairy products.

He predicts that Canadians will each consume 175.5 pounds of red meats a year by 1980, up from the 161.2 consumed during the 1971-73 period. Consumption of poultry meat should rise to 51.5 pounds, from 43.6 and consumption of eggs should increase to 22.8 dozen from 20.4. Consumption of dairy products is expected to decline to 802.6 pounds from 858.9.

To achieve this generally increased demand, Dr. Kulshreshtha says grain acreage required in 1980, allowing for export and non-domestic requirements, will be between 51.8 and 58.8 million acres compared with the average of 42.4 million acres during the 1968-72 period.

However, this would change if there were a worldwide shortage of food, affecting the attitude of Western Hemisphere people towards feeding grain to animals.

A change in this attitude might lead to a cut in production and consumption of meat products.

The economist said abolition of the Crownest agreement, which provides low rates on the movement of grain for export, might lead to a boost in livestock production on the prairies and that general inflation, if not checked, might affect the economic health of livestock producers.

Dr. Kulshreshtha said his predictions were based on Canada achieving a population of almost 24.7 million by 1980, a figure computed on previous population growth figures.

"This assumes continuance of present immigration policies and natural rate of population growth," he said.

"Any departure in these would lead to a change in population and therefore in production requirements."

Arbor Day Revived

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The half-forgotten tradition of Arbor Day is undergoing a revival here and the Prince Edward Island Heritage Foundation is beating the drums.

The Heritage Foundation has enlisted the co-operation of municipalities, the environmental control commission, the forestry division and 4-H clubs in their effort to turn May 22 into Arbor Day on the island.

Among other things, teachers have been urged to replant tree seedlings to be planted in school yards.

The tradition of Arbor Day on this island province dates back more than 90 years. Prominent gentlemen of Charlottetown met May 14, 1884, and determined that it was desirable that trees be planted in the squares and along the streets of the town.

The group further resolved "that immediate steps be taken for planting our streets and squares, and that a day be set aside to be called Arbor Day"—the day of the tree.

On that first Arbor Day, the record reports, 300 trees were planted in Charlottetown. Held each May since then, the day was regarded as a time for cleaning and for planting trees, shrubs and flowers.

The special day was approved as a school holiday in 1889 "for the purpose of planting shade trees, making flower beds and otherwise improving and beautifying the school grounds."

The holiday fell by the wayside in the years following the Second World War and today's families are not as familiar with it as are their parents. But island officials are hoping it will once again rum to prominence on the yearly calendar of holidays.

Nobody Sure About Source of Big Ben's Name

LONDON (CP) — Of all of London's famed landmarks, the tower structure of the Houses of Parliament is dominant. But there is no exact record how it got its name—Big Ben, a symbol of London to the world at large.

The massive four-faced clock carried on the tower incorporates in its chimes a 14-ton bell known as Big Ben and this name has been popularly applied to the whole structure for more than 100 years.

Some sources attribute the name to the fact that the first commissioner of works in 1855-58 was a member of Parliament of enormous girth, Sir Benjamin Hall. The more likely explanation is that the then champion prizefighter was the 238-pound Benjamin Caunt. His nickname was Big Ben and the people applied this to anything built on an exceptionally large scale.

Although the name thus strictly belongs only to the bell that sounds the hours, it is universally applied to the whole clock tower.

Just as it is difficult accurately to pinpoint the origin of the name, so it is difficult to identify any one man as the designer of the clock. Certainly after the Houses of Parliament were destroyed by fire in 1834 the architect for the new building, Charles Barry, included a clock tower in which the government's office of works undertook to install "a noble clock, indeed a King of clocks."

Barry, in 1844, approached Lewis Vulliamy—also Queen Victoria's clockmaker — but since he was slow to take up the challenge, E. J. Dent, a maker of marine chronometers, offered his service. The Astronomer Royal, G. B. Airy, had laid down stringent conditions for the clock's performance.

The most exacting was that the first stroke of the hour must be accurate to one second and checked twice daily with Greenwich Observatory.

Vulliamy then withdrew from tendering, leaving Dent to build the clock under the supervision of the Astronomer Royal and E. B. Denison (Later Baron Grimthorpe), an able amateur horologist among the parliamentarians.

Big Ben

Big Ben, seen from Parliament Square, is the timepiece, is a massive four-faced clock on the tower of the Houses of Parliament. The clock tower rises 315 feet from the level of the River Thames and in spite of its size, it has a deceptively delicate appearance. (CP Photo)

Rounding up Time

WELLINGBOROUGH, England (CP) — A horse corral is to be set up by the borough council here following complaints from residents about stray horses wandering around housing estates damaging lawns and flowers. The animals will be rounded up and kept there until their owners claim them and pay for their recovery and upkeep.

Cough May Cause Heart Problems

By G. C. THORSSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorsson: I have been hospitalized twice with acute myocardial infarction, coronary insufficiency and angina. I have trouble with a bad cough, which sometimes my hands me and also starts the angina pains.

Can this cough be due to my heart condition? Is there anything to do about it?—Mrs. H.C.M.

Indeed, there could be a connection between the two.

A chronic cough can be due to a heart condition, particularly to congestive heart failure. The latter develops when the heart does not function efficiently during systole contraction phase. The pulmonary lung network soon becomes affected, and fluid accumulation can result, causing the respiratory problem. A chronic shortness of breath can lead to coughing spells.

An X-ray of the chest is in order to determine whether congestion is present. If heart congestion is diagnosed, then treatment would be to strengthen the heart muscle with appropriate medication. If the medication has produced edema, then diuretics may be needed to eliminate the fluid build-up.

With your history of heart troubles, you should not waste any time in reporting yr respiratory symptoms to your doctor.

Dear Dr. Thorsson: My two children, a son 18, and a daughter 8, were bedwetters (at those ages), and I was stunned. I decided to do some experimenting. I decided it must be something they were eating that was causing their problem. An old family friend had told me that because of his kidney problem he could not eat fresh meat, particularly pork.

We ate very little pork, but we did eat chicken two or three times a week. I was living in a place where chickens were processed and could buy it rather cheaply. We ate a lot of chicken.

I began limiting the amount of chicken the children ate at a meal, and insisted they eat more vegetables. There were a few arguments at first, but I explained why I was doing this.

Neither ever wet the bed again. I always think of this when I hear of bedwetting problems your letter writers sometimes speak of.—Mrs. G.B.

I am pleased to print your letter Mrs. G.B., not because I believe allergy is always the cause of bedwetting, but because it illustrates a point I try to make when offering thoughts on this subject. One must be patient and continue to search for the root cause, is it psychological or physical. I discussed this at greater length in a recent column.

The possibility of a food allergy should always be investigated, and chicken may be an offender, as can milk, eggs, fruits (citrus), tomato, corn, wheat products, chocolate and onions among others.

Often a problem such as bedwetting can be solved psychologically by the mere knowledge a child has that something new is being attempted, as in your chicken limitation. How much this was a factor in your experience is hard to say.

The important thing is that it worked for you. But allergy is only one of several possible causes of bedwetting and I emphasized in the often arduous investigative process.

Opening lead—3♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Today's hand should serve as a perfect example of incorrect bidding.

North started by opening one club instead of one diamond. With two five-card suits you open the higher ranking one when your two suits are spades and clubs.

East's spade overcall was sound to say the least, and South's two diamond call eminently correct. We can't find much wrong with West's jump to three spades, although some players would have gone one higher.

North's four spade cue bid was a trifle too much for his hand, but it worked to the extent that East with his tremendous hand pulled in his horns, buried his head in the sand like the ostrich and refused to make any further bids.

South's five club call was fine. In fact, we can find nothing wrong with anything South did.

If North had simply bid five diamonds he would really have come out in good shape. After West's normal opening lead of the fourth-best spade, South would make that game contract. As it was, South had to struggle unsuccessfully at six.

If East had just been thinking about what his partner might be bidding he would surely have bid six spades. The contract would have wheeled in with just normal careful play.

A — Just bid four hearts. You may be missing a slam, but some slams are going to be missed.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three hearts your partner has responded one spade. What do you do now?

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"It has finally reached the point that we're going to have to do without the things we never could afford!"

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

LOS ANGELES (AP) American television was movie addict's paradise last season.

There was a film on in prime time every night on one of the three networks, sometimes two films.

This is about to change. All three are cutting down movie nights next fall—ABC from four to two, NBC from three to two, CBS from two to one.

The cut covers movies made for television and films the networks purchased after they made the rounds of the theatres.

In the case of purchased films, the reduction isn't surprising.

"There aren't that many good pictures to begin with," said Fred Silverman, CBS programming chief. "And we have program censoring problems. The prices are out of sight. . . . We just don't feel that the number and quality of movies available warrants an extra (two) hours."

The cut in TV movies is a little harder to understand.

The reduction is a big one—from roughly 85 this season to 45 or so next season, not including movies made solely as series pilots.

And for the first time in many years, none of the networks is giving its TV films special World Premiere or Movie of the Week time slots. They will be interspersed with the purchased Hollywood movies.

Executives at ABC and NBC, where most of the television films are made, said these changes reflect a switch in emphasis, not in commitment to the form.

They said they want quality rather than quantity and they're forsaking the 90-minute movie in favor of the two-hour format.

At ABC, movie production boss Brandon Stoddard said the financial commitment for 1975-76 will be the same for 25 two-hour movies—about $18.7 million—as it was for 44 1½-hour films this season.

The two-hour format also seems dictated by the networks' self-imposed "family hour" next fall.

Most TV movies are for adults and therefore not acceptable for the family hour, 8-9 p.m. prime time. Within this restriction, it made sense to many TV executives to devote the 8-to-11 block to one film rather than run a half-hour show at 8 or 10:30.

The difference is money, pure and simple. The networks pay from $450,000 to $500,000 for a 90-minute movie. They pay $750,000 for a two-hour film.

So for filming an extra 30 minutes—38 when you subtract commercial time—a producer has up to $300,000 more to spend on stars, sets, script and all the little details that differentiate a movie from a television series.

He's Donning His Other Theatre Hat

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Irish-born actor-director Sean Mulcahy has finished his first season as artistic director of The Press Theatre here and is about to do his other hat as director of the Griffin Theatre in Barrie, Ont.

"I'm becoming a sort of poor man's Sol Hurok in northern Ontario," he said in an interview.

He led Edmonton's Citadel Theatre two years ago after building it from a community group to Alberta's principal professional theatre playing to capacity audiences.

Mulcahy said The Press will become a fully-professional theatre this fall under the Canadian theatre agreement with Equity, the actor's union. "Ad Noel Coward said, we are going to be legitimate, and mother will be pleased."

Both here and in Barrie, Mulcahy builds season's programs on international collection of current standard works, including plays by popular Neil Simon.

"The great leap forward in Edmonton was after three years when we presented Shakespeare's Othello with Paul Kligman, a young polish in the Citadel's history. We sold out the run before opening night and the school kids were scalping tickets—boys were selling them for a buck more—the real scalping."

Mulcahy wants to bring a cross-section of the community here when he says he don't really have a healthy theatre until the factory girls, the cab drivers, the lawyers and the doctors are all in it together."

His dream is to be the first theatre director to send back a government grant to the Canada Council.

"Plays are one of the few forms of entertainment that can be made to go their own way," he says, if audiences are built up carefully and programs are chosen with an eye to costs.

Plan New Branches

EDMONTON (CP)—The construction of two new library branches plus a major expansion of an existing branch have been recommended by the public library board in a 10-year plan for the city's library system. The board says the guidelines must be set immediately if future financial provision is to be made for expansion of the present system, which includes a branch.

Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, June 8

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) You're fired up personally today. People will enjoy listening to you. You don't need to talk twice by throwing in a few phony facts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be generous today, but only to those who are deserving. Don't be a patsy for a habitual freeloader.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your intentions are sincere in dealings you may have today. Just be certain the other party is on the same wavelength.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be on the receiving end of some material benefits today. Someone who learns of your good fortune won't be as happy for you as she pretends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To , you'll be the centre of attraction. Share the limelight. Bring a shy friend into the act.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will benefit through your own merit or skills. Don't let a Johnny-come-lately con you out of part of what you've earned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's safe to open up in front of friends today. But avoid talking about confidential matters in front of a casual acquaintance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) You'll have an opportunity today to profit through another. If you don't handle things with serious forethought, you could lose out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Discuss any situations involving a partnership early in the day. Later, your thinking won't be nearly as clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might want to get together today with people involved in your work or career. But bringing in an outsider would derail things.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Members of the opposite sex will find you very attractive today. One who never seemed to notice before will be taking a good, long look at you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Entertaining at home today? Shoo everybody home after a reasonable time, or you'll be stuck with some boring hangers-on.

For Monday, June 9

Aries (March 21-April 19) You should excel today in situations that require imaginative approaches. Have faith in plans you conceive at this time.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects are especially bright today and tomorrow. Things of value could come to you through very unusual channels.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You'll find others are more eager to co-operate now on a project of importance. Don't be afraid to ask their help.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Even though things may be coming your way now without too much effort, think of how much more could be accomplished if you really tried!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're very adept today at helping others sort out their affairs in a manner advantageous both to them and yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something of importance that you'll accomplish will have dual benefits. The bonus portion may not be apparent at first.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A good day to take an annoying problem apart a piece at a time. Solutions that have eraded you will be found.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Imagination coupled with initiative should be a very profitable combination for you today. Be firm in all business dealings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll win valuable allies to a cause you're championing. Once your team gets in stride, it will prove a winning combination.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beneficial conditions are developing where your work or career is concerned. Alertness will help you spot them.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) People are apt to discuss things with you today that they're reluctant to talk of to others. You can learn.

Pisces (Feb. 20 - March 20) Material prospects are most promising now. It's highly probable that before the day is out you'll reap gains.

'Scrubber' For Smoke

PARMA, Ohio (AP) — General Motors is installing a new scrubber at its Chevrolet plant here that is expected the company to remove 90 per cent of the sulphur oxides from coal smoke. It has been under development for five years.

AMBULANCE GET-AWAY

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. David Allen received a surprise after their recent wedding when friends in an ambulance service drove them to their honeymoon hideaway in Ambulance. David is in public relations officer at Toronto General Hospital and his wife Joyce is secretary of volunteers at the same hospital.

CP News Roundup

Hydro Rate Boost Hearing Monday

TORONTO (CP) Hydro rate increases that could cost the average householder $3 to $4 a month past year could come into question in public hearings opening Monday before the Ontario Energy Board.

The 24 per cent average increase in bulk rates charged the 89 municipal systems selling power to residential customers is the largest ever requested in the 60 year history of Ontario Hydro.

The 1976 rate proposal also asks for a 20.8 per cent increase in rates charged 38 direct industrial customers.

Last year, Hydro asked for a 15.7 per cent increase in rates but that was trimmed to 12.7 following energy board hearings.

This year's request, to take effect next Jan. would add 12 to 94 monthly to the average residential billing of $14.25 a month, say Hydro calculations.

Trout Stolen

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police have asked their patrols in Caledon, just north of here, to check cars for 12-to 14-inch-long trout as well as drugs and alcohol. Cpl. Peter Bawden said Friday that the specially-fed trout are being stolen from a commercially-run fishing pond. He said there are more than 200 of them, valued at more than $400, were stolen in the last two days. The fish are reared for sale to people who want live fish in their backyard ponds.

Fires Under Control

TORONTO (CP) — The ministry of natural resources reported four forest fires—all under control—burning in northern Ontario. The ministry said the largest blaze last week burned throughout the province during the next two days.

Support Urged

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — J. Peter Kennedy of Cambridge, president of the Ontario Insurance Agents and Brokers Association, told a businessmen's luncheon Friday to work for free enterprise candidates in the coming federal election. He said candidates must be provided with "information about government monopolies and their costs as compared to the advantages of a competitive free enterprise system."

John A. Remembered

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A. M. Fitzgerald, 73, one of the great descendants of the family of Sir John A. Macdonald, attended a commemorative service Friday marking the anniversary of the first prime minister's death. The Kingston man, a former University of Toronto lacrosse star, says he is a fourth-generation cousin of the first prime minister. Sir John A., a native of Scotland, lived in Kingston.

Strike Postponed

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — A strike by 115 Oxford County health unit nurses, represented by Local 40 of the Ontario Nurses Association, has been postponed until after a June 12 mediation meeting, James Roetzel, president of the local, said Friday. The nurses had set June 9 as a strike date. Current salaries range from $7,700 to $9,300 for registered nurses and $6,600 to $10,200 for public health nurses. The local's two year contract expired Dec. 31, 1974.

Pianist Gets Award

TORONTO (CP) — Henri Brassard, 24, a Montreal pianist, has received the second annual Floyd S. Chalmers Young Canadian Performers Award, Toronto Arts Productions announced Friday. The $1,200 award is presented to a performer under 30 who shows ability and dedication to a music career and has appeared in the Young Canadian Performers Series sponsored by Toronto Arts Productions at the St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts.

Davis Gets Advice From School Kids

PETROLIA, Ont. (CP) — Inflation is tough on kids too, a group of St. Philip separate school students told Premier William Davis Friday.

In a brief presented to the premier, the Ontario government was asked, among other things, to grant children equal rights, pay students for attending classes, investigate school candy prices and bring back the strap.

"The suggestions came from students aged eight to 10 years in this community 15 miles southeast of Sarnia.

"Children are adults trapped in smaller bodies," one student told the premier.

"So we should get equal rights."

If children could run for public office they would make the world a better place because they look at things differently from adults, the students suggested.

There wouldn't be as many dropouts if students were paid to go to school, another student said.

"A student who gets quite a few A's, about four or five in a whole year, would get paid $10 a week. A student who gets D or E's would get $2 a week. C's would get $5 and D's $1. A student would get $1 a week for below average marks."

Another student said children are getting ripped off by the cost of candy and treats.

"Bubblegum was two for a penny, now it's one for two cents."

Another student wanted the strap returned to the classroom.

"The problem with children is that you can't teach them to stop as you can an adult. The evidence is that when there is a fight the person should be punished. Bring the strap back to school and use it."

Other students suggested the government should put people in jail for being cruel to their pets and it should make a law to compel children to watch sensible television programs because "some programs show that if you can't settle an argument, you start fighting."

Premier Admits Math Beats Him

PETROLIA, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis and Education Minister Thomas Wells defended Friday the quality of education in Ontario and commended today's students for being brighter than students of their own day.

"I'm literally unable to help my daughter with her math homework," Mr. Davis told students at Lambton Central Collegiate. "I can help with history and a bit of English, but when it comes to math or science, I'm lost."

Mr. Wells said criticism of Ontario's education system is unfair to teachers who have worked to create one of the best systems in the country.

"The product, no matter what some people may say, is better than it has ever been".

Earlier, Premier Davis visited Lambton secondary school in Forest, Ont., about 30 miles north of here, where he told students to be "cautiously optimistic" about future job opportunities.

"I would say that over a period of years, the job situation will be able to meet the demand," he said.

Graduates may not necessarily find jobs in their chosen field, but people in today's labor force have that same problem to overcome, he said.

Senior Citizens May Build Solar Heating System

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local administrators of the federal government's New Horizons funding program are intrigued with an idea proposed to them by pensioner Robert McCleland, 74.

Mr. McCleland, who has been a farmer, electrician, service station operator, aircraft mechanic, machinist, and a building contractor in nearby Richmond, B.C., wants to build a solar heating system for a house. He says he has been interested in solar heating since 1930, when he read a magazine article on the subject.

He said he has been studying reports of solar heating units built by others and has come up with a tentative design. His design would provide three-quarters of the heating for an average house, said Mr. McCleland, and would be simple to build and to maintain.

Kathleen Gose, a British Columbia regional field worker for the New Horizons program, said Mr. McCleland's idea is "fascinating."

"It's hard to say if it will fit the bill, but I sure hope it will," she said.

To qualify for a government grant Mr. McCleland needs at least fellow-workers for the project, a majority of whom must be over 65. New Horizons grants usually are provided to fund recreational or craft activities for the elderly.

Mr. McCleland said he needs a carpenter, an electrician, someone who can handle glass, another person who can operate instruments and people to provide ideas for the project.

He said the plan would set up a system based on "heat exchanger" made of black corrugated roofing. The black surface would absorb infra-red radiation from the sun and heat the water running down the sides in channels.

A sheet of glass over the apparatus would help trap the solar radiation—similar to a greenhouse effect.

Mr. McCleland said the water should reach temperatures of 150 to175 degrees Fahrenheit and would pass through radiators to heat the house.

To save heat for—rainy or overcast days the heat from rest of the infra-red radiation is lost, the water running through the heat exchanger would be stored in a well-insulated 6,000-gallon tank.

The storage tank gradually would become hotter during the summer and would cool off again during the winter.

Mr. McCleland said his group would do much of the basic research required to complete the project since not a great deal of information on solar heating is available.

Committee On Indians Established

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. — A Northern Ontario Indian leader says Thursday the provincial government has agreed to establish an inter-departmental committee to deal with the problems of native people.

Andrew Rickard, president of Grand Council Treaty No. 9 representing 17,000 Indians, said the new native affairs committee will provide access for Indians to Ontario ministries at the deputy and assistant deputy minister level.

The decision to establish the committee came at a meeting Thursday between the Indians and representatives of five provincial ministries, he said.

It is to include representatives from the ministry of the governmental affairs, the provincial secretary for social development, justice and social development, health and the Grand Council's executive committee.

A sub-committee will also be established to provide access to resource personnel in all Ontario government ministries.

Mr. Rickard said establishment of the committee is an alternative to militancy, but if it fails to fulfil expectations, it is up to the people to offer the next alternative."

Two Dredging Trial Defendants Praised by Munro at Reception

HAMILTON (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro used a public reception for Prime Minister Trudeau Friday to praise two men connected with the Hamilton harbor dredging trial now in progress.

Mr. Munro mailed Delbert Hickey and Joseph Lanza, former members of the Hamilton transition, two of "the greatest Liberals" in the Hamilton area.

Among the audience was Catherine Burke, a juror in the harbor trial.

Mr. Hickey and Mr. Lanza have been named in a 10-count indictment against Kenneth Elliott and Reginald Fisher. Elliott, another former harbor commissioner, and Fisher, a local businessman, are charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and attempted forged documents in connection with construction and dredging projects in the harbor in 1970-72.

Mr. Munro is listed as a witness in the indictment but has not been called to testify at the trial.

The labor minister, whose brother was killed in a mine cave-in in the dredging scandal, was praised attending the reception by Mr. Trudeau.

The prime minister said he was proud to have Mr. Munro in his Liberal cabinet.

The labor minister came close to resigning last winter when allegations connected with the dredging scandal and other matters were first reported in the established and the elected later in the cabinet to stay.

The reception came at the end of the first day of a two-day southern Ontario tour by the prime minister.

The trip began in controversy when opposition MPs criticized the prime minister's use of three armed forces helicopters for the tour.

Two of six public events on the tour are political along with five private lunches and meetings. The remaining four public events are non-partisan.

The cost of operating the three $1-million Huey helicopters is estimated at $20,000 for the two days.

Mr. Trudeau began his trip Friday morning with a tour of a Collingwood shipyard where he was greeted by friendly workers and given a set of cufflinks by an elderly security guard. The guard told Mr. Trudeau he made the same presentation at the shipyard to Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911.

Later, the prime minister held an hour-long session with students at Eastview secondary school in Barrie.

The answered questions, some to prolonged applause, and was held as he remarked: "Feel free to drop back any time—even if you don't have a tax expense."

His schedule today is highlighted by a stop at a Liberal rally in Brantford, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon at St. George, 10 miles north of Brantford.

The tour was planned when Ontario Liberals were expecting a spring provincial election. No such election is expected until at least the fall.

Parcel Services Helped by Strikes

OTTAWA — (CP) — Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said Friday that illegal work stoppages by postal workers threaten their job security by helping private couriers compete with the government.

Mr. Mackasey said in an interview that private courier services dealing especially yith parcel delivery would "get a too hold only because of labor unrest and the uncertainty of moving the mail."

One large American company, United Parcel Services, has been considering moving into Canada. Postal officials say the company is looking at the lucrative delivery service between Montreal and Toronto.

In a new development Friday in the continuing dispute between the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) and the government, the public service staff relations board decided to appoint a special mediator to resolve a dispute over suspended and fired workers in Montreal.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, suggested Mr. Mackasey was afraid a mediator would find disciplinary action taken against a Montreal workers was unjustified.

A bitter dispute over the use of non-union casuals in Montreal led to the several hundred one day suspensions, firings of about a dozen workers and suspensions for about 70 others ranging from one to nine months.

The union wants all the workers reinstated while Mr. Mackasey says he will not back down on the dismissals and suspensions.

Referring to complaints from the union that postal workers have been intimidated by supervisors, Mr. Mackasey said such action would not be tolerated.

Program to Process 131,000 Indochina Refugees 'Nightmare'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A significant number of Indochina refugees probably will remain in United States resettlement camps for more than six months and perhaps a year, says a Senate report that calls the processing program a "shambles."

The report, issued Sunday by the Senate subcommittee on refugees, says of the administration's efforts to resettle 131,000 refugees:

"What should have been an orderly, expeditious and relatively straightforward procedure for processing Indochina refugees has turned into a nightmare for officials and refugees alike."

Subcommittee Chairman Edward Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) said "drift and confusion mark the president's program and the activities of the Interagency Task Force and, because of this, the resettlement program is academic at the present."

The report said that in the first week of June, 102,314 of the 131,000 refugees under U.S. control remained in camps to be processed and resettled.

The pace of resettlement improved slightly that week and refugees began moving out of the camps at the rate of 600 to 700 a day. However, it still would take a minimum of six months to clear the camps if the processing continued at that rate, the report said.

"More likely, significant numbers of refugees will be remaining in camps for a longer period of time—in fact some officials estimate that the time frame may be up to a year or more," the report said.

The backlog of refugees waiting on Guam for transportation to the U.S. is posing serious concerns about potential health problems and the approaching typhoon season, the report said.

An interagency spokesman said Sunday 29,000 have left the camps, 54,000 remain in four camps in the U.S. and 43,000 are in staging areas of the western Pacific. Another 2,000 to 4,000 have gone to other countries, although there is no accurate count of these refugees.

The report said the refugee plan was badly implemented, plagued with disorganization and undertaken with little command control in the field.

It added that nearly half of the Vietnamese who fled from country represent parts of the population that, if need be, intended to evacuate, including farmers, small shopkeepers, street vendors, common soldiers and, in one case, an entire fishing village.

U.S. Dollar Dropped
Fall Hike For Arab Oil

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is expected to agree to abandon the United States dollar as the basis for the international oil price structure at its meeting which opens here today.

The absence of the ministers responsible for the petroleum policy of the world's two major exporters—Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar of Iran and Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia—was taken by some observers as an indication that no other major decisions are likely at the three-day meeting.

However, Iran's representative, Mohammed Yeganeh, said the cartel also may decide to raise the price of crude oil by 35 per cent in September, when a nine-month price freeze ends, to compensate for inflation. The current base price is about $10.40 a barrel.

A preliminary meeting of economic experts recommended that OPEC offset further weakening of the U.S. dollar by quoting its prices in the International Monetary Fund's special drawing rights (SDRs), an average of 16 major currencies, or in a similar average of 11 currencies which OPEC proposed but never applied in 1973.

The U.S. dollar has been the base currency on the world oil market since it replaced the pound sterling during the Second World War. Since a switch to a new base would lead to a increase in prices, it was thought likely that the change would not become effective until the fall because of the price freeze.

The ministers also were expected to discuss the possibility of linking a new system of pricing with new negotiations to arrange a conference between the exporting and importing countries.

A preparatory meeting to set up such a conference collapsed in Paris in April because the producers insisted wanted the conference to include all raw materials exported by the underdeveloped countries while the U.S. and the other industrialized countries would only discuss oil.

Recently the U.S. said it is willing to hold separate but parallel discussions of oil and other raw materials. Ali Chalal, head of the Algerian delegation at the Paris talks, told reporters here the door remains open for talks on the key raw materials, including oil.

Lougheed Looks Like Candidate

HALIFAX (CP) — A cheering audience heard Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed say Sunday night that the Atlantic provinces should get all royalties from oil or gas found off their coasts.

The speech wound up a national caucus during weekend that gave would-be candidates for the party leadership a chance to test Atlantic support.

It looked to some of them as if the Alberta premier, though he denies even being interested, will definitely be a candidate.

They watched as Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who will step down next winter, and Mr. Lougheed greeted 750 guests at a reception before a $125-a-plate fund raising dinner.

The turn-out, which included about 60 MPs, exceeded the hopes of Nova Scotia Conservatives who organized it. They showered Mr. Lougheed with congratulations.

He was introduced by Conservative Leader John Buchanan of Nova Scotia but Mr. Stanfield said a few words first, treating the Alberta premier as an old friend.

Both emphasized unity in their remarks.

Mr. Stanfield said earlier in the weekend he would not endorse any candidate. He will formally tell the party before the end of July that he intends to step down, opening the way for a leadership convention expected next February in Ottawa or Winnipeg.

The audience included Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot, who is expected to run and says he expects Mr. Lougheed to be a candidate. Horner supporters say a provincial premier has never become prime minister and Mr. Lougheed's position on oil prices—Alberta wants higher prices—would militate against the party federally.

Mr. Lougheed turned the Alberta position into an incentive for Nova Scotia by suggesting that the province get all royalties from oil or gas found off its coast.

Olympic Winners Drawn

HALIFAX (CP) — The holders of ticket numbers 6349652 and 3701404 won 1 million each Sunday in the fifth Olympic Lottery draw.

The $500,000 second prize went to ticket number 5620712.

The instant millionaires were selected by computer from about six million tickets bought for $10 each. Proceeds from the lottery, which was televised nationally on the CTV network, are used to help finance the 1976 Olympics to be held at Montreal.

Other major prize winners were: Ticket number 2164028—$50,000; number 2232623—$200,000; number 2428205—$150,000; number 2512273—$125,000; number 6118117—$100,000; and number 2585074—$75,000.

Prizes of $50,000 each went to the holders of tickets bearing these five numbers: 6180451, 4144024, 4664811, 5228658, and 3634522.

In addition, each ticket whose last five or six digits matched those of any winning number won $5,000. Four matching final digits won $1,000, and three matching final digits were good for $100.

The draw produced a maximum of 84,000 winners, with up to 5,400 ticket holders winning $100 for each of the 14 major winning ticket numbers based on the last three digits of those seven-digit numbers.

Lottery officials said that one of the million-dollar numbers—3701404—was sold in the Toronto area by the Bank of Montreal. The other million-dollar winning number, 6349652, was sold in the Sherbrooke, Que., area.

Alpine Trains Crash; 36 Dead

MUNICH (AP) — A police spokesman reported today 36 persons killed and 88 injured in the head-on collision of two passenger trains in the Alpine foothills south of Munich.

The police said earlier the toll had risen to 42 dead, but later a spokesman said this incorrect report was due to confusion over the number of persons who had died in hospitals.

It was West Germany's worst train wreck in four years.

"The cars piled up on each other and the locomotives were telescoped," a police spokesman said.

The two commuter trains, filled with people returning from weekend outings, slammed into each other about 6:45 p.m. Sunday on a single-track stretch of the Munich-Bad Toelz line 200 yards from the Warngau village depot, 30 miles from Munich.

A police spokesman said the southbound train failed to stop on a siding at Warngau to let the northbound train go by.

"The northbound train from the mountains to Munich was a special that runs on Sundays and holidays while the southbound train runs every day.

"The cars piled up over each other," said the spokesman. "Many persons were trapped inside, injured or dead."

"I could hear cries for help from people trapped in the wreckage," a village said.

Federal Transportation Minister Kurt Gscheidle went to Warngau to take charge of the investigation. The Bavarian state police and the state prosecutor also were looking into the cause.

At the time of the wreck, the roads were jammed with motorists returning from outings in the mountains and ambulances were delayed by the traffic. The situation was eased by seven helicopters that flew the seriously injured to Munich.

West Germany's worst postwar train wreck occurred in May, 1971, when a train hit a bus and 46 persons were killed.

Area Tourists Believed Safe In Lahr

TRENTON — No Quinte residents in the Belleville-Lahr Friendship flight are believed dead or injured in the head-on collision Sunday of two passenger trains about 20 miles south of Munich, West Germany.

Captain Wayne Cross at CFB Trenton said today that news reports "never mentioned anything about foreigners" on either train.

About 200 Quinte residents, including Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffery, left for Lahr from CFB Trenton late Friday.

The CFB Trenton information officer said as far as he knew no one on the Friendship flight was aboard the trains. He could not be absolutely positive since the organizers of the flight are all in Germany.

Rapist Caught

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Truck driver Peter Samuel Cook has been arrested as the "Cambridge rapist" who terrorized women of this university city since last spring.

Detective Supt. Bernard Holton said Cook, 47, would be charged with raping seven women in the attacks, which period, one attempted rape and with wounding another woman.

Cook was arrested early Sunday after a chase on Jane Sproul, 27, of Kingston, Ont., who came to Cambridge two weeks ago to work as a clinical student at Addenbrooke's hospital was living at the nursing home.

Regiment To Fight Hat Order

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment may do battle again.

It may not be a bloody business, but it's nonetheless serious as far as the unit's commander is concerned.

Lt. Col. John Isrig, commanding officer of the historic militia unit headquartered in Belleville, says defence authorities have ordered the regiment to replace its red berets with green — in keeping with the line of the uniform.

But, there are distinct military and historic reasons for retaining the red beret, the colonel told the annual inspection of his regiment's cadets at the city armory Sunday.

Red was an identifying color of Canadian troops in World War II. Historically, it also denotes a regiment of the line.

"Now they want us to wear the green cap. We're fighting it," he told the cadets.

In an interview, Col. Isrig believed his regiment was the last unit in Ontario wearing the distinctive red berets. "It's the only thing we have to distinguish ourselves other than our hat badges," he said.

He said the regimental officers' association already has passed a resolution protesting the move and he expected it seek support from other sources — including the non-commissioned officers' association and former commanding officers of the regiment.

Among these is Col. Angus Duffy, who was inspecting officer for Sunday's event when combined cadet corps from both Belleville and Madoc.

The cadets — including a band from the Madoc group — staged various displays before the traditional drills and marches. Just as the 90-minute event was ending, a young people fell to the floor in quick succession and had to be removed from the ranks.

Best all-round cadet of the year was J. D. Lykins, who was presented with the annual Jack Kennedy trophy. Best cadet was D. J. Joyce.

Car Rolls Driver Hurt

MARMORA — A 28-year-old man was admitted to hospital with abdominal injuries after his convertible flipped over north of here early Sunday.

Police said Rae A. Redcliffe, RR 1, Havelock, was injured when his 1966 automobile hit a rock and rolled over on County Road 2, five miles north of here, about 4 a.m.

A male passenger escaped injury.

Police said the car was a write-off. Mr. Redcliffe was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Five Hurt In Crash

BEDNERSVILLE — A single car accident Friday night a half-mile east of here sent the driver, 22-year-old Robert Bishop of Belleville and five passenger to Belleville General Hospital for treatment of lacerations. One passenger suffered a broken arm. Picton OPP gave no further details of the mishap and said the accident is still under investigation.

Driver Charged

A 19-year-old Belleville man has been charged with failing to yield to traffic on a through highway in connection with a two-car accident at the corner of East Dundas St. and Herchimer Ave. Saturday.

City police identified the youth today as Christopher Wood, of 69 Herchimer Ave.

Police said Wood was the driver of a southbound car on Herchimer Ave. which received about $750 damage to its front end in the collision.

The second vehicle, which was eastbound on East Dundas St., is owned by Donald Woodcock, 48, of RR6, Belleville and sustained about $250 to its left front and rear fenders.

Air Show Draws 600

PICTON — Close to 600 people turned out Sunday at Picton Airport for "Air day" sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club.

The all-day event featured airplane rides, model aircraft flying, a display of antique cars and an indoor hobby and craft show. Music for the event was provided by the Napanee Pipe Band. The event also featured a display of five homebuilt aircraft, all built, or under construction, by Quinte area residents.

Kiwanis Club member, Lorne Smith, termed the event "very successful" adding over 300 visitors were given airplane rides as part of Air Day.

Mr. Smith said the Kiwanis Club was especially grateful to Harold Bolt of Quinte Skyways who leased the hangar for their displays. Revenue derived from the event will be used in Kiwanis Club projects, Mr. Smith said.

Scott Guest Speaker

Brian Scott, director of the Quinte Dance Centre will be the guest speaker at the Summer School being held by the Ottawa Dance Centre during July.

Mr. Scott, formerly with Sadders Wells and the National Ballet of Canada, has been teaching ballet in Belleville for several years, and is branch director for the Cecchetti Society.

Teachers Endorse Right Of Principals to Strike

The Hastings District of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation went on record Saturday as opposing the section of the new education legislation which prevents principals and vice-principals from striking.

Wayne Sheppard, newly-elected president for the OPSMTF, attended a provincial workshop in Toronto Saturday and supported the federation's protest against this section of the new legislation.

Mr. Sheppard, a teacher at Queen Elizabeth Public School at Trenton, said today the protest would be conveyed to the parent body, the Ontario Teachers Federation, who would then take it to the ministry of education.

Last week secondary school principals in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties voiced their disapproval of this section of the new law. The proposed act would make it illegal for principals and vice-principals to strike along with their teachers, despite membership of both in federations.

A Joyful Noise

A coral group from Kingsway College in Oshawa entertained some of the patients at Belleville General Hospital, Saturday. Under the direction of Wendy Patika, they performed a program of sacred music making from the Renaissance period. During the performance, Lois Stromlom along with her fellow members joined the audience and helped them in song.

Teleprinter Aids Hard-of-Hearing

A communication technique permitting the deaf and hard of hearing to make contact by telephone has come closer to reality for more in the Quinte district.

The possibility came Saturday with presentation of $900 by Belleville Lions Club to the Quinte Club of the Deaf (QCD).

The system involving a teleprinter hookup to household phones has been introduced in the Belleville area in the past two years.

But, it's a gradual process.

The teleprinters pressed into service are machines considered obsolete by government and business communications systems. They are sought out by organizations representing the deaf. When available they are distributed through local groups like QCD.

Already there are five such machines in operation broadening easier contact for five deaf persons in Belleville, Bloomfield and Picton.

They've been installed in the past two years, explained club president Doug Jackson. Hopefully, two more will be available soon in Trenton homes, she said.

The operation is relatively simple. The printers are hooked into the home telephone circuit. Those on the network simply dial each other then communicate by teleprinter instead of by direct conversation.

There's only one hitch. A conversion apparatus known as a coupler is needed to complete the hookup between phone and printer. They're fairly expensive.

That's where the Lions entered the scene.

The service club over the years has been involved with community work for the hard-of-hearing, helping supply hearing aids to students at Sir James Whitney School in Belleville.

The Lions' cheque, presented Saturday at the Kiwanis Centre, by Lion John Lester, was a new service venture for the club.

But its $900 will help buy five of the needed coupling devices. In turn this will speed up the process of installing teleprinters in the homes of more of the 30-member QDC, explained Louise Ford.

The QDC was established last December as a medium for improving the status and opportunities of its members.

Mishap Costly

TRENTON — A Montreal woman was treated for minor injuries and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital after a three-car collision on Highway 401 two miles west of here late Sunday.

Treated for cuts and bruises was Therese Leblanc, 42, of Montreal, a passenger in a car driven by Benoit Tremblay, 19, of Quebec.

Brighton Provincial Police said the vehicle driven by Tremblay slid on the westbound lanes of the highway when it attempted to slow down behind a slow-moving vehicle. It then was in collision with two vehicles parked on the highway shoulder near the Wooler Rd. exit ramp.

Drivers of the two parked cars were waiting for a let-up in heavy rains, police say.

Damage to the Tremblay vehicle is estimated at $1,200. Damage to the other two vehicles, from Quebec and New York City, is estimated at $1,800.

Diving for Dollars

These young people will be among an expected 150 divers who will be swimming for dollars this coming weekend. It's all to do with a project to raise funds for rebuilding of St. Thomas Church. The swim-a-thon is being organized by young people of the parish among them Grant Churcher, 18, (left) Chris Perry 16 and Joe Churcher, 16 watching Valerie Horne, 16, taking a practice dive.

Swim-a-thon Planned for Funds To Rebuild St. Thomas Church

A meeting later this month may decide the future shape of historic St. Thomas Anglican Church.

In the meantime, community awareness of the plight of its parishioners — who lost their century-old landmark church to fire more than a month ago — won plaudits during the weekend from Correctional Services Minister Dr. R. T. Potter.

The MPP is in a position to know the spirit of the response. He's also fund-raising chairman for rebuilding the ruined site.

But, as yet, there is little definite direction his committee can take, said Dr. Potter.

Positive action hinges on a decision by the congregation at the June 24 meeting when an architect's summary on the possibilities of restoration is expected.

"Once the decision is made then we'll get moving on our campaign," said Dr. Potter. "I'm waiting to see what the architect has to say, how much (of the original structure) can be used and then for the decision of the congregation."

In the interim — since the fire April 30 — funds already have been donated from individuals and other church communities in the city.

"I must say that the response of the people of Belleville and other congregations has been fantastic," said Dr. Potter.

"We've had quite a few contributions from around the city."

A steel group to organize help has been the young people of the parish.

A group now is organizing a swim-a-thon set for next Saturday at the Black Hawk Motel pool.

They've gathered about 150 volunteers who'll swim for pledges — a team that includes all age groups from public school students to a city policeman, says Grant Churcher, one of the organizers.

Food businesses around the city have offered supplies for the event, expected to last 12 hours.

Fisherman Sought After Empty Boat Found

GILMOUR — Police today renewed their search for a man missing on Westerndon Lake east of here since Saturday.

The man disappeared after he left to go fishing on the deep, island-dotted lake Saturday afternoon. His empty boat was later found drifting by a resort operator.

Provincial police at Bancroft, directing the search, have not released the name of the missing man.

Police divers searched the area Sunday without success.

The search was first touched off by Carl Austin, an operator of the Four Loons Marina at the end of Westerndon, who operates a water-taxi service on the lake.

Mr. Austin said he was returning from taking passengers down Weslemkoon when he discovered the empty boat floating in the centre of the big lake.

He said it was out of gas but its motor was still in gear.

He towed the boat back to his marina, called provincial police then joined a search of surrounding islands and shorelines which lasted without success until nightfall.

Three Cars Collide

Damage was estimated at $3,200 Saturday night in a three-car crash at Coleman and West Bridge Streets.

Police said a car driven by John VanHuizen, 18, of Frankford, was in collision with an automobile driven by Lloyd George Elder, 45, of Enneston, near Napanee. The VanHuizen car then was in collision with an automobile whose driver, George Masterson, 20, of 8 King St., Belleville, had halted for a red traffic light.

Police said Mr. VanHuizen and two other people were treated for minor injuries.

Mr. VanHuizen has been charged with disobeying a red traffic light.

Tape Deck Taken

A tape-deck, speakers and tapes were stolen from an automobile parked behind a city hotel late Saturday night.

City police report a window had been broken on the automobile — parked at the rear of the Crystal Hotel — to gain entry.

Receives Gavel

At the Kinsmen Annual Ladies Night, held at the Knights of Columbus Hall Saturday night, President-elect Gary Hosey received the president's gavel from the past president, Doug Jackson. More than 120 people attended the festivities to welcome the new president for the coming year. Also presented were two life memberships, to Chris Akey and Bill Macleod. The Kinsman of the year award was given to Barry Quirt.

Collegiate Blaze May Have Been Arson

A fire department investigator has blamed youngsters smoking cigarettes for lighting a fire that damaged a door at Belleville Collegiate Saturday afternoon.

Paul Stephenson, fire inspector, said charred paper was found stuffed in the door. An empty cigarette package and cigarette butts also were found nearby.

Insp. Stephenson said smoke was first detected by a teacher who had returned to the school with students after a bottle collection project.

The official said he believes it was a serious attempt at arson. But the incident could have been more serious if the fire had got out of hand.

City police are also investigating the incident. The door and door frame were charred by the fire.

Espionage: From Ivor Gouzenko's Defection, to the Chinese, the KGB, and the CIA

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Remember Igor Gouzenko? Perhaps not. He was the cipher clerk who fled the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa in late 1945 with decoded messages revealing the huge spy plot which the Russians had inserted during the war just ended to obtain the secrets of the atom bomb.

The repercussions of the contents of Mr. Gouzenko's embassy documents are still felt by suspicious Canadian bureaucrats still under the glow of our wartime "friendship" with the U.S.S.R., would spread into the United States, reveal many more agents-in-place, indirectly lead to the trial and execution of the Rosenbergs in 1952.

From Mr. Gouzenko's revelations and stolen Soviet Embassy records would come future openings in a related spy hunt in Britain, leading in turn to the flight of Kim Philby to East Germany, a top atomic scientist working for the time for Moscow.

As a result of these events of almost 30 years ago, Ottawa placed its counterpart spy puzzle, latent in Washington, has always felt very uneasy about spy revelations in Ottawa.

Many times over the years since Gouzenko, Canadian leaches under suspicion in Commonwealth embassies have been quietly checked-out by the super-efficient RCMP and just as quietly asked to leave the country.

This happened a few weeks ago when Kim Ching-an, listed as Third Secretary (Press) of the Embassy of the People's Republic of China was asked to leave. The reason, given by the press not the government, was for allegedly carrying $70,000 in U.S. funds from the Communist Chinese delegation in Washington to the embassy here in pay for subversion operations inside the Philippines.

But the "no comment" era about outside spies in Canada seems to so last year with published allegations that the CIA operates in Canada through senior executives of multi-national companies and CIA staff members attached to the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa.

Other news stories, based on leaks, charged the CIA was working closely with Canada's RCMP in the exclusion of the FBI. The FBI has regularly placed and advised officials in Canada, liaising with local police authorities here on the international movements of criminals and drug pushers.

To months statement of Parliament and much of the press, the CIA roles have seemed like an overspill of the domestic American problem of the Thirties era when CIA operates pre-emptied the traditional police and surveillance roles of the FBI.

A small unit of CIA, provide by few members, reportedly revealed to the press he had infiltrated a very active Canadian left wing organization under CIA contract last year.

The result has been several statements by Attorney-General Warren Allmand about alleged CIA operations inside Canada which he claims when they happen, have Ottawa's approval.

Ongoing news stories seem to suggest otherwise. The latest allegation is that former South Vietnamese Lt.-Gen. Van Quang, identified by U.S. journalists, prosecutors and intelligence as the boss of former President Thieu's dope and security apparatus, has been cleared quickly by the CIA, through a U.S. Embassy here and sent into safety here.

A small unit of South Vietnamese commonly already exited in Ottawa under a Moscow treat. They own real estate and restaurants which the CIA has been sequestered among them.

Parliament and the press want him out now and want him out fast. We have a dilemma in electing him since Canadian immigration has grants asylum to all political refugees with few strings attached.

The Quang case and its alleged CIA connection underscore how far the pendulum of public opinion has swung from the time of the Gouzenko affair and the cold war against Communism.

The KGB is just as busy here doing Moscow's dirty work. Stanislav Levchenko, a former Russian Gelvanov, has been released re-admission in Canada for "activities unrelated to his work as a professional journalist."

But with the country worry about all kinds of U.S. influence on Canadian affairs these days, it's the CIA in Canada, not the KGB which everyone wants investigated.

Ideology Propounded

A Toronto publication called "Forward" has been forwarded to us by a reader who believes in its self-proclaimed credo that it is "published in the interests of working people." In fact, for the most part, it proclaims the interests of the political left and especially the Communist world.

The tenor of its language confirms that: a picture for instance of a U.S.-made Hawk missile launcher in Israel which, the caption reads, "represents imperialist interests in the Middle East, while the Arab people are the victims of colonialism."

Even more revealing, given the views set out in recent correspondence to this newspaper, is confirmation of left wing influence in the universities and its propagation through the New Democratic Party.

On a page devoted to politics in education there is this item: "The United Left slate has consolidated its sweeping victory in the York University student council elections by winning a second election for the key post of student council president."

And this: "Several prominent leaders of the student movement in Ontario, including three university student council presidents, one of them the president of the National Union of Students, participated in the Forward Forum" March 27.

Among the speakers were members of the Socialist League, and there was this, from Forward's report of the proceedings: Lindal and Stuch (student spokesmen) "described the successful election campaigns that had been organized on the Brock and York campuses by the Brock Socialist Students' Coalition and the York United Left slate."

There is an article referring to an NDP regional policy conference in Toronto in April and to a committee responsible for promoting the interests of the NDP in Metro Toronto politics — what it calls "important steps forward in raising activism and class politics at the local level."

The article noted the conference "marked the entry of new forces from emerging struggles into the NDP," with "activists in the teachers, daycare and native peoples movements" playing "important roles in leading off the workshops."

Readers may draw their own conclusions from the foregoing, but it is clear evidence of the growth of left wing influence in a variety of disciplines.

Significantly, included in the lobbying on social issues being carried out by Forward magazine is the sale of lapel buttons calling for amnesty for Dr. Morgentaler (whom Prime Minister Trudeau in Belleville said had broken the abortion law) and for repeal of those laws.

Concerns: Then and Now

Canadian Magazine recently published a seven-page list of readers' beefs. They made interesting reading, from westerners who have no use for Quebec to a Quebecer who has no use for "G. d. . . . mm Englishmen," to others who say they hate people who are prejudiced while carefully hiding their own prejudices, to others who let it all hang out. They don't like humanists, or immigrants who still speak their own language or wear their native costumes, or they don't like dogs, and what they do to people's lawns, and so on.

There is a Grade 8 English student in Laval who complains of paper-thin hamburgers in his cafeteria, and perhaps he may be excused. But there isn't a beef as eloquent as the one that leads off Barry Broadfoot's book, the Lost Years, on the subject of the Depression of the Thirties that so few of our young people know anything about.

"The Dirty Thirties. Just put in your book that you met Henry Cochrane and he's 78 years old. Might say I never took a backward step in my life until that Depression whipped me, took away my wife, my home, a section of good land back in Saskatchewan. Let me with nothing: Write that down."

And we might suggest, for the rest of us, remember it.

"It must have been a lot tougher without the shields!"

"It must have been a lot tougher without the shields!"

The Incessant Demand for 'More' Branded by Provincial Minister

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — One of the most noteworthy speeches out of the government this year was by Sidney Handelman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, to the Trust Companies Association.

It was on inflation and you probably are aware of it for it was widely commented on.

The speech, however, was really stronger than any comment or report could bring out, and he gave to its true flavor I pass on the following few paragraphs to offer.

"This speech is about greed. Alexander Pickens, in writing about this subject said: 'It is economic slavery, the savage struggle for a crunch, that has converted mankind into wolves and sheep.'

"That's how many of us will remember 1973—the year of economic pillage and rape—not by corporations or abstract ideas, but by individual classes and groups of individuals at all levels of society.

"Of course, we don't normally call it greed. It's such a distasteful word. So we tend to justify it. And during the past decade, a fine polish of respectability has been put on the legitimate demand for more.

"One group says: 'We have a right to higher wages because we're important to the economy.' Another says 'I run the company and I work longer hours. With my responsibility, I deserve more.' Or: 'Running for federal parliament is risky. I might be thrown out. So I should get more now.'

"All these little Olivers standing before the bar of society, scraping their bowls and asking for more.

"But the Oliver Twist of Dickens was different in one very important respect—he really was poor. In Ontario in 1975, we are poor perhaps by the latest standard of Irving in the world. And the strongest demands are coming from those who already have a good share of that standard—and who are already affluent in the public's eyes and who can already afford all that they really need.

"It is, of course, fully to justify an inflationary thesis at the expense of the system. In our saner moments we all recognize that no one gets ahead if we all try to get ahead of each other. But reason is not prevailing over personal greed.

"Wage settlements including 6 per cent increases—at fat executive raises quickly assumed to be in the boardrooms—are irresponsible. At a time like this when restraint is so necessary, they are practically obscene.

"Rapid growth and moderate inflation help to gloss over the conflicts, but when the economy slows, the tendency is to make sure it affects someone else—anyone and but myself.

"The fear of falling behind, of failing to get one's share, is overwhelming just as Dickens says. And it is just this kind of pillage that creates further tension, instability and inflation.

"The result is an ascending spiral of jealousy, insecurity and self-interest which is much more than a cause of inflation than Arab oil or multi-national oligopoly."

Does that need no further comment!

A Matter of Semantics

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Mr. McCullagh wrote to The Kingston Whig-Standard some time ago complaining about the one-sidedness of the editorial from the New York Times News Service.

But what is one to think about the Belleville Intelligencer as an editor who would permit publication in his paper of alleged quotations without the slightest indication of the wide gaps or speeches from which the quotations are derived ("Lenin's Last Speech," Intelligencer May 28,75)?

It smacks of the worst kind of yellow journalism which I believe used to be referred to as "the cream". The same could be said of the so-called "Dusseldorf Rules" which, from Hitler's side, would have seemed to have the same genesis as the notorious "Protocols of Zion" and the same motivation, the promotion of hatred.

I. GROVES,
Kingston.

Editor's note: The quote in the letter published May 28, under the headline of "Lenin's Last Speech" was from Lenin's Last Revolution, said to have been obtained by Allan Dulles at Dusseldorf in 1919, they have been published widely.

Processing Industries Are Hit Hard by Unemployment

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Canada's unemployment rate is expected to average 7.5 per cent of the labor force, for the full year 1975.

That may not seem bad when predictions for the United States are pushing nearer 9 per cent. And, of course, it's low compared to the proportion of people who were out of work in the Depression of the 1930s.

Behind that average figure, however, there are some extensively high jobless rates for certain trades and certain age groups. For example:

—In processing occupations, the jobless rate rose to 23 per cent for the first quarter of 1975, from an average of 18 per cent throughout 1974. These are the processing, machining and product fabricating, assembling and repairing trades, and are concentrated in the durable-goods industries such as the manufacture of cars and appliances.

—For young men up to the age of 23, the unemployment rate was 18.8 per cent in April, up from an average of 13.9 per cent in January-March and 10.8 per cent for 1974 as a whole.

It would be reasonably to be able to explain away the sharp rise in unemployment by blaming it on the large number of new entrants into the labor force.

Certainly that's a factor. Canada's labor force has been expanding at an annual rate of 3.4 per cent so far in the 1970s—or exactly twice the annual average growth in the early 1950s.

But 1975's unemployment is primarily the result of a drop in the number of jobs, which in turn results from a decline in the growth of business investment.

The first industries to be hit by reduced demand in this kind of recession are the cost-sensitive and durable-goods industries.

And the first workers to be laid off are the youngest—there with the least experience and the lowest seniority.

This means that an increasing number of men, in all age groups, have been dropped out of the labor force, evidently in discouragement at the lack of jobs.

This has been offset by a much higher degree of female participation in the labor force, as more and more women leave home and take jobs to keep the family income up.

(The female employment rate is at one because many women seek jobs in the service industries, where business has been relatively unaffected by recession.)

Women have been steadily increasing their share of the labor force. In 1965, they represented 32.8 per cent of the total. By last year, they accounted for 39.7 per cent.

The much more liberal terms of unemployment insurance that were introduced in 1971 have obviously had the effect of increasing the number of unemployed—to what extent, it's impossible to say.

It's no secret that some people are content to live on UI benefits, as long as possible without looking for a job.

Other people, not so really considered to be unemployed—such as older workers recently retired on pensions—are today counted as job-seekers because they are eligible for UI benefits.

But legitimate job-seekers are taking advantage of today's extended UI benefits to stay long enough for the ideal job, rather than accepting the first satisfactory offer that comes along.

To sum up, then, the long-term prospect is that a higher proportion of Canadians will be unemployed—or at least unofficially or jobless—than at any time in recent history.

The unemployment rate so far in the 1970s has averaged 5.9 per cent, compared with an average of 4.7 per cent in the early 1950s—and the chances of reversing that trend seem slim.

In the lighter job market of today and tomorrow, it's better—generally speaking—to be a woman with skills available in service and sales occupations, than to be a young man with an eye on heavy industry.

Christianity: Two Views

Jesus to Tennessee Ernie

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Are we a Christian society, you ask? (May 30, 1975). Can there be any doubt that we are? The evidence for the affirmative is all around us. Twenty one churches, as against only one synagogue, all well manned by priests, pastors, ministers and deacons. Services are held in each of these at least once a week, on Sundays, to allow for a proper profession of allegiance to the Lord, and a suitably humble acceptance of the Message.

I think the problem is a simple one really. Jesus was wrong about compassion. He didn't foresee our vices and weaknesses and he entirely overlooked the possibility that His brothers and Sisters might learn to think and act differently. (He probably should have arranged with his father to have us prepared by aspens, instead of by the present method, thus eliminating the pornography problem.) The fact that Jesus was not a politician, a theologian or a dispassionate observer may explain his ignorance of the real problems confounding citizens.

It was, after all, awfully easy for those early Christians to talk about loving your neighbors, forgiving your enemies, thinking for justice, regarding all men as brothers, refusing social distinctions and all that sort of humanitarian stuff. They had nothing to lose. The poor and oppressed can easily plead like that, mouthing platitudes and demanding change, because for them, the only way is up. We are different, and the world has certainly become much more complex. It is therefore apparent that we have condemned Jesus to death in stained glass, and that we have sent Tennessee Ernie Ford and Anita Bryant (the Sunshine Girl) to positions of priestly prominence.

Religion: Church or Outdoor?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

When economic and social problems beset the world, the Protestant work ethic and religion are trotted out as sure remedies for our troubles. Words like sacrifice, renewal and faith are emphasized in speeches by politicians, personnel from the pulpit and after-dinner speakers. In other words, an acquiescent labor force, satisfied by regular doses of religious cant would correct the evils of over-indulgence we subscribe to six days out of every seven.

The Protestant work ethic dates to the Victorian Age and pulls it came from. What we need, is not another dose of that work ethic calculated to help one another, to provide human dignity and to make Christianity the very antipathy of a belief in God. Man's of state is certainly not the answer to our problems.

If the church, like work, is to play a role in our country, it must be relevant to the needs of the individual and to society as a whole. Unemployed people and faith have to be built on stronger foundations than the convenience of necessity.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

Editor's note: Unemployment insurance is being criticized as to "help one another . . . provide the basics." We have received various government make-work projects, from the Ford Plan to work to make these grants possible, to help those who can't, don't, or won't work.

Outlet Park Plans Nature Program

OUTLET PARK — Plans are under way for the fifth consecutive season for the summer's interpretative program at Outlet and Sandbanks Provincial Park, says park superintendent, Robert Davison.

Heading up this year's program is Richard Becknoy of Carp, Ont.

Mr. Davison says this year's interpretative program will include Wednesday and Saturday evening programs at the park's amphitheatre, consisting of films and slides. There will also be talks on wildlife and features on the two popular parks as well as conducted nature hikes.

A special display area depicting some of the park's natural history will be included in the program this year.

Mr. Davison adds the interpretative program is geared to stimulate interest in the park's natural history and over the years has been responsible for an increasing awareness of the local flora and fauna.

Head-on Crash Sends Four to Hospital

A two-car head-on crash just south of Roslin on Highway 37 Sunday night sent four people to hospital, one of them in serious condition.

Zdravko Pulmic, 50, of Agincourt, Ont., the driver of a station wagon involved in the mishap, is in intensive care at Belleville General Hospital with multiple injuries, including a ruptured spleen.

His wife, Helen, suffered a fractured pelvis.

Charles McFadden, 21, RR1, Corbyville, was treated for minor injuries and released. He has been charged with careless driving, police said.

Two passengers in his car also were injured — Gary Craig, 19, of 34 Tice Cres., Belleville, sustained leg and face injuries; Denise Guthrie, 14, of 71 East College St., had leg injuries.

Police estimated the damage in the crash, which occurred during early-night rain, at about $4,000.

Machine Overheats

PICTON — Picton firemen were called to 153 Main St. here at 12:30 a.m. Sunday when fire broke out in a shooting gallery machine at the Globe Bowl-O-Drome.

A spokesman gave defective wiring in the machine as the cause for the fire which caused an undetermined amount of smoke damage to the building.

Regiment Reunited

BANCROFT — One hundred and fifty veterans of the 14th regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery met in Bancroft this weekend for a reunion.

The men who served in Scotland, England, Normandy, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany during the Second World War came to Bancroft from the United States, Manitoba and Nova Scotia as well as most parts of Ontario.

Two previous reunions of the regiment have been held before, one in Montreal in 1967 and in Toronto in 1974.

The Bancroft reunion was organized by local resident Earl O'Shaugnessey who served with the regiment in the 1940-1945 campaign.

During a remembrance service Sunday, Bancroft Legion 381 padre, George Elson told the regimental members that the effort and sacrifice of soldiers during the Second World War could result in true "brotherly love which would prevent any more war and which would cause a total world peace."

The remembrance service concluded with the "last post" and moments of silence for the 48 men of the regiment who fell during the European campaign.

Music, Games and Sports Part of Canada Day Fare

TRENTON — Something for all members of the family is the theme adopted for the Quinte Canada Day celebration to be held here at Crumlin Park on Tuesday, July 1.

Giving leadership to the event, the Trenton Rotary Club has had the assurance of the usual assistance from the Trenton Lions Club, the Trenton Kiwanis Club and a number of other community — minded groups.

This year, for the first time, Rotary will receive the support of Middleton Park council with Capt. Jim Forestell as mayor.

The Women's Auxiliary at Canadian Forces Base Trenton also helping and has offered to sponsor an art and crafts display in the main lobby of the Community Gardens.

As well, planners said they look forward to the CFB Trenton Women's Corps participating in a flag-raising ceremony as a feature attraction of the celebration.

Next weekend all of those interested in the implementation of the various events of the celebration get together to finalize the official program.

Entertainment so far includes diversified sports events to run throughout the day, a parachute jumping display, the second annual international inner tube race over a three-quarters-of-a-mile course at the mouth of the Trent River and a dog show with numerous entries. In addition visitors can expect a kitie band, barber shop quartet and other musical groups performing during the celebration.

In emphasizing the celebration is open to all families in the quinte region, Rotary club's committee chairman Jim Coad says there is no admission charge to the park and while visitors are being encouraged to bring picnic style lunches with them, food will be available at booths on the grounds operated by church groups.

Four Hurt In Crash

CONSECON — Four persons were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon following a two-car collision at the intersection of County Rd. 1 and Highway 33 near here.

OPP Picton said the accident, which resulted $4,000 damage occurred when a car driven by a 14-year-old juvenile of Agincourt missed a stop sign and collided with a northbound vehicle driven John Lamie, 61, of Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Lambie and his wife, Minnie, 71, were taken to hospital with cuts and bruises.

The juvenile driver and a passenger were treated from minor injuries.

Damage to the Lambie car was estimated at $3,000 and damage to the second vehicle at $1,000.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors —and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO YOU EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. Offenders Go to Work

(Hunter) — A pilot scheme to allow courts to sentence criminals to do community work instead of sending them to prison has been so successful that it is to be extended to cover all of England and Wales, the home office has announced.

The home office has published a report showing that many offenders prefer to do community work instead of going to prison and that the idea is supported by probation officers, judges and magistrates.

In several areas of England, criminals can be sentenced to do up to 240 hours community work instead of prison, if they agree.

The work is done in the offender's spare time and involves jobs like painting and decorating homes for the aged, nature conservation work and helping to build children's adventure playgrounds.

One of the areas in which the scheme has been tested is Inner London, where 701 community service orders were made on 561 offenders, in the two years up to January, 1975.

In its first year of operation, it saved London taxpayers $600,000 on the bill for prison and family support.

Most of the orders were given to persons between 17 and 25. Their crimes included arson, assault, theft and drug offenses, but most were against property.

George Pratt, inner London's deputy chief probation officer, said: "Many are sentences without shame. In this, offenders are not ashamed to do the tasks and get something out of it too in the way of satisfaction.

"The scheme is telling us a lot about offenders. If you break the cycle of court appearances followed by prison and get them into another socially acceptable cycle you have some hope of making them change."

In court, probation officers can recommend to magistrates that community service orders be substituted for prison terms.

If an order is made, the probation officer selects a type of work especially suitable to the offender.

WORK VARIES

The work may be carpentry, painting and decorating, gardening or even running a youth club.

Landowner Neil Anderson, who has spent eight of his 38 years in prison, was recently sentenced to 120 hours of community work for a shop-breaking offence.

He said: "I think it's a fantastic alternative to prison. I never expected to be given any chance like this."

He is helping to paint a nostel for drug addicts.

Like many offenders, Anderson is supervised by members of voluntary organizations who report to the probation service on how well the offender is doing his work.

A home office spokesman said: "We hope that these sentences will cover the whole of England and Wales by the end of the year."

He said 1,192 offenders were sentenced to do community work in the first 18 months of the scheme up to the middle of 1974.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Locksmiths Spent Years Trying to Break into Homes

TORONTO (CP) — The proprietors of B Safe Home Safety Devices consider themselves eminently qualified to sell and install locks.

Jack Evans and Marvin (Curly) Anderson have prison records to prove they are capable of getting past most locked doors.

"After spending many years contriving to break into homes, it occurred to me that these same talents could be used to teach people how to foil characters like me," Mr. Anderson said.

But the partners are having more trouble with lock-makers now than in the bad old days.

They spotted a $5 chain lock that fires out to the door frame, permitting the door to be opened a few inches, but requires a key to open it. It was a popular model and they ordered 18 of them from a wholesaler.

"These locks are worse than nothing at all as they woo the householder into a false sense of security," he said.

The president of the company making the locks explained that, like all cheap locks, they are mass-produced and there may be dozens of owners with identical keys.

In any case, said Leonard Passarello, president of the Association of Ontario Locksmiths, chain locks are vulnerable.

"Once the door is open an inch or two, anyone weighing more than 100 pounds can push it open. If I had my way, I'd have all chain locks off the market."

Of the province's 200 locksmiths, 128 are members of the association, which is seeking legislation to establish standards for the industry.

Randy Lancelot, projects officer of the misleading-advertising division of the federal ministry of consumer and corporate affairs, said a charge of false advertising is the only government weapon against manufacturers of unsafe locks.

But price does not necessarily ensure safety.

Jo Winkler, a representative of a company that produces a type of lock for which each individual has his own registered key, said: "You can buy a $7 or a $75 lock and still get no security."

Halifax Studies Commuter Ferry

HALIFAX (CP) — Two men from cross-harbor Dartmouth are urging local governments to start a feasibility study of a mobile transit ferry as vice to bring commuters to the metropolitan area from a burgeoning suburb to the north.

William Sampson and Robert Scott have lately taken their idea to Halifax city council, which has been wrestling with the problem of traffic congestion.

Their hybrid is "high-speed" — they want to use a hovercraft to bring workers from Bedford-Sackville, an area with about 20,000 people several miles away from peninsular Halifax, across 7.4 miles of Bedford Basin.

As the pair of entrepreneurs see it, Samson Hovercraft Services, a company they have incorporated, can transport thousands of city workers across the basin in 10 to 12 minutes in a 58 passenger English made craft.

Their explanation to Alderman Jerry Lawrence, who has taken up their cause, is that enough people can be brought to work each day at a cost of around 55 to 60 cents one way, to ease considerably the rush-hour traffic between Bedford-Sackville and the city peninsula.

The cost of the trip is based on an estimated break-even basis of 7.7 cents a mile.

The two men have already been promised a feasibility study at a cost of $4,000 by Hovertravel Ltd., a British firm in the passenger service field, that can be completed within six weeks.

Mr. Sampson said he and his partner plan to operate the service if it proves feasible by purchasing, for $1.5 million, or leasing, at a cheaper price, a British-built craft.

Hovercraft are used extensively for travel and commuting in Europe but Canada has so far made limited use of the vehicle, mainly in Vancouver, the Mackenzie Delta and in Quebec.

Stay afloat all season long.

You've survived a whole Canadian winter. Be sure you survive the summer, too. We urge everyone to have and use a life-jacket—in, on or near the water. We've tested hundreds over the years, and the ones we've approved carry our tag of certification. Look for our label whenever you buy or use a life-jacket and be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions for its use and care. And, remember, life-jackets can do a lot for children too, but no life-jacket can take the place of adult supervision. Stay afloat all season long, even if you're cut adrift. Use a life-jacket—the wide awake fashion for the lazy days of summer.
